Metropole, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Gordon Jefferson.—A crowded audience on Monday welcomed that strong drama of the late Henry Pettitt, Hands Across the Sea. Mr. Cecil A. Collins is an excellent representative of the hero, Jack Dudley, and carries the audience with him in every scene; Miss Beatrice Whitney is well suited as his sweetheart, Lilian Melford; Mr. Forrester Harvey acts with humour as Tom Bassett, and the lively Lucy Nettleford is played with much gaiety by Miss Lilla Nordon; Mr. Adam Alexander as the scheming farmer, Joseph Stillwood, and Mr. C. Clifton Boyne as his unscrupulous son, contribute two clever studies; a breezy performance is the Dick Melford of Mr. Frank Woodville; Mr. Clive Currie as Jean de Lussac, Mr. Edmund Beresford as Paul de Renal, and Miss Marjorie Davenport as Mme. Vallorie, give a vivid picture of the principals in a gambling house. The numerous other characters are well played, and the play is most effectively staged.

Lyceum.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—No more popular artist than Mr. Charles Mackey appears in the Govan theatre, and in Rollicking Rory he is excellently suited. Good houses have ruled this week, and the popular young comedian and his company have been most heartily received. The cast is the same as at the Royal Princess's last week.

Empire.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Manners.—A first-class company is booked here this week, the chief attraction being Horace Goldin, illusionist, in conjunction with Jeanne Fransioli and company; Fisher White's company, including Mr. Scott Craven and Miss Margaret Omar, submit a fine dramatic piece entitled a Royal Heart; the songs of Charles R. Whittle are amusing; and the Maples, in their original comedy act, How to Treat a Burglar, are a decided success; Julia Kent and Alec Keith, duologue artists; Mlle. Theresa Cerutti, classical dancer; the Cumberlands, acrobatic cyclists; Nellie Ganthony, society entertainer; Fred Lincoln, in successful scena, My Pal Jemmy; and the American Bioscope are other attractions.

Zoo-Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Councillor E. H. Bostock; Assistant-Manager, Mr. E. H. A. Bostock.—The principal item on the programme here is the sketch, The Cruise of H.M.S. Victory, in which there is lots of fun, and plenty of smart songs and dances. Misses Nellie Grant and Flo Stanley, and Messrs. Arthur Watson, Jack Roberts, M. Rufus, and H. Watson ably sustain the leading parts. Harry Conlin, whose panto engagements have made him a big favourite here, is again going strong in his female impersonation; Kitty Colyer is a pleasing comedienne, and an acrobatic dancer of special merit; the three Orros give a first-rate gymnastic turn on the silver chains; Simms and Simms as musical comedians are great favourites, and their act is heartily applauded; Frank Harwood gives a clever and dramatic study of a burglar; Fanny Humber takes well in a musical and dancing turn; Rosie Coleman is a clever comedienne and smart dancer; Probyn and Bates are amusing in a comedy act. The Bioscope concludes a varied and interesting programme.

Pavilion, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Evan Good.—Mrs. Lewis Waller tops the bill here with a sketch, The Admiral's Lady, in which this clever actress has a first-rate comedy part as Lady Jane Rumblow. She is particularly well supported by the members of her company, and the little play goes splendidly; Fred Russell and his amusing figure Coster Joe come in a new setting this time, and in addition to the clever ventriloquism which was always a feature, many new and novel effects have been introduced; Sidney Dolf gives a smart singing, juggling, and sleight-of-hand turn, which goes well; Hal Forde's songs are up to date, but he still relies on his "Domesday Book" for an encore; Kendrick and Laura contribute a smart society entertainment; Ruby Norton, comedienne, Jeanette Hall, the lady baritone, and that eccentric comedian, Tatten Hall, all ably sustain their share of the performance. Though appearing late in the evening, Pyck, Tholl, and Taylor were accorded a hearty reception, and after their smart singing and dancing turn, the enthusiasm of the audience was most gratifying, and was really well deserved.

Palace.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager Mr. Harry McKelvie.—Fred Karno's company in The Dandy Thieves occupies the greater part of the programme here, and with George Hestor as Sergt. Lightning the fun never flags; Ernest Freshwater as Lord Easem and Aggie Morris as Lady Maud also do well, and the part of Fritz is cleverly played by T. Newman. Les Rallis give their smart turn, The Artist and the Monkey, which proves highly popular; Billie Burford takes well, her chorus songs being tuneful and cleverly sung; Ted Saunders gives a number of life-like imitations of well-known variety artists; the New Macs, in song, dance, patter, and with their boxing bout to finish up, are greater favourites than ever, and deservedly so; Witty Will Wicker ably deputises for an absent turn, and a lady vocalist also sang well as an extra.

Coliseum.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette.—The top item this week is the Boisset Troupe in The Brick-layers; The Eight Stella Girls give elegant displays of their skill in dancing; Ella Retford is as great a favourite as ever; Verno and Voyce, in their amusing burlesque, The Fly-Far Man, utter some good jokes; Charlene and Charlene combine entertaining music and daring jugglery; Dion Wade is a successful mimic; the Athlones do some clever acrobatic feats; Nettie Starr is a charming comedienne and dancer; and the American Bioscope agreeably fills up intervals.

Gaiety, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. Harry Bowerman.—Houston a marvellous magician, is the principal artist here. The Parcz Trio of lady instrumentalists; Cliffe and Vanstan, with their amusing comedy duologue; Dan Hendy, a good dancing and acrobatic turn; and Ned Graydon, instrumentalist, are also on the bill, which is completed by pictures on the Bioscope.

Panopticon.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. A. E. Pickard.—George Arrott, character comedian and dancer, is the leading turn here. The contribution by Hal Crouese is received with marked approval; Miss Ada Brogden, soprano, renders several songs in artistic fashion; George Millard, comedian, completes the variety items, and the Bioscope pictures are interesting.

GLOSSOP.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spencer. — Mr. T. Edward Ward's company is here this week with Second to None. The apparently stern, but generous-hearted, Sir Reginald Greystone, V.C., Colonel of the Scots Greys, is adequately portrayed by Mr. Theo Balfour; Mr. Len Williams as Harry and Mr. Chas. Halling as Frank Wilding, the dashing nephews of the Colonel, are admirable; Lieut. Archie Ballater, the light-hearted officer, is admirably sustained by Mr. Arthur D. Layland; and Mr. J. G. Maine is fully alive to his responsibilities as Sergt. Jack Horsman. Private Flutters and Footman Joe Ruggles are impersonated by Mr. Louis Edmonds and Mr. Allan Carruthers, who keep the house convulsed with laughter; Nora, the housemaid at the Manor, is vivaciously represented by Miss Clarrie Yandell; the part of Nell Greystone is portrayed with grace and dignity by Miss Dorothy Clifton; and that of her sister May is tastefully represented by Miss Mary Mallalieu. Mr. Frank Austin adequately plays Inspector Trueman, the police officer.

GLOUCESTER. — Palace. — Owners, Messrs. Poole's Theatres, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. C. W. Poole.—The Piccollinis (midgets) prove a clever and entertaining turn; Dot Hardy, in low-comedy songs, scores unmistakably; Lloyd Morgan, light comedian, retires to great applause; and Mlle. Du Roche sings tastefully. Harry Blake goes well with a "dame" song and an impersonation of "the man in the moon"; Winnie Derson shows hereditary talent; Harry Anderson is willingly assisted by the audience with his chorus songs; Miss Ada Gatley, lady juggler and wire walker, is exceptionally good; and Stanley's Urchins give a pleasing entertainment. Mr. Will English, coloured comedian, provides a humorous interlude.

King's Theatre.—Poole's Theatres, Ltd.; Acting Manager, Mr. R. T. Rea.—Animated pictures and illustrated songs are finding favour here. Miss Gertie Nicholas is the vocalist.

Public Baths. — Fabro's animated singing and talking pictures and a variety entertainment find favour here. Amongst those billed are Ernie Mayne, Tom Graves, and Pete Hampton.

GOOLE.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Fred Greaves.—This week Mr. Laurence Brough and company are paying a visit with The Lady of Ostend. Miss K. Develin in the title-rôle plays with gaiety, and is especially pleasing. Mr. A. Cheshire keeps the house in roars of laughter by his inimitable acting as Dick Whortles; Mr. B. Bolder acts in an easy, buoyant manner as Joseph Carbury; Mr. Laurence Brough gives an excellent representation of Le Baron de Longueville; Mr. W. Macready is highly amusing as Toby Knockitt; and Mr. R. Harvey is a capital John Humbert. Miss B. Glyn is highly successful as Dorothy Whortles; Miss Edith Adeson is a delightful Jane; Matilda Carbury is cleverly portrayed by Miss B. Harrision; and Miss A. Leigh charmingly portrays Millie Grace. The Saucy Sally was presented on Thursday.

GREAT YARMOUTH.—Royal Aquarium.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—The stirring play Who is She? is occupying the boards here this week. Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson is excellent as the Prince; Who is She has a clever exponent in Miss Violet Carlyle; Mr. Graham Woods plays well as King Vladimir; Miss Mabel Rignold is a delightful Little King, Mr. Sinclair Holden a good Captain Gower, Mr. Arthur McCulloch a soldierly Sergeant Metroff, Mr. J. Russell Boyne an excellent Chinaman, and Miss Mary Collier a vivacious Garette.

Theatre Royal.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—Excellent pictures are being shown on the kaleidograph bioscope, and are interspersed with some good variety turns, including Miss May Neal, in excellent songs; Bob Down, a funny comedian; the Staffords, in an entertaining comedy duologue; Two Beatrices, engaging duettists and dancers; and Ward and Wylie, who are well received in their duologue entitled That's the Way it's Done.

Hippodrome.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. George Gilbert.—An excellent programme is presented here this week. The Seven Perezoffs are exceptionally clever jugglers; Jessie, the lady Scotch comedienne, is very popular; the Voca Duo are well received in operatic scenas; Doodles and company appear in a side-splitting sketch entitled Love in All Corners; Harry Tomlin is a pleasing vocalist; Leo, the ventriloquist, is much appreciated; and Harry Reynolds' Minstrel Quintette are excellent.

GREENOCK. — Alexandra Theatre, Ltd. — Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Directors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—The Thief was presented here on Monday for the first time by Mr. George Alexander's company. Mr. Stephen T. Ewart's reading of Richard Chelford made considerable impression. He was ably supported by Miss May Congdon in the rôle of Marise Chelford; Mr. Gerald Ames fills with credit the rôle of Raymond Leyton; and Miss Mary Dibley is all that could be desired as Isabel Leyton. The part of Harold Leyton is in the able hands of Mr. Alfred Lugg; and Mr. Cyril Cattley is satisfactory as Mr. Protheroe. The play is preceded by Too Happy by Half, in which Mr. Percy Marmont, Mr. Alfred Lugg, Mr. Frank Elton, and Miss Irene Leonard successfully appear.

Empire.—Lessees, the Greenock Empire Syndicate; Responsible-Manager, Mr. Edward McCormick; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. J. Colquhoun.—Messrs. Wm. Garland and Fred Douglas's company heads the bill here this week in a musical sketch entitled A Trip to Coontown, which proves most entertaining; Walter Munroe scores greatly as an Irish comedian and dancer; and other good turns include Marlow and Manton, in their amusing sketch Winning a Wife; Eldra and his dog Prince, in a novel act; Josie Mooney, comedy character impersonator and dancer; and Leo Fields, comedian. New pictures are shown on the Bioscope.

Hippodrome.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry L. Skivington.—The chief attraction here is the Haytors in their comedy sketch entitled The Plumber, which is responsible for much laughter. Among others entertaining are Francini, Olloms, and Page, whose novel acrobatic and musical act gains much applause; the Ramseys, a trio of clever acrobats; the Four Royal Scots pleasing vocalists and instrumentalists; Bliss and Bliss, comedians and patterers; Rose D'Aulby, who scores with her songs, and Ted Waite, an amusing comedian. The pictures are interesting.

GRIMSBY.—Prince of Wales's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. North.—The sparkling musical comedy The Dairymaids is delighting large audiences nightly. Miss Clare Marsden cleverly fulfils the exacting part of Peggy, accomplishing the many musical numbers falling to her lot in charming style; Miss Clarice Lockstone also wins vocal honours as Winifred; Mr. Johnny Osborne is the moving spirit of the comedy, giving a droll impersonation of Joe Mivens, A.B.; Mr. Nelson Keys and Mr. A. Wilks Ashdowne are also responsible for much diverting business as Lieuts. Sam Brudenell and Frank Meredith; Mr. J. A. Warden gives a capital portrayal of the jovial Dr. O'Byrne; Miss Gladys Silvani achieves excellent character acting as the quaint maid-of-all-work, Eliza; Miss Mabel Younge as Lady Brudenell, Miss Madge Avery as Miss Pyechase, and Mr. Harry Cottell as Tim Capus also contribute to a bright performance.

The Palace.—General-Manager, Mr. G. Rhodes Parry.—Victor Moran and company present something novel in the way of musical specialities, playing solos, quartettes, &c., on trombones, saxophones, and other instruments, whilst a number of scenic and lighting effects are introduced; Mysticus presents a series of clever illusions that keeps the audience in a constant state of surprise; Alfred Graham's Premier Juveniles contribute smart solos and choruses; Charles Rowen is an amusing comedian; Walter Stanley, another comedian, causes much laughter; Florence Schubert sings excellent songs; and Rosie Archer is a clever mimic of popular artists.

HALIFAX.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Mr. Charles Macdona's company is at the Royal this week with Mr. Popple, the comedy being admirably staged and beautifully dressed. Mr. Macdona as Freddy Popple makes an ideally simple country gentleman; Miss Nellie Hodson plays well as La Bolero; Miss May Hart is a pert and successful Louise; Miss Amy Singleton as Mrs. Doring brings one of the smaller parts into prominence; Mr. Tom May's Platt is well played; and the parts of Norman Popple (Mr. M. Du Cane), George Hennay (Mr. Nap Barry), Henry Doring (Mr. Jas. Stevenson), Jacques Kenyon (Mr. Eric Barrington), Mrs. Hennay (Miss Lilyan Lait), and Violet Brinton (Miss Marie Moss) are all capably presented.

Grand Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Winks.—Pictures are again the attraction at this house. Mr. Harold Wardroper, light comedian and dancer; and George Doughty and Molly Laney, in a well-acted farce, A Woman's Way, also appear.

Palace and Hippodrome, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Reg. H. Foster.—Beauty and hair competitions, with prizes to the value of £50, are drawing big houses to the Palace this week. Haley's Juveniles are a well-trained troupe; Dot and Spot are two wonderful little artists, and the quartette of barefeet dancers are also worthy of praise. Flo Burnett, ballad vocalist, makes a welcome re-appearance; Stidder and Dunbar, musical comedy artists, provide a successful turn; Rose Pink, in song and dance; Virto, musical act; Sivroni and Amy Broughton, in Opera Gone Mad; and the pictures complete.

HAMILTON, N.B.—Hippodrome.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Resident-Manager, Mr. René Clayton.—The Safaillo troupe of gymnasts are excellent in a sensational equilibristic display, into which is introduced a fine exhibition of heavy-weight lifting; Colin Bryce and company are exceptionally good in a cleverly-written and brightly-played little comedy act, entitled Are You a Socialist? Walker and Lake, in their entertaining exploit, "Extemporania," prove most amusing; Beattie Bloom goes well in a couple of songs; Whisper is a clever comedy juggler; the Ormond-Penstones are entertaining illusionists; the Three Cheers introduce some cleverly-trained cats into their scene Dick Whittington; Land and Carl are great favourites in their clever burlesque boxing turn; Henry Hallam and Josephine Stanton, in a musical comedy sketch, entitled A Broken Journey, are acceptable; and the Bioscope concludes.

HANLEY. — Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Douglas Elphinstone.—Mr. Dudley Bennett and Mr. T. C. Wray's company present this week The Catch of the Season to capital audiences. The dresses are elaborate. Miss Gladys Guy as Angela is particularly successful, her charming acting winning immense favour; Mr. Chas. Hanbury as the Duke plays naturally and cleverly; Mr. H. C. Barry as Isaacstein, though handicapped by a severe cold, causes much merriment; Master Peter Grata as Bucket is a great success; Mr. Geoffrey Berwick as Mr. Gibson plays skilfully; Mr. Franklin Miles's Sir John is praiseworthy; Miss Alice Hamilton plays Lady Crystal with much success; Miss Barry Eldon is a good Honorio, and Miss Kate Robinson is a capital Sophia; Miss Grace Hampton is a treat as Lady Caterham; Miss Margaret Jolly as Princess S. H. is very pleasing. Mr. Ed. Peterson conducts the augmented orchestra. Mr. H. Burgess Harries is the business manager.

Grand.—Proprietors, Hanley Theatres and Circus, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Arthur Rand.—Capital houses show their appreciation of the management's bill of fare. The Ten Dixie Girls, including Miss May Carter, in a dancing and vocal scena, The Silver Coon, make a marked impression; Miss Ella Shields also is adding to her terrific successes in "Do you want any coal?" Iben-Obed, an Arabian equilibrist, is clever; Raymond's Bio-tableaux show the last Marathon Race and the Hypnotic Policeman; Azella Wilson trapeze artist, is good; Helen Martin has a charming soprano voice; Frank Seeley is a favourite; Barrett and Knowles cause continuous laughter; and Rousby and Rene introduce a smart sketch.

King's Empire Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Moore and Kennedy.—A packed house watched with interest a fine selection of pictures on Monday. Chief of the list are True till Death, A Magnetic Removal, Walter, the Rural Postman, Driven by Hunger, Prehistoric Man, Drunkard's Dream, and The Innkeeper's Nightmare. Miss Lila Vesta supplies the vaudeville items cleverly.

HARROGATE.—Grand Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Eric Fielding Smith. — For the first three nights of this week Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company appeared in Floradora. Mr. Fred Eastman was seen to advantage as Tweedlepunch; Mr. Stanley White made the most of his opportunities as Cyrus W. Gilfain; and Mr. Herbert St. John was well placed as Captain Arthur Donegal. Mr. H. V. Cropton both acted and sang well as Frank Abercoed; and Miss Edith Housley was excellent as Lady Holyrood. Miss Masie Ellinger was the Dolores, and has a handsome stage presence. The chorus was smart and well dressed.

St. James's Hall. — Managing-Director, Mr. Sydney H. Carter; General-Manager, Mr. F. D. Sunderland; Resident-Manager, Mr. Fred A. Parker.—This week some exceptionally good films are shown, and among them are The Tramp's Daughter, The Statue, A Debt of Gratitude, and a regular screamer, The Apostle of Liberty. Mr. K. Scott-Barrie, an exceptional entertainer, proves to be popular.

HARTLEPOOL.—Empress.—Proprietors, Messrs. Everton and Cragg; Manager, Mr. Harry Burns; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Charlie Ferrier.—An especial feature in the programme this week is a smart exhibition of conjuring by Winn. The remainder of the programme is filled in by a capital selection of pictures, amongst which are The Globe Trotter, Donkey Polo, The Swimming Master, The Poacher's Wife, The Text Book, and The Indian Python.

HASTINGS.—Gaiety Theatre.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles B. Scutt.—Mr. Reginald Dance and company opened on Monday with Beau Brocade. The chivalrous highwayman had an excellent representative in Mr. Reginald Dance; Lady Patience Gascoyne was presented by Miss Ruth Mackay with charming grace; Betty, her maid, had a vivacious representative in Miss May Brooke; the Earl of Stretton had a forceful exponent in Mr. Alfred H. Majilton; John Sticke was well impersonated by Mr. Dalziel Heron; and good character rôles were also submitted by Mr. Edward Irwin as Jock Miggs, a shepherd; Mr. R. Hayes, as the Royal Duke; Mr. Frank Powell as the scheming Sir Humphrey Challoner; and Mr. H. Asheton Tonge as the Parish Beadle.

Hippodrome.—General-Manager, Mr. H. Vivian-Fisher; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Walter Norman.—Miss Beatrice Elstree, a dainty comedienne, opens a good programme; Sam Stern is skilful on a variety of musical instruments; James Adderly, of the Brothers Adderly, is a remarkable musical mimic; some novel acrobatic performances are shown by the Four Kellys; Miss Ada Twibell is an attractive vocalist; as a coon comedian, Pop Dearly scores a success; Ted Young's droll manner and sayings create great laughter; and Edward Cranston and Mrs. Bennett's company produce an amusing sketch entitled Poor Master.

Pier Pavilion.—General-Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter.—The "Scarlet Mr. E.'s" are occupying the boards this week.

Public Hall.—The pictures exhibited here by the People's Picture Palace Company, under Mr. Henry Gray's local management, continue attractive. Shakespeare's tragedy Romeo and Juliet is a cleverly-worked film.

St. Leonards Pier Pavilion. — Entertainment-Manager, Mr. Elvey Thomas.—Miss Lydia Donovan and company opened on Monday with My Soldier Boy. Mr. C. Quinton Fulford filled the rôle of Montague Mendle very amusingly; Miss Lydia Donovan also added largely to the evening's amusement; and the Captain had a convincing exponent in Mr. Frank Lennard. Miss Nellie Lambert made a spruce Martha; Mr. Alfred G. Raymond made a droll Private Michael O'Doeherty; and Mendle's stepfather was well played by Mr. C. E. Lambert. The comedietta Nan followed. Niobe was billed for Thursday.

HEREFORD.—Garrick Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. P. Burnsley.—Mrs. Bandmann Palmer's company opened on Monday with Catherine, Duchess of Dantzig, and was accorded a hearty reception by a large audience. In the title-part Mrs. Bandmann Palmer made a great impression by her excellent acting; Mr. F. Skein is to be commended on an excellent portrayal of the thankless part of Fouché; a performance of much prominence is that of Adrian Lefebvre, cleverly played by Mr. Howard Rose; Mr. Owen Chambers as Napoleon I. sustains his part effectively; Mr. Bernard Merefield gives a manly and spirited rendering of Maréchal Lefebvre; and other members of the cast do full justice to their respective parts. The piece is exceedingly well dressed.

Drill Hall. — Manager, Mr. A. Lovesey.—Mr. Henry J. Ford's company is here with When Knights Were Bold. Mr. Henry Ford as Sir Guy de Vere makes the most of the part, His unflagging energy and unlimited resource convulse his audiences. As Sir Brian Ballymote, Mr. G. Rowlands is excellent; Mr. Cecil Clayton is particularly clever and amusing as Charles Widdicombe; Mr. W. Lockhart is good as the Rev. Peter Pottleberry; Mr. Vernon Sansbury gives a good character sketch as Isaacson; Miss Bruce Joy acts well as Lady Rowena Eggington; Miss Bessie Walters is a pert Alice Barker. Mr. H. Bull is the courteous manager for Mr. James Welch.

HORWICH.—Princes' Theatre.—Lessees, The Horwich Theatre Co.; Manager, Mr. R. H. White.—Mr. Harry Tilbury's company in the drama His Dishonoured Wife is exciting great interest. The author (Mr. Tilbury) gives an excellent rendering of Micky Doolan, his quaint sayings creating roars of laughter; Mr. Victor Rae as Frank Lindon plays the hero to perfection; Mr. Fred Owen's Neil Locksley is a very fine interpretation of the acute but kind-hearted detective; Mr. Horatio Sinclair makes Lord Devant a thorough disgrace to Society, and receives due recognition at the hands of the gallery; Mr. Bernard Webb's efforts as Tom Redman, Devant's accomplice, are eminently successful; Miss Belle Tilbury gives an artistic rendering of the part of Florence Lindon; little Miss Phyllis Spalding plays the blacksmith's child with great feeling; as Araminta Dustpan Miss Etta Spalding is distinctly funny; Miss Arline T. George gives a good rendering of Alice Harvey, and the minor characters are in good hands.

HUDDERSFIELD.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Thomas J. Phillips.—Mr. Herbert Sleath's fine organisation, playing A White Man here for the first time on Monday, was welcomed by a large and enthusiastic audience. The principal parts in the long cast are sustained by Mr. Frank E. Petley, a polished and virile Jim Carston; Mr. R. A. Brandon a cool-brained and big-hearted Big Bill; Mr. Arthur Gibbons as the treacherous Cash Hawkins; Mr. A. C. Hardie as the Sheriff, Bud Hardy; Mr. Eric Hudson, a remarkably impressive and dignified Tab-y-wana; whose interpreter is most naturally played by Mr. F. Thornton; Miss Rhoda Ray is intensely lovable as Nat-u-ritch; Miss Eleanor May a womanly Countess of Kerhill; Mr. Wm. Dempsey a suave lawyer Petrie; and Mr. Thomas Swem, Mr. Martin Henry, and Mr. T. W. H. Sarll are seen to advantage in the well differentiated characters of Shorty, Andy, and Crouchey.

Hippodrome, Ltd.—Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—A good programme includes the Six Æolians in their refined musical and dancing act; Volvo, ventriloquist; Miss Florence Burns and James Danvers in their well-known burlesque; Leedham Stanley, a smart character impersonator;

FISH (hot or cold)
has an exquisite delicacy imparted to it by the addition of LEA & PERRINS'
SAUCE.
It is just that "finishing touch" which is required to make the dish perfect

August, September, and May, truly described as eccentric comedians; Phillips and Merritt in a clever medley of singing, whistling, and dancing; Miss Rose Elliott in swinging chorus songs, and a pretty picture of Italian lakes on the Bioscope.

HULL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Manager, Mr. Tom Bogue.—Mr. Iden Payne and his coadjutors are here again, and meeting with a great artistic success. They opened on Monday with David Ballard, and obtained an enthusiastic reception. On their last visit we spoke in words of commendation upon the efforts of Miss Louise Holbrook, Mr. Penelope Wheeler, and Miss Hilda Bruce-Potter, and of the ideal acting of Mr. Iden Payné, Mr. Jules Shaw, Mr. Lawson Casson, Mr. Charles Bibby amongst others. The répertoire has included Widowers' Houses, Candida, When the Devil Was Ill, The Vale of Content, to which are added several interesting one-act plays.

GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Morton's, Ltd.; Chairman, Mr. W. Morton; Manager, Mr. W. F. Morton.—Mr. Wentworth Croke's company has presented this week the Hall Caine version of The Christian. Miss Cora Deane is a fine Polly Love, and realises the rôle in every sense; Miss Daisy Scudamore gives a clever reading of Glory Quayle, and Mr. Roy Redgrave is an acceptable John Storm. Mr. Fewlass Llewellyn is well cast as Father Lamplugh.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Morton's, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. George Morton.—Fully to the liking of the audience is Man or Beast, which figures this week on the Alexandra bill. It is full of striking scenes and episodes. Miss Irene Carrington makes a capital Bella Newton, whilst Miss Phyllis Elton is a very effective Annetta. The hero is well placed in the hands of Mr. Charles Pitt; Mr. Fred Gresham fills with credit the comedy rôle; Mr. Ernest Vaughan contrives to give sufficient shading to the heavy part. The play has a startling hypnotic scene which adds to its interest.

THE CIRCUS.—Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Emerson.—Sydney Carter's animated pictures are drawing crowded houses, and additional interest is provided by Prof. Jennion's electric "Fantiochs."

THE EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr. Harry Slingsby.—Three principal turns include Arthur Wellesley in a funny sketch, Uncle's Courtship; Kelly, a fisherman hypnotist; and Richard Finburg in character studies from famous plays; Greeners, Blanco and Emilie, and Hurelle and Selina complete a good company.

THE HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Graham; Manager, Mr. Harry Dunford.—Harry Tate's company in Fishing is an excellent top turn; Doody and Wright gain much applause; McAskell's comedy conjuring creates much laughter; others appearing include Will Owen, Fred Horsfall, Patrick Playfair, Vera Davis, and Mlle. Zelda.

ILKESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—Florodora pays a welcome return visit, and is presented by Mr. Charles Constant's company. Miss Daisy Lake appears as Dolores, and her delightful singing is much applauded; Mr. Martin D. Pitt, the Frank Abercoed, possesses a fine voice, which he knows how to use; Mr. Stanley Bartram as Captain Arthur Donegal is responsible for several good numbers; Lady Holyrood is embodied in capital style by Miss Lillie Blythe; and Angela Gilfain finds an admirable exponent in Miss Louie Danby. Mr. Jack Parker as Cyrus Gilfain is a suitable representative; Mr. Gus Danby as Tweedlepunch proves himself a clever comedian, there being not a dull moment whilst he is on the stage. The remaining artists are all deserving of praise.

ILKLEY. — BRIDGE PAVILION. — Lessee, Mr. Sydney Carter; Manager, Mr. Edwin Bryan.—This being the last week of Mr. Carter's stay at the Pavilion, capital fare is provided. Messrs. Logan and Logan, comedy duettists, on a return visit, give some good selections; Master Gordon Illingworth, boy comedian, in his latest songs, continues to win applause; Mr. Bryan's topical recitation takes well; and a new series of New Century Pictures is shown.

INVERNESS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. Burgess.—Mr. John Clyde and a strong company gave an excellent representation of The Manxman on Monday night. Mr. Clyde, who played Pete, gave an excellent rendering of the part; Kate Cregeen was well played by Miss Lena Levenston; the Cæsar Cregeen of Mr. H. Macaulay was a good piece of character acting; Nancy was also represented in a spirited manner by Miss Jeanie Macintosh. The Aunt of Miss Denise Huntley was admirably free of exaggeration. All the other parts were well played.

IPSWICH.—LYCEUM.—Miss Florence Glossop-Harris and company are giving a week's Shakespearean performances, including The Merchant of Venice, Romeo and Juliet, Hamlet, As You Like It, and Twelfth Night. The plays are excellently staged, and Miss Glossop-Harris is a favourite with Ipswich playgoers, as also is Mr. Frank Cellier. The company includes Mr. Percival Midgewick, Mr. Francis Roberts, Mr. J. Cassells Cobb, Mr. Horace Sinclair, Mr. Arthur Goodsall, and Mr. Lawrence Toole; also Miss Gertrude, and Miss Janet Warden. The excellence of the company is attracting good houses.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—Mr. Joe Peterman's company in The Belle of the Orient is sufficiently amusing; Miss Agnes Molteno, a vocalist of exceptional ability, is assisted by Mr. T. Edwards and Little Dolly in a scena entitled Dolly and a Coach, which quite charmed the audience; the Elite Harmony Boys, who sing well, have an enjoyable sketch, entitled Messmates Ashore; Graham, the Lilliputian wonder, gives a living marionette entertainment, called "The Music Hall of Bygone Days," in which he impersonates cleverly some of the old comedians; Jack Lane, the Yorkshire rustic, has a hearty welcome; Sam Redfern is as full of humour as ever; and Miss May Newell and Kerr and Koe complete an excellent bill.

PUBLIC HALL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Poole's Myriorama is drawing crowded houses with a talented company, including the Gramusa Family of eight musicians, Mr. Sidney Bach, Harry Raymond, and Miss Eileen Russell.

JARROW.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson.—Mr. G. Carlton Wallace's company is here with The Lancashire Lad. Mr. Alec. Alexander gives a first-class rendering of David Elmore; Mr. T. C. Vane as Max Carlton plays with force; and Mr. Wilton Reed acts finely in the part of Jim Wincote. Mr. B. Anderson imparts much humour into the character of John Willie Wardle; Miss Stanley Burt gives an admirable impersonation of Jessie Wincote; Miss Nell Oliver does well as Lorna Wincote; Miss Maudie Grayson merits much praise as Kitty De Vere; and Mr. Geo. Watson, Mr. G. Dudeney, Mr. W. Brereton, and Miss Jennie Hallworth give excellent support. The play is well staged.

JERSEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. E. Marris; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley Hope.—After a long spell of vaudeville the dramatic season opened here on Monday evening with Mr. Edward Marris's company in the successful drama from his own pen, entitled As Midnight Chimes, which was accorded a very flattering reception. The scenery was especially excellent. Miss Nita Imeson is a chic and racy French maid; Miss Doris Digby is a dainty heroine; Miss Barbara Allison does well in the small part of Zamora; and little Miss Elsie May makes a delightful boy. That Mr. Charles Weir as Luke Dezzard is a convincing villain was amply proved by the marked ill-favour bestowed on him by the "gods"; Mr. James Salter is a first-rate comedian, and his funnicsities as Tat Spavvin won him fresh kudos from his old admirers; Mr. Helier Le Maistre acquits himself admirably in the rather thankless part of Ezra Gamble, the heroine's weak old father; Mr. Cecil W. Parke as Dave Stannard supplies the usual characteristics expected of a melodramatic hero; and the remaining parts are well filled.

KEIGHLEY.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. R. Kendall; Acting-Manager, Mr. Will Carson.—The Manxman still retains its popularity, and good houses are the rule this week. Mr. Alfred B. Cross portrays the character of Pete in an admirable manner; Miss Minnie Watersford appears as Kate Cregeen, and gives a fine performance; Mr. Harold B. Lewis and Mr. Fred Mace are good in their respective parts.

KIDDERMINSTER. — NEW OPERA HOUSE.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. Jas. P. Moore; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. C. Gudgeon.—On Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday we had here Miss Rose Moncrieff and company in the military comedy entitled The Bells of Old York. Miss Rose Moncrieff in the dual rôle of Angel Grantham and Trumpeter Romney Kent both acted and sang well, being ably supported by Mr. Rass Challis as the Rev. Philip Gordon. For Thursday Mr. James Welch's company was billed to appear in When Knights Were Bold.

KIRKCALDY.—HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—Mr. Sidney Dooley's company in A King for a Day are heading an excellent bill, the sketch being in the hands of Mr. Will Letters, Miss Clair Richardson, and Miss Fanny Wallace. Datas, the wonderful memory man, makes his first appearance here, and has a great reception; a popular turn is by Mr. Peter Berminghan, a quaint and clever comedian; the Welsh Meisters are a capital harmony four; and Helm and Cozens, in The Doctor and the Patient, are good. Some excellent pictures are shown on the Hipposcope.

LANCASTER. — GRAND THEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. C. Howitt.—A good impression has been created here by the visit of Mr. C. Watson Mill's company, under the direction of Mr. Thompson Carruthers, with A Wrecker of Men. A feature of the play is the excellent staging, the sinking of a yacht and the wreck being especially well contrived. Miss Florence Melrose Millett is conspicuous with a portrayal of exceptional merit as Risca Mallison; Mr. Eric Campbell deserves high praise for his clever rendering of the part of Jim Murley; Mr. Milner Noble shines as Pharosaphus; and Mr. Chas. E. Lovell is good as Karnaphus. Mr. J. Ansdell Wilson is capital as Railton; Mr. Arthur Robinson makes a manly Guise Strange; and Mr. Thompson Carruthers is a great success as Eric Melville. Miss Gwendoline Talbot is charming as Doris Melville; and as Vavasole Slopper Miss Beatrice Reynolds causes much laughter.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. J. Porter and W. J. Fergusson.—The Achmed Ibrahim Troupe of Bedouin Arabs are the stars here, and are warmly recalled; Revill Hall, entertainer, is very pleasing; and Arthur Royce at the piano is capital. Harley and Melton, comedians, win a well-deserved encore; Miss Jessie Merrilees sings sweetly; as also does Joe Oliver, "the Lancashire lark." Poppy Lytton and Jack Bland appear successfully in a sketch, A Lesson in Love; and the Hippograph depicts For a Flower and A Debt of Gratitude.

LEAMINGTON. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Manager, Mr. George Anthony.—The attraction here for the first three days of the week was Mr. Gaston Mayer's London production, Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch, presented by Mrs. Madge Carr Cook and company. The character of the sympathetic and kind-hearted Mrs. Wiggs was cleverly portrayed by Mrs. Madge Carr Cook, whose skill in bringing out the characteristics of the part was greatly admired. The Miss Hazy of Miss Rita Carlyle was a commendable performance; and Mr. Frederick Forrest's delineation of Mr. Stubbins was irresistibly droll. Miss Christine Rayner made a charming Lovey Mary; and Miss Mary Deverell was praiseworthy as Miss Lucy. All the other characters were ably sustained, and the intelligent performances of the juvenile members of the company added brightness and quaintness to the production. For the concluding days of the week the Monckton Hoffe comedy company is announced to appear in Irene Wycherley.

ROYAL ASSEMBLY ROOMS. — Proprietor, Mr. A. White; Acting-Manager, Mr. Francis Londberg.—Mr. Waller Jeffs' New Century Pictures continue to draw good houses. The varieties are supplied by Miss Leah Pinnick, who has a fine soprano voice, and Frank Fredella, a clever character-actor and mimic, whose performance has created quite a sensation.

LEEDS.—GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. Wynn Miller.—Miss Lena Ashwell's principal company opened here on Monday with the successful play Diana of Dobson's. Miss Emilie Polini enacts the name-part in clever and confident style, her comedy acting being especially admired; the Captain Bretherton of Mr. Frank Woolfe is a very satisfactory effort; and Mr. W. K. Pearce is thoroughly successful with the rôle of Sir Jabez Grinlay. Praise is also due to Miss Gwynneth Galton, whose Mrs. Cantelupe is a clever character-study.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr. R. Ernest Liston.—Mr. Frederick Melville presents still another exciting melodrama to the patrons here, Married to the Wrong Man making its bow to a good audience on Monday evening. A very capable company includes Miss Gertrude Boswell in the principal female part, and her work is pleasing and sympathetic; Mr. Oswald Cray demonstrates the heroic character of Jack Gladwin in masterly style. There are many opportunities for humour, and in this direction Mr. Syd Claydon and Miss May Davis win distinction.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alex. Galley.—Eugene Stratton is a popular star turn here; Ludwig Amann is again successful in personating historical characters; J. A. Wilson presents his intelligent canine "Towser" in a neat turn; there is a capital entertainment by the Musical Twelve; that popular vocalist, Ian Colquhoun, is again doing well; and there are clever and applause-winning turns by Les Esdonians, Eileen Bernard, Imperial Russian Troupe, and Bessie Butt.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Bush.—The 'Varsity Girls head the bill here with a clever singing and dancing turn, which is much applauded; Bertha Winder, the dancing marvel, is a deservedly popular turn; France and Stewart score with a comical racing absurdity; Bob Hanlon and Walter Buxton are both very successful in their respective lines; whilst Poole and Maguire and Millie Wolfrang also make a good impression.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Thos. Barrasford.—That able comedian, Edwin Boyde, is on a welcome return visit here, and the reception accorded by full houses is of the heartiest. George French is also vastly popular in vocal comedy; some really clever female impersonations by Max Waldon are vociferously applauded; and an artistic novelty by La Freya is well received. C. D. Reekie is an entertaining storyteller; and of the rest, Welda and Wynne, Karr and Rooney, Harry Rogerson, and Horace and Olga's dog and cat show are going particularly well.

CITY VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Wood; General-Manager, Mr. J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr. L. Jones.—A thrilling dramatic item, The Light in the Window, cleverly put on by Fred Winn and company, is a leading line here, and takes well; Belle Braham, the picture songstress, is having a successful time; a clever mystery entertainment is submitted by C. H. Charlton; W. G. Wesley proves a popular comedian, as also does Harry Webber; whilst the Czar troupe are prominent with a characteristic Russian speciality.

LEICESTER.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business-Manager, Mr. Charles Hermann.—A first visit is being paid here this week by Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's all-round excellent company, in the comedy Lady Frederick, in which Miss Mabel Love is to be highly eulogised for an altogether charming performance of the title-rôle; Mr. Robert Minster is very good as Mr. Paradine Fouldes; Mr. E. F. Meads is a success as Lord Mereston; and Miss Elsie Irving is capital as Lady Mereston. Mr. Patrick Quill does well as Sir Gerald O'Mara; Miss Lynn Fontanne is a delightful Rose; Mr. Edward Bonfield as Captain Montgomery and Captain Gerald Gambier as Admiral Carlisle are both capable exponents of their parts; and Miss Beatrice Grosvenor as Mme. Claude is also deserving of special praise. The staging and dressing of the play is of the best. The Peacemaker precedes.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business-Manager, Mr. E. R. Beaumont.—Mr. C. H. Knight's No. 1 company is here this week, and presenting the domestic drama, The Lighthouse Robbery, which is effectively staged. Mr. Henry Herne maintains his reputation as Tom Manly; and Miss Hilda Baynton as Rose Prescott is also very good. Mr. Percy Beresford scores as James Hammond; and Mr. William Annesley is capital as William Farren. Mr. Herbert Lewis is capable as David Morris; Mr. Sammy Foster is funny as Sam Kidder, his patter, singing, and dancing being heartily appreciated; Miss Maggie Stewart scores with her singing and acting as Ruth; Miss Ethel Lovett deserves much praise as Little Nellie; and Miss Ida Millais as Mrs. Manly plays with her usual ability.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. S. Bucclench.—A gratifying success is scored here this week by Courtice and Louie Pounds and company, in a smart and enjoyable playlet, entitled Charles—His Friend. Mr. Courtice Pounds as Charles is extremely good; and Miss Louie Pounds as a young widow is charming. Miss Pearl Keats and Mr. Harry Lambert are also capital as Barbara and Peter Ward; Leo Tell makes a hit with his remarkable mimicry of horses and cats and imitations of instruments; the Provenanies, a clever troupe of lady trick cyclists, do some smart feats; Mr. G. P. Trevor and company present with success the interesting and stirring playlet, Her Country's Enemy, in which Miss Mary Allestree as Helga, Mr. G. P. Trevor as Capt. John Clayton, and Mr. Creagh-Henry as Capt. Markovitch are conspicuous with well-played parts; Frank Couch raises plenty of merriment with his smart and original patter; the Four Jumels are heard to advantage in their delightful and novel musical act; Aida Martine is a dainty comedienne and excellent dancer; Charles Santon is a success as a male soprano and double-voiced vocalist; Blanche Vincent is a capital burlesque actress and vocalist; and the Bioscope depicts Bostock Arena, London, Paris, and New York.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Joe Lawrence.—Being possessed of both dramatic and singing and dancing licences, Mr. Macnaghten is in the position of being able to stage anything in the way of entertainment, and this week his Leicester patrons are being entertained by Mr. Edward Marris's company, in the successful musical comedy, The Dandy Doctor, which is raising plenty of hearty laughter. The orchestra has been augmented, and there is a capital chorus of attractive and well-dressed ladies. Miss Florence Smithers as the servant Jane is a veritable merriment merchant; Mr. George Brentwood is very good as Melchisadek Brown; Miss Mollie Wynne is a delightful and vivacious Ivy Pendred; Mr. Herbert Pearce is capital as Colonel Pendred; Mr. A. Leslie Martin is funny as Bertie Bolingbroke; and Mr. C. Burrunston Williams is capable as Arthur Vandyke. Specialities are introduced by Miss Lottie Stone's Empire Girls and the Little Dutch Girls with satisfactory results. The only other attraction is Walter H. Pallister's Bioscope, showing Motor-Boat Racing at Burnham-on-Crouch and Blind, two films of special merit.

THE EMPIRE.—Lessees, The New Bioscope Trading Co.; District-Manager, Mr. Gerald Hunt.—A very fine programme is submitted here this week, the chief moving pictures being Cossacks of the Don at Moscow, The Bully and the Recruit, The Pony Express, The Fireman's Daughter, The Spiteful Groom, The Sandwich Woman, and The Refractory Saveloy. At the head of the variety portion is Vulcanett, in a series of remarkable feats of strength; the Danas (Charles and May) create merriment in their vocal scena, On the Honeymoon; Le Warren, the ventriloquial "fop," and May Belle, comedienne and vocalist, also appear with success in entertaining turns.

LEIGH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Cragg; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wallace Childs.—Messrs. W. H. Hallatt and Walter Howard's company provides an intensely interesting attraction in the romantic play, Her Love Against the World. As Eric, Earl of Strathmere, Mr. Fred Emery preserves a dignified and manly demeanour throughout, evoking hearty sympathy and applause; Mr. Louis Gilbert displays an ample sense of villainy in the character of Prince Ulric; Mr. W. H. Hallatt is conspicuously successful as Prince Othmar; Miss Grace Heywood makes a prepossessing heroine, and she acts with commendable restraint and artistic finish; Miss Rossie St. John gives a fine delineation of Nello; and Mr. Victor Rowland is well placed as Prince Maurice. Miss Nellie Fletcher deserves praise as Shulah; and the remaining parts are all in capable hands.

LEITH.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Licensee and Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—A good variety programme has been presented twice nightly this week. Outstanding items were the clever conjuring of Morimura, the highly-sensational gymnastic act of Onda and Artell, and the eccentric comedy turn of the Brothers Passmore. Billy Ross and company give a lively vaudeville entertainment, with boxing as a special feature; the Sisters Belmont distinguished themselves as duettists and dancers; and Lily Lorraine's wonderful contralto voice was heard to advantage in several songs; while popular single-handed turns were provided by R. E. Note and Lily Davies, and the American Bioscope exhibited a remarkably fine series of very interesting films. Neil Nelson, a Scotch comedian, and Jack Lester, a vocalist and raconteur, had good places in the bill; and the dancing of a deputy couple, whose names were not mentioned, found much favour with the house.

LICHFIELD.—ST. JAMES'S HALL.—Miss Rosie Neville's company appeared here on Monday night in The Sorrows of Satan. Mr. E. Neville gave a sardonic representation of the Prince; and Mr. E. Holland Day, his servant, seconded him by an able rendering of a sinister rôle. Mr. T. Douglas Howard played Tempest effectively, and Mr. E. Ramsdale proved successful as Morris; the Diana Chesney of Miss Lole Esmond was an excellent piece of acting, while Miss Rosie Neville, who was the Lady Sybil Elton, led the play in effective fashion. The remaining parts were adequately filled. Nana was played on Tuesday night.

LINCOLN. — ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Payne Seddon and Ernest Pope.—Messrs. Taylor Platt and Trevor Lowe's company in You Never Can Tell opened on Monday to an extremely appreciative audience. Miss Gwladys Morris as Gloria and Mr. Leslie Hamer as Valentine were especially successful, and Mr. Trevor Lowe as William made a hit; Mr. J. E. Pearce as Crampton and Mr. Charles as McCorner were also excellent. The Mystery of Edwin Drood was billed for Thursday and the remainder of the week.

PALACE.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. R. R. Black.—Ernest Rees is scoring here with smart songs and patter, and Tom and Marie Motramo do extremely well with their sketch Do you Reverse? Lecardo Bros., comedy acrobats, are amongst the best in their line, and Burns and Bentley are surely the last word in simultaneous dancing; the Five Broadway Girls contribute a dashing act; Margaret Royce has a charming turn with songs at the piano; Happy Atwood's quaint style catches on; and Hetty and Blanche also entertain.

LIVERPOOL.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Lawrence.—Here this week we have had a welcome visit from Mrs. Patrick Campbell, with The Thunderbolt, Electra, and The Second Mrs. Tanqueray. A delighted audience on Monday gave The Thunderbolt an appreciative hearing. As the conscience-stricken Phyllis Mortimore Mrs. Campbell shows to the fullest those admirable emotional qualities for which she is noted. There were moments when the audience listened to her with breathless interest, particularly in the confession episode. A fine supporter was Mr. Julian Royce, whose Thaddeus Mortimore thoroughly earned the sympathy and entire approval of his hearers. His manly tenderness towards the distressed wife, and the attempted self-sacrifice in her defence, were as absolutely natural and convincing as could be imagined. It was an added pleasure to find Miss Stella Patrick Campbell in the cast. Her assumption of the part of Helen Thornhill was in every way delightful, and marked by thoughtfulness and charm. Little Miss Mignon Clifford deserved thanks for her minor, but tactfully played, rôle of the precocious Mortimore child; Mr. Murray Carson stood out prominently with his eminently sound picture of the bumptious James Mortimore; Mr. J. D. Beveridge was perfect as the family solicitor; a well-drawn and forceful character was that of Colonel Ponting, impersonated by Mr. Nigel Playfair; and included in the remainder of the sterling combination were Messrs. Edgar Kent (Stephen Mortimore), and E. H. Brooke (Mr. Vallance), and the Misses Florence Kahn (Louisa Mortimore), Florence Farr (Ann Mortimore), and Florence Wells (Rose). The one-act play, A Florentine Tragedy, was given on Wednesday.

SHAKESPEARE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wentworth Croke; Manager and Secretary, Mr. John Gaffney.—An excellent company, sent by Mr. Charles Frohman, has here this week given Liverpool a first glimpse at The Hypocrites. The public approval of the play has been generally enthusiastic. In the exacting rôle of Mrs. Wilmore Miss Amy Ravenscroft acquitted herself to everybody's satisfaction; Mr. Alfred S. Barber handled the part of Mr. Wilmore in a manner which won entire commendation; as the Rev. Edgar Linnell Mr. H. Lawrence Leyton presented a firm, earnest type of parson, with strong force of character; Mr. Charles Harley played the lawyer, Viveash, to perfection; Miss Gladys Purnell was a sweet Helen Plugenet; and worthy support also came from Mr. Cecil Brooking (the Vicar), Miss Gladys Harvey (Rachel Neve), and Miss Florence Steventon (Mrs. Blaney). The work was staged and costumed in excellent style.

ROTUNDA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—The attraction here this week has been A Desperate Marriage, presented by Mr. Frederick Mouillot's company. Mr. J. Knox-Orde acted the rôle of Dick Strang with much dramatic force, and frequently earned applause; Mr. E. W. Maule Cole was another strong supporter, his Clarence Woolmer being marked by care and tact; Miss Winifred Whyte made a charming Audrey Howard; Mr. Houghton Goddard did justice to Dr. Frank Buxter; Mr. Herbert Lloyd's Elijah Baggs was particularly amusing; and others who afforded satisfaction were Messrs. Walter Rousby, Edwin Fergusson, Miss Nellie Rousby, and Miss Helen Anderson.

STAR THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—Hardie and Von Leer's original company has been here this week with Two Little Vagabonds. The Misses Denise Zaleski and Alice Leon were the "boys," parts which were presented in a manner that soon earned the sympathies of the audience; Mr. Richard A. Greene as George Thornton acted with sound judgment; Mr. Arthur E. Melbourne was well suited to the rôle of Captain Darville; Miss Florence Dalton made a very sympathetic Marion Thornton; the part of Barbara Scarth was in the good hands of Miss Marion Fawcett; Miss Ida Drayton proved pleasing as Sister Randall; and enjoyable comedy came from Mr. Martin Sands (Bill Mullins) and Miss Marie Pritchard (Biddy Mullins). The sacred concert held here on Sunday evening last in aid of the unemployed fund was a great success.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Cole.—Foremost here this week are Mark Sheridan and G. H. Chirgwin, both of whom came in for rousing receptions; the New York Nippers have a smart show of eccentric dancing; Lily Burnand was warmly received for her excellent songs; an amusing and delightful musical absurdity, The Tea Shop, or Tigers, Ltd., was provided by Daley Cooper, Mabel Lait and company; Billy French showed to advantage as a wooden shoe dancer; Pete and Minnie Lee present a funny trifle, A Scotchman's Visit to London; and the list likewise contained the names of Nellie Martell, comedienne and dancer; and the Sisters Grovini, acrobats.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred Granville.—Here this week Mr. Frederick Melville's company have given Her Forbidden Marriage.

LYRIC.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold.—The popular Miss Amy Augarde headed the programme here with her charming episode, La Carmencita, which proved as enjoyable as ever; Bert Williams, the novelty ventriloquist, pleased immensely; Bert Woodward, coon cyclist, has some clever and diverting tricks; Clifton and Gibson are a couple of laughable comedians and excellent dancers; some remarkable clog dancing was performed by Fraser and French; the musical comedians, Kloof and Ramsey, provided an excellent turn; as whirlwind dancers the Carlyles showed to great advantage; and Jack Easy, Scotch comedian, and Cliff Dixon, swell comedian, also appeared.

ROYAL HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Walter Hassan.—Top of the bill here this week is Charles Prelle's bijon circus, in which a number of highly-trained dogs gave a smart show; another turn in the same line is that presented by Clotilde and Musto, with a flock of cockatoos; Jordan and Harvey, Hebrew comedians, proved very amusing; a neat comedy duologue, Two Sides of a Wall, came from Nightingale and Stigant; Edward E. Ford, the Australian sundowner, showed himself to be a clever mimic; Mr. and Mrs. George Leonard submitted an amusing sketch, Coming Home; some daring jumping was gone through by Fioretti and Elly; and bounding trampolinists Hayes and Merritt are somewhat novel; Vasey and Ramsey, neat dancers, gave an amusing trifle, The German and His Butler; and Dora Brooklyn, comedienne, also appeared.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole.—The stock dramatic company here has during the week given The Blind Witness, the principal parts in which were undertaken by Messrs. R. Seath Innes, Sydney Grant, David G. Noble, Cecil Ravenswood, Leo Montgomery, and Robb Wilton, and Miss Florence Palmer and Miss Lilian Radbourne. Mr. Anthony Brown's Bioscope showed the latest films.

WESTMINSTER.—Lessee, Mr. Fred E. Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Montgomery.—In addition to the series of cinematograph pictures, the following artists appeared during the week:—Tony Freedman, vocal comedian; and the Three Royal Temples, operatic vocalists.

OLYMPIA.—District-Manager, Mr. Albert Bulmer; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Wighton.—Gus Elen is the bright, particular star here this week, and delighted everybody with his latest songs, including "The wrong un's bedroom"; a new version of Turpin's Ride to York was given by Fred Ginnett and company, and loudly applauded; Reichen's dogs showed remarkable training; a cordial reception was extended to Miss Gwennie Llewellyn for her sweet singing; Frank and Free are a couple of highly-diverting comedians; J. P. Ling showed himself to be an accomplished mimic and comedian; Maud Vera, a capital dancer, pleased greatly; and Bert Harrow, comedian, also appeared.

PAVILION.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Manager, Mr. Henry Hearn.—Principal here this week is W. D. Mackenzie's company, with a neat musical scena, "Moments with the Masters"; the Merrions (Will, Harry, and Fred) gave a smart vocal and instrumental comedy entertainment; Zeta Grey, Wal Grace and company, amused greatly with the sketch, The Lancashire Lass; a wonderful electric cycle act was performed by Cyclumina; George Prince earned loud applause for his funny songs; some popular patriotic illustrated songs were given by Francis Haskell; Satani presented several clever illusions; Dex surprised with his conjuring; and the list also contained the names of Frank E. Ford, clog dancer; the Bros. Lydamore, comedians and dancers; and Clifford Stuart, comedian.

LLANDUDNO.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. J. Ritson.—Messrs. Martin Alwyne and A. W. Thompson's company appeared here for three nights in the evergreen My Sweetheart. Mr. Wilfred E. Brandon ably undertakes the part of Tony Faust and Mr. A. W. Thompson is quite at home as Joe Shotwell; Mr. Chas. Cameron does justice to the part of Dr. Oliver; Mr. Stewart Quartermayne is a polished type of villain as Harold Bartlett; and Mr. Martin Alwyne is amusing as Dudley Harcourt; Miss Kathie Bratby gives a good portrayal of Mrs. Fleeter; Miss Belle Russell is capital as Mrs. Hatzel; and Miss Violet Hurley is a pleasing Tina.

LLANELLY.—ROYALTY THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews; Resident-Manageress, Miss Alice Rocheforte.—Mr. Wentworth Croke's company is here this week, meeting with great success, in The Christian. Mr. P. George Twyman appears as John Storm, and wins great approval; Glory Quayle is most ably taken by Miss Margery Fane, who achieves success; Mr. Edward Custon as Horatio Drake and Mr. Montague Lane as Lord Robert Ure are both very good; in the parts of Father Lamplugh and Brother Paul Messrs. John H. Bateson and Bert Conway are both painstaking; Mr. Wm. Mallalieu makes a good Archdeacon Wealthy; as Polly Love Miss Gladys Vernon is commendable; and Miss Gracie Baring is equally good as Black Meg. The part of Mrs. Callender is in the able hands of Miss Alice Maude. The piece is well staged.

LONDONDERRY.—Opera House.—Proprietor, Mr. Payne Seddon; Manager, Mr. A. Jeffries.—Crowded houses are again the rule, and an excellent programme is submitted. Cestria, comedy juggler and acrobat, gives a capital turn; Dan Kino, a comedian of ability, is very popular; Mr. Chas. M. Daly's sketch company produce successfully I Must Have It, an uproariously funny little farce; and others who support the programme are Bell and Bright, in an amusing comedy act; Elsie Moore, a clever comedienne; and Cissie Gazetti, an artistic vocalist. The Dalyscope pictures are again very entertaining.

LONG EATON.—St. James's Theatre.—Mr. Ward's company, in The Love of the Princess, is here. As the Prince, Mr. Wilson Coleman makes a good impression, and Miss Ward gives a touching representation of the Princess; Mr. E. H. Dobell is the plotting King of Ilarnia, Mr. Ernest E. Imeson figures as Count Nicholas, the traitor, and Miss Helen Elmar, the sister of mercy, with Miss Nellie Garside as Lady Irene. The piece is well staged and dressed, and the company had a very flattering reception.

Palace.—Mr. Alf. Smith has a good picture show, with Mr. W. H. Blackman, a protean artist, and Coombes and Webb, musical entertainers. Two shows nightly are given, at popular prices.

LOUGHBOROUGH.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Payne Seddon and George Robertson; Resident Business-Manager, Mr. W. Payne Seddon.—Mr. Charles Constant's company in Florodora has been drawing good houses. Mr. Gus Danby as Tweedlepunch is, as usual, a host in himself; Mr. Jack Parker as Cyrus G. Gilfain plays with considerable vivacity; Mr. Martin D. Pitt as Frank Abercoed creates a good impression, his fine baritone voice being heard to great advantage; Mr. Stanley Bartram as Capt. Arthur Donegal is well suited to the rôle; Leandro is capitally taken by Mr. Emlyn Davis; Miss Daisy Lake as Dolores sings and acts with great power and feeling; Miss Louie Danby makes a piquant Angela; and Lady Holyrood is fascinatingly played by Miss Lillie Blythe.

LOUTH.—Town Hall.—Cyril Getliffe is here again with his National Ladies' Choir; the popular music is exceedingly well rendered, and the humorous portions prove highly amusing. Cyril Getliffe is quite at home with the most difficult compositions on the violin. Miss Minnie Sanderson is a delightful comedienne, and also pleases the house with her cornet solos.

LOWESTOFT.—Marina.—Manager, Mr. E. A. Smith.—The variety bill is headed by Will Van Allen, tramp musician; Will Crackles also affords amusement in song and dance; the Woodwards, cycling act; Ina Lorimer, Scotch comedienne; Mostol, musician; Yoland Noble and Howard and Wallace are also included in the bill.

Hippodrome.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Gilbert; Manager, Mr. Frank Freeland.—Interest is centred in the first visit locally of the famous Gunner Moir, and on Monday the spacious building was crowded, many being refused admission. The "Gunner," who is introduced by Major Best, looked the picture of health, and received an ovation. The bill also includes the talented Dayton Family, in a wonderful acrobatic sketch, Le Rendezvous, which is again scoring success; Percy Farrimond, the singing collier, is in excellent voice; Edgar Budden, comedian and roller skate dancer, wins applause; Millie Denham, comedienne, added to the entertainment; and the same may be said of Chas. Bu Val, in his clever musical sketch. On Thursday, Lockhart's Educated Elephants occupied the boards, in addition to a remarkably fine series of pictorial subjects by the British Biograph Co.

LUTON.—Grand Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Manager, Mr. Louis J. Beard.—Mr. Ernest Chesney's company is appearing here this week in Wedded to Crime. Miss Maud Arnold as the adventuress Lola L'Estrange displays much talent; the rôle of the Forger King, Desmond Delane, is played to perfection by Mr. E. Chesney, and his powerful acting in the last act was a pleasure to witness. Miss F. Halton gave a splendid performance as the long-suffering wife; a very clever character-study is that of Mr. Bernard Webb as the grasping old Ikey Kopstein; Mr. Chas. Sewell makes a breezy hero; and the comic relief suffers nothing in the hands of Mr. Harry Edlin and Mr. Vyvian Thomas.

MACCLESFIELD. — Theatre Royal. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. K. Gatley.—Mr. J. A. Campbell's company in The Little Breadwinner is here. Lord Dorrington is well portrayed by Mr. H. B. Peppin; the rascally Joseph Prior is faithfully drawn by Mr. Alfred Maurice; Chas Prior finds a clever exponent in Mr. Sydney Lynn; Mr. R. Brown is a popular Richard Lawrence; and Mr. W. Carey is successful as Dr. Chadwick. Little Winnie Crisp gives an excellent rendering of the title-rôle; Miss May Richardson is quite equal to the trying rôle of Margaret Daventry; Bridget O'Flannaghan is cleverly presented by Miss Clara Hunt; Miss M. Ford enacts the part of Kate Cherry to perfection; Miss Lissa Young makes an excellent Bobby Trott; and Miss Kitty Melville a charming Ruth Cherry.

MAESTEG. — Town Hall Theatre.—Lessees, Poole's Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. C. F. Knowles.—Mr. Frank M. Thorne and his company opened here on Monday with A Woman Pays. Mr. Phil Harper was exceedingly good as Sid Armstrong, and had a fine reception; the Roger Marchant of Mr. John Davidson was excellent; Mr Beresford Innes showed ability as Cyprus Tread gold; as Micky Maloney Mr. Frank M. Thorne afforded much amusement; Miss Maud Russell submitted a careful study of Madge Armstrong; Nell Morland in the hands of Miss Kate Blair was forcibly impersonated; and Miss Anena Walton was entertaining as Polly Stokes.

MAIDSTONE.—Palace.—Manager, Mr. Stanley Baskerville.—A smart farcical sketch, Poor Beggar, is well played by Mr. John Le Hay and company, Mr. Le Hay in the title-rôle being enthusiastically received. The Oakes, American entertainers, have some smart patter; Wilfred Burnand gives some clever character sketches from Dickens; Ivy Proudfoot has to respond to a well-deserved encore; Field and Lewis, duettists and dancers; Carson Hicks, comedian and dancer; Captain Ellis and Son, coloured instrumentalists; and the Bioscope are other attractions.

MANCHESTER.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees, The United Theatres, Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edmondstone Shirra.—Mr. and Mrs. Kendal's presentation of The Whirlpool here on Monday was received by a large audience with every mark of favour. The principal parts—Elijah D. Tillottson and Constance Livingstone—are quite in the vein usually associated with the popular couple who head the cast, and the efforts of both were duly honoured by rapt interest and unstinted applause. Every assistance was rendered by the company, among whom Mr. Bassett Roe played Bertram Livingstone with his customary finish; Mr. Edmund Gurney was excellent as Ephraim Johnstone; and Mr. Metcalfe Wood made quite a hit as Chappin, the clerk. On Tuesday an admirable performance of The Elder Miss Blossom was given before a good house, and on Thursday The House of Clay was deservedly well attended.

Prince's Theatre. — Proprietors, The United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Lee.—Considerable amusement is provided here this week by Messrs. Lionel Glenister and J. W. Wood-Ingram's company, in Jack Straw. A particularly strong feature of the performance is the inclusion of Miss Florence St. John as Mrs. Parker-Jennings, an admirably humorous and intelligent impersonation. Mr. Lionel Glenister plays the title-part in capital style, especially in the later scenes at Taverner's; and he is well assisted by Mr. Frederick Moyes as Ambrose Holland, Miss Edie Graham as Lady Wanley, and Mr. J. Edgar Stevenson as the Marquis of Serlo. Mr. A. T. Gullifer contributes an amusing depiction of Mr. Parker-Jennings; Miss Estelle Despa is satisfactory as Mrs. Withers; and Mr. J. W. Wood-Ingram makes a dignified Count von Bremer. The remaining parts are adequately filled. A Long Journey precedes.

Grand Junction Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Hewitt.—Love Rules the World is here this week, after a successful week at the Royal Osborne Theatre.

Gaiety Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. A. E. F. Horniman; Manager, Mr. B. Iden Payne.—A good house was attracted here on Monday by the appearance of Mr. Oscar Asche and Miss Lily Brayton in The Taming of the Shrew. A more perfect and enjoyable depiction of Petruchio and Katharina, by Mr. Asche and Miss Brayton respectively, could not be desired by the most fastidious of playgoers, and the parts subordinate to these are played in excellent spirit by the other members of the cast. Mr. Herbert Grimwood as Baptista is noteworthy; and Miss Muriel Ashwynne provides a well-studied contrast to the shrew as Bianca; while Mr. G. Kay Souper as Lucentio and Messrs. Caleb Porter and R. Ian Penny as Gremio and Hortensio are distinctly good. A matinée of Othello, splendidly done, was well attended on Wednesday.

Royal Osborne Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Mason.—Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Willard's company are here this week in a drama entitled The Girl With the Angel Face, founded on the recent Druce mystery. Mr. Fred J. Evison as the decrepit old sexton, Jasper Death, has a strong part; and Mr. H. Naylor Grimson is seen to advantage as the aristocratic Sir John Wentworth. Mr. Dobell Lyle displays extraordinary ability as the Rev. Gordon Cross; Mollie Maitland is a great success in the hands of Miss Mildred Carr; Miss Phyllis Dailley is womanly and sympathetic as Ena Wentworth; and in the title-part, Miss Florrie Green is very clever in depicting the dual character of Angel Leigh. The scenery is elaborate, and the piece very well received.

Metropole Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. Andrew.—A good programme here this week includes the Five M.P.'s, who provide a rich musical treat; Carney Bros., in an excellent vocal scena; Ada Janner, in her amusing sketch, The Lady Barber; Jukes and Earle, comediennes and dancers; Monty Walker, swell comedian; Percy Curry, the original candy man; U. C. Ugo, comedy illusionist; the Three Behans, in a novel quick-change comedy act; the original Zedoras, graceful gymnasts; and the Sisters Valli, in music and dance. George Hall, siffleur, did not appear.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—An excellent programme here is headed by Fred Karno's company, in Mumming Birds, who are funnier than ever; a big turn also is that of Lowenwirth and Cohan, Hebrew comedians, who are very well received; Harry Herbert, eccentric comedian, makes a hit with his funny songs and smart patter; Lilian Dundas and company present a well-written and effective convict episode, Nance Arden; Kisby, the call boy, is smart and amusing; the Lyric Quartet are heard in harmonised picture-songs; and other pleasing items are Merry Margery Lawrence, a clever juvenile comendienne and dancer; Adey Spencer, "the girl from the hat shop"; and The Book of Life, a novelty in living pictures.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Resident-Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—Loie Fuller and her graceful dancers remain here another week with their beautiful Ballet of Light; Queenie Leighton meets with a deserved good reception; Adele Crispin and the Little Forget-me-Nots are delightful in a pretty song-scena; and the Gothams are capital entertainers. The Frank L. Gregory Troupe are marvellous hoop rollers and jugglers; Dave Austen and Frank Hawthorne are highly amusing in a comedy duologue, His Wedding Morn; Ray Wallace at the piano is a clever mimic; and others who entertain are Edie Reynolds, violinist, in well-rendered selections; Margaret and John Rawson, smart juveniles; and Arthur Schofield, comedian. Interesting films are shown on the Bioscope.

Palace. — Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Manager, Mr. Fred Leighton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. J. Carter.—Kate Carney is here this week in her successful song-scenas, "The Yiddisher Boy" and "Mr. Postman," and meets with a splendid reception. The Colibris Midgets, introduced by Herr Munstedt, are the smallest performers before the public, and are exceedingly clever; Kurkamp is a fine singer, and is deservedly well received; Chanti, in his wonderful quick-change act, scores a big success; George Melvin, Scotch comedian, dances well, and makes a hit; Charles F. Best as McBunker is very funny; and other good turns are those of Charles Cardow, vocal comedian; Dan Kennedy, comedian; and Mack Olive, in whistling scena. Pictures complete.

Tivoli. — Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—Excellent and well-received turns here this week are those of Marguerite Broadfoote, burlesque artist; the Six Spots, vaudeville entertainers; and Lisbon and Barker, comedians. The Llewellyns, in a comedy operetta, Two Wicked Maids, are also good; and Daisy Reed, comedienne, dances in fine style. Other smart items are offered by Ida Katherina, "the dolly girl"; George Laurence, light comedian; Irene Meldon, comedienne; and the Three Sisters Duquesne, vocalists and dancers. Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope is also shown. Mr. Frank J. Smith's twentieth original fantasia, entitled "Three Manchester Sketches," is a characteristic piece of work of this indefatigable conductor and composer, and was successfully produced for the first time on Monday last.

King's Theatre. — Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. James R. Trippett.—Jake Friedman, in that delightful Dutch operetta, Happy Holland, assisted by a capital company, tops the bill here this week, and is well received; Margit and Lever, acrobatic eccentrics, are exceedingly smart; Cecilia Gold is an excellent comedienne; Angelina gives a remarkably clever juggling act; and Herr Karoly Czynski, musical expert, is warmly applauded. Others who do well are Frances Hanlon, dainty comedienne; Jack Waller, lady impersonator; and Allsopp and Bekwith, the popular duo. Gaieties of Divorce is shown on the Bioscope.

Queen's Park Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Meek.—The members of Mr. Thompson Carruthers' company, in The Master Card, a highly sensational sketch, are all excellent, playing with great dramatic power. The piece is well mounted, and presented in masterly manner, and the card manipulating of Dunningarto is exceptionally clever. Baddow is undoubtedly a "great" ventriloquist, his turn being exceedingly smart; the Three Sisters Tree sing and dance pleasingly; Edwin Garth gains a good reception for his quaint humour; the Sages are good comedy artists; France and Francis, in an acrobatic tumbling act, display much ability; the Brothers Ford are neat simultaneous dancers; Doyle and Massey score as cross-talkers; Ben Jackson plays the banjo cleverly; and Mark Hinton is an entertaining comedian.

Hulme Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; General-Manager, Mr. H. Winstanley.—Morny Cash, the Lancashire lad, tops the bill here this week, and makes a big hit; the Wedburns are highly amusing comedians; Coverdale and Huxley's Bijou Juveniles are exceedingly clever singers and dancers, and meet with a deserved good reception; and the Swift Duo are very clever trick cyclists. First-rate and well-received items are also offered by Beau and Belle, in scena, Past and Present; Barfoot and Carson, comedians and dancers; Milner and Storey, comedy duo; Leonard Gale, vocal comedian; Will Sullivan, comedian and patterer; the Imperial Comedy Quintette, in musical sketch, His Last Day of Freedom; and Carl Howard in comedy and magic. The Isle of Man Motor Races are shown on the Bioscope.

Rusholme Pavilion.—Proprietor, Mr. Harry Leslie.—An excellent programme is offered here this week, and includes Miss Rene Steadman, comedienne; Miss Annie Coxon, contralto; Miss Belle Sylvia, comedienne and dancer; Mr. George Curzon, baritone; Mr. Vernon Noble, light comedian; Mr. Andy Drew, eccentric comedian; Jim Pullen, a popular comedian; and Mr. Fred Shepherd at the piano.

MANSFIELD. — Grand Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Capt. Clayton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Mark Lorne.—Mr. Dickie Clare's company of comedians is this week presenting the musical absurdity Lucky Liza. Miss Madge Brownie is vivacious and captivating in the title-rôle; Miss Vesta Brownie is smart and entertaining as Virginia Blatherwick; Miss Evelyn Wood sings and acts capitally as Sadie Potts; and a pleasing and graceful Marie is found in Miss Helen Douglas. Mr. Dickie Clare shines prominently, firstly as Silas Slim, then as the Judge, and finally as the French waiter. Mr. Norman H. Lee plays cleverly as Paul Pettitoe; Mr. T. W. Benson and Mr. Harry George are excellent as the rival barristers; and Mr. J. W. Forrest is extremely comical as Biffins. Scotch dances are given by Miss Vesta Brownie, whilst the Astor Trio are both clever and original in their dancing.

Victoria Hall.—Lessee, Mr. A. Fox.—The Victoria pictures continue to draw large audiences. In addition to the pictures, Mr. Clarence Turner (dialect comedian) and Miss Mollie Revill (lady baritone), both well known to local audiences, are a great success. The Mosaics, comedy duo, complete an excellent programme.

MARGATE. — Hippodrome.—Managing Directors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. F. Bawtree.—The programme here is headed this week by Joe Peterman's company in the operatic burlesque The Singing Servants. This bright and tuneful production has been remarkably well received. Other contributors are Nita Olem, comedienne and dancer; The Orchids, vocal comedy duo; Mr. C., who sings and talks; W. A. Harvie, in the adventures of a telegraph wire repairer; and Maud Courtney, American songstress and story-teller; who all secure a full share of popularity.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessees, the South Wales Entertainments, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Albert Jackson.—Messrs. Sutton and Raynor's company is paying a return visit with Moths on Monday and Wednesday, Called Back on Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday, and The Second Mrs. Tanqueray on Friday.

Temperance Hall.—Manager, Mr. Israel Price.—In an all-round programme of excellence provided here this week are the Three Rubys, contortionists and acrobats; the Wallys, in a juggling act; Fred Casburn, who appears in a song-scena, An Actor's Reverie; the Devonports, illusionists; the Godfreys in a musical comedietta, The Slavey and the Coon; Lesta Lowe, comedienne and dancer; Bonetto and Corri, eccentrics; Donald McDougal, Scotch comedian; and the Biograph.

METHIL.—Gaiety Theatre.—Proprietors, the Methil Theatre Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Sydney Arnold.—Mrs. Fred J. Kirke's company opened the week here with the musical drama The Naval Detective. Miss Florry Jackson and Mr. O. B. Stanley as Phillis Leslie and Lieut. Jack Beresford respectively displayed great versatility, their various disguises being well sustained; Miss Francesca Strickland was a most effective Lulu Kauffmann; Miss Lily Seymour played well as Rebecca Gentle, the Quakeress; Miss Edith Clariss was amusing as Susan Scrubbs, and Miss Gladys Glaney made an excellent impression as Maud Marsham. Mr. G. H. Holloway was capital as Dr. Schreiner; Captain Hustle and the Hon. Bertie Fairlock had capable representatives in Messrs. Franklyn Daly and W. T. Hybert respectively; Mr. R. Bridge as Sergeant Duncan was good; and, as Hans Winklepump, Mr. Charles Burns made a decided score. The Sisters Gaze, as the dancing girls, Ruby and Pearl, made themselves popular. The Gaietyscope added to the enjoyment of the evening. In Old Madrid was billed for the last three nights of the week.

MEXBOROUGH.—Prince of Wales's Theatre.—Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—Mr. J. Rice Cassidy's company are this week playing The World and the Woman. Mr. Geo. H. Doyle gives a dignified and intelligent rendering of Arthur Burleigh; Ludlow Burleigh is played with vigour by Mr. St. George Frere; Terry O'Harris has an able exponent in Mr. J. Rice Cassidy; Mr. Hy. Hoyland is satisfactory as Tut Harding; Mr. Hy. Compton plays well as Sir Francis Chalmers; Mrs. J. Rice Cassidy invests with dramatic power the trying rôle of Nelly; Miss Amy McNeill cleverly portrays Lady Marion Chalmers; and Miss Vara Hern does well as Gwendoline.

New Picture Hall.—Proprietor, Mr. Will Hunter; Manager, Mr. E. H. Jones.—Among the excellent pictures being shown here this week are—The Vision of Salome, The Lady Barrister, 'Twixt Love and Duty, Sports of the World, and A Free Pardon.

MIDDLESBROUGH.—Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Edward Jowsey; Manager and Licensee, Mr. W. Ker Chatto.—Miss Maud Hildyard, who scored a great success on her former visit to the Opera House last year, makes a most welcome reappearance here this week in The Great Awakening. In the rôle of Lola Selby, an adventuress, she gains unstinted applause. The play, in which pathos, passion, and humour are well blended, gives Miss Hildyard plenty of scope in which to display her versatility as an actress. Mr. Wallis Clark is excellent as James Selby, and Mr. Conrad Franklyn does full justice to the rôle of Captain Lambert. Miss Fay Garnett-Vayne is a pleasing Molly Merton, and Mr. Cecil Gray in the rôles of Sir Henry Merton and Jack Mertan does well. Mr. Herbert Robinson as Guy Rogan is good, and Mr. Tracy Barrow as Billy Brass and Mr. Eric Dane as Sergeant Bone cause much merriment.

Theatre Royal. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Chas. Imeson.—Roaring Camp, a drama, the scene of which is a gold-mining camp in Western America, is being presented here this week. The play, which is produced by Mr. Leonard Boyne's company, abounds with stirring scenes and amusing situations. The part of Will Gordon, a rich man, is admirably portrayed by Mr. Henry Hare, and the character of Nell Curtis could scarcely have been placed in better hands than those of Miss May Forster. Tom Barnes and Jovita de Sutro, the villain and villainess, are well sustained by Mr. Charles E. Johnson and Miss Constance Elgin. Mr. J. W. Braithwaite as Paddy McGinty and Miss Gwen Clifford as Mrs. O'Flynn contribute to the humour.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Brill; Manager, Mr. Chas. Rembges.—Jack Lorimer, the popular Scottish comedian, with a number of catchy songs, has a great reception. The Spy, which is produced by Messrs. Percy Ford and G. W. Webb's company, creates a big impression; Fred Poplar in a new absurdity is good; Wee Mona Vivian does some clever impersonations of popular artists; Kitty Wager is a dainty comedienne; and the Stowe Bros. are clever equilibrists. Stella Stahl and Harding and Preston, comedy artists, also do well.

Hippodrome. — Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Manager, Mr. A. E. Nicholls.—Crowded houses are the rule here this week, the great attraction being Lafayette in an original and remarkable performance. Binns and Binns are exceptionally entertaining; Alcide Capitaine is a clever gymnast; Frank Maura, the Mexican wonder, is very popular; V. L. Granville's character impersonations are all that can be desired; and Dorothy R. Clarke is a charming vocalist.

Oxford Palace.—Proprietor, Mr. Alfred Graham; Manager, Mr. Ormesby French.—Cline and Clarke, black and white comedy artists, score a great success here; considerable amusement is caused by the numerous attempts to ride Berzac's mule or to run on the revolving table; little Miss Horsley and W. Horsley give a clever exhibition of clog-dancing; and included in a number of other turns are the Rosses, whose patter and dancing are excellent.

MOTHERWELL.—New Century Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Hales.—Mr. Frederick Melville's company in Her Road to Ruin is here this week. Mr. Henry Wolston is earnest and convincing as the young curate, and Mr. Ernest Hague gives a carefully studied rendering of the rôle of Tom Wells; Philip Hardy, "the man who was to blame," is excellently played by Mr. Alex. Bradley; May Willoughby, as played by Miss Alice Alice Bowes, is a pretty picture of English girlhood; her sister Jess having a powerful exponent in Miss Beatrice Edwards; Miss Nellie Bonser submits some excellent character acting in the rôle of Mary Dawson; Mr. Dane Clark is strong and convincing as the Bishop; Miss Mary Wright is amusing in the rôle of Jeannie Crackling, as is also Mr. Harry Talbot as Billy Boots. The minor rôles are well played, and the scenery and effects are excellent.

MUSSELBURGH.—Gaiety Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. A. W. B. Kingston; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. M. Richardson.—For the first three nights this week we were favoured with a return visit of Mr. Carr Loates and his company. At the World's Mercy was given on Monday and Tuesday before large and appreciative audiences. Mr. Leo Rodway as the dashing young sailor, Captain Frank Manley, made a typical hero; Mr. Carr Loates as the rascally solicitor, Jabez Barber, was ably assisted in his villainies by Mr. George D. Knight as Goldstein, the Jew, and Mr. W. H. Irving as Slouching Sam; the much-persecuted heroine, Alice Lloyd, was in the capable hands of Miss Molly Bee, who gave an excellent rendering of the part; Miss Kathleen Saunders played the child Dot with feeling; Mr. G. Scully and Miss Cissie Milford were responsible for the comedy element; and as Charley Smart and Kitty Knott, the music hall artists, they gave some very clever songs and dances. Miss Milford played the part of the stowaway, Skittles, with touching effect. The piece was effectively mounted and dressed. A London Outcast was staged on Wednesday.

NEATH.—Gwyn Hall.—The Neath Amateur Dramatic Society gave a performance of Jedbury, Jun., before a crowded audience. The comedy was very creditably portrayed. Mr. C. P. Palmer as Christopher Jedbury, jun., submitted a strong and artistic representation; Mr. W. H. Curtis as Jedbury, sen., displayed talent; Mr. H. W. Beckley cleverly represented Tom Bellaby; Mr. H. C. Peerman as Mr. Gibb was greatly appreciated; Mr. A. W. Loughour as Job, valet to Jedbury, jun., made a typical gentleman's servant; Mr. W. P. Rees cleverly doubles the parts of Wimper, a manservant, and Mr. Simpson, manager of Jedbury's Bombay house; Major Hedway, a retired army officer, was faithfully portrayed by Mr. H. E. Aldington; Mrs. C. P. Palmer acted effectively the part of Mrs. Jedbury, jun.; Miss Ethel Dunsdon as Nelly, daughter of Jedbury, sen., played in capital style; Miss Joan Thomas as Dora, niece of Major Hedway, displayed talent; and Miss Lillian Pole played Mrs. Gibb with success. The whole of the proceeds are to be handed over to the Neath Maternity Section of the Nursing Association. Hutchin's Orchestral Band played some delightful music during the evening. Great praise is due to Mr. W. P. Rees for his able stage management and to Mr. H. Wright, who worked hard to ensure success in his capacity as acting-manager and agent in advance.

NELSON.—Grand Theatre.—Proprietress, Mrs. T. Greenwood Croft; Business-Manager, Mr. Geo. E. Mudd.—The boards here have this week been occupied by Mr. C. Watson Mill's company in For Love and the King. Mr. Mill successfully presents Jarval, his acting in the torture scene being of a very vivid and impressive character. The miser is well played by Mr. J. Burton; Mr. Hy. Earlsmere makes a powerful Vladimir Obrenovic; whilst the characters of Prince Uros Dragomir and Duke Fernand are capably treated by Mr. H. Hilliard and Mr. Geoffrey Chate; as the German artist Mr. Jim K. Woods is very successful; Miss Joan Ellis charmingly presents Natila, the beggar-maid; Miss Marie Ault is a vivacious and pleasing Grazia; and as Princess Athene Miss Rosalind Tate increased her popularity. The dresses and scenery are specially attractive.

NEW BRIGHTON.—Winter Gardens.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. H. E. Jones and A. Douglass.—Condensed grand opera is drawing enormous houses at this popular resort. Mr. Ernest C. Gittins' company, consisting chiefly of late members of the Carl Rosa Opera Co., renders a portion of Martha, also Donizetti's popular military opera, The Daughter of the Regiment, in a manner beyond reproach. The principal artists include Miss Adele Prescott, Miss Theresa Gilbert, Mr. Frederick Silverston, Mr. Harry Carver, Mr. Harry Malthouse, and Miss Hilda Marks. The staging is most effective. The band, augmented, under the direction of Herr A. Spiegler, lend valuable aid. The first part also embraces other items of an acceptable character. The Franco-British Marionettes, cleverly manipulated, cause loud laughter, whilst Miss Mamie Morris dances well. The animated pictures are, as usual, of the highest class, depicting travel and educational subjects.

Pavilion.—Manager, Mr. F. W. Nall.—Skating is quite a fashionable pastime, and the attendance daily is very good.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE. — Theatre Royal. — Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Teale Lingham.—A welcome return visit is being paid to Newcastle this week of Mr. Robert Courtneidge's production, The Dairymaids. The company is particularly strong, including, as it does, Miss Phyllis Dare, Miss Edith Blanche, Mr. Harry Dent, and Mr. Statham Staples. In the part of Peggy Miss Phyllis Dare retains all her charm; Winifred has a bright and vivacious exponent in Miss Gladys Ivery, an extremely capable singer; Lady Brudenell is played with quiet dignity and charm by Miss Edith Blanche; and Eliza, in the hands of Miss Lottie Sargent, receives diverting treatment. Mr. Harry Dent as the ubiquitous Joe Mivens is responsible for the major portion of the fun, being ably assisted by Mr. E. Statham Staples as Sam Brudenell, Mr. Fred Leslie as Lieut Brudenell, and Mr. Percy Marshall as Dr. O'Bryne.

Tyne Theatre and Opera House.—Lessees, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham; Manager, Mr. Fred C. Sutcliffe.—Many years have elapsed since the Follies visited Tyneside, and great interest is being evinced in the present visit of Mr. H. G. Pélissier and his merrymakers. Mr. Pélissier, himself an accomplished musician and brilliant entertainer, is ably assisted by his talented company in many and various items of interest, and altogether the whole performance is one huge success.

Palace Theatre.—Manager, Mr. T. W. Rowe.—The Sailor's Wedding is here, the presentation of the piece being in the capable hands of Miss Dulcie Greatwich, Miss Laura Hansen, Miss Celestine Betram, Mr. C. W. Standing, Mr. Cecil Klein, and Mr. Frank Gordon.

Grand Theatre.—Manager, Mr. F. W. Bolam.—An enthusiastic reception was accorded that popular drama The Face at the Window on Monday evening. Mr. E. Hoggan-Armadale and Mr. Scott Leighton, in respective parts of Le Loup and Paul Gouffet, are excellent. Mr. Alfred Warne, Mr. Arthur Beverley, Miss Elsie Marriott Watson, and Miss Louie Lonora also lend valuable aid.

Empire Theatre.—Resident-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Manager, Mr. W. Parham Wells.—At the head of a capital programme this week is Mr. Arthur Roberts and company in a clever and original sketch Till Sunday. The Eight Lancashire Lads present an attractive dancing turn; Harry Bancroft, actor-vocalist, goes well; the inimitable George Bastow gives a series of clever character studies, which receive hearty appreciation; whilst another pleasing turn is contributed by Emmie Ames. Other prominent artists appearing are Ben Albert, the logician; Madge Osmond, who sings in the dress of a British officer; and Duncan and Godfrey, in the comedy Me and 'Er. The bioscope completes an all-round interesting bill.

Pavilion Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thos. Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Will H. Boardman.—Miss May Moore Duprez, the jolly Dutch girl, is the star on an exceedingly strong bill here; and other artists contributing are that very fine and fascinating dancer Topsy Sinden, Bros. Bradshaw, John Grun Marx, Blake and Amber, Harry Vardon, Herbert La Martine, Mike Nono, and Bromley and Fontein.

NEWPORT.—Lyceum.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sidney Cooper.—Mr. George Edwardes' company is playing The Merry Widow to crowded houses here this week. The music is charming, the setting brilliant, and the dressing magnificent. The chorus-singing is particularly good, and the acting of the principals is of a high order. Miss Mysie Devine as Sonia displays powers of fascination and acts with grace and charm; and Mr. Frank Green's Prince Danilo is humorous and spirited; and Mr. Edward D'Arcy is extremely funny as Baron Popoff. Mr. Fred Fowler is really comical in the part of Nisch; Mr. Bert Edwards as Maxime is delightfully entertaining; and Mr. Ripley Evans, who puts a good deal of fervour into his love-making, as Vicomte Camille de Joliton, sings excellently. Mr. Wm. Allison and Mr. F. Pedgrift do well as the Marquis de Cascada and M. de St. Brioche respectively; and Mr. Clifford Seyier displays humour in the part of General Novakovitch. Miss Ada Thomas acts Natalie with spirit and tenderness; Miss Katie May dances well as Frou-Frou; and Miss Winnie Bailey, Miss Madeline Seymour, Miss Marjorie Villis, Miss Patricia Bevan, and Miss Nancy Keeley are particularly attractive as girls at Maxim's; and Miss Daphne Glenne as Olga; and Miss Violet Hotson as Sylvanie and Miss Lucie Donati as Prascoria, are well adapted for their parts.

Empire.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll.—Arthur Lennard delights crowded houses with his popular songs; Tom Edwards presents an extremely clever turn in ventriloquism; and a very artistic performance is provided by the Three Welsh Girls. Cyclonic dances are given by the Molasso Quartette; Ross and Lewes, in quaint dancing, add to the evening's enjoyment; and the Three Bros. Huxter perform some remarkable feats in high and long-distance somersaults. Marie Empress presents a smart turn as a comedienne; Little Pam dances very creditably; and Constance Mori sings with taste and expression. The Bioscope, showing capital pictures, completes the bill.

NORTHAMPTON.—New Palace Theatre.—Sole Proprietor and Director, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Manager, M. Thos. A. Evans.—That Dreadful Detective, presented by E. D. Nichols and company, is a burlesque of the old style of drama, and proves very amusing; the Sisters Tasners, able dancers and duettists, take the place of Queenie Essex, incapacitated by illness; Will Hebden gives a couple of comic songs with success; Les Ados, of fine physique, give a good athletic display; the Sisters Carlton, duettists and speciality dancers, obtain a hearty reception; Lillie Hales, "Queen of the Wooden Shoon," D'Arcy and Lewis, in an eccentric comedy act, Hearne and Palmer, eccentrics, and the Palace Pictures fill up the list.

NORTH SHIELDS. — Theatre Royal. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—Mr. Lingford Carson's company is presenting A Fight for a Throne, which is greatly enjoyed. As Captain Jack Fortesque Mr. John S. Millward is seen to much advantage; Mr. Gerald Byrne plays admirably as Nicholai I.; and Otto finds a capable exponent in Mr. Charles E. Linney; Mr. Patrick Evans is well suited as Lieut. Fitzmaurice; Mr. John Worth is responsible for a well studied and clever portrayal of Lieut. Paul Rodna; and Mr. Tom Roydan makes the most of General Rodna. Princess Esmee of Viazma finds an excellent representative in Miss Dora Hammersley; Miss Margarette Tueskie displays much ability as Countess Waleska Lorenski; Miss Madge Clayton is appreciated as Sister Agatha; and Miss Emmeline B. Lewis makes a satisfactory Lady Pat.

Central Palace.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Wm. Mould.—The Three Markies, vocal and musical comedy artists, have made a great hit here; the Gentrys, comedy duo, also introduce a smart act; and Messrs. Donald and Lebrun, in The Huntsman and the Maid, are heartily greeted; Miss Mollie Malone, Irish comedienne, is very popular; Miss Marie Gold, a capital vocalist, has many admirers; Mr. George Rylatt, swell comedian, is well received; and the Mouldoscope still continues a prominent item on the programme.

NORTHWICH.—Central Theatre.—Proprietress, Mrs. S. Golden; Secretary, Miss E. Golden.—A Heart's Desire, this week's fare, is presented by Mr. C. Elliman's company. Mr. R. F. Stacey makes an admirable Lord St. Ives; Miss Lily Prescott is a satisfactory Olya; Mr. Julian Mitchell acts efficiently as Eric May; Miss Hilda May as Gwendoline Ross and Mr. Hubert Lawrence as the Hon. Bertie Beresford supply the comedy element; and Miss Blanche Leroy is a charming Elsie Beresford.

The Pavilion.—Pro

Mr. Edward Jephson deserves commendation as Dr. Blundell; and Mr. Billie Norwood acts admirably as John Crewys.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. Councillor F. W. Fitt.—Mr. T. E. Dunville is much appreciated for his songs, and obtains loud encores nightly; Lotto, Lilo, and Otto, trick cyclists, exhibit marvellous ability; George Brooks is well received; and other good turns are given by Lizzie Danielo, comedienne; Rose and Calvert, comedians; Tiny Arnold, the diminutive comedienne; the Elimans, clever musical entertainers; Ada Cerito, comedienne; and the Hippo. Bioscope, with interesting films.

BANK PLAIN ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—The Franco-British Bioscope Company's animated pictures continue to do well here.

NOTTINGHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—A White Man is meeting with great success here; Mr. Herbert Sleath as Jim Carston gets a thorough grip of the character, and plays with an intensity and force that carries conviction; as the weak-minded Earl, Mr. Harold Weston shows appropriate discrimination; there is a breeziness about Mr. George Fawcett's Big Bill that makes him a general favourite; Mr. Menifee Johnstone indicates the blustering Cash Hawkins with reality and vigour; Mr. A. W. Jack Ellis capitally exploits the Sheriff; the Indian chief of Mr. A. S. Aspland, and the Interpreter of Mr. A. Plumpton fit well in the picture; and the cowboys are excellently done by Messrs. Cecil Yapp, S. Warmington, and R. F. Symonds. Too much praise cannot be accorded Miss Dorothy Dix for her artistic interpretation of Nat-u-ritch; Miss Enid Sass contributes an excellent portraiture of the warm-hearted Diana; and the Dowager Lady Kerhill is effectively embodied by Miss Emma Gwynne.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Harry Upton.—The company of Mr. Ernest R. Abbott presents A Wife's Triumph this week to appreciative audiences. Mr. Frank Stephens gives an interesting exposition of a gambler, and gains sympathy by his fine acting; as the long-suffering and tender wife, Miss Ada Abbott displays dramatic intensity and touching pathos; Mr. Vincent Carlyle earns hearty execrations for his portrayal of the villainous Ellis Jordan; Miss Florence North is good as Alice Wilton; and Mr. Ernest R. Abbott fills the rôle of the Squire with urbanity. The humour is abundant, and is led by Mr. Edwin Keene, who, as Ben Bradford, contributes several songs that are mightily enjoyed; Miss Isabel Singleton makes a sprightly Marjory Cribb; and judicious work is also furnished by Messrs. Arthur Britton, D. Pentland, and T. Wilson.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert C. Duncan.—As a singer of "silly" songs, and an exponent of the broadest farcical style, George Formby excels, and his efforts are highly appreciated; Boyd and Gilfain, in song and dance, present a turn artistic and interesting; and Harry Rogers and company, in a highly dramatic sketch, Told in a Flat, create enthusiasm; Machnow, the Russian giant, stimulates curiosity and wonder; the electrical and scenic effects of Rousby's Panorama of London and the Exhibition are unique and impressive; Cruikshanks, always sure of a hearty welcome here, is as comical as ever; Kitty Clinton is a dainty comedienne; the dancing of La Danseuse is agreeable to watch; the Egbert Brothers perform some comedy acrobatic tricks cleverly; and the programme is completed by some good films of the Manx motor races, shown by the Bioscope.

ROYAL HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. V. Carnell.—Miss Ada Colley is delighting large audiences by her finished and artistic rendering of old songs; Leoni de Lausanne's skilful rifle shooting calls forth great enthusiasm; the daring feats on the wire of the Onlaw Trio are both novel and exciting; Radford and Valentine supply a dexterous juggling act; the whistling and ventriloquism of Richard Taylor is thoroughly appreciated; and the Sisters Sprightly delight their hearers by a smart burlesque on golf. A laughable sketch, entitled The Peacemakers, is given by W. E. Ellwanger; and the shadowgraphy of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Wilde obtains applause. The Hiatts are heard in a musical mélange; and the Pictures on the Barrascope are, as usual, very good.

NUNEATON.—PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Proprietors, Theatre and Entertainments Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Joseph Coyle.—Mr. Clarence C. Corri's company, in the popular comic opera The Dandy Fifth, is here this week. Mr. Percy Baverstock is capital as the brusque and hot-tempered Colonel; Mr. J. Edward Fraser is appreciated by his singing and acting in the double rôle of Dick Darville and Claude Duval; Mr. George Beverley creates much amusement as Sergeant-Major Milligan; Mr. Jack Crichton delights the audience and wins rounds of applause as Trooper Brown; the singing of the Male Quartette Party is highly commendable. Miss Pauline Hague is the Merry Madcap, and her splendid singing and delightful acting fairly bring down the house; Miss Nora Morra is deserving of much praise for the charming way in which she fills the rôle of Polly; Miss Maud Nicholls is good both as Mrs. Von Blitzen and the Vivandiere. The Tambourine Dance by Miss Sadie Thomson is cleverly performed.

OLDBURY.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Jas. Tyrer.—Melvin and Max head the bill here this week. The dancing of Max as a female impersonator is extraordinary. Chas. Day is a comedian of merit; Miss Mabel Kingston contributes good songs; the Sisters Holman, duettists and dancers, are a refined couple; and there are some good films.

OLDHAM.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—Mr. George D. Day's company, in The Prodigal Son, opened here on a return visit on Monday. Mr. Albert Ward plays Oscar Stephenson in his well-known breezy manner, and Magnus is ably acted by Mr. H. J. Crane; Miss Pauline Emeric is successful in the dual rôle of Thora and Elin; Miss Florence Lovell is a capital Anna Magnusson, and Miss Kate Osborne an amusing Margaret Neilson; Mr. Jackson Hayes is good as Stephen Magnusson, and Mr. Jas. English does well as Oscar Neilson; Dr. Olsen is well acted by Mr. J. E. Savery, and Messrs. A. J. Williams and R. C. Brooksmith are capable as the Pastor and the Sheriff respectively.

COLOSSEUM THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Wm. Eastwood.—Large crowds have been drawn to this popular drama house by Mr. Walter Howard's latest success, The Prince and the Beggar Maid. Miss Ethel Bracewell is a delightful Monica; Miss Gertrude Branscombe a sympathetic Camiola, and Miss Jessica Black a capital Viola; Mr. Ernest Cox plays Prince Olaf in manly fashion; Prince Hildred is ably acted by Mr. Alfred Brandon; and Mr. Melville Bickford as the deformed Prince Michael gives a clever portrayal; Mr. W. S. Mills as Capt. Hector looks every inch a soldier; Mr. Reg. Payne makes good use of his opportunities as Lieut. Karl Stromberg; and Mr. W. S. Hardy is excellent as Col. Wellenberg.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Kilrow.—Marie Loftus heads the bill here, and her songs gain several recalls; Albert Whelan is smart in his entertainment; Surrey Lindon's Entertainers give a capital vocal turn; Ouida Macdermott is clever as a vocal actress; the Erico Martialo Trio are capital in a balancing act; Amos Howard dances well; and Lena Wylie sings good songs. The Mezzettis do a good comedy bar act; and Kitty K. Allen is a smart comedienne.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Nuttall. — The Arthur Gallimore Trio present a laughable comedy; Miss Edith St. Clair is highly successful in capital songs; Chas. Banks has some excellent patter, being ably assisted by his clever dog Woof; Bert Rayburn is smart in his quaint songs; Fred Maitland has a good act, Talked Out; and the Varleys harmonise tunefully; Zellini is a good comedy juggler; and the Dottoscope concludes.

OXFORD. — NEW THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. C. C. Dorrill; Assistant-Manager, Mr. G. T. Lucas.—The latter half of last week Messrs. Glenister and Wood-Ingram's company gave a most successful performance here of Jack Straw. Miss Florence St. John as Mrs. Parker-Jennings and Mr. Glenister as Jack Straw scored a huge success. This week we are having a welcome return visit from Mr. Edward Terry and his company. On Monday Fiander's Widow drew a capital house, and gave us the chance of seeing Mr. Terry in a new part, and very humorous and delightful he was as Isaac Sharpe. Mr. Edmund Hollick was excellent as his nephew, Richard Marshall; Miss Edith Coleman's most natural and sympathetic performance of "Widow" Fiander quite delighted the house; and Miss Sophie Lingwood gave a clever sketch as the village charwoman. On Tuesday Mr. Edward Terry appeared in Liberty Hall, and on Wednesday in Sweet Lavender.

EAST OXFORD THEATRE.—Lessees, Miss Winifred Stuart and Mr. C. Watson Mill; Manager, Mr. Frank Stuart.—Mr. Harry Foxwell's company is here with A Broken Heart. Mr. Stanley Bedwell portrays John Barnard powerfully; and Mr. Geo. Newall is also very capable as Stephen Rayiton. Mr. Edward Rawlinson proves himself a clever actor as Gash Gills; and Mr. Will Lindsay is most amusing as Tony Tibbetts; Mr. Harry Foxwell enacts Rev. Mr. Staunton with conspicuous success; Miss Marguerite Thorne is natural as Mrs. Barnard; Miss Eileen Bamford is good as Miss Grace Fanshawe; Miss Daisy Rocheford wins sympathy as Little May; Miss Dora Hargreaves is excellent as Sally Tavner; and Miss Sheila Walsh gives a clever rendering of Mary Barnard.

PAISLEY.—PAISLEY THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—Here this week is Messrs. F. Marriott-Watson and Sanderson Moffat's company in What a Woman Did. Mr. F. Marriott-Watson forcibly plays the part of Raffaelie Duroc; Mr. Sanderson Moffat is excellent as Conrad de L'Orme; Mr. Reg. Kloof acts with marked effect the rôle of Black Pitou; a capital Fritz von Hœltheim comes from Mr. C. Elton Morgan; and Mr. Owen Edwin as Peter Pippin is amusing. Miss Florence E. Florence gives a sweet rendering of Elise de L'Orme; a powerful interpretation of La Papillon is furnished by Miss Phyllis Hamilton; and Nannette is vivaciously enacted by Miss Norah Waylett.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Stead.—Barton and Ashley, the bright and breezy comedy duo, head an interesting programme here; the clever show by the Faludy troupe of acrobats arouses a deal of interest; Jack Nell, Scotch comedian, is responsible for much laughter; neat buck dancing comes from Bessie Knight; the Corcoran Brothers supply a pleasing musical turn; interesting and entertaining are Vere and Nelldon, singers and dancers; the Westbrooks, in a novelty dancing scena, offer a refined turn; Benson and Rose submit a smart comedy duologue, Elizabeth and the Baby; and the Bioscope forms a pleasing feature.

PENTRE.—TIVOLI PALACE AND HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. C. W. Poole; Acting-Manager, Mr. James Gunn.—Topping the bill this week are the laughter-makers Conn an Conrad, in their comical sketch, Fun on a Barber's Pole. Les Tripellos, in a novelty musical entertainment, are deservedly applauded; the Twin Brothers Dean contribute a clever exposition of dancing; the skating turn of the Miltons is highly appreciated; Nell Cotter is a favourite in popular chorus songs; Sid Brandon captivates the audience with his character comedy; T. W. Rawson and Lily Bertram, in a funny sketch, are also good. The Brothers Durant have been unable, through indisposition, to appear. The Tivoliscope, with new films, conclude an interesting programme.

PERTH.—PERTH THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Aldridge.—Mr. Morton Powell's company is the attraction here this week in When It Was Dark. The part of Constantine Schwabe is in the capable hands of Mr. Haldane Dalton; Mr. Wilfred Lyndon is highly successful as the Rev. Basil Gortre; Sir Robert Llewellyn is capitally played by Mr. Charles Brandon; Mr. William H. Burton is quietly effective as the Rev. Mr. Byars; Mr. George Tawde as Hon. Charles Gayfly is humorous; Mr. Alfred Collingham is good as Harold Spence; the part of Nunc Wallace is adequately filled by Mr. Jack Armifage; Mr. J. F. Inglis is successful as Mr. Ommaney; Mr. Charles Crandley gives satisfaction as Ionides; and Mr. Francis Cavins as Ali-al-Murad is well received. Miss Ethel Griffies displays considerable ability in her rendering of Gertrude Hunt; the part of Helena Byars is well rendered by Miss Marie Barrett; Gracie Goldeye is humorously portrayed by Miss Tessa Myers; and Misses Emilie Schular and Annie Rhoda Ross are successful as Minnie Golightly and Flossie Lovegay respectively.

PETERBOROUGH.—NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Fred Karno and A. H. Edwards; Manager, Mr. Frank Gallagher.—Mr. Fred Karno's company opened on Monday in Saturday to Monday, which was much enjoyed. The parts were ably taken by Miss Julia Bassett as Clorinda, Miss Ada Maskell as Belinda Dobbs, Miss Mary Young as Violet Perrin, Mr. Victor Smith as Tom Freeman, Mr. Louis Weston as Mr. Potts, and Mr. Gilbert Childs as John Willie Jaggs. Other turns are Harry Clifford, character vocalist; Mina Green, versatile comedienne; Jay Laurier, the irrepressible idiot; Maggie Strachan, the clever pianist and vocalist; the Whitworth Cycling Girls, and Campkin, the tramp cyclist. The Hippodrome pictures are good.

PLYMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—Mrs. Brown-Potter in Lady Frederick forms a strong attraction, and her acting in a many-sided part is followed with rapt attention. Mr. Philip Cunningham as Paradise Fouldes is admirably suited to the part; Mr. Herbert Garthone is distinctly clever as Lord Mereston; Mr. Van Ronney as Sir Gerald is creditable; Mr. Cecil Bevan in the difficult rôle of Captain Montgomerie acts with ease and reserve; Miss Madeline Du Val is particularly pleasing as Lady Mereston; and Mr. Shirley Lea is a hale and hearty old salt as Admiral Carlisle. A clever little curtain-raiser is entitled The Peacemaker.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. Jack Field.—Ted Karno's comedians in The Dinner Hour cause roars of laughter; Harry Morris, character comedian, tells some quaint yarns in the Yorkshire dialect, and Winifred Hare furnishes a vocal treat in her excellent numbers; Bruce Green adds weight to the comic side of the performance; the Bros. Brooks also assist in the same department with a smart comedy act; and Gracie Lawn, comedienne and dancer, is acceptable. The Three Romas, in an item styled "Gladiatorial Marvels," furnish some original and clever feats; and the Sisters Brand complete an interesting programme.

PONTEFRACT.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE OF VARIETIES. — General-Manager, Mr. Tom Diacoff.—The Japanese Tamamoto heads the bill here this week in an unique performance on the slack wire and the perpendicular rope; Savile Bradley and his company of pantomimists give a crisp show in their pantomime absurdity Ructions; the set scene is really artistic. Flo Inman scores as a descriptive vocalist and dancer; Alf Brooks and Frank Coyle are comedians who at once, in their respective lines, get on good terms with their audience; Mabel Roberts sings popular songs illustrated by excellent photographic slides; and the audience join heartily in the choruses; Mollie Woolstenhulme is the possessor of a well-trained voice, which she uses to some purpose in operatic selections; Ama and Ada, lady patterers, have a fund of quaint jokes; and the Bioscope shows a capital series of pictures.

PORTH.—THE PALACE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. C. W. Poole; Manager, Mr. Walter Bynorth.—Topping the bill here are the Four Amaranths, admirable lady acrobatic dancers; Millie Howell, refined character vocalist, possesses an excellent voice; Bert Terrell, Dutch comedian, meets with decided approval; Martin Henderson, English concertina soloist, is undoubtedly a clever manipulator of this instrument; Harry Edson gives a marvellous performance with his cleverly-trained dogs; the Sisters Herbert, juvenile entertainers, are enthusiastically received; Macintosh and Royal, champion dancers, score a huge success; Mlle. Renee is a wonderful manuipulator of various musical instruments, notably the ocarina; and the Palascope, with its latest films, delights everyone.

PORTSMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—A Chinese Honeymoon is being staged here this week by Mr. Milton Bode's sterling company, and full houses have testified to the worth of the attraction. Mr. Keino Johnston as the suffering bridegroom, Mr. Pineapple, works very hard and with complete success; Hang-Chow is ably represented by Mr. Rudolph Kloss; Chippie Chop in the hands of Mr. P. Allerton Turner is an important personage and well acted; High Lung is taken in excellent style by Mr. Leonard May; Tom Hatherton is admirably depicted by Mr. Harry Jennings; Mrs. Pineapple is safe in the keeping of Miss Veronica Brady, who sings and dances in charming manner; Miss Maud Adams plays the "official mother-in-law" Mrs. Brown most effectively; Miss Elsie Skillings is capital as Soo-Soo; and Miss Gwennie Harcourt as Fi-Fi scores a hit.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Agate.—Mr. George Kirk and Miss Mary Neil, with the drama Her Luck in London, are drawing good houses here this week. As Nellie Harborne Miss Neil plays in excellent style; Mr. Douglas Cecil as the Hon. Fitzgerald O'Connor is admirable; the scheming Richard Lenowen finds an able exponent in Mr. Frank Strickland; Mr. Douglas Tremayne well portrays the tender-hearted curate, the Rev. Lionel Strong; and Stephen Harborne is depicted with much success by Mr. T. Lionel Ellis. Mme. Gabrielle is powerfully presented by Miss Marie Clavering; Miss Beatrice Hudson is most acceptable as Lilian Harborne; and Miss Florrie Groves as Maud Gladys Shovepenny and Mr. Henri Gerald as Jerry Gotobed prove diverting.

KING'S THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Claude Marner; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—R. G. Knowles, the American comedian, takes first place here, his quaint mannerisms and humorous patter causing much amusement; Norah Stockdale, a smart comedienne and dancer, does good work; the Canworths, banjo experts and vocalists, give an excellent entertainment; the Society Quartette, characteristic singers and speciality dancers, are very capable; Alf Holt, American mimic, whistler, and comedian, submits realistic imitations; Mr. and Mrs. Royston-Dene and company contribute a powerful dramatic episode in On the Stroke of 12; the Barrois, as hand-balancers, excel greatly; Freddie French and company, with The Policeman's Ballet, cause plenty of laughter; and animated pictures conclude.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Captain Warren Wright; Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—The Robertys, hand-balancers and jugglers, have an effective act; Ralston and Frances, in their excellent scena Ocean Stars, are capital; Fred Spencer, expressionist, gives well-liked vocal personations; Ingram and Irving, in The New Office Boy, are smart; Lily Tiso is a popular and charming comedienne and danseuse; Frank Leon as a step-dancer would be hard to beat; Sydney James's Strolling Players are responsible for a meritorious entertainment; Martine and Son contribute a pleasing singing picture item; W. J. Churchill, with his quaint funniosities, has a most flattering reception; and Payne's Bioscope, with some highly amusing pictures, completes.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Harris; Acting-Manager, Col. Roberts, V.D.—La Milo is the popular turn here this week, and her statuesque and classical poses meet with great approval; Mr. T. E. Finglass, as a delineator of negro songs, is acceptable; Zaid Trio, Spanish Moors, with acrobatic feats of merit, are applauded; Dusty Rhodes, a most diverting and humorous patter comedian, has a warm greeting; Mr J. G. Grahame and Miss Zerlina Harrington in a smartly-played Parisian sketch, A Daughter of Pleasure, give much satisfaction; Miss Bessie Slaughter's well-trained contralto is heard to much advantage; Hanvaar and Anna Lee, in a juggling speciality, The Golfer and the Maid, are very amusing; Ryder Slone, a comedian who sings with expression, gains much applause; and Hippo pictures and Mr. Archie Glenn complete.

PRESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, the Executors of the late W. Johnson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Stephen Pritt.—Mr. Charles Hawtrey's company in Charles E. Brookfield's Dear Old Charlie is causing much merriment here. Mr. George Lestocq as Charles Ingleton (dear old Charlie) sustains the character in a manner that calls for the highest praise; Mr. R. S. Trelawney as Thomas Dumphie is excellent; Mr. Douglas Cox is equally amusing as Gabriel Peploe; Mr. Duncan Young as Colonel Fishbourne both looks and acts the part perfectly; Mr. Stanley Arthur is admirably adapted for the part of Purkitt; and Mr. G. Smythe is capable as the florist's boy. Miss Viola Holland is a capital Reeve; and Miss Enid G. Forde an excellent Agnes. Miss Leonora Braham makes a typical mamma-in-law as Mrs. Fishbourne. A dramatic little curtain-raiser based on a Nihilist plot, and entitled The Cause, is excellently rendered by Miss Leonora Braham and Mr. Cecil Vernon.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Sawyer and Woodruff.—Mr. Frank Lindo's company in Home, Sweet Home is a powerful attraction here this week. Mr. Frank Lindo portrays the part of Stephen Armytage in a masterly manner; Mr. Laurence Doyle gives a clever rendition of David Armitage; Mr. Archer Brown is a dignified Duke of Ancaster; Mr. Helsby Wright as the subtle and unscrupulous Lucas Lyle is successful; Mr. Richard Walsh is a capable Dick Redmayne; Mr. T. B. Lewis in the part of Solomon Keary introduces some clever specialities in the first act; a clever make-up is that of Mr. W. Gregory as Gaffer, an old countryman; and Mr. Harry Danvers makes a capital Dr. Granby. Miss Maud Leslie-Cudd as Sybil Fay is really excellent; Miss Marion Wakeford as Joan is fully equal to the requirements of that part; little Miss Hilda Jackaway is a clever child actress; Miss Hattie Webster as Lady Somerton is to be congratulated on the excellent manner in which she portrays the part.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank E. Burdett.—At the top of the bill is Miss Zona Vevey and Herr Max Erard, with a refined musical turn. Miss Vevey's singing is listened to with rapt attention; the setting is also most artistic. Edward Carr and company, in their sketch Shooting, cause much merriment, as do also Walter Ellis and company in their playlet The Sleepwalker; George Westland is a clever Scotch comedian and female impersonator. Some of his patter, might, however, be revised with advantage; Bert Osborne, actor-vocalist, is also an expert performer on the banjo; A-Ba-Be's picture-postcard album is a novel turn which is well received; the Lovelaces, American song illustrators, are highly successful; and The Gipsy and the Painter on the Bioscope concludes a capital show.

RADCLIFFE. — GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. James Boothman.—The detective play Sexton Blake is receiving its full share of patronage. In the title-rôle Mr. H. Hunter does some fine work; and Mr. William Felton as Roger Blackburn does full justice to the part; while the villainies of Randolph Lovell have an able exponent in Mr. Charles East. The comical element is well undertaken by Mr. Billy Ross as Tinker and Miss Lena Delphine as Euphemia. Mr. John M. East as Simon Jaggs and Mr. Algernon Syms as the Rev. Edward Grey both deserve praise. Miss Lily Hammersley makes a charming Marjorie Lovell; and Miss East Robertson is quite satisfactory as Philadelphia Kate.

RAMSGATE.—ROYAL VICTORIA THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jules Richeux.—At this comfortable place of amusement during the past week successful performances of the evergreen farce The Private Secretary have been given by Mr. Eugene C. Stafford's company. Mr. Donald Price-Evans is immensely funny as the Rev. Robert Spalding, and extracts all possible effect out of the most diverting character he is called upon to assume; Mr. W. Hargreaves is unapproachable as Mr. Cattermole; and all the other parts are sustained by their respective impersonators in a manner which calls only for complimentary reference.

ROYAL PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; Resident-Manager, Mr. Dan Forrest.—The Still Alarm is one of the most popular plays with local audiences, and its reappearance on the boards here this week has been enthusiastically welcomed. It has been finely staged and acted by Messrs. Matthew H. Glenville and Fred Osmond's clever company. Mr. Matthew H. Glenville is a capital Jack Manley, and Miss Beatrice Shirley plays with skill the part of Elinor Fordham. Other rôles are sustained in admirable fashion by Mr. Fred Osmond (Doc Wilbur), Mr. G. Kennedy (John Bird), &c.; while the songs of Miss Hettie Zillwood are much appreciated. On Sunday evening the first of a series of sacred concerts and exhibitions of animated pictures was given, much to the enjoyment of a large audience.

RAWTENSTALL.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; General Business-Manager, Mr. A. B. Feather.—Messrs. Plimmer and Blake's musical comedy, Happy Hooligan, scored a thorough success on its opening performance here on Monday. As Widow Johnson Miss Nan Ainsley acted with grace and charm and sang tastefully; Miss Rose Lyndon as Rose also sang and acted exceedingly well; and Miss Lily Jago as Nettie and Miss Olive Stewart as Daisy were also clever. Mr. W. W. Evans as Happy Hooligan caused roars of laughter; and Mr. Jack Lyle as Donald Macgregor was an excellent comedian, as also was Mr. Harry Emeric as Max Guggenheimer. Mr. Chris. Jago as Charley Flipp was most satisfactory, and he and Miss Jago were awarded an enthusiastic encore for their singing and dancing. Mr. Jack Henry was successful as Orki San and the Cowboy; and Mr. Harry C. Nervey made an excellent constable. The chorus was excellent, and the production everything desirable.

READING.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE—Proprietors and Managers, Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Benton.—Mr. William Mollison, the eminent tragedian, is appearing this week in a round of his favourite characters. The répertoire for the week comprises The Merchant of Venice on Monday and Friday, The Bonnie Brier Bush on Tuesday and Wednesday, Othello on Thursday, Macbeth on Saturday, and As You Like It at a special matinée on Wednesday. The leading parts in all the above are admirably sustained by Mr. W. Mollison and Miss Evelyn McNay, who are well supported by a capable company.

THE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Geo. Howard Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Draco.—This week's attractions include John G. Brandon's company in the American farcical comedy The Lovely Liars; Primavesi, juggler; Mlle. Lucretia, burlesque artist; Arthur Albert, light comedian; Henry and Tyler, quaint and sensational cyclists; Munroe's comedy team of harmonising vocalists and dancers; Ellis and Watts, swell comedians; C. Emly Jones, actor-vocalist; and the Daughters of Britain in a vocal scena, and the Palace Bioscope. All the turns are, as usual, quite up to the mark, and the entertainment throughout is well appreciated.

ROCHDALE.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Burton.—The Fatal Wedding occupies the boards here. Mr. Cecil A. Melton makes a powerful Howard Wilson; Mr. Frank Harrison cleverly portrays the part of Robert Curtis; Mr. Frank Ashley creates much amusement as O'Reilly; Miss Ethel Kay enlists sympathy as Mabel Wilson; and Miss Elaine Vanbrugh skilfully enacts the adventuress, Cora Williams.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Hargreaves.—A capital programme is presented to the patrons here. Belle Davis and her Pick Chicks, in song and dance, are deservedly appreciated; E. H. Bostock's performing baboons are highly entertaining; the Four Dorians, gymnasts; Woodhouse and Wells, comedians and dancers; the Florias, wire performers; Ada and Marvel Webb, in ornamental swimming; J. C. Scatter, comedian; and the Empire Bioscope Pictures, complete the list.

RUGBY.—TOWN HALL.—Entertainment-Manager, Mr. W. Payne Seddon.—Miss Inez Howard's company presented on Monday and Tuesday the romantic drama, Her Love Against the World, which was remarkably well acted and staged. Miss Margaret Savill as Princess Iris acted with ability and restraint; Miss Katharine Herbert as Shulah was excellent; and Miss Elsie Winter as Corona was very good. Miss Dorothy Mullord and Miss Janiel Deane as Katinka and Gretchen did well; Mr. Leonard Yorke was most effective as Eric, Earl of Strathmere; and Miss Josie Bertram as Lionel was an ideal boy. Mr. Henry C. Cooper as Ulric of Ravensburg kept the attention of the audience throughout; and the Prince Othmar of Mr. Gordon Ingram was a clever rendering.

RUNCORN.—PUBLIC HALL THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Public Hall Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. E. S. Lea; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Smethurst Orme.—We are favoured this week with a visit from Mr. Allan Wilkie's company. Othello was presented on the opening night, when Mr. Allan Wilkie, in the title-rôle, provided a histrionic treat. Miss Carrie Baillie made an appealing Desdemona, and her performance was thoroughly enjoyed; Mr. Alexander Marsh as Iago submitted a rendition well-nigh perfect; and equally commendable was the representation of the unfortunate Cassio by Mr. Frank Royde. An entertaining picture of the amorous Roderigo was given by Mr. Ian Fleming; Brabantio was dealt with in finished style by Mr. John Paley; Mr. Sinclair Neill made an ideal Montano; Miss Mildred Surrey's Emilia was a pleasing rendering, fully appreciated; and Bianca was agreeably personified by Miss Elly O'Dempsey. The week's bill also comprises Romeo and Juliet, Sleigh Bells, Garrick, Julius Cæsar, Hamlet, and Macbeth.

SALFORD.—PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—The stirring drama, A Lion's Heart, is well received this week. The acting of Mr. Henry Bedford as the lion-tamer, Rizardo, makes an excellent impression; Mr. Stephen Scanlan gives an effective performance of the villain, Gaspard Dobre; Dick Lorimore is well played by Mr. Leonard Booker; Miss Ada Oakley as Louise, and afterwards as Marion, proves herself an able and charming actress; Miss Madge Beresford as Bessie, Mr. Edgar J. Coyne as Jack Bealey, and Mr. Edward Lowrie are very amusing; Mr. Archie Helsby makes an excellent Colonel Robert de Villefort; and Miss Ida Bastow, Mr. Peter Bennett, little Elsie May, and Miss Beatrice Holmes also give good support.

REGENT THEATRES OF VARIETIES, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Secretary, Mr. J. C. Patterson.—The principal turn is given by the Courtiers, comprising nine accomplished vaudeville entertainers under the direction of Paul Mills. The Silent Sentinel is a weird sketch, well presented by Charles Worland's company; Brayne and Lloyd provoke much laughter in The Tree of Truth; and the excellent programme also includes smart turns by the Harvey Boys in their comedy boxing act; Evelyn Taylor with pleasing songs; Cumminger and Colonna, singing and dancing; George Young, clever blind musician; Nash and Noel, comedians and dancers; the Macdonald Trio in musical garden; Lorne and Lorne in song-scena, Capital and Labour; and Blake and Granby, comedy duologue artists.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; General-Manager, Mr. H. Winstanley; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Slatter.—The Six Brothers Luck head the bill with their clever sketch The Hermit; and another comical sketch is The Village Fire Brigade by Ritchie Hearn's company of clever artists. Other good turns are those of Wal Robbins, black and white musical comedian; A. E. Clifford, versatile vocalist; the Miners' Quartette, including Billy Dewey; Ada Parker, with coon song and dance; Barrie and Wood, acrobatic dancers, &c.; Harry Kirk, amusing mimic; and Edwin Adeler, comedian. The animated pictures, including Flash James, are very good.

OPERA HOUSE AND ASSEMBLY ROOMS, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Lester King.—Twice nightly good houses appear to enjoy the pictures, and join in the chorus of Mr. Lester King's illustrated song, "Starlight," with zest. The pictures include The Burglar's Unexpected Bath, Her Flowers, The Mill Girl, White Suit, Marathon Race, Sold by His Parents, Dummies on the Spree, Flash James, and Quick-change Mesmerist.

SCARBOROUGH.—THE AQUARIUM.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. Walter Kitchingman; Assistant-Manager, Mr. E. H. Holland.—Miss Cavalho and company present a capital sketch, entitled The Husband of Peggy; Ford and Hansom give a novel musical turn; Wyndham and Kitty submit a daring act on the wire; Williams and Warden are well received in comedy; Taylor and Bridge, vocalists, also appear; Onda and Walonell are smart on the triple-bar; and Arthur Clarence and Walter Gordon, comedians, are well received.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Mr. and Mrs. Garside; Manager, Mr. Fred P. Morgan.—Mr. Carlton Wallace's company in The Love that Women Desire is here this week. Mr. Sydney Leyton as Philip Carnaby shows ability; Miss Clyndes as Sybil Thornburn is good; and Mr. Morris Maud as Richard Abingdon acts creditably.

THE HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Resident-Manager, Mr. Fielding Smith.—Kate Vesey and P. Powell have a clever little act entitled A Perfect Woman; Corman's Juveniles are a pleasing attraction; Oliver Conroy does well in his songs; Bayne and Hope give an excerpt from The Royal Divorce; and Lambert and Robertson, the Boston Twins, and Jack McCormack also appear.

SEACOMBE.—IRVING THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Kiernan.—The juvenile element is specially catered for this week by the Royal British Circus, many of the old-time amusements so dear to the hearts of children being provided in a large ring specially built on the stage. Mr. Robert Yelding leads off with a number of clever and well-executed feats in bareback horsemanship, and finishes with an excellently-managed scene between himself and his charger depicting "A Wounded Soldier." Miss Rolla on the rolling globe and Miss Lena Scott on the silver wire display perfect mastery of the art of equipoise; and Miss Addalla, the magnet, successfully resists the combined efforts of several strong men to displace her from certain positions. Other good turns include Leo Berto and Prince, the midget pony, on the revolving table; Gilleno, the clown, with his zoological curiosity the performing elephant; Uno Bros., comedy gymnasts and acrobats; Shadow, the fool, in an eccentric equestrian entrée; Harry Curly Beaumont and the Rochez ponies and dogs; and Simple Sid, the clown, with the educated pony Sam.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. A. C. Harrison; Manager, Mr. H. D. Lyle.—Mr. C. Watson Mill's company is here this week with A Warning to Women. Mr. Harry C. Robinson gives a powerful interpretation of Dr. Marcus Dread; Mr. Wm. Vane is a pleasing Shaun; as Fergus McNaughton Mr. W. Chas. O'Connor is capable; Mr. Henry Rutland is a typical Squire Kennion; Lord Eversleigh and Ferdinand de Joules afford much scope for the comedy talents of Mr. Leicester Jackson and Mr. W. Palliser Acock; Mr. W. Alex. Finlayson capably enacts the Rev. Emanuel Wallace; as Moira Kennion Miss Blanche St. Albans wins great praise; Miss Winifred Rutland plays Shelia with taste; the Hildred of Miss Marie Moore is cleverly done; Miss Ellen Beverley is an admirable Molly O'Moore; and Myles finds a sympathetic exponent in Miss Edith THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's company opened to a good house on Monday in the new domestic drama of Mrs. Kimberley's, A Soldier's Honour. Mr. Elan Meredith, by his conduct and bearing in peace and war, justified the appellation "an officer and a gentleman," and his Captain Deane was a virile and powerful impersonation. Mr. Andrew Money depicted clearly the despicable disposition of Henry Thornley; the pleasing part of Captain Temple was carefully acted by Mr. T. A. Ellis; and good character-studies were Mr. Vernon Cowper's Burly Bill and Mr. A. Anderson's Holly. Miss Ruth Zillwood as Cora Lee made a handsome adventuress; and Miss Edie Macklin caused great laughter by her high spirits and drollery as Jemima. The scenery and military appointments were first-rate.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. William D. Forsdike.—That sound old drama Driven From Home was played to a crowded and keenly-interested audience on Monday by Mr. Andrew Melville's company. Mr. Felix Pitt, who is one of Sheffield's dramatic sons, acted with intense power and well-sustained emotional ability as the old father; and other leading characters in the long cast were sustained by Miss Nancy Roberts as Laura and Walter, Miss Lizzie Inglis, Miss Walfred, Miss Custance, Miss Amy Williams, and Messrs. P. G. Beresford, Howard Thornley, Chas. Burdon, Geo. Lawrepce, Arnold Winters, Henry Helling, W. Fortescue, Dick Saunders, F. G. Imbert, Percy Dawson, and Harry Cornwall. Trafalgar Square, the Embankment, Chingford Church, and the Foundling Hospital were well-painted and interesting scenes.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—The Moss Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—Mr. Fred Karno's new melodramatic serio-comic absurdity in two scenes, G.P.O., was produced to a packed house on Monday. The big scene is a very realistically built-up representation of the parcels department of the General Post Office. The fact that the original and diverting comedian Mr. Fred Kitchen as Perkins, a postman, is left in sole charge by the Postmaster during the latter's absence from town will fully suggest the extravagant fun that follows. Mr. Kitchen was, as usual, the incarnation of quiet, unforced drollery, and he was well supported by Miss Madge Rockingham, a Sheffield comic-opera favourite, Mr. Bruno, Mr. Herbert Landeck, and a smart company. Miss Carrie Lawrie's Juveniles in The Kindergarten were immensely successful, being recalled again and again by the delighted audience. Mr. George Newburn gave a clever imitation of the characters in Harry Tate's skit, Motoring, and was loudly applauded; the Delomes did some expert dancing; and others who successfully appeared were Howe and Ardie, gymnastic acrobats; the Norman-Leonard Trio, in a musical sketch; Mr. Fred Keeton, comic singer; and Mr. Tom Child, tenor vocalist. A dramatic film, The Sweep's Boy, concludes.

THE HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr. P. D. Elbourne.—The pretty, vivacious, and talented vocalist and comedienne Miss Vesta Victoria was received with enthusiasm by a crowded audience on Monday. After four items, the fair songstress was not allowed to retire till she had obliged with "Waiting at the church." Miss Florrie Gallimore is retained another week, and was again well received; Miss Minnie Love, a graceful and pleasing burlesque actress, was received with deserved applause; that old local favourite Mr. Mickey Nolan was cheered to the echo; Mr. Laurie Wylie's mimicry was much enjoyed; Mr. B. Troba does some daring feats of equipoise and juggling; Mr. Lawrence Barclay's gifts as a mirth-maker are well known; Wright and Lawson are good entertainers; and other turns billed this week are Miss Violet Loraine, vocalist; Miss Winnie Brooke, comedienne; Mr. Chas. Sloman, comique; and the Barrascope, with coloured pictures.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. A. W. Turpin.—Tarré, musician, &c., the dashing Sisters Brenton, and Mr. John Holland's dramatic company are here, together with a series of the most noted films, including A Trip to Copenhagen, The Horrors of War, A Silly Josser, &c.

CENTRAL THEATRE.—Lessees, the Jasper Redfern Co., Ltd.—The new arrivals here on Monday were Shirley Luggins and his celebrated Darkey Revels company, in a lively interlude; Mons. Kavados, a smart juggler; the Four Scoreys, musical comedy artists; and Miss Nellie, serio. A bioscopic sketch, The Last Roll-Call, heads the picture list.

ALBERT HALL.—Mr. Sydney Carter's New Century Bioscope pictures continue successful.

SHREWSBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—(Under new control.)—Lessee, Mr. W. Yates Gregory; Licensee and Business-Manager, Mr. W. C. Dornton.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company was here on the first three nights of the week with The Silver King. Mr. Sydney T. Pease, who has a fine stage presence, played with admirable effect the rôle of Wilfred Denver; Miss Gladys Hastings-Walton sustained with power and success the part of Nellie Denver; Mr. Tom Paulton made an excellent Jaikes; Miss Dorothy Love is a clever and pleasing Cissie Denver; Miss G. Lyndon merits high praise as Ned; Mr. Chas. Freeman earned the execrations of the audience as "The Spider"; Mr. Harry Colbeck made a very good Henry Corket; Mr. John Detlin, in the character part of Elijah Coome, acted with considerable ability; Mr. Chas. McCann made a good Cripps; Mr. Claude Graveley acted in excellent fashion as Geoffrey Ware; Mr. Robt. R. Ashby was a smart Detective as Samuel Baxter; Mr. Jones won praise as Mr. Parkyn; Messrs. A. Blagdon and Henry Bigge were capable as Messrs. Binks and Bronson; Messrs. Olivert and Arthur Reid acted creditably as Belcher and Teddy; and the minor male parts were all satisfactorily filled. Miss Dorothea Black was deserving of encomiums as Olive Skinner; Miss Janet Bullworthy was a painstaking Tabitha Durden; Miss Marie Lyndon was bright as Susie; and Miss Beatrice Blagdon was distinctly good as Mrs. Gamage.

SOUTHAMPTON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frederick Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Weston.—Mr. Brandon Thomas's company is scoring in the farcical comedy, Charley's Aunt. Mr. G. A. Seager is the life and soul of the piece, and wins endless applause for his clever impersonation of the lady from Brazil; Mr. Roy Byford is well cast as Stephen Spettigue, and Mr. Sydney Compton is equally good as Brasset; Mr. Theo. McCausland Stewart looks the part of Colonel Chesney to the life; and others who do well are Miss Evelyn Grey (Ella), Miss Grace Russell (Amy), Miss Olivia Glynn (Kitty), Miss Vera Gerald (Donna Lucia), Mr. Hastings Lynn (Jack Chesney), and Mr. Basil Lynton as Charley Wykeham. The Lancashire Sailor is an effective curtain-raiser.

PALACE.—Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wm. Trussell.—Hawksley's Luck is the big feature here, and Mr. Fred. Maxwell, supported by his clever wife, Miss Lois du Cane, and a capable company, score all along the line. Leo and Roland are expert equilibrists; Webb and Branston, operatic duettists; The Vernons, clever xylophone players; Madge Allan, a dainty singer and dancer; Edith Chantler excels as a juvenile vocalist; Harry Simms is a capital comedian; and Mlle. Bartenelli twists and twirls herself about in all directions.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. de Frece and F. Mouillot; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Yardley.—Joe Peterman and company are easily first favourites in The Pawnbroker, in which Mr. Peterman causes roars of laughter; Marie Kendall sings a number of taking songs; and the Wakeman Quintette are heard to advantage in their vocal scena; Harry Taft is a quaint comedian and capital whistler; whilst Charles Ulrick, the barrel king, the Alaskas, acrobats, Steve McCarthy, vocalist and dancer, and Maxey and Pete, comedy cyclists, also prosper well.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.—EMPIRE THEATRE, LTD. Managing-Directors, Messrs. Geo. Conquest and Richard H. Nervey; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Lingham Power.—Mr. W. W. Kelly's company in A Royal Divorce drew a large audience on Monday. The costumes are pleasing and typical and the scenery pretty. Mr. Keith Fraser was accorded a hearty reception for his clever impersonation of Napoleon; Miss Margaret Watson was equally well received in an able, dignified, and characteristic portrayal of the Empress Josephine; Miss Winnie Tempest as Marie Louise also gained distinction; Miss Maud Lacy wins favour as Stephanie de Beauharnais; Mr. Percy H. Vernon was well suited as Talleyrand; and Mr. Stanley Harrison impersonated the Marquis de Beaumont in capital style. Mr. Walter T. Clifford ably sustained the rôle of General Augereau, having good assistance from Mr. Harold S. Standing as Marshal Murat, Mr. J. O'Brien as Rob Royal, and Mr. George Hudson as Grimaud.

SOUTHPORT.—OPERA HOUSE, WINTER GARDENS.—Proprietors, The Southport Opera House and Winter Gardens Co., Ltd.; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. R. Singleton.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company, in Mrs. Ponderbury's Past, furnishes a diverting and attractive entertainment here this week. Mr. George Mudie is an admirable representative of Mr. Ponderbury, and creates much merriment; Miss Annie Stalman cleverly and characteristically depicts the part of Mrs. Ponderbury; in the rôle of Mervyn Thorpe Mr. Drew Mackintosh presents a capital comedy sketch; Miss Florence Wellesley is a charming and attractive exponent of Ethel Penniston; the old servant Peter is exceedingly well played by Mr. Alfred Ibberson; Miss Florence Wix assumes the character of Mme. Modjeski in a vivacious and entirely satisfactory manner; Mr. Hyacinth Grayling is very successful as Mr. Charles A. Staite; and Captain John Rumford, R.N., was well played by Mr. George Child. The curtain-raiser is a comedietta entitled His Landlady.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. John and Fred Coulson.—A Girl Redeemed from Sin is being performed here by Mr. Geoffrey Fulton's company. Will May is excellently embodied by Mr. Jo Monkhouse; Ernest Silveston is capably portrayed by Mr. Geo. Lyttleton; Miss Olive Fulton gives a charming representation of Nancy Lee. The comic element is strongly represented by Miss Ada Oxley as Peggy Grey, Mr. Victor Knight as Jim Jakes, and Mr. Walle Spinner as Hon. Bertie Boyes. Other important parts are Mr. Phillippe Orr (Robert Denham), Mr. John E. Tomlinson (Samuel Lee), and Miss Fannie Olive (Mrs. Lee). The scenery and mounting is good.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—The South Shields Empire Palace, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Thompson.—A powerful dramatic playlet, Her Princely Betrayer, is well performed here by Herbert Cottesmore's company. A good sketch in a restaurant is contributed by Grapho and Jackson; the Carina Sisters are well received in a musical turn; the Three Cape Girls are good dancers. Other good turns are those of Geo. Gulliver, ventriloquist; Johnny Walker, comedian; Ruth Lytton, Scotch comedienne; and the Bioscope.

TIVOLI, LAYGATE CIRCUS.—Proprietor, Councillor J. K. Hall.—Phil Herman, a vocal actor, is the premier attraction, and is popular; Cavalli, a Tyneside ventriloquist, is a favourite here; Will Owen, character comedian, delights the audience; and the Tivoloscope completes the entertainment.

ST. HELENS.—THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, St. Helens Theatre, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. A. McLeod Loader.—Mr. F. Mouillot's company is playing before crowded houses in The Girl Behind the Counter this week. Miss Ida Stratham is charming everybody as Winnie Willoughby, and her singing and acting are of a high quality; Mr. Sam Lockbridge has an excellent voice, and his breezy manner in the part of Charles Chetwyn is very taking; General Sir Wilkie Willoughby is amusingly presented by Mr. Kennedy Allen; Miss Winifred Knightly makes a distinguished Lady Willoughby; Mr. Ferris Pounds wins many a laugh by his impersonation of Viscount Cushington, as does also Mons. Claude Dampier as Mons. Duval; Miss Eileen Clanford is a chic Ninette; Miss Irene Vere is pretty and sprightly as Millie Mostyn; Miss Irene Lavington in the part of Susie looks pretty and sings and acts well. Excellent support is rendered by a well-balanced chorus, and beautiful dresses and pretty scenery add to the success of the production. The full orchestra is under the direction of Mr. W. D. J. Damant.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford, Sley, and Willmot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Mould.—A capital sketch is given by Carter Livesey and Lilian Rosebery, who head the bill, and creates much amusement; the original Four Regals execute some wonderful feats of strength; the Fylde Male Quintet sing pleasingly; and the L.V.O. Trio produce a laughable absurdity, Those Troublesome Slaveys. Other capital turns are given by Maston, Fred Arthur, and Edie Anderson.

STOCKPORT.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—A Message from Mars, capably presented by Mr. Fred Mouillot's company, has thoroughly entertained large audiences here this week. Mr. Wallace Widdicombe plays with pleasing ability as Horace Parker; Mr. W. H. Brougham acts powerfully as the Messenger from Mars; Mr. Norman Clark feelingly impersonates the character of a Tramp; and Mr. Robert Grey displays merit as Arthur Dicey. Miss Flora Hastings acts with dignified grace as Miss Parker; Minnie Templer is charmingly portrayed by Miss Rose Helene; and Miss Mary Glanbrane makes an excellent Mrs. Clarence.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, The Stockport Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Black.—Signor and Mme. Borelli, in their humorous imitations, are the chief attractions here this week, and have been greeted with marked favour. The Five Olracs, acrobatic comedians, are boisterously funny; Gillin is an entertaining ventriloquist; the Westwoods accomplish smart tricks on the cycle; Harry Briggs, triple-voiced vocalist, is very pleasing; Adeline Yohle is a sweet singer; Pauline Zaro is an able comedienne; and Mason and Bart are amusing and clever on the horizontal bars.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.—CASTLE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Chas. Imeson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Cecil Imeson.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company presents here this week Brewster's Millions. Mr. Percy Hutchison as Monty Brewster is extremely clever; Mr. Cyril Rawdon gives a good portrayal of Charlie Harrison; Miss Cicely Stuckey impersonates Margaret Grey (Peggy) admirably; Mrs. Dan de Mille is in the able hands of Miss Sybil Walsh; Mr. Aubrey Mather is a typical Joseph McLeod; Miss Frances Davie is well suited as Janice Armstrong; Mr. Henry Hampson does well as Archie Golding; Frank Bragden is in the able hands of Mr. Charles Esdale; and Mr. Frank Hill as Rawles proves a droll comedian.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Burns; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. Stainton.—Harry Roxbury's company presents here this week the musical mélange The Prince of Monte Carlo. The company includes a well-known comedian, Tubby Edlin, as the Scotland Yard detective. Audiences find the farce much to their liking. Hinton and Wooton, on a return visit as fotoball players on bicycles, are accorded a hearty welcome; Edith Muir and company in a society comedy episode, The Courage of Charlie, takes well; Morrin and Cardiff, comedians, have good patter and dance well; Fred Neiman, a clever ventriloquist, makes a hit; Iris Banfield is a pleasing comedienne; Walter Wade in a mimetic monologue shows great skill; and the Bioscope presents an excellent film, Lost in the Alps.

TORQUAY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. W. H. Mortimer; Secretary, Mr. Arthur Pearse.—Mr. Robert Macdonald's company, in the musical comedy The Dairymaids, is proving a great attraction. In the rôle of Peggy Miss Empsie Bowman is as winsome and vivacious as ever, and her dancing and singing win her frequent encores. As Winifred Miss Vera Crichton has a sweet soprano voice, which she used to the best advantage; Miss Doris Dickens is a charming Helen; and Miss Carrie Lacey admirably fills the part of Lady Brudenell. A clever piece of acting is afforded by Miss Nellie Bowman, who is thoroughly amusing as Eliza; and Miss Lucy Edwin is sufficiently austere as Miss Pye-chase. Mr. Bernard Vaughan makes a typical Dr. O'Byrne; and Mr. Richard Telford provides some excellent fun as Lieut. Sam Brudenell. Mr. Dan Agar is the life of the piece, his performance as Joe Mivens being marked by continuous laughter.

BATH SALOONS.—Proprietors, The Torquay Town Council; Manager, Mr. G. Courtney.—That popular entertainment Mr. John Poole's Myriorama is here this week, and is doing good business. Some new Bioscope films are shown, and an excellent variety entertainment includes Morritt, the well-known magician, whose marvellous illusions win frequent applause. Fil Gerrard also appears in some excellent impersonations; Vela introduces a good wire-walking turn; and Lieut. Chard's troupe of trained dogs are much admired.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Welton Dale; Manager, Mr. A. H. Burdett.—The Hippodrome season is maintaining its popularity. Fred Ginnett's company in the sporting act A Hunting Morn, introducing the trained mare Clonmel, is enthusiastically received; and a warm welcome also awaits Peggy Pryde in her latest songs and patter, including "Mr. Moon." The Fitzroys are clever and graceful gymnasts; and Winnie Stanhope, comedienne and dancer; Charles Sloman, comedian; and Arthur Hickman, an excellent tenor vocalist, complete the company. The Hippodrome pictures are as popular as ever. On Thursday the sixth anniversary of the Opera House was celebrated with a flying matinée by Mr. Cyril Maude and company in Toddles.

TYLDESLEY. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. W. Brierley, A. Brierley, and W. German; Manager, Mr. W. W. Brierley.—Messrs. Van Biene and Traynor's company is here this week in Man and Wife. Mr. J. F. Traynor submits a fine performance in the part of Paul Revere; Mr. E. M. Hamilton acts with power as Captain D'Esparre; Mr. George Rammell is an able Colonel Latour; and a clever study of the cripple, Jean, is given by Mr. George Overs. Mr. Ambrose Horton is a soldierly Sergeant Jacques; the twins Bimbo are amusingly represented by Mr. E. Hall Eldon and Mr. Geo. Vining; Miss Kate Hallam is a refined and sympathetic Marcella; Miss Violet Temple does well as the blind Mrs. Revere; and Miss Millie Dorris is a sprightly Rosette.

WAKEFIELD. — OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Mr. Herbert Ralland's company in the comedy His House in Order is a great attraction this week. Miss Kitty Cavendish gives a fine interpretation, and acts with great dramatic force as Nina; Mr. J. Herbert Beaumont submits a powerful portrayal of Hilary Jesson; Mr. W. Henry Hargreaves is highly successful as Filmer Jesson, M.P.; Mr. Randolfe Reade ably acquits himself as Major Maurewarde; Miss Peggy Rae gives a clever study as the boy Derek; Miss Victoria May is seen to advantage as Geraldine Ridgeley; and Miss Avis Graham is successful as Lady Ridgeley.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. Sydney Tolfree.—Mr. John G. Brandon and company appear in a thrilling sketch, The Girl and the Tough, the clever acting eliciting well-earned applause. Tom Joy, comedian, scores a huge success; the Four Spanish Goldinis perform wonderful feats of carpet spinning; Miss Winnie Wentworth is a dainty comedienne; the Four Watsons are clever in a musical act; Mr. Keane Harper, comedian, delights; and Dolly, Agnes, and Maude, fancy box makers and vocalists, sing well.

WARRINGTON. — ROYAL COURT.—Proprietor, Mr. W. Johnson; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. J. Reece.—Mr. Herbert Greville's company is here this week in the charming comedy Merely Mary Ann. In the title-rôle Miss Jessica Solomon submits a delightful interpretation of the simple maid; and as Lancelot, the composer, Mr. Paul Lovett displays histrionic abilities of a high order. Mr. Stanley Logan as Peter acts with a robustness which wins high approval; and a clever sketch of Herr Brahmason is given by Mr. Frank Roy. A typical Clive is Mr. Robert Entwistle; and Mr. Arthur Foster scores as the inquisitive journalist O'Gorman. Mr. Herbert Greville is successful as Lord Tottenham; Miss Violet Greville as Mrs. Leadbetter makes a palpable hit; and Miss Ethel Carlyle makes the most of the Countess of Foxwell; and Miss May Colquhoun as Lady Glyn and Miss Lester Stephen as Lady Chelmer are clever. The staging is very effective.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. W. Johnson; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Waters.—Phil Brandsby scores well here this week with a good collection of songs; and the sketches played by the Cecils are thoroughly enjoyed. The pictures, including the dramatic set entitled A Farmer's Daughter, are a good assortment.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. G. D. Bradbury.—Fred Karno's troupe of comedians have obtained a big success here this week in the sketch The Mumming Birds. Winifred Ward, the "immaculate boy," is exceptionally good, and her business is original; Dan Whitley is a clever comedian; Lillie Hayes charms all with her songs and dances; Bains and Reed gain applause in the sketch Humpsti Bumpsti; Cliff and Kean are good comedians; and the Brothers Ashley are rare exponents of the noble art in the sketch Next Please. The pictures are good.

WEST BROMWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. R. Nightingale.—There is an exceptionally attractive engagement at the Theatre Royal this week, Mr. Alfred Northway and Mr. W. V. Garrod presenting the popular drama, The Prodigal Parson. Mr. Logan Darra is very fine as the Rev. Tom Godley; and Mr. Alfred Northway has a part splendidly suited to him in Enoch Jaggins. Mr. Chas. Ashwell is good as Ben Jaggins; and Mr. Walter Vincent does well as Ned Kettlepin. Miss Violet Hammersley is charming as Fern Godley; and Miss Ethel Roberts as Fraulein Korale is excellent.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. Archie Ainsleigh.—There is plenty of variety at this place of amusement this week, a return having been made to a variety show. The Tennessee Guards, in their lightning drill, wall scaling, and harmonised singing, are very fine; and the performance of the Five Paulastos, acrobats, are wonderfully clever. Then there are the Selbini Troupe of trick cyclists, who do some smart things; the Ringling Trio, comedians on stilts, who create much amusement; while excellent turns are provided by Grey and Welford, Edward Darby, and Ivy Rocheford. The Hippodrome pictures complete a fine programme.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—GRAND.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Manager, Mr. Herbert E. Feather.—Mr. W. W. Kelly's company is appearing in The New East Lynne. The rôle of Lady Isobel is in the hands of Miss Beth Elliott, who gives an earnest and artistic portraiture; Francis Levison is capitally played by Mr. W. H. Garbois; Mr. Frederick Harker does well in the part of Archibald Carlyle; and an enjoyable vein of humour is exploited by Mr. Richard Nugent as Murty O'Flynn and Miss Sophy Shenton as Cornelia Carlyle. The dual rôle of Alfy and Joyce Hallijohn is creditably undertaken by Miss Guinevere Shilton; Miss Josephine Gwinne makes a capable Barbara Hare; and an excellent piece of character work is done by Mr. Bryon Pedley as Mr. Dill.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE. — KNIGHTSTONE PAVILION AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. W. Payne.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's The Belle of Mayfair company is paying a welcome return visit here this week. Mr. Sydney Burt, a really clever comedian, easily carried off the honours of the evening with his humorous impersonation of Sir John Chaldicott; Mr. Michael Raven's interpretation of Hugh Meredith is the work of an artist; Mr. Stephen Hall is thoroughly artistic as the Earl of Mount Highgate; and Mr. Stanley Ravenscroft makes an excellent Raymond Finchley. Mr. A. Batting's portrayal of Comte de Perrier deserves the highest eulogy; and as the Bishop of Brighton Mr. Tom Lyle is praiseworthy. Miss Patricia Weldon looks particularly handsome and acts with distinction as Princess Ehrenbrietstein; Miss Nellie Barnwell is extremely popular as Julian Chaldicott; and Miss Grace Mackay shows rare ability in doubling the characters of Lady Rosaline and the Gibson Girl. Miss Denny Fitzherbert as Lady Chaldicott proves herself an artist; and Miss Dora Lyons looks pretty and acts well as Pincott.

WEST STANLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mark H. Lindon; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. Kelly.—Miss Marie Dagmar presents her romantic Venetian drama, The Tyrant, here this week. Mr. James Sydney Pitt successfully depicts Homedei, the avenger; Mr. Mr. Roy Fortescue is very good as Angelo, the tyrant. Miss Marie Dagmar is all that can be desired as Tisbe. A fine house on Monday night witnessed this successful play, which is elaborately staged.

VICTORIA THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. G. C. Rawes; Stage-Manager, Mr. George W. Montrose.—Topping the bill here are the Les Montaldos, with cockatoos and macaws in their acrobatic performance. The programme also includes Elsie Earle, the chic comedienne; Gus Hindell, in his song-scena Boys Will Be Boys; Theodore Jones, the Welsh actor vocalist, in his scena; Jack Sheppard; the Alveros, South African novelty gymnasts; Hyde and Beenan, acrobatic grotesques, and the Vicoscope.

WIGAN. — ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Company. — Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's powerful company is appearing here to crowded audiences in The Midnight Wedding. Mr. Paumier, who is accorded a hearty reception, gives a masterly impersonation of Paul Valmar; Miss Yvonne Orchardson's portrayal of Princess Astrea is a charming one; Miss Gwladys Faunce successfully interprets the character of Satanella; Captain Scarsbruck finds an able exponent in Mr. Mayor-Cooke; Prince Leopold is in the capable hands of Mr. J. Nesbitt; and Mr. A. W. Barnes is successful as Lieut. Strelsburg. The humorous parts are also well sustained.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Company.—Vasco, the "mad musician," makes a welcome reappearance, and contributes many fine selections, which meet with much appreciation; Charles Majilton and his comedians reappear in Round the Clock, and the sketch is received as heartily as ever; a novel turn is supplied by Kirk and Saraski, who perform some particularly clever feats; the Juanitos are exceedingly clever acrobats; Jock Mills gains favour as a Scotch comedian; Arthur Slater is a whistling expert, and his selection, "Poet and Peasant," is really excellent; Irene and Lauri, juvenile dancers, are above the average; and other acceptable turns are provided by Rose Tilley and Harris Coonie.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Lessees, The New Bioscope Trading Co.; District-Manager, Mr. Gerald Hunt; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. C. Woon.—Some fine pictures are being exhibited here this week, which include The Quebec Pageant, A Noble Jester, In a Submarine, The Tempter, Antiquary Burglars, Visit to Stockholm, Dancing Legs, and many others. James Atherton, a local lad, dances himself into favour; and Horace Santo, the military entertainer, is well received. Business good.

WOLVERHAMPTON.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles Barnard; Resident-Manager, Mr. Gerald Spencer.—Ethel Van Praagh and J. Edward Whitty's company is here with An Unwedded Wife, and good business is being done. Miss Ethel Van Praagh gives a very able delineation of the heroine, Marion, her artistic acting having an impressive effect; Mr. Charles Stirling in the renegade Philip Blackstone has a part which fits him like the proverbial glove; and as Christopher Lennox, his parasite, Mr. R. Wilton Bedford makes the most of his opportunities. Mr. George Daiper plays with vigour and earnestness as Frank Hawthorne; Little Doris is very natural as Reggie; and Mr. J. Edward Whitty as P.C. O'Runyin, Mr. Will Casey as Napoleon Boomer, and Miss Jessie Gillette as Caraway Crumpet relieve the tension with some acceptable comedy business. Some novel films are shown on the Bioscope for those patrons who take advantage of the early doors.

EMPIRE PALACE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frank Weston.—The chief attraction here is Fred Ginnett and Wal Pink's company, in St. George and the Dragon, which is well received. Mike Cray is a smart comedy juggler, and his canine assistant performs some clever acrobatic tricks; an amusing musical act emanates from Ross and Grayson; the Gargany Trio provide an expert acrobatic turn; Dave Carter sings with taste several tenor songs; Charles Deane, comedian, is as droll as ever; and Vandinoff proves his ability as a lightning painter in oils. The Empire Pictures are quite up to date.

WORCESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Le Warde.—A first visit of the Dutch musical comedy Miss Hook of Holland is this week receiving generous support from Mr. Carlton's patrons. Admirably presented by Messrs. Dudley Bennett and T. C. Wray's company, the comedy is dressed and staged superbly, and proves highly entertaining. Mr. Edmund Russell is inimitable as Mr. Hook; and Miss Ethel James is a charming Sally Hook, playing daintily, and singing the numerous delightful numbers falling to the part in excellent taste. Miss Muff Carew as Mina scores an unqualifying success, her songs gaining great applause. Mr. Adrian Burgon has a singularly sweet voice, which makes him very acceptable in the part of the romantic bandmaster; and Mr. J. B. Fox's commanding presence makes him well suited to the part of Captain Paap. Mr. Fred Dark invests the character of Slinks with unlimited humour; and Mr. Robert Corray has too little to do as Schnapps. The chorus is strong and well balanced, and the playing of a picturesque band on the stage is a feature of the performance.

WREXHAM.—EMPIRE MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Jno. J. Scott.—This week the attractions have been Tony Iveson, assisted by David Hornby, in the interesting sketch,

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Oct. 19, the Comic Opera, by Mr. B. C. Stephenson and Mr. Alfred Cellier, entitled "DOROTHY."

That Dorothy, splendidly staged and having an unquestionably able cast, is still a prime favourite, was soon evidenced by the vigour with which Monday evening's huge audience at the King's encored the early songs in the opera, and in fact all through the success of the revival was never for a moment in doubt. Playgoers of the 'eighties were delighted to renew their acquaintance with the opera, and judging from appearances there were many present to welcome several of the principals in their original parts. Mr. C. Hayden Coffin, looking as young and dashing as ever, was completely successful as Harry Sherwood, and in the celebrated song "Queen of my heart" he, as of old, captured the audience, who insisted upon several repetitions. Mr. John Coates made a hit as Geoffrey Wilder, and the beautiful quality of his voice soon established him as a favourite. As Squire Bantam Mr. Colin Coop sang and acted in true fine old English gentleman fashion. Mr. Tim Ryley was capital as Tom Strutt; and Mr. Fred J. Vigay was a capable John Tuppitt. Mr. Arthur Williams was an inimitable Lurcher, the part which he so cleverly built up on the original production, and which still remains a most laughable representation. In Miss Ruth Davenport the management have secured a Dorothy Bantam worthy to rank with any of the previous artists, and her triumph was unequivocal. Lydia Hawthorne was very pleasantly rendered by Miss Hebe Bliss; Miss Aimee Roberts played Phyllis with brightness and sang very sweetly; as Mrs. Privett Miss Emily Spiller proved most amusing; and Lady Betty was well impersonated by Miss Primrose Harding. The chorus was composed of excellent voices, and the orchestra, under the clever conductorship of Mr. Frederick Rosse, ably fulfilled their duties. The scenery and costumes were of artistic excellence, and the Moss' Empires Co. must be heartily congratulated on the result of their enterprise.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, Oct. 19, the Drama, entitled "THE PRINCE AND THE BEGGAR MAID."

The management here are providing their many patrons with excellent fare this week in Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's romantic play The Prince and the Beggar Maid. The drama, as proved by its lengthy run at the Lyceum, is one warranted to hold the attention of the most fastidious, and Marlborough playgoers have not been slow in endorsing the favourable opinion already passed upon the play at the home of its production and on tour. The company is good all round, and the scenery, mounting, and dressing are all worthy of praise. A better Prince Hildred than Mr. Ivan Cleveland it would be difficult to imagine. He thoroughly enters into the spirit of the character, and presents a powerful study. Mr. Graeme Campbell as the deformed Prince Michael also does excellent work, and is decisive in his methods. Mr. Herbert Ford's acting as Prince Olaf is admirable. He makes a very manly hero, and his performance throughout is warmly applauded. Miss Annie Saker is successful in holding the attention of the audience by her powerful and realistic depiction of Monica. Miss Saker has many opportunities to display her abilities, and of each she takes full advantage. Miss Dido Drake as Camio acts with much charm and intelligence, and gives a careful study, well depicted. Miss Isla Garnet-Vayne also does commendable work as Viola, sister of Captain Hector, who, as one of the Princess Monica's bodyguards, finds a capable exponent in Mr. D. Lewin Mannering, the other bodyguard, Lieut. Karl Stromberg, being effectively undertaken by Mr. Kendal Chalmers. Nathan, the dumb servant, is an unthankful part, but is very ably performed by Mr. J. E. Gardner. The portrayals of Lieut. Felsburg by Mr. Albert Carlton and the Bishop of Illyria by Mr. Francis Hawley are worthy of praise; and Messrs. Edmund Lea, Ivan Ewart, W. Christie, Richard Lane, W. Williams, Richard Coates, and E. A. Ball, officers of the Sylvanian Army, and Master W. Beasley, a bugler, all impersonate their respective parts successfully. The large number of scenes are manipulated with commendable speed by Mr. Stage-Manager Kendal Chalmers.

THE CORONET.

On Monday, Oct. 20, the Comedy, by G. Bernard Shaw, entitled, "ARMS AND THE MAN."

For the second week of the Vedrenne-Barker short season we had Arms and the Man. Nothing is sacred to the sarcasm of Mr. Bernard Shaw, who is on paper a veritable iconoclast of the first water and in whom vandalism is omnipotent. Give him a sacred tradition or a fixed belief and he will poke fun at it till it totters on its base and falls into an abyss of ridicule and contempt. Mr. Granville Barker as the modern exponent of commercialism as applied to arms, the soldier of circumstance and opportunity, or, as Raina dubs him, "the chocolate-cream soldier," Captain Bluntschli, acts with a remarkable power of characterisation and lifelike realism. He does not act the part, he is simply the man depicted, and had we not seen him in other parts demanding enthusiasm and intensity we might regard him as really the cold calculating cynic and time-server whom he portrays. Every caustic and well-judged remark of his gains its natural spontaneous outburst of laughter, and has the stamp of individuality and resource. It is a wonderful concentration of character and intelligence. Mr. David Powell comes out with flying colours as the per-fervid and hot-blooded Bulgarian, Major Sergius Saranoff, and aptly depicts the tumult of mind in which his many-sided nature, his honesty of purpose, and his weak will-power plunge him. Miss Auriol Lee is excellently placed as Raina, one of Mr. Bernard Shaw's favourite types of femininity—fascinating, bewildering, high-falutin', lovable, inconsistent, self-seeking, always striving to reconcile the ideal with the real, and above all to get her own way at any cost of moral tergiversation. Miss Frances Dillon is very ardent and intense as the high-souled menial and determined wooer, Louka. Miss Frances Wetherall is capital as the clever and managing wife, Catherine Petkoff; and Mr. Michael Sherbrooke causes much laughter and amusement as the fussy, weak-minded, comfort-loving Major Paul Petkoff, and makes his points with precision and lucidity. Mr. James Hearn contributes a most telling embodiment as the avaricious opportunist, the servant Nicolo. The pièce de résistance is preceded by Mr. Frederick Fenn's capital one-act play, The Convict on the Hearth, wherein Mr. Frederick Lloyd gives an altogether admirable impersonation of the kindly and practical young parson, the Rev. Cartwright Dade; Mr. James Hearn is excellent as the returned jailbird George, and Mr. Richard Haigh as Thomas Midden, the father, and Miss Helen Rous as his helpmeet, give first-rate sketches of character; Miss Vera Coburn, like Niobe, all tears, Mr. Arthur Bowyer (stage-manager) as the kindly old uncle Joseph Peterson, little Willie Parke, Miss Maud Burton, and Mr. Allen Wade—indeed, all concerned work loyally and well. Mr. E. Taylor Platt and Mr. Harry W. Lumley assist the indefatigable Mr. Eade Montefiore at the front of the house.

THEATRE ROYAL, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Oct. 19, the Drama, by Carlton Wallace, entitled "THE VILLAGE BLACKSMITH."

Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Livesey's company is presenting here The Village Blacksmith. The wrestling match between John Strong and Captain Leo in the final act is capitally portrayed and highly appreciated. The drama is well mounted, and the interest of the audience is continuously maintained throughout the production. Mr. Sam Livesey, who plays the part of John Strong, is of sinewy build, and naturally adapted for the village blacksmith; he not only looks, but gives a powerful rendering of the character. Miss Maggie Edwards puts the necessary amount of pathos into her study of Kate Strong; Harry Strong is capably undertaken by Miss Lily Leicester; Mr. Albert Sinclair as Captain Leo, an athlete and rogue, has an excellent presence, and is most suited to the part, and performs his villainies in a forcible manner. Comic relief is afforded by Billy Twig, amusingly essayed by Mr. Fred Haming; Mr. Thomas E. Marshall and Mrs. T. C. Livesey, in the characters of Jeremiah and Sal Parkins respectively, also score as merry-makers; Ruth Parkins is ably undertaken by Miss Cissie Le Grand, her song in the last act being well received; Miss Edith Giddens makes an acceptable Martha Mopps.

THE KENNINGTON.

On Monday, Oct. 19, the Farce, entitled "WHEN KNIGHTS WERE BOLD."

Mr. James Welch is a great comedian who has the additional virtue of being distinctly original in his methods, and in When Knights Were Bold he is seen at his best. Mr. Welch has gathered around him a highly talented company, and at Kennington Theatre this week he presented the play with all the accessories of pretty dresses and ingenious staging which count so much in the modern production, and hence the theatre has been crowded nightly by audiences who have hugely enjoyed the whole performance. On Monday night the enthusiasm of the house was tremendous, and at the end of each of the three acts Mr. Welch and his fellow-artists had to appear before the curtain. Many topical lines have been introduced since When Knights Were Bold left Wyndham's Theatre, and they go well. As Guy de Vere Mr. Welch is just splendid, and he must be seen for his rare qualities of humour to be fully understood. As Lady Rowena, the fiancée of Sir Guy, Miss Audrey Ford is the superior modern girl to the life, and then, by way of demonstrating her histrionic capabilities, gives a vivid sketch of the proud and vengeful dame of the twelfth century. She is ably seconded by Miss Maev O'Hea as Lady Millicent, Miss Gwendoline Rayne as Lady Marjorie, and Miss Annie Furrell as Kate Pottlebury, three charming ladies who are equally graceful whether filling the rôles of romping girls in a country house-party, or of nuns "dedicate to Heaven," as the Abbess puts it. The Abbess of the second act is the Hon. Mrs. Waldegrave of the rest of the play, and at the hands of Miss Helen Palgrave both parts are admirably enacted. Mr. Arthur Grenville is exceptionally good as Isaac Isaacson, the Jew; and Miss Daisy Cordell introduces much vivacity and spirit into her conception of the character of Miss Isaacson. The Hon. Charles Widdicombe of Mr. George Desmond is a lively and entertaining rôle, and in the third act he scores a big hit as the Jester, his song going with great éclat. Mr. Guy Lane is excellent as the pompous Dean and vindictive Monk; while the not easy part of Sir Brian Ballymote is finely sketched by Mr. Cecil Kinnaird. Miss Annie Chippendale makes a rosy-cheeked twelfth-century damsel; and Mr. Leopold Profeit is a dignified Herald. Mr. G. F. Tully (Wittle), and Mr. G. Tomkins (Barker) give first-class representations of their respective rôles, and create a good deal of amusements on the Battlements in 1196. The enlarged orchestra is under the able direction of Mr. H. A. Newton; while Mr. Arthur Whittaker looks after Mr. Welch's interests at the front of the house.

CRYSTAL PALACE THEATRE.

On Monday, Oct. 19, the Comedy, "THE MOLLUSC."

Miss Annie Hughes and her well-selected company have had a flattering reception here in the above play. It is said that the play originally comprised seven characters, but that the judicious pruning of Sir Charles Wyndham reduced this number to the select four, which seem really quite enough to develop the clever idea which is embodied in the production. Be that as it may, it was a pleasure to see the united efforts of Miss Hughes' company meet with so much well-merited success. As Mrs. Baxter, the lady who would do nothing which she did not want to, Miss Annie Hughes was as clever and natural as one would expect this lady to be, and her delivery of the lines caused roars of laughter and appreciation. She appeared in some most charming gowns, a pale blue creation in Empire style, worn in the first act, being especially noticeable, and in the last act, where she is carried into the room, too weak to move, her studied negligée and pretty headgear were exquisite. As Tom Kemp, Mr. Athol Stewart was breezy and bright, his reading being somewhat different to that of Sir Charles Wyndham, but still most effective and suitable. He was equally good in the tenderer scenes with the governess, and throughout the piece was most helpful. Mr. Alick Chumley as Mr. Baxter, the long-suffering husband, was quite a success, although this part is one requiring great tact to make it acceptable. Miss Lilias Waldegrave as the governess, Miss Roberts, was excellent, her clear diction and sweetness of manner being very suitable to the character. In the pathetic scenes she was especially good. Her frocks were all in excellent taste, especially the pretty black voile worn in the first act, and the charming creations in the second and third. Mr. J. Bannister Howard has secured the services of Mr. Leonard Gautier as musical-director, and the orchestra performed a well-selected programme of popular pieces during the evening.

NEW LYRIC, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Oct. 19, the Drama, entitled "WHY MEN LOVE WOMEN."

This play is proving a strong attraction here this week, and the troubles of Violet Livingstone with her several lovers—the good, the bad, and the unselfish—are a subject of all-absorbing interest to the patrons of the house. It is a well-written play, and lends itself to picturesque setting and mounting, the uniforms, dresses, and the scenery being all most effective. Miss Ellen Snow shows much ability in the part of Violet Livingstone. Mr. Oliver Rogers is particularly good as Gerald Fielding, the hero; and as his enemy, Captain Staniloff, Mr. Lionel Gadsden plays powerfully. The Maharajah of Balore, in the hands of Mr. Ernest Griffin, is a character of much dignity and native nobleness. Mr. N. Carter Slaughter as Lieut. Tommy Fitzherbert does well. Mr. W. Norman is satisfactory as the Rev. Arthur Gray. Chundra Singh is capably interpreted by Mr. Arthur Radford. Miss Maud Court is a charming Mariel Zoluski. The fun of the piece is split up between four characters, and they all do their work well. They are Orlando Figgins, played by Mr. Harwood Roberts; Mrs. Figgins, by Miss Hogarth Beresford-Glynn; and Birdie and Baby, by Miss Nita Owen and Miss Freda Vaughan respectively.

BRITANNIA THEATRE.

On Monday, Oct. 19, the Drama, by Nita Rae, entitled "A BEAUTIFUL CRIMINAL."

Another success is to be recorded this week with A Beautiful Criminal, and this popular house of drama is returning to its earlier and palmy days when the old Britannia stock company were accustomed to attract crowded houses. Mr. Montgomery's company are undoubted artists, as their performances week by week testify. The burden of this week's entertainment falls upon the shoulders of Mr. H. Eyeland Leigh, who gives a most masterly impersonation of Will Maynard, a character that requires very forcible and powerful representation, and Mr. Leigh must be heartily congratulated. Miss Etheyle Gordon Murray also is a very important factor in the play, undertaking the difficult rôle of Elinor D'Arville, and obtains great applause for her most artistic rendering of the unthankful part of the beautiful criminal. The remainder of the cast have not many opportunities of displaying their histrionic powers; but we cannot allow the occasion to pass without giving Mr. C. Allen Hineson a word of warm praise for his splendid character-study of Peter Millet, a part that fits him admirably, and causes the audience to join in hearty laughter. He is ably assisted in this by Mr. Herbert Young as Percy Vimbart, a henpecked husband, and Mr. H. G. Brandon as James, an excellent representative of an upper servant. The remainder of the performers render able assistance. We must congratulate Mr. Job Cook, the resident scenic artist, on his realistic work. The scene representing the old bridge near the Manor is a very fine picture. The orchestra renders some very pretty selections, and a fitting finale to an excellent entertainment is the Barrascope, which shows some striking pictures.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Oct. 19, the Dutch Musical Incident, entitled, "MISS HOOK OF HOLLAND."

The extremely diverting entertainment, acceptable alike to eye and ear, presented under the title of Miss Hook of Holland, is being played with great success at the Dalston Theatre this week. Miss Alice Coverick sustains the title-rôle, Sally, and thoroughly establishes herself as a favourite, her vivacious style, acceptable vocalisation, and dainty dancing being positively refreshing. Mr. Frank Crimp is the Dutch bandmaster, and his singing is highly appreciated. The duet in reference to the ever-interesting Dutch canal, in the rendition of which composition he is joined by Miss Hook, is received with boisterous applause, accompanied by a good deal of laughter, the item having the advantage of humour as well as melody. Mr. George Ide as Captain Paap is very popular, and his singing of "Soldiers of the Netherlands" secures every evidence of approval. Mr. James Davies is Lieut. De Coop. Mr. Tom Seymour is entitled to unstinted credit for his representation of Simon Slinks, the canal loafer. Mr. Hook, the widowed and wealthy distiller of liquor is represented with all the true spirit of the comedian by Mr. Tom Shale, who, during the evening, is responsible for many aching sides. Miss Cissie Sephton, as Mina, maid to the Hooks, sings a good song, "The Flying Dutchman." The cast also includes Miss T. Leonard, Miss Isabel Vivian, Miss Mary Allen, and Mr. George Mudie, jun., the latter imparting a bustling and properly self-important air to the character of Ludwig Schnapps, foreman of Hook's distillery.

THE GRAND, FULHAM.

On Monday, Oct. 19, the Play, entitled "THE THIEF."

An excellent company, organised by Mr. George Alexander to tour one of his recent successes, is drawing good houses here this week. Mr. Alexander does the thing handsomely in the matter of his secondary companies, the scenery, effects, dresses, and the artists all being of the best. Mr. Rupert Lister does very well as Richard Chelford, giving a fine, manly performance, which won great admiration. Mr. Cyril Harcourt is a success as Raymond Leyton, playing with great earnestness and sincerity. Mr. Owen Nares has a difficult part as Harry, but acquits himself creditably. Mr. Luke Forster as the detective Protheroe is appropriately matter-of-fact and unsentimental. Miss Jean Cadell does all that is required in the rôle of Isabel Leyton. The honours of the evening must surely go to Miss Marie Polini as the representative of the erring wife, Marise Chelford. Miss Polini is well suited to highly emotional parts, and moves one with equal power in all phases of the rôle. It is a remarkably clever performance, and ought to add considerably to her reputation. The Thief is preceded by the one-act play, Too Happy by Half, in which Mr. Charles King plays brightly as Eric Verner, and is well supported by Mr. Owen Nares as Jack Fortescue, Miss Eileen Kerin making a charming young wife as Mary Verner.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, Oct. 20, the Drama, in Five Acts, entitled "UNCLE TOM'S CABIN."

An adaptation of Mrs. Beecher Stowe's beautiful work "Uncle Tom's Cabin" is being presented at the Shakespeare Theatre this week by Mr. Charles Harrington's company, and is meeting with great success. The introduction of real negroes adds a touch of realism to the production, of which their plantation festival scene is one of the features. Mr. J. Carr gives a convincing impersonation of Uncle Tom, and his quiet, but earnest, acting makes a deep impression. Mr. Charles Harrington as Phineas Fletcher looks and acts the part to perfection; and Mr. Frank Forbes-Robertson as Mr. St. Clair acquits himself with credit. A painstaking study of the fugitive slave, George Harris, is contributed by Mr. Ernest Regent, whose resolute bearing and manner are well in keeping with the rôle. Mr. T. Bowron makes the most of his opportunities as Legree, and sufficiently emphasises the brutal attributes of the character. Mr. Walter Langford causes much amusement by his clever delineation of the lawyer, Marks, and Mr. E. A. Massingham is satisfactory as Dan Haley. Miss Hero Hathaway makes a pleasing appearance as Eliza Harris, and skilfully depicts the varied emotions of the part. Miss Jennie Malcolm does all that is possible in the rôle of the prim Aunt Ophelia; and Mrs. Carr gives a good performance as Uncle Tom's wife. Miss Annie Watson scores a decided hit as Topsy, and her quaint antics and clever repartee keep the audience in uproarious laughter; Miss Kitty Bell acts with natural innocence and grace as Little Eva, speaking her lines with praiseworthy distinctness; and Miss Hetty Johnson plays Cassy, the creole slave, with pronounced success. The piece is admirably staged, and the scenery throughout excellent.

GREENWICH THEATRE.

On Monday, Oct. 19, the Drama, in Four Acts, by G. Buchanan Rogerson, entitled "THE WOMAN WHO GAMBLES."

Mr. Morton Powell's elaborate production, A Woman Who Gambles, is proving a great attraction this week. It is capitally acted all round. Miss Laura Walker gives a clever and powerful rendering of the rôle of the Countess Natalie Steinbach, and is well supported by Mr. Norman A. Overton, who is an admirable Baron Cratzlaw. Mr. Clifford Rean submits a clever and effective study of Count Otto Steinbach; Mr. Reginald Fox is very good indeed as Lieutenant Karl Cizartorski; Mr. Ernest J. Clark is a convincing M. Stambuloff; Mr. James Turner is good as M. Koska Marinavitch; Mr. Victor J. Raymond is very popular as the Honourable Bertie Bray, of the British Embassy, a part which suits Mr. Raymond's style admirably; Mr. Victor Brandhurst is a very capable George Orloff; Mr. Reginald Oldroyd gives a good performance of Manifred Speinletch; Mr. Jack Kerr is a competent Silanovitch; Mr. George Payne as Alexander Gouts, Mr. Arthur Cuff as Max Mecklebach, and Mr. K. H. Speake as Michael Lantoff, are all well placed. Miss Lily Malvern gives an excellent representation of Stella Malakoff; Miss Lillian Rignold is very good as Mlle. Zila Zeyelda; Miss Brenda May is bright and smart as Zanette; and Miss E. Conway is a clever and attractive Cora Goldhart.

SHAFTESBURY THEATRE.

MR. H. B. IRVING.

Every Evening, at 8.45, "THE LYONS MAIL."

MR. H. B. IRVING. MISS DOROTHEA BAIRD.

Preceded at 8.15, by

"THE SERGEANT OF HUSSARS," by Oicely Hamilton.

Box-office Ten till Ten. Telephone 6,867 Gerrard.

MATINEES WEDNESDAYS and SATURDAYS, at 2.15.

THE VERDICT OF THE AUDIENCE.

THE TIMES.

Tact before the curtain is an Irving tradition; and the son had all his father's suavity and grace last night in his little speech of thanks at the close of a most enthusiastic evening. . . . Altogether a most pleasant evening, and auguring well for the success of the season.

THE MORNING POST.

The scene at the fall of the curtain last night recalled many a first night at the old Lyceum, so prolonged and enthusiastic was the applause, so persistent the demands for a speech. After about a dozen "curtains" and appearances, Mr. Irving briefly thanked the audience for its reception. If he and his comrades had brought to those who had seen the play before pleasant recollections—(several cries of "You have")—and had made the old play interesting to those to whom it was new—(loud cheers)—they had done all they hoped to do. Even after Mr. Irving retired the cheering continued for a while . . the applause at the end of act two was such as is rarely heard nowadays in a London theatre.

THE DAILY TELEGRAPH.

Melodrama dead—moribund even! Assuredly not while such conclusive proof of its vitality is forthcoming as was furnished last night at the Shaftesbury. Let it not be assumed either that the evidence came from part of the house only. On the contrary, the pit was not more enthusiastic than the stalls, the gallery not more prodigal of applause than the boxes. It was, in truth, like the old days come again; it wanted but the slightest effort of the imagination to make one believe that the hands of the theatrical clock had been turned back twenty-five years. After all, what a splendid specimen of its class "The Lyons Mail" is! . . . The authors little suspected, probably, that after half a century it would succeed in thrilling a London audience and rousing it to the highest pitch of excitement. That, however, is precisely what happened at the Shaftesbury last night.

THE STANDARD.

Mr. H. B. Irving is quietly, but surely, establishing his position with the London public. There was a note of affection, as well as admiration, in the remarkable ovation which greeted the actor's reappearance after a lengthy absence. . . . The stage-management was perfect—and that is a pleasing thing to be able to say, because stage-management always was (and, let us hope, long will be) one of the "Irving traditions."

THE DAILY GRAPHIC.

A splendid reception was accorded to Mr H. B. Irving last night. . . . The reception of both plays was, as said before, most enthusiastic.

THE DAILY CHRONICLE.

One of those glorious evenings when an audience suddenly takes it into its head that it is assisting at a great occasion, and proceeds to do its duty with a true passion of applause, happened at the Shaftesbury Theatre last night, when Mr. H. B. Irving was received with a tremendous ovation of volley upon volley of shouts and of cheers of welcome. It was a reception that must have surprised Mr. Irving himself, and certainly refreshed the hearts of many playgoers. . . . after the fine acting of yesterday, and the earthquakes of enthusiasm that it evoked, it is pleasant to know—as those who have followed Mr. Irving's provincial tour can testify—that still better remains behind.

THE DAILY MAIL.

It was a very successful evening, and Mr. Irving met with an enthusiasm which he amply deserved.

THE DAILY MIRROR.

Certain it is that there is no English actor living as well qualified to appear in Sir Henry's parts in "The Lyons Mail." What a roar of welcome went up when he appeared upon the stage last night! . . . The play has run now for fifty-eight years. Seldom, however, has it been played more effectively than it was by Mr. Irving last evening.

THE ACTING.

THE TIMES.

Mr. H B Irving very wisely does what his father did, insisting with all his might upon the contrasts between the open, simple, sentimental Lesurques and the grim, sardonic, snarling villain Dubosc. . . . Yes, for those who have seen the play before, this revival does indeed bring back memories of the pleasantest kind. . . . He is well justified, too, in his modest hope that, for those who see the play for the first time, there are still elements of attraction. "The Lyons Mail" is, in fact, an excellent specimen of the old romantic melodrama—with direct, rapid action, simple emotions strongly expressed, and no superfluous verbiage.

THE MORNING POST.

In some quarters objection has been taken to Mr. Irving's playing his father's parts, but the question surely is: "Are the parts worth playing, and, if so, who else could play them so well?" Now, it is certain that many of them are by no means done with yet, and if the enthusiasm of last night's audience may be taken as any criterion of the public feeling, Mr. Irving's season at the Shaftesbury should be a triumph. . . . the performance is one which no English actor now before the public could surpass. In the more difficult character of Lesurques Mr. Irving's success is even more remarkable. The growing apprehension and agony of the unhappy man as he sees the toils closing in on him are pictured with pathetic fidelity; the whole scene is one of the finest exhibitions of mental anguish that our stage has shown for years.

THE DAILY TELEGRAPH.

To follow in the footsteps of a great actor must always be a venturesome step, especially when the recollections of his achievements are still fresh in the minds of numerous playgoers. But out of the ordeal Mr. H. B. Irving emerged with something more than mere credit to himself. In one respect he even outstripped anticipations. His study of Lesurques will bear comparison with any of its predecessors. As a matter of fact, we are inclined to place it, so far as verisimilitude is concerned, on the quite highest plane.

THE DAILY MAIL.

A thoughtful, intelligent study of the two parts—one very well worth seeing, polished, sure, personal.

THE STANDARD.

If Mr. Irving's other performances of his father's characters are at all comparable with his Lesurques and Dubosc, there can be no reason why another permanent Irving management should not become an institution in London. An actor who can play, in the Grand manner, Hamlet and Iago, Charles I. and Louis XI., Matthias and Dubosc, should be more than equal to the task of creating a new Lyceum. . . .Mr. Irving emerged triumphantly from the trying ordeal. Both as Lesurques and as Dubosc he delighted the audience, who repeatedly "rose at him" during the course of the evening. In the famous garret scene, at the end of the drama, where the brutal Dubosc is driven to bay, Mr. Irving's acting was superb. . . . The curtain fell to a tremendous outburst of cheering, the pit shouting the name of "Irving" as though they loved it.

THE DAILY CHRONICLE.

Quite apart from this, the evening showed that there can be no possible doubt of his having returned from his provincial progress a much finer and more accomplished actor than he was when London knew him last. To the old passion and command he has added a faculty and range of character that are obviously only waiting for some great new part to take the town by storm.

THE PALL MALL GAZETTE.

The important fact of last night was that, even with vivid memories of Henry Irving pressing upon one all the time, one could sit through the performance with genuine pleasure. Obviously it could not have been from those memories only that the gratification came, for had the acting of Mr. Irving been seriously in conflict with them, the evening would have been one of little less than torture. The general cheers, however, that followed the descent of the curtain after each act, and particularly after the second and third, proved that the audience had been moved to real admiration; and, with the memory of his father's performance still so fresh and so vivid, the evening must be chronicled as one of triumph for the son. . . . We saw quite enough last night to convince us that there is only one man before the present playgoing public who has the artistic right to play the parts which Henry Irving made his own, and that man is his elder son. The remainder of the company work well; and the scenery and incidental music—the latter, by the way, plays a very important part in this, as it did in all the Lyceum melodramas—are just as they used to be in the old days. The house was crowded with an audience that was as brilliant as it was enthusiastic; and we trust that the events of last night will prove to have inaugurated another long and affectionate relationship between London playgoers and an Irving.

THE WESTMINSTER GAZETTE.

Mr. H. B. Irving has been very successful. . . . . In his Lesurques he presents a charming picture of the amiable, dignified, virtuous man, whilst his Dubosc is a vigorous study of the unadulterated beast. It is difficult to know which to praise the higher. . . . It was not surprising that the reception exhibited remarkable enthusiasm.

EVENING STANDARD.

If Mr. H. B. Irving had produced "The Lyons Mail" at the Lyceum instead of the Shaftesbury Theatre, there would have been playgoers in plenty to say that the Irving traditions had been revived with all their former glory. Even as it was, the rousing reception extended to Mr. Irving last evening recalled the fervour of the old Lyceum first nights, and one felt tempted to exclaim in sheer exultation: "Le Roi est mort; vive le Roi!" . . . The house rose at Mr. Irving; it was a new and real triumph for the actor. . . . If all of us who made, with good critical reason, an idol of the father, do not rush to see the son, it will be strange indeed, and we wish Mr. Irving very well in what is both a dutiful and a happy enterprise.

THE WORLD.

"The Lyons Mail" at the Shaftesbury is, I am bound to admit, a capital entertainment. I would rather see Mr. Irving in a play of to-day, but that must not prevent me from acknowledging either the picturesque vigour of his own performance or the interest of the piece. Was it not M. Faguet who called "Le Courier de Lyon" the best melodrama in existence? It certainly is an admirably-managed machine. There is real human nature behind all its contrivances and coincidences. It ought to teach juries never to convict upon circumstantial evidence. It forces one to realise how much stronger is the logic of apparent facts than a reputation for life-long integrity. Mr. Irving's acting in the double part is naturally upon his father's lines, though by no means an imitation. He brings out even more vividly, because more naturally, the stupefaction of the accused man when he finds the net closing around him. There is no melodrama here: it is a fine piece of emotional acting.

THE OUTLOOK.

Mr. H. B. Irving is a fine actor—a man of imagination. His work in "The Lyons Mail" is a striking performance, and the venerable melodrama lives again under his hand. In some ways the play is improved: the mobbing of Dubosc in the last act, for instance, is better done. "The Lyons Mail" is "The Lyons Mail"—a law unto itself, a thing to take or leave. You may think Mr. Irving better in finer work, as I do; but you can hardly suppress the thrill of the gruesome as you listen to the disjointed jabberings of the tipsy fiend in this historic play.

MISS DOROTHEA BAIRD.

Mr. Irving is very happy in his leading lady, Miss Dorothea Baird. In the part of Jeannette she has not much to do, but she does it prettily and pathetically; and she is also seen to advantage in the little drama, "The Sergeant of Hussars," with which the programme opens.—Pall Mall Gazette.

A new curtain-raiser, by Miss Cicely Hamilton, "The Sergeant of Hussars," had an excellent reception. . . . Miss Baird's performance of the heroine was powerful and sympathetic.—Standard.

Miss Dorothea Baird, the Jeannette, rendered very pathetically the part of the victim of Dubosc, and received a hearty welcome.—Westminster Gazette.

Miss Dorothea Baird plays the part of Jeannette, and plays it very effectively.—Evening Standard.

Miss Dorothea Baird acts with great emotional fervour as the unhappy Jeanne.—Evening Standard.

Miss Dorothea Baird indicated the misery of Jeanne with touching simplicity.—Morning Post.

Miss Baird plays charmingly.—Globe.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

Sir Charles Wyndham has kindly lent the New Theatre for a matinée on Tuesday, Nov. 17, in aid of Miss Olive Christian Malvery's Shelter Fund for Homeless Women, of which Lady Brassey is the hon. treasurer. A novel and interesting programme, including many popular favourites, is promised for the matinée, of which Miss Catherine Lewis is the organiser.

Mr. George Alexander concludes his triumphal tour of the provinces at the Prince's Theatre, Bristol, this evening, and on Monday he, Miss Irene Vanbrugh, and his St. James's Theatre company, including Mr. Dawson Milward, Mr. Reginald Owen, Mr. E. Vivian Reynolds, and Miss Nina Sevening, will begin a special week's engagement at the Kennington Theatre with The Thief. The principal piece will be preceded by a new one-act play entitled The Nursery Governess, which has been translated and adapted from M. Provins' La Gouvernante by P. G. Duchesne. The cast of the new playlet, which has met with success in the provinces, will include Mr. Harcourt Williams, Mr. Ashton Pearse, Miss Barbara Hannay, and Miss Jean Sterling Mackinlay.

Mr. Alexander will produce Mr. Alfred Sutro's new play at the St. James's on Wednesday, Nov. 11. The piece is in four acts, and is entitled The Builder of Bridges. Mr. Alexander and Miss Irene Vanbrugh will play the principal parts, and in the cast will be Mr. Dawson Milward, Mr. Harcourt Williams, Mr. William Farren, Mr. E. Vivian Reynolds, Miss Florence Hayden, Miss Barbara Hannay, and Miss Nina Sevening. The action of the play is laid in London at the present time.

Mr. Forbes-Robertson, in accordance with the announcement already made, will close his season at the St. James's on Saturday, Nov. 7, to make way for the return of Mr. George Alexander. No break, however, will be made in the successful run of The Passing of the Third Floor Back, as the production will be transferred to Terry's Theatre on the following Monday.

Mr. H. B. Irving's triumph at the Shaftesbury, though not unexpected, is no less gratifying to those who long since pledged their faith in the clever son of a distinguished father. The young actor has created another Irving "atmosphere," due no less to his own artistic accomplishments than to his inherited talents. His performance of Lesurques and Dubosc in The Lyons Mail gives proof of the polish which he has acquired since his last appearance in London, and it is acknowledged on all hands that to no living actor could the part with which the fame of the father is so closely associated be as worthily entrusted. From the chorus of praise and congratulation that has gone up on all sides, it can hardly be doubted, as it will certainly be hoped, that Mr. Irving has established himself permanently among West-End managers.

Mr. Martin Harvey was to have offered "Some Reflections on the Art of Acting" to the O.P. Club at the Criterion Restaurant last Sunday. Mr. F. D. Bone, in taking the chair, announced that Mr. Martin Harvey was suffering from a severe chill, accompanied by a rise of temperature, and could not leave his room. He had, however, sent his paper, which was read by members of the committee. Mr. Harvey's very interesting lecture has already appeared in our columns.

Miss Marion Terry will stay in New York for a fortnight before going to Montreal, where she will create the leading rôle in Paul Bourget's drama Divorce, on Nov. 2. Miss Marion Terry has never visited America before. On the way over she slipped and fell on the deck, and sprained her ankle. Miss Terry went to the States under the management of Mr. Fred C. Whitney, and the American adaptation of M. Bourget's play has been made by Mr. Stanislaus Strange. The cast will include Miss Nelly Roland, Mr. John Glendinning, and Mr. Vincent Serrano.

The newly-constituted Executive Committee of the Shakespeare Memorial met at the Mansion House on Tuesday. The Lord Mayor presided, and there were present Lord Lytton, the Earl of Plymouth, Mr. Alfred Lyttelton, Mr. A. W. Pinero, Mr. Beerbohm Tree, Mr. G. Bernard Shaw, Mr. William Archer, Mr. J. Comyns Carr, Mr. Granville Barker, Mr. Philip Carr, and Professor Gollancz. The proceedings were private. Several committees were appointed—one to draft a scheme for the erection of a national theatre, and another to organise the appeal to the public for funds to carry out the work.

In celebration of the King's birthday, Mr. Cyril Maude has been commanded to Sandringham on Friday, Nov. 13, to give a performance of The Flag Lieutenant. Mr. Maude and the Playhouse company will leave London at midday on the day of the performance, returning about six o'clock on the following morning. An entirely new set of scenery is being made to fit the stage at Sandringham, so that the production will be in every way an exact replica of that now to be seen at the Playhouse. There will accordingly be no performance at the Playhouse on the evening of Friday, Nov. 13. Mr. Maude and his company, it will be remembered, appeared at Sandringham on the King's birthday last year in the "Dressing-room" scene from The Clandestine Marriage and the one-act play French as he is Spoke.

Mr. Martin Harvey is also honoured by the King's command, and will journey to Windsor on Nov. 18 with his company in order to give a performance of The Corsican Brothers during the visit of the King and Queen of Sweden. This is the second time within sixteen months that King Edward has asked for a special performance of this play, for during Mr. Harvey's last Adelphi season in June, 1907, the programme was changed from The Only Way to The Corsican Brothers in order that the King and Queen might witness the piece.

The stage-room in the Waterloo Chamber being limited, an entirely new production on a somewhat smaller scale than that used at the Adelphi has to be prepared. Mr. George J. Dodson, who painted the original production, is engaged on a replica of the scenes, and last week Mr. George Ashton, who has in hand all the arrangements, accompanied Mr. Harvey's stage-managers to Windsor Castle, when the necessary measurements were taken. The Adelphi staff also accompany the production, and a large portion of the band will augment the Royal Orchestra.

The Royal command has necessitated a slight rearrangement of Mr. Martin Harvey's Adelphi programme. The Only Way will be revived on Monday next, and will be followed later by The Breed of the Treshams, while the last two weeks of the season will be devoted to a revival of The Corsican Brothers.

Mr. Lewis Waller also shares in the Royal favour, and for the third time in four years will appear at Windsor Castle by command of the King. The date fixed is Friday, Nov. 20, on the evening of which Mr. Waller and his company from the Lyric Theatre will give a performance of The Duke's Motto before the King and Queen of Sweden, who will be the guests of His Majesty.

Mr. Norman V. Norman concluded his season at Brighton with a revival of Nell Gwyn, the play being received by a crowded and enthusiastic audience, and Miss Beatrice Wilson being presented with several bouquets. Though there were calls for a speech at the fall of the curtain, Mr. Norman did not comply. We regret to add that the popular actor-manager met with a painful accident one day this week. Whilst playing hockey he was struck in the eye by the ball, the eyelid being somewhat severely cut.

Mr. Carl Hentschel writes:—"In reference to the letter from the hon. secretary of the Playgoers' Club which appeared in a contemporary, may I be allowed to explain why the O.P. Club sold their furniture. They had decided to move to larger and more commodious premises at the Criterion, and as the new headquarters are already furnished, there was no necessity to retain the old furniture. The O.P. Club, with its new headquarters under the presidency of Mr. Max Pemberton, is going very strong, and the fact of the sale of the old furniture certainly should not affect either of the clubs. Both are so well-known that it is impossible that one should be mistaken for the other. I had the honour of being joint founder of the Playgoers' Club, and in 1900 I founded the O.P. Club. Since then both clubs have flourished. What O.P. stands for is a matter of opinion. It can stand for 'Old Prices,' 'Opposite Prompt,' 'Old Playgoers,' &c., &c. Therefore anyone is quite at liberty to choose his own definition if he pleases. As regards the Club itself, it desires to be known only by its initials."

Congratulations are being received by Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Meyer on the birth to them of a fine boy, a happy event which occurred on Thursday last. Mrs. Meyer in professional life is Miss Dorothy Grimston, who lately achieved such success as Nina in His House in Order in the provinces, and Mr. Meyer is general manager for Mr. Oscar Asche and Miss Lily Brayton.

The statutory meeting of Drury Lane Theatre, Ltd., will be held on Monday. The annual report then to be presented to the shareholders shows a profit for the year ended June 30, after allowing for depreciation, of £20,651. To this there is to be added £2,097 brought forward from last year. The directors have considered it prudent to create a reserve, and accordingly have transferred £10,000 for this purpose. They recommend the payment of a dividend of 10 per cent., leaving £3,348 to be carried forward. Insurance claims in respect of the recent fire are not finally settled, nor are the necessary rebuilding and reinstatement completed; but the directors express themselves satisfied that the amount transferred to reserve account will be more than sufficient to meet any contingencies under this head.

Excellent progress is being made with the farewell matinée which is to be given to Miss Dolores Drummond at the Playhouse on Friday, Nov. 20. A committee, representative of the leading West-End managers, is headed by the Earl of Kilmorey, K.P., and includes Sir Squire Bancroft and Lady Bancroft, Sir Charles Wyndham, Sir John Hare, Mr. H. Beerbohm Tree, Miss Ellen Terry, Mr. A. W. Pinero, Mr. Cyril Maude, Mr. George Alexander, Mr. Arthur Bourchier, Mr. Arthur Chudleigh, Mr. Arthur Collins, Mr. H. B. Irving, Mr. J. Forbes-Robertson, Mr. George Edwardes, Mr. Martin Harvey, Mr H. V. Esmond, Mr. Otho Stuart, Mr. Lionel Brough, Mr. Frederick Kerr, Miss Mary Moore, Mr. Dion Boucicault, and Lady Violet Greville.

The Playhouse has been kindly lent for the occasion by Mr. Cyril Maude, who will also contribute with his wife, Miss Winifred Emery, to the programme. Details of the entertainment have not yet been arranged, but among the ladies and gentlemen who have already consented to appear are Mr. Beerbohm Tree, Mr. Forbes-Robertson and Miss Gertrude Elliott, Mr. H. Beerbohm Tree, Mr. H. B. Irving and Miss Dorothea Baird, Miss Lena Ashwell, Mr. Frederick Kerr and Miss Irene Vanbrugh, Miss Ada Reeve, Miss Marie Illington, Mr. Martin Harvey and Miss N. de Silva, Mr. H. V. Esmond and Miss Eva Moore, Mr. Malcolm Scott, and Mr. Lionel Brough. Mr. Lewis Waller would also have been on the programme but for the fact that he is on that day commanded to Windsor Castle.

Messrs. Smith and Carpenter ask us to state that, although the old mystery will be a prominent feature of their forthcoming production at the Lyceum on the subject of "The Man in the Iron Mask," the play will be an entirely new one from the pen of Mr. Norman Forbes. The title is not yet settled, but it will certainly not be The Man in the Iron Mask.

Mr. Charles Manners (of the Moody-Manners Opera Company) delivered a lecture on Voice Production in the St. Andrew's Halls, Glasgow, on Sunday. There was a very large audience, and the lecture was followed with evident interest and attention. Mr. Manners' principal points were—"Breathe correctly; chin down; be natural; begin at the bottom of the ladder." Incidentally he remarked—although he took pains to emphasise the fact that he was only expressing his personal opinion—that much of the elaborate theorising regarding singing was far-fetched and unnecessary. After a person had had a grounding in the fundamentals, experience was the best teacher.

Mr. Manners strongly deprecated the idea that an amateur, however good the voice, could be allowed to do otherwise than start at the beginning, and drew a humorous picture of novices who had approached him with the object of playing the part of Marguerite or Elizabeth, scorning the idea of beginning in the chorus. Mr. Manners gave many amusing reminiscences and imitations, and at the close of the lecture sang "In Sheltered Vale."

The members of Mr. Wilson Benge's Eve of Her Wedding company and a numerous party of friends were entertained to supper after the performance on Thursday night, on the stage at the Theatre Royal, Barnsley, the occasion being the birthday of Miss Sadie Smith (Mrs. Wilson Benge). A most enjoyable evening was spent, songs and recitations being given by various members of the company. Mrs. Benge was the recipient of many handsome presents.

"The Belle of Brittany," which was unavoidably postponed last Saturday, will make her bow at the Queen's this evening. Mr. Tom B. Davis has strengthened the cast by the engagement of Mr. E. W. Royce, sen., and Mr. M. R. Morand. The principals include Mr. George Graves—happily recovered from his throat trouble—Mr. Walter Passmore, Mr. Lawrence Rea, Mr. Davy Burnaby, Miss Ruth Vincent, Miss Maudi Darrell, Miss Maud Boyd, and Miss Lily Iris, who thus makes her first appearance in musical comedy.

The patrons of His Majesty's, Barrow-in-Furness, which is prospering so thoroughly under the administration of Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge, suffered a keen disappointment this week, during which the theatre has had to be closed, the management of the company which was to have played The Cheat having telegraphed that they were unable to keep their engagement. In asking the indulgence of their supporters, Mr. and Mrs. Routledge point out that they were in no way responsible for the regrettable occurrence, the intimation alluded to not reaching them in time for arrangements with another company to be made. The theatre will reopen on Monday with Miss Lena Ashwell's company in Diana of Dobson's

Mr. Charles Manners, ever indefatigable in the cause of opera in English, is establishing a record for grand opera in his latest achievement. Hitherto it has been the rule for flying matinées to be given by a company appearing in London making a dash to one or other of the provincial or suburban theatres. A reversal of this custom will take place during next week, when the Moody-Manners B company comes from the provinces to give a series of flying matinées in the suburbs of Puccini's opera, Madame Butterfly, in English, of course. Thus a matinée will be given at the Willesden Hippodrome on Tuesday, Oct. 27; at the Ealing Hippodrome on Wednesday, Oct. 28; at the Richmond Hippodrome on Thursday, Oct. 29; and at the Lyric Opera House, Hammersmith, on Friday, Oct. 30.

The cast for these matinées will comprise Miss Enriqueta Crichton, the artist whose rendering of Isolda, in Tristan and Isolda, when recently given at the Lyric Theatre, W., created such a stir in artistic circles, in the title-rôle; Miss Rosina Beynon as Suzuki; Mr. Charles Carter as Lieut. Pinkerton, which rôle he rendered at the Lyric Theatre during the company's annual season there; and Messrs. Charles Moorhouse and Marshal Vincent, as Consul Sharples, on alternate days. The well-known Moody-Manners operatic chorus and augmented orchestras will also officiate.

Dress of the most up-to-date character is portrayed in The Sway Boat at the Kingsway. In the first act Miss Lena Ashwell appears in a graceful house-gown carried out in two shades of bois-de-rose, the corsage being drawn tightly over the waist with a few ridges to break the surface. It is fashioned with huge armholes scooped out over an under-blouse of rosewood ninon, the long skin-tight sleeves of which are tucked horizontally and finished with the little flounces which fall over the knuckles of the hands. The corsage is studded at the armholes with flat satin buttons, which in a smaller size are repeated round the sharp "V"-shaped opening, which gives place to a vest of cream net, while the jupe is slit up on one side and is folded over at the back, where it is caught with four mammoth flat buttons.

Miss Ashwell's next appearance is made in a beautiful gown of corn-coloured satin veiled with tulle, and enriched with a long panel of gold embroidery, cutting right through the front of the gown, while the corsage is adorned with the same wonderful broderie, and the sleeves are of the scantiest description. Very pretty, too, is the simple little robe of foam-white crepe de chine, inlet with horizontal rows of creamy Mechlin lace, which describe a series of panels behind. The corsage opens over a perfectly transparent drawn tulle vest and a soft myosotis blue satin sash is tied high up under the bust, and finished with a huge blue chou, the sleeves being inlet horizontally with lace to match the gown.

The gown donned by Miss Ashwell in the last act is a beautiful mixture of deep Bordeaux-coloured satin of the richest and softest tint, covered with dark plum-coloured chiffon. The jupe opens like a curtain down the front, and is caught together at the height of the knees with heavy gold ornaments and tassels, while long stole bands designed in ragged Japanese chrysanthemums, worked in gold on a background of deep purple, outline the squared decolletage of the corsage, and are brought down the jupe on either side to the hem.

Miss Kate Rorke appears in the first act in a gown of a "plover's egg" shade of greenish-grey cloth, apparently fastened down the back from the throat to the hem, while it is enriched all the way down with quasi-military braidings in the same tone. The front of the corsage is almost plain, and the folded satin belt to match terminates abruptly each side of the front, and is connected with a shower of tassels and boules. The corsage is cut out over a cream vest, while the plain, clinging skirt falls in long statuesque folds to the feet.

"Butterflies," at the Apollo Theatre, will reach its 200th night on Thursday, when the occasion will be marked by the presentation to the audience of a full vocal score of the opera. The souvenir appears to err on the side of generosity, as its published cost is in excess of the prices of admission to all except the most expensive parts of the theatre.

Miss Maude Western has acquired from the exors. of the late Sir Augustus Harris the sole right of that fine old drama, Queen's Evidence.

Notwithstanding the fact that Mr. H. F. Maltby has been constantly touring with his own company and plays, he manages to put in a lot of time writing, and his new play, in three acts, with the attractive title of The Laughter of Fools, is now nearing completion. It will be produced in the course of next year.

Mr. Frank Harrison, who was so long connected with the productions at the Crown and Pavilion Theatres under Mr. Isaac Cohen's management, has been engaged by Mr. Robert Arthur for one of his suburban pantomimes. Mr. Harrison produced Red Riding Hood last year very successfully for Mr. Arthur at the Theatre Royal, Nottingham.

The one-act play by Mr. St. John Hankin, entitled The Burglar that Failed, which was to have been produced in front of Lady Epping's Law-suit at the Criterion, has been postponed to next Tuesday evening. The cast will consist of Miss Kate Wingfield, Miss Elfrida Clement, and Mr. Ferdinand Gottschalk.

Mr. Arthur E. Holland, whose name has for the past fourteen months been associated with the part of Jack Herne, the cripple, in Mr. Wilson Benge's The Eve of Her Wedding company, a week ago visited the theatre of his native town. Exceptional business was the result, and Mr. Holland was nightly accorded a most enthusiastic reception. He has many friends throughout the district, and fully appreciates their kind patronage and generosity, particularly on the part of those who were responsible for the public testimonial, which he will ever preserve as their token of esteem and goodwill.

Short lectures by Dr. Otto Neitzel will precede the performances of Pelléas et Mélisande at the Berlin Komische Oper. The experiment, it will be remembered, was tried by Mr. Charles Manners in London a little while ago, to the great profit of those who heard the addresses.

The well-known firm of Liberty and Co., of Regent-street, who transact quite a large amount of business with the theatrical profession, has nominated Sidney Frederick Arthur Down for the Warehousemen's, Clerks', and Drapers' Schools. The boy is eleven years of age. His father is suffering from an incurable disease, which incapacitates him from work, and has a wife and four children. Messrs. Liberty do not expect that many in the profession have votes for these schools, but any kind of votes will be acceptable, as they can be interchanged for those required. Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, of The Era, will be pleased to receive votes for this very deserving case.

The O.P. Club held their annual meeting on the 15th inst. at their new headquarters at the Criterion. General satisfaction was expressed at the new surroundings. In the unavoidable absence of Mr. Atherley-Jones, M.P., the vice-president, Mr. Geo. Gardner, presided. Mr. Max Pemberton was unanimously elected president, and Mr. F. D. Bone vice-president; Mr. Carl Hentschel, who is already chairman and director of the O.P. Club, Ltd., was appointed trustee, Mr. Algernon L. Collins, hon. treasurer, and Messrs. J. Davis Smith and Stanley Greig joint hon. secretaries. The new committee includes such well-known members as L. Atherley-Jones, M.P., Alfred F. Robbins, Sidney Dark, T. McDonald Rendle, J. M. Freshwater, George Rollit, and J. Bernard Dickson.

At the conclusion of the meeting some hundred members sat down to an informal supper under the chairmanship of Mr. Max Pemberton. The toast of the President, proposed by Mr. Sidney Dark, was received with musical honours. Mr. Max Pemberton, in responding, thanked the members for the honour they had conferred upon him in electing him as their president, and assured them that he would do everything in his power to continue the success and uphold the traditions for which the O.P. Club had become so famous. Messrs. George Stone, Laurence Bascomb, Arthur Helmore, Arthur Grover, Morris Harvey, James Godden, and Ben Nathan contributed to the concert that followed.

The tea-room at the Castle Theatre, Stockton, was formally opened on Monday, when a large number of ladies and gentlemen accepted the invitation of the manager (Mr. Chas. Imeson), and partook of refreshments during the intervals. It is an elaborate retiring room, with tapestry decorations and handsome oak furnishings, and should become most popular. The Winter Garden, which is situated on the opposite side of the main corridor, is not quite completed, but is expected to be opened in the course of a few days.

Mr. J. Wellesley Lynn, who is now recovered from his recent serious accident, sails on Wednesday from Southampton for a six months' tour in the West Indies with his company, which includes Miss Marguerite Leigh, Miss Katherine Brock, Messrs. Malcolm Cockerell, A. J. Reid, W. Welby, and A. Dene.

The Florence Glossop-Harris company, playing a répertoire of Shakespearean plays at the Ipswich Lyceum this week, has been greeted by crowded and most enthusiastic audiences. Romeo and Juliet on Tuesday evening had an especially hearty reception, and at the final fall of the curtain Miss Glossop-Harris was the recipient of a remarkable ovation. Ipswich is not alone in its appreciation of this talented company, return visits having been arranged to the last five towns visited.

By special arrangement with Mr. Frederick Harrison Mr. Stanley James, general-manager for Mr. Ian Maclaren, is in the spring sending out a company touring jointly with Mr. Michael Morton's comedies, Her Father and My Wife. Negotiations are proceeding with well-known London artists for the leading parts in each play. A replica of the Swiss hotel scene used for My Wife at the Haymarket is to be executed for the occasion and other special scenery will be carried.

For the benefit of the local charities in Bradford, Mr. Harold V. Neilson presented Ibsen's play Ghosts at the Baths Hall, on the last three nights last week. Mr. Neilson was supported by Mrs. Theodore Wright, Mr. Dickson Moffat, Mr. Orlando Barnett, and Miss Constance Bromley. The audiences were large.

Miss Elsie Irving, who undertook the part of Lady Mereston in Mr. Percy Hutchison's Lady Frederick company at very short notice, met with such pronounced success that she has been engaged to continue in the part for the rest of the tour.

"Lady Frederick's" first birthday will be celebrated at the Haymarket on Monday, when a prosperous though roving career will be marked by the presentation to every member of the audience of a souvenir-programme.

On Saturday, the 31st inst., Mr. Somerset Maugham's clever piece will be temporily withdrawn, as Mr. Frederick Harrison is under contract to produce Mr. Henry Arthur Jones's new four-act comedy, the title of which will be Dolly Reforming Herself. Miss Ethel Irving will play the principal part, and included in the cast will be Miss Margaret Halstan, Miss Ada Webster, Mr. Robert Loraine, Mr. C. M. Lowne, Mr. Lyall Swete, Mr. Charles Maude, Mr. Herbert Bunston, and Mr. Gilbert Porteous. The production is underlined for Tuesday, Nov. 3.

A very successful concert was given on Sunday in Her Majesty's Theatre, Dundee (kindly lent for the occasion by Mr. Robert Arthur), on behalf of the Royal Infirmary and other local charities. By permission of Mr. George Edwardes, Miss Clara Evelyn, Miss Mary Grey, and Mr. Harrison Frewin, of The Merry Widow company, who are appearing in the town this week, contributed pleasing items. The ladies of the company also lent their aid in selling programmes. Auxetophone selections were given by Messrs. Paterson, Sons, and company, and the Dundee Trades Band also performed during the evening. Among local artists who appeared was Mr. Louis Karpe (manager of Her Majesty's Theatre), who scored as an elocutionist.

The West London Theatre is to come under the hammer, and will be offered at auction by Messrs. Edwin Fox and Bousfield at the Mart on Wednesday, Nov. 25. Historic associations surround the theatre, which was opened in 1831 as the Royal Sussex, a name that was afterwards changed to the Royal Pavilion. In 1842 the house was rebuilt and re-named the Marylebone, with Mr. John Douglass as lessee, and it celebrated its jubilee in 1892, when Mr. Henry Gascoigne had the management. The name of the West London was conferred upon the theatre in the April of 1893, when it was opened with a variety entertainment by Messrs. William Bailey and A. E. Oliver, being subsequently given over to theatrical performances.

Many theatrical celebrities have appeared at the old dramatic house, including such notabilities as Macready, T. P. Cooke, and J. B. Buckstone, and associated with its management have been Messrs. J. A. Cave (now in the Charterhouse), E. T. Smith, J. W. Wallack, and Charles Harcourt. The house has the distinction of having introduced to the stage Mrs. Kendal, who as Little Madge Robertson made her début as a child actress there in 1854, and a year or two later Lady Bancroft, then Marie Wilton, adorned its boards. At the present moment picture exhibitions are being given.

The theatre, which is situated in Church-street, Edgware-road, will be sold as a going concern, with possession, if desired, and ready for Christmas entertainment. The building, which affords accommodation for about 1,800 persons, comprises a fine auditorium, fireproof corridors, dressing and property rooms, bars, &c., and the stage is reputed to be the longest in the kingdom. Nos. 67 and 69, Church-street are included. £3,000 have been expended on improvements in recent years. The property is held for terms of which about thirteen years are unexpired, at moderate ground rents.

At the meeting of the Music and Dancing Licensing Committee of the Surrey County Council, held at the County Hall, Kingston-on-Thames, on Monday, Sir William Vincent, Bart., in the chair, a full and unconditional licence with unanimously granted to Mr. Peter Davey with respect to the Royal County Theatre. An application made at the same time for a provisional licence for a building which it was proposed to erect to be styled the Kingston Empire, was refused.

Extensive improvements and alterations were carried out during the summer closure at the charming Royal County Theatre, at Kingston-on-Thames, and this popular theatre is now one of the most elegant and commodious in the country. It is the intention of Mr. Peter Davey to run it in the future partly on dramatic and partly on music hall lines. The first twice-nightly variety season will commence on Nov. 9, and many important star artists are engaged.

At the Borough Theatre, Stratford, all next week Mr. Wentworth Croke will present his principal London company in the new version of Hall Caine's The Christian. The production comes direct from the Lyceum and Shaftesbury Theatres, and is equipped with new scenery and effects.

Fulham will be represented in its match with Bradford Park Avenue at Fulham this afternoon by Skene, Lindsay, Charlton, Collins, Parsonage, Suart, Millington, Dalrymple, Harrison, Brown, and Lipsham. On Wednesday next Fulham will be opposed to the International Danish team at Craven Cottage. The kick-off is at 3 o'clock.

A new one-act play, entitled Mrs. Peckham's Carouse, by George Ade, will be brought to London from America next spring, and presented by Mr. Charles Frohman with Miss May Irwin, in the chief part which she is now playing with much success in the States. The play was fully described in our last issue on its recent production at the Garrick Theatre, New York.

Miss Sophie Harriss, who is re-appearing in The Prince of Pilsen this week at Manchester, was favoured by the presence of her compatriots, the Australian football team, on Monday evening. During the interval they obliged the audience with their remarkable war cry, which was repeated at the fall of the curtain on the stage, where supper was served. During the evening's proceedings much merriment was caused by the pet kangaroo of the team gravely appearing upon the stage and depositing a huge floral tribute, representing the map of Australia, at the feet of Miss Harriss.

Mr. Harris Finesberg, proprietor of the Liverpool Star Theatre, allowed a sacred concert to be held on Sunday evening last in aid of the local unemployed fund, the result being that a sum of £25 was realised. The financial return would have been more than double that amount but for the miserably wet weather that prevailed.

The cast of A Bridge Tangle, a society comedy, by Mrs. Frank Wright and Mrs. Caleb Porter, which is to be produced by Mr. Frank Cooper at the Court on Nov. 12, for a series of six matinées, has been completed. It will consist of Messrs. Frank Cooper, Edward Ferris, Charles Goodheart, Max Leeds, S. A. Cookson, and Arthur Wontner, and Misses Gertrude Kingston, Charlotte Granville, Claire Hamilton, Violet K. Cooper, and Phyllis Embury.

Miss Violet Lev is again starring with much success as Lady Mary in Peter's Mother.

Mr. Arthur Conquest, who for several years has been the pet animal of Drury Lane pantomime, is to be promoted to the part of Dick's mother in the forthcoming production of Whittington and His Cat, a responsibility for which he has before given evidence of his fitness. Mr. Conquest's possession of the gift of comedy, too, has been prominently displayed in his impersonation of the ape Chadi in the Sioux sketch in the variety theatres. The popular pantomimist's immediate successor at the Lane will be Mr. George Ali, who has won fame in America by his embodiment of the dog Tige in Buster Brown.

"Mrs. Bailey's Debts," a play founded by Charles Eddy on his novel of the same name, will be produced at the Garrick on Tuesday at a special matinée, in aid of Pearson's Fresh Air Fund. The comedy, which is modern in style, has for its central figures a captivating but financially embarrassed widow, and a wealthy, vulgar stockbroker. The cast will consist of Messrs. Edward Sass, Sydney Paxton, P. H. Clayton Greene, W. S. Staverley, E. H. Wynne, and Charles Cecil, and Misses Hilda Antony, Edith Cruickshanks, Esme Hubbard, Florence Lloyd, May Holford, and Dorothy Edwards.

A special afternoon performance will be given at a West End theatre on Tuesday, Nov. 10, of a new three-act play, named The Builders, by Nora Keith. The title was suggested by a few lines in Miss Beatrice Harraden's popular novel, "Ships that Pass in the Night."

At the Coronet on Monday When Knights were Bold will be preceded by a new one-act play, named A Question of Time, by Mathias Alexander and Evelyn Glover. The action of the piece takes place in the kitchen of a Yorkshire farmhouse. The cast will include Mr. Harold Carson, Miss Helen Palgrave, Miss Daisy Cordell, and Mr. George Tully.

The Council of the Actors' Association announce a Cinderella dance for members and friends at their new rooms at 353, Strand, on Tuesday, Nov. 24, beginning at 8.30. The prices, which will include light refreshments, will be, members' tickets, 2s. 6d.; non-members' single tickets, 5s.; double tickets, 7s. 6d. As the accommodation is strictly limited, early application should be made for tickets, which may be obtained of any member of the Council or of Mr. Hubert Blount, the secretary.

A popular music-hall song used to boast that the singer had "knocked 'em in the Old Kent-road." The same remark might now apply to the New Kent-road, which was blocked on Monday evening, after the production by Mr. Charles Barnard of Mr. Walter Melville's drama, The Beggar Girl's Wedding, by an enthusiastic crowd, who waited to give the popular Mr. Melville a reception. The traffic was seriously interfered with, and the police had to request Mr. Melville to leave the theatre privately, in order to avoid confusion. "House Full" boards have been shown at a quarter past eight at every performance this week; and, altogether, the drama is evidently an immense success.

At the usual weekly meeting of the Actors' Union, held at Hummum's Hotel on Tuesday afternoon, Mr. E. J. Collins presided, and gave it as his opinion that they should for the time being discard the consideration of such questions as the minimum wage, and work hard in the direction of organisation. He was pleased to say that the Union was in a flourishing condition. Mr. Arthur Leslie spoke on the subject of the withdrawal of the resolution by the A.U. at the Trade Union Congress a few weeks ago, and suggested for consideration the advisability of publishing the correspondence which passed between the committee and secretary. The secretary (Mr. Blackmore) read to the meeting a letter from the Actors' Protective Union of America on the matter of affiliating the two associations.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Mr. Harvey as a Matchmaker.

The episode at the Adelphi Theatre last week, when a young lady threw to Mr. Martin Harvey a bouquet containing a note and a wedding ring, has developed into quite a pretty little romance of real life. It will be remembered that Mr. Harvey replied through the agony column of a daily paper to the lady's strange note, and arranged an interview with her. Mr. Harvey, on being interviewed, explained that the girl had been secretly married six months ago, and her parents not knowing this, were anxious for her to marry someone of their own choice. Her secret had been well kept, and she could never summon up her courage to acquaint her parents of the fact. To get the husband to break the news would have been disastrous, so the lady begged Mr. Harvey to intercede for her, and get her parents' forgiveness. At first Mr. Harvey decided not to interfere, but after much pleading intermingled with tears, he wrote to the parents begging them to forgive the girl, and was delighted to receive a reply from the parents saying that the letter was a severe blow to them; but, as Mr. Harvey had pleaded the cause so strongly, they had decided that forgiveness was "the only way," and that they would take their new son-in-law to their arms.

Actors and Fashions.

During the past few years, says M.A.P., actors and actresses have been responsible for giving us many novel fashions, although most of these were short-lived, and returned to oblivion with the plays in which they were originated. To Mr. George Grossmith, junior, we owe the habit of wearing the double collar with evening-dress, and this clever comedian did much to popularise the Panama hat. Mr. George Alexander has been devoutly thanked by men of all types and classes for appearing in His House in Order in a flannel collar. The rush for flannel collars after that made the fortunes of several haberdashers, and during the summer months every second man one met was wearing a House in Order collar with the jauntiest of airs. Among other stage fashions of recent years may be mentioned the "Coddington" hat worn by Mr. Arthur Roberts in In Town; the brown frock-coat worn by Mr. Lewis Waller in A Woman's Reason; the "Gibson" dress worn and made famous by Miss Camille Clifford, and the "Anna Doherty" hat—of the "cartwheel" variety—worn by Miss Doherty in the "halls."

Treating the Supers.

Mr. Turner, of "Playhouse fame," told a funny story at the complimentary dinner to Mr. George Scott on the 16th inst. Mr. Tree was producing Julius Cæsar at His Majesty's, and the rehearsal dragged along from 11 a.m. on Friday till 3 on Saturday morning. Knowing well what would happen if he allowed his supernumeraries to go outside the theatre for refreshment, Mr. Tree ordered in a barrel of Bass's sixty-shilling bitter, and had it broached for the "crowd." It was a hazy and elated band of citizens that shambled on with flaming flambeaux and cries of "O nobl' Cæsar! O trait'rs, vill'ns! O bloody day!" in the scene before the Forum. Mr. Tree gazed at them hopelessly, but philosophically made the best of it. "Fine! fine! A splendid bit of acting!" he cried. "Your simulation of the intoxication consequent upon Rome's grief at Cæsar's fall is most realistic, but—but return your torches, all of you, to the property-master before you set fire to my beautiful scenery!"

Playwright and President.

A new terror has been added to the lot of the playwright in America. The President and Mrs. Roosevelt and suite attended the première of Mr. Zangwill's drama The Melting-Pot, at Washington on the 5th inst. The plot deals with American life and Russian revolutionism. Certain strong lines caused Mr. Roosevelt to lean forward in his box and say in a perfectly audible tone, "That's all right!" At the end of the second act it was the President who led the applause. But the play is rather severe on the divorce question in America and extremely critical of American family life. When the glamour of the footlights had lost its influence over him, Mr. Roosevelt suddenly realised that the American family was being made an object of attack. Mr. Roosevelt sent for Mr. Zangwill, and the author, playwright, and leader in the Zionist movement took luncheon at the White House. He came back, says the New York Times, crestfallen and abashed, and he has promised to change the lines objected to if the President insists. The lines refer to that uncertain quantity in New York City known as the "Four Hundred." "I'm sorry he doesn't like the strictures on domestic affairs in this country," said Mr. Zangwill to the interviewer, nervously smoothing his waistcoat. "In my lowly opinion, the play as it now stands will arouse sentiment in America against the institution of divorce."

Barrington's Breeches.

Mr. Rutland Barrington, in his autobiography, which has just been published by Grant Richards, tells a story of "an awkward moment" which occurred in Patience. "When I took my seat," he says, "on a rustic tree trunk preparatory to singing 'The Magnet and the Churn,' I heard an ominous kind of 'r-r-r-i-p-p-p-!' and immediately felt conscious of a horrible draught on my right leg. I knew, of course, what had happened; my beautiful velvet knee-breeches had gone crack. It was an awful moment, as I could not possibly ascertain the extent of the damage, and had a song to sing and a scene to play before I could leave the stage. Had they but been made of red velvet, it would not have mattered so much, for I felt I was blushing all over, and it might have escaped notice, though some of the æsthetic maidens were already choking with laughter. What I did was to shuffle all through the scene, and shuffle off sideways as best I could."

A Dear Seat.

"Gilbert's marvellous readiness," says Mr. Barrington, "undoubtedly did much to add to the effect of his witty sayings, and in all the years I have known him I do not recollect seeing him at a loss. On one occasion, when rehearsing Pinafore, he said, 'Cross left on that speech, I think, Barrington, and sit on the skylight over the saloon pensively.' I did so, but the stage carpenter had only sewn the thing together with packthread, and when I sat on it it collapsed entirely, whereupon he said like lightning, 'That's expensively.'"

"W. S. G." Stopped.

Sir W. S. Gilbert was stopped on the Great North Road the other day by two constables in uniform, who took the number and details of the car and then asked the driver for his licence. The licence was duly produced, and long and apparently elaborate notes were derived from it. Sir William asked the constables why they had stopped him, but to this question they made no reply. He asked them when he should be allowed to proceed, and was told "Presently." At last, after a lengthy whispered conversation between them, Sir William was informed that his car had been timed over a certain length of road, and that if it should prove that he had exceeded the statutory speed limit of twenty miles per hour he would receive a summons in due course. There was no suggestion that he had done anything of the kind, and the delay involved was about five minutes. As a magistrate of long standing who has been accustomed to deal with motor cases during the past six or seven years, Sir William is justly indignant, and he says he will not allow the matter to remain where it is. He never exceeds the speed limit; or, at any rate, "hardly ever."

"IOLANTHE;
or, THE PEER AND THE PERI."

Fairy Opera, in Two Acts, by W. S. Gilbert and Arthur Sullivan, revived at the Savoy Theatre on Monday, Oct. 19.

The Lord Chancellor ....Mr. C. H. Workman
Earl of Mountararat..Mr. Rutland Barrington
Earl Tolloller .....Mr. Henry Herbert
Private Willis .....Mr. Leo Sheffield
Strephon .....Mr. Henry A. Lytton
Queen of the Fairies .....Miss Louie René
Iolanthe .....Miss Jessie Rose
Celia .....Miss Dorothy Court
Leila .....Miss Beatrice Boarer
Fleta .....Miss Ethel Lewis
Phyllis .....Miss Clara Dow

Iolanthe is the most fanciful, the most poetical, and, many think, the most delightful opera of the Gilbert and Sullivan series, and all will be grateful to Mrs. D'Oyly Carte for giving the patrons of her theatre another opportunity of witnessing it. This is not the first revival of the opera, which was put on at the Savoy in June last year; but it is distinguished by the fact that Mr. Rutland Barrington was seen on Monday in his original part of Lord Mountararat, which was sustained last year by Mr. Frank Wilson. In the June revival, Mr. C. H. Workman was, at at present, the Lord Chancellor, Miss Louie René the Queen of the Fairies, Miss Jessie Rose the Iolanthe, and Miss Clara Dow the Phyllis. We can only repeat our praise of these excellent performances. Indeed, in the case of such good work, criticism must perforce be microscopic. Mr. Workman may be advised to continue throughout his delivery of the Dream song the distinctness which he employs in the earlier part of it. At present, he seems inclined to sacrifice too much to mere speed. The great charm of Mr. Workman's performance, as a whole, is its naturalness and geniality. He realises to the full the "old equity draughtsman," who is in love with Phyllis, whom Miss Dow represents with all the necessary Dresden china finish and arch and delicate refinement. Miss Jessie Rose is a most "convincing" Iolanthe, and her song of pleading in the last act is sung with intensely dramatic sincerity and pathos. This sincerity, which is an essential in the right rendering of Gilbertian irony, is also pleasingly manifest in Miss René's rendering of the Captain Shaw song. Previous representatives of the part have been too apt to go across the footlights in open appeal to someone in the audience, just as, not long ago, the effect of a music-hall song was made by the artist addressing herself to an actual "Charlie," who was placed for the purpose in a private box. Miss René's treatment of the lyric is absolutely earnest and serious, and the humour of the verses is thus greatly increased. Mr. Rutland Barrington has, if memory serves us faithfully, slightly modified his make-up as Mountararat, and now represents the peer with a chestnut wig parted in the middle, and a rather rubicund visage. It is a ripe and firm performance that could hardly be improved upon. Mr. Leo Sheffield is a very acceptable Private Willis; and again we have a rendering that reduces us to notice of minutiæ. Mr. Sheffield speaks the phrase, "I am generally admired," with the accent on the "admired," and with much facial play. The phrase, one thinks, should be spoken in the usual way, the hack phrase being only the spoilt guardsman's tolerant acknowledgment of universal adoration. Mr. Henry Herbert is, vocally and dramatically, very commendable as the Earl of Tolloller; and Miss Dorothy Court is a sprightly Celia, Miss Beatrice Boarer and Miss Ethel Lewis being agreeable representatives of the other leading fairies. Mr. Henry A. Lytton repeats his fine rendering of the rôle of Strephon. His reposeful expressiveness is exactly in the right key, and he makes every line tell, singing the music, of course, irreproachably. The scenery and dresses are as artistic and complete as possible; and the wonderful accuracy and activity of the stage-management, and the precision of attack and general excellence of the orchestra may be ascribed to the joint efforts of those experienced Savoyards, Mr. François Cellier and Mr. Albert James. The second revival was very enthusiastically received, encores and applause being frequent.

ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

Minutes of the meeting of the Council of the Actors' Association, held at 353, Strand, on Tuesday. Present: Mr. Robson Paige (chairman), Mr. Cecil Raleigh (deputy-chairman), Mr. H. W. Mote (hon. solicitor), Messrs. Franklyn Walford, C. Hayden Coffin, F. Morland, and J. Sebastian Smith, Miss Marion Lind, and Mr. Hubert Blount (secretary). The minutes of the meeting held on Oct. 12 were read and confirmed.

The secretary read a letter from Mr. F. Topham thanking the Council for their letter to him of the 14th inst., and asking that his name be removed from the list of members. Instructions were given to this effect. The secretary also read a letter from Mr. Arthur Carlton complaining of the insanitary condition of a provincial public hall, and was instructed to write to Mr. Carlton and ask for particulars.

The hon. solicitors reported, with regard to the case of F. H. de Quincey v. Seaman, that they had written to Mr. Seaman on behalf of Mr. F. de Quincey for £3, balance of salary, but have received no reply. The secretary was instructed to write to Mr. de Quincey asking him to attend the next Council meeting. The hon. solicitors reported that, in the case of Morland v. Nugent Monck, in which judgment had been obtained for the plaintiff, the execution had been issued. The bailiff had sent in his report to the effect that the goods at Mr. Monck's flat upon which execution had been levied had been claimed by Mrs. Monck, of Closworth Rectory, Sherborne, Dorset. They had written to Mr. Davenport, enclosing copy of a letter written to him, but he appeared not to have received it.

Frederick James, proposed by Chris Walker and seconded by Fred Grove, and Dulcie M. O'Neill Conry, proposed by James C. Taylor and seconded by Chris Walker, were elected members.

On the proposal of Mr. Morland, seconded by Mr. Coffin, the secretary was instructed to write to the secretary of the Variety Artists' Federation to the effect that the Council passed an unanimous vote of sympathy and admiration in their struggle against the agents.

Mr. Morland asked as to the rescinding of the "Socials" report, and the secretary was instructed to put the matter on next week's agenda.

Mr. Robson Paige reported upon the financial estimate, and was requested to send to absent members of the Council. A resolution was carried, "That, in view of the possibility of a small deficit at the end of the year, all members of the Council be invited to pay their subscriptions in advance, as the amounts resulting would be more than sufficient to meet the possible deficit.

The secretary reported the following engagements made since the last meeting of the Council:—Philip Williams with H. St. G. Rawlins, Miss May with H. St. G. Rawlins, Miss Wynne with H. St. G. Rawlins, Frank G. Bayly with Langford Reede, H. Louis Wilson with Langford Reede, Frank Melrose with Bert Lawrence, Gilbert Esmond with Hr B. Irving, Edwin Coates with Camilla Dalberg, Joan Pereira with Miss Beaumont Collins, and Eva Chaplin with Arthur Playfair.

In our notice of the performance of Claudian by Mr. William Maclaren's company at the New Century Theatre, Motherwell, last week, we alluded to Miss Ruth Trafford as doubling two parts. She only sustained that of Edessa.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

On Monday, Oct. 19, for the first time in London, the Musical Play, in three acts, by L. Norden, with music by E. T. De Banzie and Michael Dwyer, entitled

"THE BELLE OF THE BALL."

Sir Francis Lake .....Mr. Robert Hyett
Bobbie Fletcher ..Mr. Johnnie Schofield, jun.
Gussie Maitland ....Mr. Llewellyn C. Hughes
Farmer Jones .....Mr. Charles Adeson
James Forster .....Mr. E. W. Chard
William .....Mr. Jack Hale
Timothy Timkins .....Mr. Johnnie Schofield
Showman Jack .....Mr. E. H. Bertram
Footman .....Mr. E. Osborne
Queenie Trevor .....Miss Florence Watson
Lucy .....Miss Vera Grafton
Alice .....Miss Ethel Bertram
Mary .....Miss Corona L'Estrange
Marie .....Miss Sydney Penrhyn
Irene .....Miss Gwenneth Penrhyn
Red Riding Hood .....Miss Rosie Wade
San Toi .....Miss May Hawthorne
Poppy .....Miss Gertrude Melville

The story of a modern Cinderella, which is told in the new musical comedy, The Belle of the Ball, bears only the faintest resemblance to the popular nursery tale. The Fairy Godmother, for example, is taken by a comedian, and when it is said that the part is enacted by that popular droll, Mr. Johnnie Schofield, it will be assumed that the piece proceeds upon lines of laughter. Melody, nevertheless, plays an important part in The Belle of the Ball, which, it may be stated, was first produced at the Opera House, Southport, on July 27. The plot is of the minutest character, and the opportunity thus given for the introduction of songs and dances is fully taken. The evil genius of the piece makes his appearance at the very beginning in the person of James Forster, the steward of Sir Francis Lake, the village squire. Forster has betrayed his master's trust, and in order to escape punishment for his defalcations, on the young squire's return to his ancestral home connives with his sister Lucy to wed her to his master. Sir Francis, however, arrives just in the midst of the village festivities, and falls in love with Poppy, the farmer's daughter, who has taken part in a dancing competition. Efforts are made by Forster to throw the charge of theft upon Poppy, but are happily frustrated by the showman of the travelling circus which has pitched its tent in the village. Meanwhile, Timothy Timmins, a member of the Squire's hunting-party, has been very busy, principally in the manufacture of mirth, but is taken partly into the confidence of Forster, who arranges with him to carry off Poppy in order that she may not appear at the ball which the Squire is about to give. Timothy gains the confidence of Poppy; but, instead of carrying out the villain's wishes, he provides her with a handsome dress and equipage, and escorts her to the ball, the scene showing Poppy, now resplendent in white silk, entering the carriage, on the road to the Manor House, being very effective.

The ball is in progress in the third act, when Timothy, made up as a portly dame, brings Poppy to the scene of the festivities. She and the young Squire meet, but Forster takes advantage of Poppy's brief absence to present his sister, dressed and masked exactly like Poppy, with the result that the latter hears the Squire propose to her rival. All is speedily cleared up, however, and everything ends in the best possible way.

The connecting-links in the story are made by songs and dances and many merry scenes, throughout which Mr. Johnnie Schofield as Timothy Timkins moves light-heartedly. His contrivances for making mirth are unlimited, and the house is kept in constant laughter. His song "I'm so happy" exercises a droll effect, and is followed by a dance full of eccentricity and activity. Mr. Schofield has also a funny concoction in "What's the use?" which proves equally diverting. He is humorously prominent, too, in the kitchen scene, wherein he enacts with Poppy a travesty of the Godmother scène in Cinderella. Mr. Schofield, who appears first in huntsman's dress, has many changes of costume, at each of which the merriment is added to. Miss Gertrude Melville is the heroine of the play, and makes a comely and ingenuous Poppy. She is bright and buoyant throughout, and her singing is also agreeable. Her strong and tuneful voice is heard to the best advantage in the song, "I'm looking for a sweetheart," which is immediately followed by an air lamenting her loneliness, with a prettily-concerted chorus. She has also the song of "Pretty little heather bell," the graceful dance with which it is supplemented winning an encore. A handsome and stalwart partner is provided in the Squire of Mr. Robert Hyett, who introduces himself in a brisk hunting song with a lively chorus. He is also responsible for a lyric with the refrain, "Will you marry me?" which is quaintly carried out, and wins well-deserved cheers. The duet, "Cupid's a Tyrant," sung with Poppy, is prettily concerted and tastefully rendered. Two happily-conceived characters are found in Queenie Trevor and Bobbie Fletcher, who indulge in flirtations and lovers' quarrels. A captivating portrayal of Queenie is given by Miss Florence Watson, who acts, sings, and dances in refined style. She has a particularly sweet voice, which is heard with infinite pleasure in "A true blue British Girl," and in the coon song "Kiss me, honey." She takes an effective part, too, in the duet with Bobbie, "Well, well, you never can tell." The latter personage is portrayed by Mr. Johnnie Schofield, jun., who does credit to his talented father. He is an excellent light comedian, and gives a good account of the foppish Bobbie. His song "Over in monkeyland," which is accompanied by a dance, is well received. Mr. Charles Adeson makes a hale and hearty farmer, and his dialect song, in which he mimics, among many others, the Cockney, the Chinaman, and the canny Scot, receives innumerable encores. A dramatic villain is submitted by Mr. E. W. Chard; and Miss Vera Grafton acts with the requisite intensity as his associate in evil-doing. Few chances are given to the modern representatives of the Ugly Sisters, Mary and Alice; but Miss C. L'Estrange cuts a grotesque figure as the former. Mr. E. H. Bertram is to be commended on his impersonation of Showman Jack; and the rest of the parts are suitably represented. The piece, which is presented by Miss Violet Osmund, under the direction of Mr. Alexander Loftus, is equipped with elaborate scenery and sumptuous dresses, and has a full chorus, controlled by Mr. Joseph D. Rogers, and the four miniature ponies which draw the carriage in Act II. are greatly admired.

Under the auspices of the Shakespearean Reading Society Mr. Patrick Kirwan will give the first of a series of lectures on the Elizabethan drama at Strathallan House, Bolton-gardens, S.W., on the afternoon of the 26th inst. Mr. J. T. Grein will take the chair.

Mr. H. Cecil Beryl, formerly lessee of the Theatre Royal, Brighton, was made the recipient on the 15th inst. of a valuable presentation. It took the form of a purse of gold and an illuminated address, setting forth the feelings of high regard and respect entertained for him during his lesseeship of the Royal, which extended over a period of ten or eleven years. Alderman Colbourne, J.P., made the presentation at a little informal gathering at the Old Ship Hotel, and spoke of Mr. Beryl's urbanity and courtesy of manner to all with whom he had had business relations. Mr. Beryl, in his reply, expressed his appreciation of the kindness of those present, and of others unable to be there, and his regret at the severance of his association with a theatre to which he had become so much attached.

"THE BEGGAR GIRL'S WEDDING."

Drama, in Four Acts, by Walter Melville, produced for the first time at the Elephant and Castle Theatre on Monday, Oct. 19.

Jack Cunningham .....Mr. Otto Minster
Doctor Millbank .....Mr. James C. Taylor
Dicky Storm .....Mr. Willie Garvey
Norman Marsh .....Mr. Ernest G. Batley
P.C. Phillips .....Mr. George Vernon
Rev. Mr. Melsom ....Mr. David Cartwright
Thompson .....Mr. C. Brown
Davis .....Mr. B. Elton
Lizzie .....Miss Anita Playfair
Tina Torkington .....Miss Eva Dare
Maud Villiers .....Miss Olive Warne
Gilbert Lindsay .....Mr. Herbert Morgan
Joe Webster .....Mr. Harry Playfair
The Dodger .....Mr. Horace Kenny
Robert Grimshaw .....Mr. Ellis J. Preston
Old Cloe .....Mrs. Wilson
Jim Rothschild .....Mr. George Bates
Corky .....Mr. J. Clark
Elsie Cunningham .....Miss Doris Whyte
Bessie Webster .....Miss Vashti Wynne

The experiment of putting on a Melville production for a run at the Elephant and Castle seems likely to be well justified, for the theatre was crowded on the occasion of the production of Mr. Walter Melville's latest effort, and "house full" boards had to be exhibited on the night of our visit. The Beggar Girl's Wedding possesses all the characteristics of Melvillian melodrama, and the audience went frantic over the sensational incidents and grew delirious over its humour. Interest is stimulated by scenes of excitement, and the drama is constructed with great ingenuity, one scene in particular, that in which a lesser scoundrel bargains with a greater for the possession of incriminating articles, furnishing an episode of real dramatic worth. Events move rapidly in the drama, and the wedding to which the title has reference is arranged and celebrated in a single day. The bridegroom is the erratic Jack Cunningham, who, in charity, has brought to his home a girl named Bessie Webster, whom he had found starving on the Thames Embankment. Incredibly forgetful, Jack is reminded by his solicitor, Grimshaw, that by the terms of his late father's will he is only to inherit the estate on condition that he marries on or before his twenty-fifth birthday. That event has arrived, without Jack having even thought of a wife. Solicitous for his client's welfare, the lawyer has not only provided a special licence for the ceremony, but has furnished a bride in Maud Villiers, a society lady, who had just previously asked Jack to marry her. The young man, however, anxious to retain his fortune, arranges with the beggar-girl to figure as his bride, and the marriage is already accomplished when Maud and her accomplice, Gilbert Lindsay, rush into the church in a wild desire to stop the ceremony.

Happiness is not long allowed to hover over the household of Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham, for a year later Bessie's reputed father, a notorious burglar and convict, of whose existence Jack is unaware, comes to levy blackmail. The interview between father and daughter is overheard by Lindsay, who turns it to evil purpose, declaring that Bessie is a notorious "gaol-bird," and had lived a life of shame. In the result Jack bids her begone, and administers a sound thrashing to Lindsay. Having deposited some deeds he has stolen with the lawyer as security for a debt, Lindsay goes to the office to procure them. Grimshaw refuses to part with the documents, and Lindsay makes matters easy by strangling the lawyer from behind the curtains. Jack Cunningham coming to interview Grimshaw about his affairs is stunned, and fastened up in the iron safe. All would be secure for the villain, but for the fact that Jessie's father and his pupil, the Dodger, have selected that night for the purposes of burgling the house. They blow open the safe-door, and are put to flight by the apparition of Jack's senseless body, not, however, before the Dodger has secured a handkerchief dropped by Lindsay and a handbag left behind by Maud.

Having established his innocence with regard to the lawyer's death, which remains a profound mystery, Jack has entirely disappeared in the third act, leaving no trace behind. His wife has found refuge with the hospitable Mr. and Mrs. Dicky Storm, who are led erroneously to believe they have come into some money and set up housekeeping on a lavish scale. A cosy tea-party is interrupted by the arrival of Bessie's father, who is soon ousted by the redoubtable Dicky; but, in his absence, Bessie is chloroformed by Lindsay, with the help of Maud Villiers, and committed to the care of a demented doctor, who places her in an iron cage, side by side with a similar one in which Jack Cunningham is found to be incarcerated. Dicky Storm, however, is hot upon the track of Bessie, and arrives with his friend Norman Marsh just in time to release the prisoners, putting Lindsay and the doctor in their places. The villain is not yet disposed of, for he escapes, and in the last act, after shooting Joe Webster, is himself brought to book by the Dodger, who produces the necessary evidence to convict both him and his fair accomplice of murder. Reconciliation between Jack and Bessie rings down the curtain.

A wise selection has been made in the constitution of the cast. Mr. Otto Minster wins cheers unlimited for his impersonation of Jack Cunningham. His various scenes are acted with vigour and spirit, and though his delivery is at times rather ponderous, his numerous stirring lines are always effective. The strongly emotional part of Bessie is fittingly portrayed by Miss Vashti Wynne, who makes an affecting picture of the beggar-girl in rags, and furnishes a pleasing contrast by the comeliness of her later appearances. Norman Marsh is taken in an agreeably buoyant spirit by Mr. Ernest G. Batley, and in some graceful love-making passages is assisted by Miss Doris Whyte, who plays the hero's sister Elsie with much delicacy and refinement throughout. Gilbert Lindsay, whose description of "Jack's friend" on the programme is followed by a mark of interrogation, well merits the qualification. He is a thorough-paced villain, and Mr. Herbert Morgan represents him with quiet resourcefulness and well-judged emphasis. The evil fascination of his accomplice Maud Villiers is effectively exercised by Miss Olive Warne, who works her way sinuously through the story, and presents an artistically coloured picture of the wily adventuress. A clever character-study, too, is that of Mr. Harry Playfair as Joe Webster, his depiction of the drink-soddened vagabond being realistic, and he had a capital associate in Mr. Horace Kenny, whose sharp-featured countenance and cunning expression were admirably suited to the Dodger. A striking success in the comedy department was made by Miss Eva Dare and Mr. Willie Garvey, who caused unlimited laughter as Mr. and Mrs. Dicky Storm. Each had an arduous part, Miss Dare causing a mild sensation on her appearance as the "built-up" Mrs. Torkington, arrayed in glowing colours and wearing an immense hat. Mr. Ellis J. Preston is to be commended on his artistic assumption of the solicitor, and a weird and forcible rendition of the demoniacal doctor was given by Mr. James C. Taylor, who succeeded in effecting a ghastly make-up; and Miss Anita Playfair caused laughter by a stupid grin as a "slavey." The piece was realistically mounted, effect being obtained by the startling pattern of the wallpaper in the Storms' sitting-room, and the production enjoyed a reception equal to any of the Melville pieces.

Mrs. T. P. O'Connor and Mr. R. Henderson Bland have between them produced a most interesting dramatic version of Gaboriau's famous work, and one that will doubtless be seen and appreciated in the future by much larger audiences than at Kingston this week. The story is full of interest, and from the rise to the fall of the curtain on the last of twelve scenes into which the play is divided the attention of the audience is riveted. In this prologue we see the proud old French Marquis de Marsay and his two sons, Gaston and Louis, and hear the story of the love of the headstrong Gaston for Henriette de Lambelle, the daughter of the hereditary enemy of the house, an attachment that enrages the Marquis, while affording secret joy to Louis, the younger brother. In a moment of rage against a man who speaks unkindly of his betrothed, Gaston commits a murder, and has to fly the country, but in effecting his escape across the Rhone when in flood he is supposed to be drowned, and Henriette, believing herself without a lover, marries the rich and upright M. Dubois, a banker in Paris. Years afterwards, when Mme. Dubois has a daughter, and is highly respected in society, Louis appears before her with the tale that he has found her love child, a handsome young fellow, languishing in Paris, and he induces her to admit him and himself into her house, under a threat of blackmail, which the so-called son easily becomes a party to. The two of them so work upon the fears of the unfortunate woman, that she not only has to submit to seeing her daughter accept the scheming Louis as a suitor, but to be a party to the robbery of her husband's safe, which brings Henri Bertram, M. Dubois' trusted cashier, and Madeleine's discarded suitor, into disgrace. Thanks, however, to the astute investigations of M. Leroy, the chief of the detective police of Paris, the authors of the robbery are unmasked and their schemes destroyed, whilst Louis escapes the final penalty of his villainies by taking a fatal dose of poison.

The play is produced by a most capable company, got together by Mr. Langhorne Burton and Mr. R. Henderson Bland, under the direction of Mr. Percy Nash, and it had a most favourable reception from an appreciative audience. Chief honours were earned by and accorded to Mr J. Fisher White for a polished and consistent interpretation of the part of the scheming Louis, a piece of acting that quite sustains the high reputation that this talented artist has earned in other rôles. Not less pleasing, and equally successful, was the Gaston of Mr. Hubert Harben, whose portrayal of the part was more particularly effective in the scenes that show him a man twenty years older. Too much cannot be said of the Henriette de Lambelle of Miss Roxy Barton, both as the young and impulsive girl just betrothed and as the wife of a highly-respected banker of the city of Paris. The numerous painful scenes between her and the scoundrels who embitter her life are most effectively portrayed, and the success of the production is in no small measure due to her efforts. Mr. Jack Haddon makes a fine, manly Dubois; the part of his daughter Madeleine is most effectively and charmingly rendered by Miss Elizabeth Wieland; whilst good work is also done by Mr. R. Henderson Bland as the unfortunate cashier, Henri Bertram. Effective relief in the heavy part of the drama is afforded by the low-comedy acting of Mr. John A. Howitt as the assistant detective Fanfariot and by Miss Kitty Carteret as his frivolous helpmeet, Julie Cliquet; a word of praise is also due to Mr. Rudge Harding for a particularly effective picture of the French Chief of Police, M. Leroy. The drama was admirably mounted, and went with a fine swing from the beginning to the end. Mr. Alf. J. May is acting as stage-manager for the company, and Mr. W. Bannister as assistant stage-manager.

ACTORS' UNION.

The usual weekly meeting of the committee of the Actors' Union took place at the offices at 49, Bedford-street, Strand, on the 15th inst., and the following members were present:—Messrs. W. Ruddle Brown (in the chair), F. Rawson Buckley, Frank S. Strickland, Henry Bedford, Gerald Mirrielees, and Kenneth Blackmore (secretary). Letters were received from Messrs. Jerrold Heather, James English, Fred F. Loyd, Cecil G. Calvert, J. Hastings Batson, Edward Chester, Oswald Marshall, and Royce Milton.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

The secretary was instructed to write to an agency and request them to send in the book of stamps issued to them.

Owing to the continued difficulty of forming a quorum, Mr. Buckley proposed and Mr. Strickland seconded that the committee be increased to forty members, and that preference be given to members permanently in London in order that they might attend.

The secretary was instructed to inform members that some confusion had been caused by the purchasing of stamps by one member for another without giving the name of the member for whom the stamps were purchased. In future the committee would esteem it a favour if members who purchase stamps for others would enter their name and numbers on the stamp sheets at the agent where they were obtained.

One new member was elected.

"A Country Girl in London," Mr. Alfred Northway and Mr. W. V. Garrod's new production, drew such big business at Grimsby last week that Mr. J. H. Curry immediately rebooked it for a holiday date. He also paid a nice compliment to the author, Mr. Frank Price, and the management by booking their next production, of which even the title has not yet been decided upon.

Mr. Fredk. Melville's Ugliest Woman on Earth company have revived an old institution on their present tour, viz., their hockey club, which takes the field under the name of "The Uglies." The last match played was on Thursday, Oct. 8, v. Barrow Hibernians, on Walney Island. In the result, "Uglies" scored 1 goal to the Hibernians' nil. The "Uglies" team consisted of H. Leyton (goal), Leyton Cancellor, C. de Lee (backs), W. D. Brigord, G. Morgan, and G. Nolan (half-backs), and P. Darien (captain), B. Thackeray, F. Bentley, J. Edwards, and N. Clarke (forwards).

A MEDICAL PLAY.

(FROM OUR NEW YORK CORRESPONDENT.)

Miss Nance O'Neil, after an absence of three years, made her reappearance on the American stage at the Majestic Theatre, New York, on the 5th inst., and scored a distinct success in the title-rôle of a play called Agnes. Agnes was written by "George Cameron," which is the pen-name assumed by Mrs. Gladys Rankin Drew, wife of Mr. Sydney Drew, and the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. McKee Rankin.

Geoffrey Marshe's yacht Rhoda is the scene of the first act. Marshe, an Australian millionaire, has just married Agnes Belgradin. It is by no means a love match, Mrs. Belgradin having arranged the marriage from motives of self-interest. The yacht is off the coast of France, when it collides with a passing steamer, and there is a scramble to escape. Marshe, who has bitterly reproached his bride for her lack of affection for him, is stunned by a falling object, and although the wife and one of the officers make heroic efforts to save him, they are compelled to leave him to his fate. Agnes refuses to accept the fortune left by the husband she did not love, and takes up her abode in modest apartments in London that were formerly occupied by her mother, who went down with the yacht. Whilst she is examining the contents of a trunk, she comes across a number of letters from her former lover, Dr. Loring Brent, these having been intercepted by her mother in order that Agnes might be made to believe that her sweetheart had grown tired of her. The letters prove that he remained true, and when he appears in person a reconciliation is effected. Dr. Brent and Agnes are united in marriage, and the two following acts take place in the doctor's office in New York. When they have been married about five years, Dr. Brent tells his wife of a new patient, a Monsieur de la Mer, who has lost his memory through a shock, and seeks to have it restored to him by an operation. When the latter appears Agnes recognises him as her first husband, Geoffrey Marshe, who was supposed to have been drowned. Marshe fails to recognise her, and she tries to persuade him not to undergo the operation, but only succeeds in making him the more anxious to recover his memory, and the act ends with Agnes in despair crying, "What am I going to do?"

The physician, all unconscious of the fact that his own happiness is threatened by the success of the operation, begins his task, and Agnes, waiting in an adjoining room, hears the patient calling for her. This makes her frantic, and she beats on the door, imploring her husband to desist. When he appears she starts to speak, but he stops her. He has failed. The patient has died without revealing his identity. Agnes gives a gasp of thankfulness, and falls into her husband's arms.

The play has been favourably received by the Press and the public. Miss O'Neil's supporting company includes Messrs. Robert Drouet, Cuyler Hastings, Percy T. Ames, Herbert Fortier, and Mrs. Adeline Stanhope-Wheatcroft.

THE BROADWAY, NEW CROSS.

On Monday, Oct. 19, the Comedy, in Four Acts, by Cicely Hamilton, entitled "DIANA OF DOBSON'S."

This clever comedy, which was such a great success at the Kingsway Theatre, is proving no less so at other theatres, and is drawing large and well-pleased audiences here this week. The company is an excellent one, and the general interpretation very good indeed. Miss Molly Trémain gives a charming representation of Miss Smithers; Miss Kitty Brant has an excellent representative in Miss Nannie Hume; Miss Dorothy Green is a delightful Diana Massingberd, and her efforts were warmly appreciated; Miss Eva Leonard Boyne played with ease and refinement as Miss Morton; Miss Helen Vicary was a clever Miss Pringle; Miss Mary Stuart was an excellent Mrs. Cantelupe; Miss Georgette de Serville was a capital Mrs. Whyte-Frazer; and Miss Nannie Hume was a competent representative of an "old woman." The Waiter was well played by Mr. Thomas Pauncefort; Mr. Alfred Harris was a capital Sir Jabez Grindley; Mr. H. Grendon Bentley gave a clever and effective rendering of the part of Captain the Honourable Victor Bretherton; and Mr. Albert Wainwright was very good as Police-constable Fellowes. The comedy is preceded each evening by The Bishop's Candlesticks. The trifle, which is founded on Victor Hugo's "Les Misérables," is excellently performed by Miss Helen Vicary, Miss Georgette de Serville, Mr. Alfred Harris, Mr. Albert Wainwright, and Mr. Thomas Pauncefort. Mr. Clark Richardson ably directs the orchestra; and Mr. Norman McKinnell is responsible for the production of both plays.

THE PAVILION.

On Monday, Oct. 19, the Drama, entitled "THE MIDNIGHT MAIL."

The management of the Pavilion Theatre are fortunate in securing for this week Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Willard's company, in Arthur Shirley's great domestic drama The Midnight Mail, which is highly appreciated by large audiences. Mr. George Harvard gives a very good impersonation of Harry Steyne, the engine-driver; while Mr. Grant Lytton, as Billy Brewer, the drunken stoker, thrills the whole house with his realistic acting. Mr. Chas. H. Longden as Leonard Royle, the manager of the line, plays the part to perfection. Some very clever acting is displayed by Mr. C. P. Wentworth as Hassan Padisha, a Turkish adventurer; and Jasper Thornleigh, a signalman, is carefully portrayed by Mr. T. C. Glenville. Mary Steyne, the engine-driver's wife, is in the clever hands of Miss Trissie Humphries. The humour of the play is supplied by Miss Daisy Clifford, who creates much laughter; and Miss Jeannie Weston does justice to the part of Lady Phyllis Eustace. The remaining characters are capably performed by Mr. G. Wilkinson, Mr. I. Mann, Mr. Warburton, and Miss Ethel North. Mr. T. C. Glenville is a capable and genial acting-manager for the company, Mr. C. P. Wentworth is responsible for the stage-management, and everything is carried out exceedingly well.

As the windy weather approaches professionals will do well to look to their umbrellas, and if they have not obtained Cross's Patent Unbreakable Umbrella they should do so at once; it is impossible to get them blown inside out. Mr. H. Cross is the inventor of this umbrella, and was at one time connected with patent theatre roll tickets. His address is 62, Lowther-street, Whitehaven.

The company of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levy and J. R. Cardwell is at the Empire Theatre, Swindon, this week with the musical comedy burlesque A Merry Maid. Larry O'Hooligan is in the able hands of Mr. Vivian Wakeman; and Mr. Neil Hardy is amusing as the Hon. Cecil Toft. Mr. Howard Lawrence is seen to advantage in the part of Thady Clancey, Peggy's sweetheart; and Mr. H. Leander is good as Von Swank. Mr. W. S. Hutchinson makes up well as Biddy; Miss Fanny Adamson is effective as Angela; a great reception is accorded Wee George Wood, who takes the part of Bertie Vere de Vere; Mr. C. E. James does well as Sharp Scrivener, the lawyer; Miss Ray Watson does herself justice as Flossie Kixie; and Miss May Gibson makes a charming Peggy. The minor parts are in capable hands, and the chorus good.

MANAGER AND AGENT.

At the Worthing County Court, on Monday, an action was brought by Mr. McDonald, theatrical agent, London, against Mr. Adolf Seebold, lessee of the Theatre Royal, Worthing, to recover the sum of £6 8s., balance due on an agreement. Mr. Webb, solicitor, Brighton, appeared for plaintiff, and Mr. Buckland Dixon for defendant. The amount in dispute was paid, but defendant counter-claimed for £9 9s., for loss sustained by alleged breach of agreement.

In 1906, it was alleged, Mr. Seebold booked through Mr. McDonald The Dairymaids, which the latter represented as the "A" company, that only visited first-class theatres, and consisted entirely of artists of the highest merit. After some negotiations it was settled the company should come to Worthing on certain terms. Those terms were 67½ per cent. of gross returns to the visiting company, such terms being largely in excess of those paid to ordinary companies, and only paid to companies that went to the Theatre Royal, Brighton—not to companies that only went to smaller towns as fit-up companies. The company came to Worthing in September, 1907, and did excellent business, the returns being very good indeed. In the spring of the present year Mr. Seebold went to London, and saw Mr. McDonald's representative, who asked him if he would like to have a return visit of The Dairymaids. Mr. Seebold replied that he would be pleased to do so, and would give a better date—a date in August—which was the best month in the year for that class of entertainment. The company came in August, and directly it arrived Mr. Seebold realised it was not so good a company as he had before. On the third night when settling up accounts Mr. Seebold deducted from the company's share £6 8s., more by way of protest than as any compensation for the loss sustained in having such an inferior show. He considered it was not right under the circumstances that he should be palmed off with a company that would not bear comparison with that of the previous year.

Mr. Seebold, in the witness-box, bore out his counsel's statements, and produced certain correspondence relating thereto. When the question of terms was mentioned he wrote that he only gave high percentages to companies like Ellen Terry's, The Prince of Pilsen, &c., and he received a reply that the company would be quite equal to any of these. The terms eventually agreed on were 67½ per cent. On the occasion of the first visit of The Dairymaids he took £150 15s. 9d. in four performances, on Sept. 2, 3, and 4. When he entered into the contract for the return visit this year the same terms were agreed upon, and he fully expected the company and scenery and everything else would be fully equal to that of the first visit.

At the close of Mr. Seebold's examination Mr. Webb asked for the production of the contract, which, however, could not be produced. It was stated to be in the hands of Mr. Seebold's London solicitor.

His Honor Judge Scully said he could not decide the case in the absence of the contract.

Mr. Dixon asked for an adjournment.

Mr. Webb objected, and pointed out the expense of bringing a lot of witnesses a long distance.

Eventually the Judge entered a non suit against Mr. Seebold.

"The Nihilist," which is on a return visit to the Theatre Royal, Smethwick, is being well presented by Messrs. O. Silverstone and H. Wright's company. Mr. Joe Milliane is specially engaged in his dramatic portrayal of the hero Ivan; Mr. Cowell Clarke as Karl Orloff is a thorough soldier; Mr. Leo R. Neilson is good as Prince Alexander; Mr. Henry Wright's humour as Bobbie Stuart is highly appreciated; Mr. O. Silverstone exercises a big influence as Petoff; Messrs. J. B. Harvey as Father Gourko and Morgan Dale as Sergeant Markoff do well; Miss Jessica Ford achieves success as Katrina Zendoff; Miss Edna Clare gains the sympathy of the house as Alexina; Miss Florrie Kelsey fully realises the rôle of the Princess; and little May Ediss gives a capital rendition of Little Alexina.

DEATH OF MISS ROSIE LEWIS.

We regret to announce the death, on Monday last, of Rosetta (Rosie Lewis), the beloved wife of T. P. Haynes. Miss Lewis dated her first appearance on the stage from her ninth year, but her real début was made at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, London, during the early run of Alice in Wonderland, where she played the parts of the Tiger Lily and the Duchess. Then followed four tours with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pateman, as Letty Lightfoot, in Master and Man. She was next engaged for the original tour of Theodora, and was Pattie Woodruff in the Drury-lane drama The Royal Oak, on tour. At the Princess's Theatre she appeared in several light comedy parts, and on The Great Metropolis being transferred from there to the Grand Theatre, she took up Miss Ellaline Terriss's part of Nellie Carr, which she also played on tour. Another long and highly successful engagement was in G. R. Sims' and Cecil Raleigh's farcical comedy Fanny, playing Flo Barnes (alias Fanny). In C. J. Abud's tour of Hue and Cry she appeared as Bessie Timmings, and sustained the rôle of Jane in the original production of Tommy Dodd. Among the many parts Miss Lewis played special mention may be made of Polly, in The Harbour Lights; Julie, in Secrets of a Life; and, with Mr. Arthur Williams, Belinda, in Our Boys; Maria, in Confusion; Mrs. Delacour, in War to the Knife; Moya, in The Shaughraun, &c. Miss Lewis also appeared at many of the principal London and provincial music halls in musical sketches, also as principal girl in pantomimes at Theatre Royal, Portsmouth; Grand, Glasgow; Theatre Royal, Hull; Alexandra Theatre, Sheffield; Standard Theatre, London; and special boy at the Grand Theatre, Birmingham. Miss Lewis sustained the part of Polly Appleyard, in The Mariners of England, nearly 500 nights in London and on tour. Her last engagement was a special one, under the management of Mr. Van Biene.

At the Exchange Hall, Wellingborough, The Dairymaids, smartly played by Mr. Robert Macdonald's company, had a first-rate reception on Tuesday and Wednesday. Mr. Edwin Dodds as Joe Mivens gave an excellent performance; Mr. Sam Lysons was a capital Sam; and Mr. Frank Barclay was successful as Dr. O'Byrne. Miss Isa Bowman worked hard and well as Peggy; and it would have been difficult to improve the Lady Brudenell of Miss Dorothy Belmore. Miss Maud Lucy gave a wonderfully good rendering of Eliza.

For Sympathy.

Mrs. Lester (widow of the late Mr. Harry Lester) wishes to thank all her kind friends for their sympathy, telegrams, and letters of condolence, beautiful floral tributes, &c., which have greatly assisted her to bear her sadness in her sudden loss. Mrs. Lester also wishes to thank especially her friends Mr. Douglas White and Mr. Harry Blake for their many acts of kindness to her during her great grief.

This week Mr. Alex. C. Grant's A Master of Millions company is successful at the Theatre Royal, Wednesbury. An effective rendering of Alexander J. Daunt is given by Mr. Alex. C. Grant; Mr. John L. Schofield is an able Eric Gordon; as Reginald Carrington, alias the Emperor, Mr. Arthur L. Read is worthy of mention; Mr. Frank Lester is a characteristic Jeremiah Muggins; Mr. Will Pimm a mirthful Bill Donovan; an excellent portrayal of Stella St. Lisle goes to the credit of Miss Gipsy Alexander; Miss Daisy Hoy as Alice Brown and Miss Minnie Ward as Jenny Hicks contribute most successfully; and well-merited applause is accorded Miss Dorothy Wilkinson as Lucy.

A. R. Dean and Sons, of Birmingham, are living up to their description of "the world's theatre decorators and furnishers." The contracts booked and in hand for this year number no less than seventy-eight, and include theatres, palaces, Empires, concert halls, hippodromes, town halls, hotels, hospitals, and business houses in all parts of the kingdom, as well as the Continent. Messrs. Dean and Sons undertake any sort of theatre-furnishing—decorations, seating, fibrous plaster work, draperies, and other departments, and during their thirty years' practice their name has been synonymous with the word "excellence."

An excellent programme is provided at the Hippodrome, Stalybridge, foremost of those figuring in the bill being the Babusio Bros. in their great balancing act, followed by George Antell, an eccentric comedian, who succeeds in creating much merriment. The Gregson Trio in their hilariously funny speciality; the Bros. Obo, patter comedians; Charles Tempest, comedian; the Lannons, pedestal dancers; and others add to the attractions.

MR. M. E. BANDMANN'S NEW THEATRE, BOMBAY.

BOMBAY, Oct. 10.—On Saturday last, under the distinguished patronage of H.E. the Governor of Bombay, took place the addition of one more theatre to the rapidly-increasing number of those owned and controlled by Mr. Maurice E. Bandmann in the Far East. Bandmann's Theatre is situated in the very centre of the city, almost opposite to the Municipal Hall and Victoria terminus, and is served by a complete connection of trams from every suburb of Bombay. It is an ideal, cosy, but cool, building, and is admirably suited to the atmospheric conditions of India. It has been built under the personal supervision of Mr. Bandmann's resident-manager, Mr. Fred Mitchell. The seating accommodation is excellent, the seats being built on a slight gradient, which enables anyone in the building to have a perfectly clear and uninterrupted view of the entire stage. Every little comfort has been carefully studied, and ample use has been made of electric pendants and lights. The building seats about 1,000 people, and at ordinary prices holds just £200. The theatre was opened by the new Bandmann Comedy Company. During the week crowded houses have again testified to the wise selection of artists for the company. Mr. Bandmann has made full preparations for Bombay theatre-goers, and amongst the attractions touring under his management which will visit us during the coming season are the Ellis Opera Company, Carter (the world's magician), Tom Liddiard's Bijou Troubadours, the Bandmann Opera Company, the Chrono Megaphone, Mrs. Bandmann-Palmer in Shakespearean répertoire, the English Grand Opera Company, and West's "Our Navy and Army." An opera week will be supplied by the La Scala Grand Opera Company. The new theatre will prove an undoubted acquisition to Bombay, and Mr. Bandmann's enterprise in bringing out such first-rate companies to India will be amply rewarded.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

[We cannot undertake to answer the inquiries of correspondents by post. In all letters names and addresses must be given as a guarantee of good faith. Initials only or pseudonyms will be used in the replies if so desired.]

B. M. DAUNT.—We will answer your question next week.

GORDON LEICESTER.—Messrs. Paxton, the big music agents, have no cognisance of the song, therefore it can be put down as unpublished.

H. T. TAYLOR.—Apply to Mr. Johnson, secretary of the Stage Operatives Society, 25, Wellington-street, Strand, W.C.

F. J. PEERS (Pretoria).—You will find the addresses of several reliable firms of humorous song-writers in our back page.

F. G.—My Pretty Maid, comedy, in four acts, by Basil Hood, was produced at Terry's Theatre on April 5, 1902.

GO AHEAD.—You will require a music licence, and for that purpose you should apply to the local magistrates. Their clerk will give you the necessary forms and information.

WALTER CLIFFORD (Bristol).—(1) In The Era advertisement columns will be found the addresses of publishers who may have a clergyman song in their lists. Write to any of them, enclosing stamped envelope. Mr. Ernest Shand has the sort of song you speak of; but we have seen no announcement of its publication in our columns. Write to him. You will find his address on our back page. (2) The Moss and Stoll head office officials know nothing of a new enterprise at Bristol. The rumour may have arisen through their having started operations at Portsmouth.

T. A. (Cambridge).—The terms of the arrangement that was entered into in 1906 between the music-hall proprietors and directors and the Theatrical Managers' Association were as follow: (a) The time occupied in the performance of any sketch shall not exceed thirty minutes. (b) No sketch shall contain or consist of more than six speaking or singing parts altogether, exclusive of supernumeraries, auxiliaries, and chorus, the number of whom and of the scenes in such sketch shall be subject to no limit. (c) No sketch shall be taken or adapted from any stage play or dramatic entertainment which shall have been licensed by the Lord Chamberlain, except after the expiration of fifteen years after the first public performance of such stage play or entertainment. (d) No more than one such sketch shall be presented in the course of such performance in any music-hall except that, in addition to such sketch, there may be presented at the same performance either (1) one short sketch, of one scene only, occupying fifteen minutes, with not more than four speaking or singing parts, with supernumeraries or auxiliaries; or, in the alternative (2), One operatic or musical sketch of one scene only, occupying not more than ten minutes in performance, but without being subject to the restriction imposed by Clauses (b) and (c). No two sketches performed at the same performance to follow consecutively or be connected either in plot, story, character, or scenery, with each other, or with any ballet, at the same performance. The term "stage play" shall be deemed not to include ballets, which are performed without dialogue or singing (except two choruses not occupying more than ten minutes together in any ballet). These are the whole of the conditions (slightly condensed).

BIRTHDAYS OF THE WEEK.

We wish Many Happy Returns of the Day to the following Ladies and Gentlemen:—

F. Martin Morris—Saturday, Oct. 24.
Professor Wingard—Saturday, Oct. 24.
Alfred Lester—Sunday, Oct. 25.
John Donald—Monday, Oct. 26.
J. D. Beveridge—Wednesday, Oct. 28.
Horace White—Wednesday, Oct. 28.
H. Sherwood Martin—Thursday, Oct. 29.
Frank Lindo—Friday, Oct. 30.
Maude Stewart Drewry—Friday, Oct. 30.

THIS week the drama, London with the Lid Off, holds the boards at the Alexandra, Widnes. Mr. Stanley Carlton plays the Rev. Allan Gordon very ably; Mr. Wm. G. Marshall is powerful and convincing as Gale, the blind burglar; Mr. Marshall Meade is good as Templeton; Mr. Lancelot Usher handles the part of Percy Plunker with ability; Miss Muriel Ross is sound as Mrs. Fordyce; Mr. James Hart is a scoundrelly Collini; Miss Hamilton Belasco as Mrs. Glandale and Miss Charlotte E. Ballinger as Sarah Shafto are excellent; Miss Amy Ellam handles the difficult part of Madge Rendall with distinct ability; Miss Rubie Maude is a sympathetic heroine. The play is exceedingly well staged.

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Oct. 19, the Musical Play, "MY MIMOSA MAID."

The presence of Miss Marie Studholme in Mr. Frank Curzon's company in My Mimosa Maid is undoubtedly a potent attraction, and accounts in no small measure for the large audiences which the piece is drawing this week. But as the piece itself comes to Stratford with such fine credentials and the other members of the cast are so admirable and hardworking, the result is a well-balanced performance which gives general satisfaction. Naturally Miss Studholme is the central figure, and as Paulette she is charming and dainty to a degree, while her singing and dancing evoke unstinted applause. Miss Eva Sandford is a prepossessing and engaging representative of Popitte; Miss May Garstang is altogether admirable as Mme. de Pelaine; and Miss Ruby Gray is a refined and pleasing Marcelle. Mr. Charles McNaughton scores a decided success as Victor Guilbert, and quite revels in the many opportunities which the part offers him; Mr. Charles E. Paton plays with genuine humour, and is exceedingly funny as Max Guilbert; and Mr. Percy Carr acts and sings in buoyant style as M. Gerrard. Mr. John Goldsworthy makes a dashing Captain du Maurier, and is very successful vocally; while Mr. L. Winter plays Lieut. Courmandet very smartly. Master Archie McCraig causes much fun as the diminutive sweep Bock; Mr. Arthur Jackson does well as Grove; Mr. Fred Gilbert plays Henri very appropriately; and Mr. E. Skinner is well placed as Boss. The large and tuneful chorus and augmented orchestra are under the direction of Mr. Leonard Hornsey, who secures an excellent ensemble.

KINEMATOGRAPH COPYRIGHT. The law affecting the same. By William Jago, F.I.O., F.C.S., barrister-at-law. Price 6d. Address, The Publisher, The Era Offices, 5, Tavistock-street, London, W.C.

Rehearsal Burdens Lightened.

When, at Xmas time, we sit at our ease and enjoy the running fun, joy, and brightness of the pantomime before us, we may be pardoned if we forget there is, or was, a black side to the picture—the rehearsal side now in progress.

Only those who have tried it know the enervating weariness of rehearsal, with all its exhausting repetition, alteration, dependence on others, protracted fasting and exposure to draught, and to the alternate entreaties and lashings of the manager.

What wonder then if, before "first night" arrives, many actors and actresses feel quite run down and out of sorts.

Nature has her limits, and, if she must be so abused, the only way is to satisfy her by resort to a special supply of energy and nutriment—such as that afforded by Hall's Wine, the marvellous restorative

The success of Hall's Wine arises from its being the readiest form of good blood food known. It is so quickly assimilated that new warmth, comfort, nerve, and brightness are felt almost directly it is taken; so palatable and free from headiness or depressing reaction as to be grateful at any time to the most delicate taste or temperament; so honestly sustaining that it has been long regarded as the "only mainstay" by some leading actors and singers.

You will find Hall's Wine carry you safely through the most exacting rehearsals, inspire and invigorate you, calm your nerves, fill you with strength and confidence, protect you from chills—in fact, keep you at your best both before and after the "first night." Successive proof in every bottle.

DEAR SIR,

I am pleased to tell you I have used Hall's Wine, the marvellous restorative, for many years, and have found it a perfect nerve-tonic. Whenever I have a cold it is the one thing I fly to, as it gives resonance to my voice. I cannot speak too highly of it.

Thanking you,
Yours faithfully,
JOHN CHILD.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 24, 1908.

THE NATIONAL THEATRE SCHEME.

On the afternoon of May 19 last the Lyceum Theatre, so ably, astutely, and energetically managed by those excellent entrepreneurs Messrs. SMITH and CARPENTER, was crowded with an enthusiastic meeting of over three thousand persons. As our representative stated at the time: "The intellectual and artistic classes were well represented, for on the platform and in the auditorium were men who bore notable names by reason of their distinguished association with literature, law, politics, religion, the stage, and society. And this gathering of three thousand persons expressed itself—with the solitary exception of one of its members—in favour of the establishment of a National Theatre which should remain to all ages not merely an ornamental monument in honour of England's greatest playwright and poet, but should be a house where Thespis in his highest and most practical aspect could be worshipped by the presentation of what is noblest and best in the dramatic literature of our Empire."

The list of the names of those who were present, or had accepted invitations to be present, was a long one; and the report of the speeches made on this auspicious occasion covered over six columns of our paper. Lord LYTTON, who was in the chair, made a brief but telling speech; and the Right Hon. ALFRED LYTTELTON, K.C., M.P., proposed "That this demonstration is in favour of the establishment of a National Theatre as a memorial to SHAKESPEARE." In his speech Mr. LYTTELTON put the case for a National Theatre most admirably. He said: "The human race is exalted in tone and looks by beautiful persons who attune themselves to the glories of fiction. Yet we expose this beautiful and splendid art to the ruinous risks of competition, and extend no hand to it, isolated as it is from all the other arts in this respect. It was my good fortune years ago to nightly attend, when my means permitted, at the Théâtre Français. It was in the great days of GOT, FABVRE, BARTET, SARAH BERNHARDT, and other artists. What lesson did I learn with such ecstatic delight? I felt in the first place that a national theatre like that, aided by the Conservatoire, taught clearness and precision of language. And what is the use of acting SHAKESPEARE unless you can make him intelligible even to those who sit some way off? Secondly, it taught me how agreeable it was to see variety, instead of a succession of long runs. And, thirdly, it taught me to delight in what is called ensemble, the voluntary co-operation and the voluntary subordination of the great and eminent men of the profession with the young who have exhibited talent, and whom they delighted to educate and yet to serve. And lastly, this appealed to me more than anything, because I belong to a profession which has, like the actor's profession, desperate struggles in its beginning, and is always full of speculation—the profession of the Bar. The Comédie Française offers a dignified and leisured retreat for those who have done great service to their art—a dignified leisure not in the least lost to the nation—and enables men in that profession as well as others to minister to it, and give the best of their time and youth to the highest and noblest form of art."

Sir JOHN HARE'S speech in seconding the resolution was a model of what such an oration should be; and Mr. EDMUND GOSSE, in the name of Literature, spoke in support. Mr. A. W. PINERO, with the keen practicality which always distinguishes him, moved the appointment of the "honorary committee of the demonstration as a committee for the drafting of a scheme for a National Theatre"; and Mr. T. P. O'CONNOR'S seductive eloquence was heard in seconding Mr. PINERO'S resolution. Mr. J. COMYNS CARR, who combines the imagination of the poet with the sagacity of the financial speculator, brought the meeting down to the business level by his resolution to the effect that "the committee should organise meetings for the formation of a National Theatre Society and the collection of subscriptions." Mr. W. C. STEADMAN, M.P., proposed that the committee should appoint a deputation "to wait on the Prime Minister and the London County Council with a view to seeking their support for the proposal of a National Theatre"; and that the weight and importance of the proceedings might be complete, Mr. STEADMAN'S motion was seconded by Mr. BERNARD SHAW. The list of names on the committee alluded to was enough to "take one's breath away" with wonder and admiration; and if there be safety in numbers, the establishment of the National Theatre might well have been believed to be absolutely secure.

After an interval of silence which may have caused some supporters of the scheme to grow unreasonably impatient, the first meeting of the newly-elected Shakespeare Memorial Executive Committee was held at the Mansion House on Tuesday last, under the presidency of the Lord Mayor. Among those present were the Earl of PLYMOUTH, the Earl of LYTTON, the Hon. Mrs. ALFRED LYTTELTON, Professor BUTCHER, M.P., Mr. BEERBOHM TREE, Mr. BERNARD SHAW, Mr. A. W. PINERO, Dr. FURNIVALL, Mr. A. GOMME, Mr. J. COMYNS CARR, Mr. H. GRANVILLE BARKER, Professor GOLLANCZ (hon. secretary), and Mr. PHILIP CARR (assistant hon. secretary). Sub-committees were appointed, to one of which has been allotted the task of drafting a scheme for the erection of a National Theatre. The other sub-committee will deal with the organisation of an appeal for funds.

Though we may regret the absence from the meeting of some of those who were prominent at the Lyceum last May, it is encouraging to find that so earnest and energetic a worker as Mr. BEERBOHM TREE is interested in the scheme. In all these movements a large number of those whose names appear in print merely take the matter up as a means of excitement or self-advertisement. The number of those who are prepared to devote time and trouble sincerely and disinterestedly to the object in view is but small; but it is to these that we must look for any sustained labour or effective action. Many years since, when proposals were made for the establishment of an "English Conservatoire," we pointed out that all attempts would be futile unless the idea were taken up by the leading London managers. Our contention was proved to be correct by the extinction of certain establishments, and by the success of the Academy of Dramatic Art. Now that Mr. BEERBOHM TREE has placed himself at the head of the National Theatre movement it will have at any rate a fair chance of success.

OFFERS are invited by the Clacton Urban District Council from established and responsible musical agencies for renting the bandstand on the east cliff and providing, free of expense to the Council, a good band for a term of three years. The tenant is to have the right to let chairs on the open greensward adjoining the bandstand and extending 500 yards east of the pier approach, at a maximum charge of 3d. per chair. Offers must reach Mr. Geo. T. Lewis, clerk to the Council, not later than noon on Wednesday, Dec. 2 next.

PRESENTATION.—Mr. H. H. Watson, acting-manager of the Royal, Ton-y-pandy, was on the 16th inst. presented with a handsome gold fob chain and seal. The presentation was made by Mr. Geo. Avery (advance-manager for Messrs. Green and Hinton's Home, Sweet Home company), who in a pithy speech spoke of the sterling qualities possessed by Mr. Watson, whom he had known for the past eight years. Mr. Watson, in responding, acknowledged that he already liked the Welsh nation exceedingly well, and promised to remain in Wales as long as he was wanted.

The Kiss of Judas shows the hand of a skilled and resourceful dramatist at every turn, and should serve the producers (Hardie and Von Leer) for years to come. The plot hinges on the machinations of one Silas Brandon, a captain in the U.S. Cavalry, to inveigle his rival in love, Philip Dunree, a banker, into a marriage with a notorious decoy of the "Bohemian Club," in London. This scheme is, of course, to further his own suit with a heiress, named Dorothy Marlow. It so happens that Dunree, who has been "told off" by the heiress in question for his gambling propensities, has, during a pleasant sojourn in Paris, really married the said decoy, Nancy Nollid, out of vexation. On their return Dunree fritters away his time at the cards, and he is at the Bohemian Club when news comes that there is a run on the Chartered Bank, of which he is the head. Stupified and reckless with wine, and oppressed with the thought of his marriage, which he bitterly repents, he loses all discretion, and returns to the cards, at which Brandon is cheating him right and left. Dunree's friend, Frank Sudley, is ready with help in the crisis, and offers to forgo his own fortune, which is deposited in the bank, and which would leave it impregnable—at least for a time. Dunree's wife revolts at the spectacle of her husband's fatuity and in a dramatic scene she threatens Brandon with exposure. Striking his former decoy with his glove, Brandon threatens to kill her, and quits her sight in a tempest of passion. However, she is as good as her word, and on the exposure recriminations of a most heated nature ensue between the two men. These are interrupted by the entrance of Dorothy Marlow, who has all along been apprised by the villain of her lover's backslidings and the place thereof, and, consequently, knows where to find him. On hearing of the bank disaster, she has come to offer her fortune and, incidentally, her hand, to her former lover, to save the bank and his honour. Of course he cannot accept her hand because of the secret tie that binds him to "the other woman," who, later, and in a very tense scene, essays to shoot herself that he may be free. He struggles with her to dispossess her of the revolver, and here the villain enters, unobserved of the twain, and taking his opportunity, shoots the woman with his own hand with his own revolver.

It should be mentioned that Dunree has previously attempted his own destruction in his despair, and it is his revolver that the woman has secured. Dunree, of course, concludes that the revolver has gone off in the struggle, and accuses himself of the crime, when Brandon steps forth and offers his silence on terms which will transpire later, promising to spirit the body away. Dunree departs, when the vivacious keeper of the den, Daisy Virginia Carlotta, enters, to whom the villain at once exposes the wretched man, pointing to Dunree's revolver as evidence; but she, examining it, finds that it has never been discharged, and thus confounds the villain.

Later, and in a healthier environment, we find Dunree and Dorothy married, but the past weighs heavy on the former, and throws its reflex on the latter, who, however, cannot understand her husband's depression. He is being blackmailed by the villain, and has come to his last hundred. Thus he is about to quit his wife and home to escape his tormentor's toils, and his wife is further estranged at what she deems his desertion. Brandon, coming for his hush-money, is refused, whereon he urges his victim to appropriate his wife's fortune, which has for the most part gone to stave off disaster at the bank. Dunree refuses, and Brandon at once proceeds to denounce him as the murderer of Nancy Nollid, when who should enter as Mrs. Dunree's newly-engaged companion but Nancy herself, who, it seems, was nursed back to life and health by the good-hearted mistress of the Bohemian Club, Carlotta.

A transient glow of relief shines over Dunree's face, which gradually changes into horror as he realises the awful position in which it places Dorothy. Happily this is not known to the villain, who hovers round with devilish pertinacity. The revelation of his former wife's survival makes his home now quite intolerable to Dunree, and he departs. Brandon at once turns his attention to the wife, and nearly succeeds in securing her, when his kiss—the kiss of Judas—brings about a revulsion of feeling. Her innate virtue asserts itself, and saves her from the villain's wiles. Nancy, during her illness, has borne a son, of whom Dunree is the father, though it is only he that she will tell of his responsibility, the others being kept in ignorance for Dorothy's sake.

Later, the two women cast their lots together in a strange land. Arizona is the scene, and the time is eight years later, at a log hut on the Rocky Mountains. Here comes the sheriff, a cowboy rejoicing in the name of "Hell Fire Jake," with a glint in his eye that bodes ill for marauders in these rough parts. He would fain teach the child how to "swar" and shoot, but his present mission is to catch a horse-thief hovering in the neighbourhood. He departs, when who should appear but Brandon, lately returned to these his old haunts. He renews his suit, is spurned, and later encounters Dunree, who by a strange decree of Providence is shooting wild bears in the district. He has come for succour, being sorely wounded in the arm by one of his quarry, not knowing that his wife is located here, and reconciliation almost takes place, when the sight of the child, whom Dorothy has adopted, rouses jealousy. He departs, and is cajoled into borrowing Brandon's pony, on the strength of the latter's protestations of friendship. Brandon instantly denounces him to the Sheriff, and he is shot down and brought back to be lynched as a horse thief. Ere the arrival of the Sheriff and his accuser, however, he is safely deposited in a straw loft, and when they arrive he is not to be seen. Standing beneath the loft, however, Brandon feels a spot of blood fall on his hand from the wounded arm of the man hiding above, and guessing the truth, is just about to reveal his whereabouts, when his attention is drawn by one of the characters, young Sudley, to a hand pointing at him through the straw with a revolver. This revolver follows him wherever he shifts, and he is reduced to silence. The Sheriff and his boys depart, and Brandon, being made to give up his sword, is rendered impotent, till, catching up Dunree's weapon, he attacks Dorothy, who defends herself with Brandon's own sword. Nancy flies to her aid, and dispatches the villain just as the Sheriff returns, and Dunree, who has meanwhile been in the fracas, is accused of the murder of Brandon. He is about to be lynched, when his friend, Sudley, who is a medico, gives him a drug in the guise of poison, and he falls apparently dead, the Sheriff leaving in high dudgeon at thus being cheated of his prey. After this Nancy disappears for good, her dead body being discovered in the river. The happiness of Dunree and Dorothy Marlow is eventually secured, after further tussles.

The play is mounted in a very handsome manner, the picturesque environment of the latter half being in fine contrast to the first. The acting was very good. Mr. J. H. Darnley, as the villain, Brandon, with his exultant "Ha, ha! Ho, ho!" was indeed excellent. He spoke his lines in a most trenchant manner, and he looked the part. Miss Katherine Clarke as Nancy Nollid, the decoy, was quite the good angel of the piece, with her self-sacrificing and many good qualities, which she showed in spite of her evil surroundings. Ever dignified, with a fine strain of pathos, she made a very affecting character. Mr. E. Howard Templeton shone in an earnest, manly fashion, as Philip Dunree, rising to the various situations in a style that betokened great capabilities. Mr. Herbert Leonard, the author, created something of a sensation on his appearance in the third act as Jake Long, alias "Hell Fire Jake." Strong of voice and strong of limb, with a burly stature and a stentorian voice, plus the additional grace of humour, he made the rôle very popular. Miss Laura Dyson showed a vivacity and a gift of comedy that lifted the rôle of Carlotta into one of the best parts in the piece. Miss Jess Dorynne as Dorothy Marlow finely expressed all the varying emotions of the rôle—love, hatred, and jealousy. Mr. De Ville was successful as the Rev. Barry Dillon, foster-father to the hero, and whose long-lost daughter proves to be none other than the ill-fated Nancy Nollid. Mr. Chas. V. Sandford played in an excellent vein of light comedy as Frank Sudley; Mr. Henry C. Moreton as Timothy Parkis was accountable for much mirth; Miss Bertha Hanbury did well; and Miss Isabel De Cresse as Myama, a Chiquite Indian girl, and Brant Sero as her Indian brother, were both good.

Kate Gaunt ..... Mrs. RITA TREKELLE

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The production of the above play was witnessed on Monday evening by a large and interested audience. Griffith Gaunt has been disinherited by an uncle, and left a paltry £2,000, because it had been represented to his departing relative that he was a wastrel and a spendthrift. His uncle's fortune and estate have been bequeathed to his cousin, Kate Gaunt, but as the cousins are already lovers, and in the usual course of events the property will remain theirs, there is not much to quarrel over.

In Act 2 Kate has been Griffith Gaunt's wife a year. He is still the ardent lover, and thinks there is no woman in the world like his Kate. Kate, however, has devoted herself to religious matters, and seeks the guidance of Father Leonard, a fanatical priest. He is giving her advice, in a not wholly disinterested way, when Griffith comes upon the scene, and flies into a rage, declaring that Father Leonard shall never darken his doors again.

There is in the plot a servant named Jane Ryder, who is secretly in love with her master. She plays a double game, urging Father Leonard to press his unholy suit, assuring him of his success; and at the same time tells the husband that his wife is faithless, and that for two years she has been carrying letters between them. In return for her betrayal, she asks Griffith to leave his wife for one who loves him better, but he loathes the idea. He is the witness of a bitter quarrel between the Rev. Father and his wife, and thinks she is still true to him until he sees her hand him her purse. Then he becomes furious, hurls opprobrious epithets at his wife and leaves her.

Whilst ill and delirious he is staying at the Packhorse Inn, kept by Jane Ryder's father, and when he recovers his reason he is made to believe by Jane, an assertion, backed up by Solomon Ryder and Tom Leicester, a drunken and dissolute servant, really Jane's husband, that he, Griffith, has gone through the ceremony of marriage with her. He is being blackmailed by the Ryders, who demand his legacy of £2,000 as the price of their silence. In the end all the mistakes are righted, Father Leonard is moved to repentance, and succeeds in nursing Gaunt back to health, the scheming of Jane Ryder is thwarted, and there is a happy reconciliation between Griffith and Kate, not, however, until after she has been tried for the murder of her husband, her innocence being proved by the appearance of Griffith himself on the scene.

Mr. W. Edwyn Holloway played remarkably well as Griffith Gaunt, giving a telling representation from start to finish. Mrs. Rita Trekelle was delightful as Kate Gaunt, and in her scenes with her husband and with Father Leonard was exceptionally good. Mr. Arthur Burne enacted Father Leonard with forcefulness and impressiveness. Miss Nona Hoffe was a success as Jane Ryder, who may be regarded as the villainess of the piece; a rôle in which she was ably assisted by Mr. William Looze as her father, Solomon Ryder, landlord of the Packhorse Inn. Miss Dorothy Hullah as Miss Penfold, Mr. Byron Douglass as Captain Peyton, Mr. Penn Hamilton as Sir George Neville, and Mr. Ellis Carlyle as Parson Oldbury were all excellent in their respective rôles. Other characters in the cast were sustained with success.

ROYAL ARTILLERY, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Oct. 19, the Play, entitled
"THE HYPOCRITES."

Under the direction of Mr. Sylvanus Dauncey, Mr. Charles Frohman's company is paying an acceptable visit to the Artillery Theatre this week, where Mr. Henry Arthur Jones's clever play is being amusingly portrayed. Mr. A. B. Imeson makes an effective curate, his character of the Rev. Edgar Linnell being carefully presented. Mr. E. H. Ruston gives a good delineation of the part of Mr. Wilmore; Lennard Wilmore is capably undertaken by Mr. John Dennys; Mr. Frederick Morland sustains the part of the family lawyer, Mr. Viveash, in a very natural manner; Mr. F. G. Thurston's study of the Rev. Everard Daubeney is realistic; Sir John Plugenet is in the able hands of Mr. Charles Tyrel; Mr. Fred Lake makes the most of Dr. Blaney; and the same may be said for Mr. H. Gee as Goodyer. Mrs. Wilmore is cleverly depicted by Miss Laura Graves; Miss Muriel Mason plays the part of Lady Blugenet in an attractive and graceful manner; Miss Sybil Brooke deserves praise for a good rendering of Mrs. Blaney; Miss Madge Severn is acceptable as Mrs. Linnell; Miss Eva Turnour makes an amusing Patty; while Miss Muriel Pope stands out prominently as Rachel Neve.

THE PLAY-ACTORS.

"THE MAID'S TRAGEDY,"
by Beaumont and Fletcher, revived at the Court Theatre on Sunday evening, Oct. 18.

King ..... Mr. A. E. WARBURTON
Lysippus ..... Mr. LE GRAND
Amintor ..... Mr. W. EDWYN HOLLOWAY
Melantius ..... Mr. H. A. SAINTSBURY
Diphilus ..... Mr. P. PERCEVAL CLARK
Calianax ..... Mr. LEONARD CALVERT
Cleon ..... Mr. HAROLD CHAPIN
Strato ..... Mr. RATHMELL WILSON
Servant to Amintor ..... Mr. ROBERT TAYLOR
Evadne ..... Miss ESMÉ BERINGER
Aspatia ..... Miss KATHLEEN RIND
Dula ..... Miss MARION LIND

The Play Actors are to be congratulated upon their production on Sunday evening at the Court Theatre of Beaumont and Fletcher's play The Maid's Tragedy—not, we would mention, for the scenic effects nor the costumes as displayed at this particular performance, but for the intelligent manner in which the piece was acted and stage-managed. Judicious care and attention had apparently been given to the work of compressing the play into suitable limits for modern production, and for the most part the excisions were such as could most conveniently be made, having regard to the full length and strength of the five acts and the sense and poetry of the whole play. A keen interest was evinced in the presentation of the play by the crowded audience at the Court Theatre on Sunday evening, and at the conclusion of each act and at the final fall of the curtain all the actors and actresses were called before the curtain and heartily applauded. The Maid's Tragedy cannot be said to be a picture of human life at any period of the world's history. Perhaps more than any other of Beaumont and Fletcher's plays its plot has been modelled on the lines of the old Greek tragedies, for here we have relentless fate pursuing the hero and heroine, and those upon whom they are able to cast any influence until, one by one, the leading characters in the play are gathered to the gentleman with the scythe and the hour-glass. Poor, unhappy Aspatia, who loves Amintor, with all the breadth and depth of a woman's soul, is rejected by him in favour of Evadne, who becomes his wife as well as the mistress of the King. Then the proud and gallant Melantius, brother to Evadne, demands that as the King has robbed her of her honour, he shall suffer death at her hands. So she murders the King—an act which is quickly followed by her own suicide and the deaths of Aspatia and Amintor. We should not go far wrong did we give premier honours in the direction of the acting to Mr. H. A. Saintsbury, whose study of the difficult rôle of Melantius was eminently satisfactory. Mr. Saintsbury showed that he had the power of vehement declamation, and in the scene where he compels his sister Evadne to consent to slay the King he rose to a high pitch of tragic oratory. Miss Esmé Beringer was the Evadne, and while some of her gestures and facial expressions in the first and second acts were somewhat unexplainable, she did extremely well when, in the later scenes, she let herself "go" with the fine dramatic delivery of which we know her to be capable. Mr. A. E. Warburton submitted an admirable portraiture as the King, the dignity, manliness, and bravery of that personage being consistently sustained throughout. Miss Kathleen Rind gave an appropriate characterisation of the rôle of the faithful Aspatia, to whom there comes so much misery, resultant on the conduct of Aminta, a part acted with judgment by Mr. W. Edwyn Holloway. Mr. Leonard Calvert was exceedingly amusing as Calianax, and Miss Marion Lind as Dula and Mr. Le Grand as Lysippus were also seen to advantage. The play, it should be mentioned, was produced under the direction of Mr. Clarence Derwent.

DEATH OF MR. JOSEPH POTTER.

By the death of Mr. Joseph Potter a striking personality has been removed from the active life of Warrington. The sad event, which took place on Tuesday morning, was not totally unexpected, for Mr. Potter had been in failing health for nearly two years, and there is no doubt that the serious fire on Christmas morning, 1907, when the Royal Court was thoroughly destroyed, considerably hastened the end. The more serious symptoms, however, did not manifest themselves until a couple of months ago, when he was confined to his room, and since then his medical advisers held out little or no hopes of ultimate recovery. Suffering from an internal complaint, Mr. Potter bore his pain with fortitude quite characteristic of the man, but it is satisfactory to note that the end was peaceful.

Mr. Potter, who was in his sixty-fifth year, was associated with the entertainment of Warrington people for well nigh half a century, and was from 1892 co-proprietor of the Royal Court Theatre together with Mr. William Johnson and the Milton Rays. In 1893 the Theatre Royal also came under their control, and on the Milton Rays dissolving partnership the first-named gentlemen kept up their long association. Mr. Potter was also connected with the principal theatre at Rawtenstall. He enjoyed the friendship of such notabilities as Barry Sullivan, Charles Matthews, T. C. King, Madame Beatrice, Walter Montgomery, Henry Hampton, Madame Celeste, and the local comedian, Brindley Sheridan. Mr. Potter's death has severed a link with the past, and Warrington Theatre patrons regret the loss of one whom they had learned to love and respect. His funeral took place on Thursday.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Oct. 19, the Musical Comedy, entitled
"THE BELLE OF NEW YORK."

Once again in South London is this favourite musical play making a bid for favour, and with undeniable success. Brixtonians on Monday evening assembled in large force, and gave the capital company of Mr. J. Bannister Howard a hearty welcome. The tuneful music once more delighted playgoers, and the whole performance went with a "bang." The chorus and orchestra were large and capable, and Mr. B. J. Paterson deserves eulogy for his conductorship. Miss Hebe Kneleer is a captivating Belle; her demureness is irresistible, and she nicely sang the songs allotted to Violet Gray. Mr. J. W. Tate is highly amusing as the Polite Lunatic. Mr. Frank Lawton causes roars of laughter as the mixed ale pugilist, Blinky Bill; his capital whistling provoked roars of delight. Ichabod Bronson finds a capable representative in Mr. Arthur Ricketts. Harry Bronson is well played by Mr. James Watts, and his singing is much appreciated. Mr. William Hartigan is distinctly amusing as Doc Snifkins, the manager of the Cora Angelique Opera Company; while Mr. Alec Godfrey is remarkably well cast as the lugubrious low comedian, Kenneth Mugg. The Portuguese Twins find capital representatives in Mr. Hal Kirke and Mr. Ray L. Cody. Miss Dorothy Doria is a charming Fifi; her dancing and singing deserve warm approval. Miss Florence Hersee beautifully dances and ably enacts Mamie Clancy; and Miss Winnie Browne is also capital as Cora Angelique. The remainder of the large cast all deserve warm praise. As is usual with Mr. Bannister Howard's productions, the play is beautifully mounted and dressed.

MR. HARRY CHADWICK, the popular young acting-manager of the Grand Theatre, Newcastle, who has been connected with the theatre for twelve years, has resigned his position, having been engaged by Mr. G. M. Polini as business-manager for The Silver King company.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

Mr. Walter Gibbons, on behalf or the London Theatres of Varieties, Ltd., has arranged to take over the Hammersmith Palace, and, later on, Hengler's Circus, Argyle-street, Regent-street.

Miss Vesta Victoria will be starting shortly for America, where, in consequence of her great success, much of her future professional life will be spent. She has placed her business in the hands of Messrs. Beecham and Wheeler.

The West London Theatre is to be sold on Wednesday, Nov. 25, as a going concern, by Messrs. Edwin Fox and Bousfield. When Mr. William Bailey took over the house, he ran it for a time on variety lines.

Councillor J. M. Glover is among the Bexhill municipal candidates. As Mayor, Deputy Mayor, and director of local amusements he has done the town yeoman service during the past eight years. The Hon. T. A. Brassey, son of the present Mayor, has written expressing regreat that he is unable to accept the mayoralty for the coming year.

The Water Rats Booking Agency, which is carrying on business temporarily at the Vaudeville Club in Charing Cross-road, has secured offices at Trentishoe Mansions closb by. We are given to understand that Mr. O'Gorman's position as manager is only temporary.

Mr. Walter Reynolds has resigned from the Theatres and Music Halls Committee of the London County Council. Mr. Reynolds is a strenuous worker, and looks into things. We regret that so business-like an expert is severing his association from a committee whose work he has brightened by original and valuable suggestions on many important questions concerning public amusement.

A general meeting of the V.A.F. will take place on Sunday at the Bedford Head Hotel, Maiden-lane, at 8 p.m., when Mr. Joe O'Gorman will take the chair. The chief subject for discussion will be the amendment of the rule regarding qualification for membership and its amendment.

Miss Cecilia Loftus, who is retained on the Coliseum bill for next week, continues to draw crowded houses, her imitation among others of Signor Caruso being the one topic of conversation. W. C. Fields, the juggler, the Molasso Quartette, Fred Edwards and company in Kleptomaniacs, May Edouin, the McConnell Trio, the Lancashire Singers (nineteen in number), the Brothers Webb, are other members of the new company.

"To-Morrow: The Story that Never Grew Old," the Christmas production at the London Hippodrome, promises to be one of exceptional merit, for Mr. Bolossy Kiralfy is to produce it, and he returns to England with the prestige of a name for wonderful stage effects. The central idea is that of a child asking for practically impossible things, and is told they will be given "to-morrow"—in short, the scheme is built round the phrase, "To-morrow never yet."

Fragson reopens on Monday at the Tivoli, where he will introduce three new songs—two comic and one sentimental. The sentimental one will be after the style of "Whispers of Love" and the comic song after the nature of that popular ditty "The Band Box Girl." The special feature of Fragson's re-entry into London will be his rendition of a new song in French entitled "Ah! Qu'on est bien, Mamselle?"

A list of applications for music, music and dancing, and stage plays licences, to be heard on Nov. 6 and 7 by the Licensing Committee of the Administrative County of London at the Clerkenwell Sessions House, has just been published. There are applications for 371 licences in respect of 353 places.

The Licensing Committee will sit at 10 a.m. on each day, and a report will be made to the L.C.C., sitting as the licensing authority, at the County Hall, Spring Gardens, on Nov. 27, and, if necessary, the following day. Mr. Imre Kiralfy is applying for a stage-plays licence for the Franco-British Exhibition.

Miss Maud Allan has, by the imperative orders of the doctor, been compelled to suspend, for a time at least, her performances at the Palace. At Wednesday's matinée a strained tendon caused her considerable pain, and although she bravely struggled through both afternoon and evening performances, she feels the immediate necessity for complete rest. It is expected that Miss Allan will be able to return to the Palace in a few weeks.

Mr. Alfred Butt on his last American tour booked Carlisle and Baker, two popular coloured vocalists and instrumentalists, who are also writers and composers of their own songs and duets, many of which have a great vogue in the states. The novelty of their item lies in the fact that each artist has his own grand piano on the stage, and, notwithstanding the fact that they have their backs turned to one another, they keep perfect time in their instrumental vocal duets whilst playing simultaneously, an extremely difficult feat.

Mr. Lester Barrett, of Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter, thinks that "Oh! Oh! Antonio" will be the most popular song this Christmas. The story deals with an Italian ice-cream merchant who has deserted his "inamorata," and the words and music of the little composition are exceedingly catchy. At the Theatre Royal, Manchester, the principal singer is to be supported by a chorus of Italian girls, and as a finale Antonio himself and his ice-cream cart will be introduced on the stage.

Miss Marie Lloyd intends to adopt the piccaninny now appearing with Miss Ethel Whiteside at the Oxford, when he finishes his engagement at that hall. Miss Lloyd, by the way, has guaranteed a bond of 3,000 dollars to the U.S. Government to return this nigger boy, whose name is "Piggy," when she has ceased to use him in domestic service. The bond stipulates that he is not to be allowed to perform on the stage while under Miss Lloyd's care.

Mr. Leonard Mortimer and Company top the bill at Hackney Empire next week with The Little Captain, a most interesting tabloid of drama, founded on the adventures of Cutcliffe Hyne's hero, Captain Kettle, a character which Mr. Mortimer realises both in make-up and temperament, being resourceful, alert, and convincing.

Mr. Whately, on behalf of Mr. Harry Lauder, applied in the King's Bench on Wednesday that a pending action over contracts between the United Theatres, Ltd., and Mr. Lauder should be delayed till April next. "There is no reason to think he will not be able to pay damages if they are ordered," added Mr. Whately, "for I dare say your lordship has heard that his salary is about five times that of a Cabinet Minister. He can't come back from America. He would lose far more than the amount in dispute." Mr. Justice Ridley: "That would not matter, because he is so rich." Mr. Whately: "I don't know that experience shows that rich men are fond of giving away what they are not bound to. Mr. Lauder is a Scotchman. I'm afraid he would not appreciate the humour of the suggestion."

The Liverpool Empire orchestra was this week conducted by Mr. George Saker, son of the late Edward Saker, of Liverpool.

The new Hippodrome at Exeter opens on Monday, Nov. 2. It will be booked by Mr. Fred Karno in conjunction with the Maidstone and Peterborough Hippodromes, and will give two shows a night. It is most advantageously placed.

Actions have been raised by the Palace Theatre, Glasgow, and the Pavilion Theatre there against Mr. George Robey for breach of contract in respect to his non-appearance at these theatres some time ago, and damages to the extent of £200 are claimed by each theatre.

The Empress Theatre, Hartlepool, has been purchased by Mr. C. W. Lovesy, of 12, Little Newport-street, W.C. Councillor Everton's proprietorship terminates on Monday, the 26th inst. Ruffell's Bioscope will supply the pictures under the new proprietary.

The directors of the Palace Theatre (Darlington), Ltd., who are the proprietors of the new Hippodrome in Parkgate, have declared and paid a dividend of 6 per cent. to the preference shareholders and one of 10 per cent. to the ordinary shareholders.

The Della Sisters wish to publicly thank Mr. Horace Livermore, of the Palace, Bristol, for paying them their matinée money out of his own pocket.

Mr. Reuben More is now taking a few weeks' rest with his wife and family at Southsea after his long and most successful summer pier tour. Some of his leisure is filled up with writing and composing songs, for which he finds a ready market.

Messrs. G. W. Smith and T. Fox, of Greek-street, Leeds, who own a variety hall at Rotherham, and are interested in houses in Brighton, Belfast, Liverpool, Berlin, and Paris, have purchased the old Manor House, Dewsbury, and property adjoining, on the site of which they intend erecting a Hippodrome to accommodate 2,600 people, and to run it on the two-houses-a-night plan. They hope to get a building about 140ft. by 85ft. on the site.

Dr. Walford Bodie continues his triumphal tour in his native land, playing to record business. Last week, despite great and unprecedented trade depression, he broke all records at the Empire, Greenock, which was packed to the doors, despite the fact that it was the doctor's eighth visit. This week he is packing the Theatre Royal Coatbridge, on his ninth visit.

Mr. Bert Dent, who for the past six years has so successfully discharged the duties of resident-manager at the Palace of Varieties, Greenwich, has just been appointed by Mr. T. Allan Edwardes to a similar position at the Palace of Varieties, Attercliffe. On Monday evening he introduced himself in a neat little speech to the audience.

Mr. Sydney Carter, of the New Century Pictures, which are so popular in Yorkshire, vacates the Bridge Pavilion, Ilkley, this week, after a stay of over twelve months. Mr. Edwin Bryan, the manager, goes to Halifax to coach the local amateurs in A Princess of Kensington. The Pavilion will continue during the winter, under the management of Mr. Samuel Garratt, the proprietor, who is to present first-class entertainments with the best of talent.

At the Lowestoft Borough Police Court recently application was made on behalf of the Hippodrome, the largest place of entertainment in the town, for permission to hold Sunday concerts during the present fishing season. A similar application was made on behalf of the Public Hall.

Frank Freeland, manager for Mr. Geo. Gilbert, remarked that the management of the Hippodrome proposed bringing down some of the best bands—the Black Dyke, and other well-known bands; and the films shown by the bioscope would be of a sacred character, moral stories, &c., and the songs would be suitable for the occasion. Both applications were refused.

The first anniversary of the opening of Bostock's Hamilton Hippodrome was celebrated with great éclat on Wednesday (14th). At an appropriate juncture during the evening Provost Pollock, accompanied by Mr. Gus. Bostock, son of the proprietor, appeared at the footlights. Mr. Bostock intimated that between donations and the proceeds of the performance the sum of £29 9s. 3d. had been realised. He had much pleasure in making up the amount to £30, which would be handed over to the local branches of the Jubilee Nurses's Institute and the League of Pity.

Provost Pollock expressed the sincere thanks of the community to Mr. Bostock for his public-spiritedness and great generosity. Mr. Gus Bostock suitably acknowledged the compliment, and said he could assure them that his father was deeply thankful to the people of Hamilton for their splendid encouragement.

In the Court of Session, Edinburgh, on Friday, the 16th inst., Lord Skerrington disposed of a note of suspension and interdict by the Glasgow Pavilion (Limited) against Ella Retford, comedienne, at present appearing at the Coliseum Theatre, Glasgow, to have the respondent interdicted from performing at the Coliseum during the present week or at any other place of entertainment within a radius of ten miles of the Pavilion Theatre between Oct. 19, 1908, and Oct. 19, 1909.

The complainers averred that on Feb. 18 last they entered into a contract with the respondent whereby she contracted to appear at the Pavilion Theatre during the week commencing Aug. 30 next and also during the week commencing Sept. 5, 1910, and that the respondent in breach of the agreement had appeared at the Coliseum this week. The respondent pleaded that no validly executed or binding agreement was ever entered into between the parties, and Lord Skerrington refused to grant interim interdict, with expenses to neither party.

The death took place, shortly before noon on Monday, at his residence in Ryland-street, Warrington, of Mr. Joseph Potter, formerly co-proprietor with Mr. Johnson of the Royal Court Theatre and the Royal Theatre of Varieties, Warrington. The late Mr. Potter, who was about sixty-five years of age, had been ailing for some time, and he took to his bed some six weeks ago. He was highly esteemed and respected by a large circle of friends. It will be remembered that twelve months last Christmas the Royal Court Theatre was totally destroyed by fire, and about a month ago both theatres were sold.

Immediately after the second performance at the Hamilton Hippodrome on Wednesday evening, the permanent staff met in the main entrance hall for the purpose of expressing in a tangible manner to Mr. Clayton, the resident manager, their appreciation of his personal worth. Mr. Clayton was taken completely by surprise. He thanked the donors briefly but feelingly, on behalf of his wife and himself, for their gifts of a smoker's cabinet and a handsome cake basket, and expressed the hope that the pleasant relations which had always existed between his staff and himself might long continue.

His many friends will be glad to hear that Mr. John E. Coyle, the popular comedian, has completely recovered after his four months' severe illness, and that he resumes business shortly. He has been skilfully treated at Ventnor, and the result is completely satisfactory.

Vasco, the mad musician, is sailing for the States to-day, when he will depart from Liverpool on board the Lusitania. Vasco's voyage will bring him increased reputation in a land where originality and smartness have always made good. Vasco returns to the Empire on May 31 next year.

Carter Livesey and Lilian Rosebery, having just completed their fifth visit to the Palace Theatre, W., are now playing a provincial tour, including the Moss-Stoll Empires. Miss Rosebery's gowns are by Mme. Louise Biddulph, West Kensington, and her hats by Mme. Irene.

Regan and Ryan have been making the Middlesex ring with laughter at their new business this week. They have several new songs from the pens of Will Hyde and new gags by Alf. Ellerton.

Miss Leah Adell (operatic vocalist), sister of Walter and Jack de Frece, wishes to give notice to proprietors and managers that, in order to avoid complications with artists of somewhat similar names, she will in future be known as Miss Addie Adell.

Australia again gives the call to one of our leading lights in the musical world, Mendel having booked with Mr. Harry Rickards for a tour of his various houses in the land of the Southern Cross. Many dates held by Mendel for 1910 have been postponed by various managers, to allow him to accept the offer.

Mr. Peter Davey on Monday made application for a music and dancing licence at the annual meeting of the Licensing Committee for Surrey. Mr. Davey, who is the manager of the Royal County Theatre, Kingston, intends varying his theatrical fare at that house with a variety programme.

A great loss will be imposed upon Mr. W. R. Nutt, the proprietor of the Empire Music Hall (now in course of erection), Richmond-road, Kingston, through the absurd conditions imposed by an obsolete statute upon applicants for new licences. Mr. A. R. C. Forrest, in his application on Monday, at the anuual meeting of the music and dancing Licensing Committee for Surrey, said that the hall, which was to seat 1,200 people, would be ready for opening in January, and no intoxicants would be sold. Already the building, for which the Kingston Corporation had passed the plans, was 30ft. high.

The chairman said that the committee could not grant even a provisional licence for an unfinished building, while they were bound by statute, dated 1752, that they could grant no licence at an adjourned meeting. The application was therefore refused, and cannot be renewed until next October, the chairman expressing sympathy with the applicant.

Miss Rosie Lloyd and Mr. Will Poluski, jun., were married by special licence on Saturday last at St. Mary's Primrose Hill, N.W., the church nearest the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Alec Hurley (Miss Marie Lloyd). The wedding was a very quiet one, the only guests present being relatives of the happy couple. Mr. Jack O'Connor (of Jack and Evelyn) officiated as best man, and Miss Annie Wood, sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid, the bride being given away by her father. A reception was afterwards held at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Will Poluski, sen., The Lindens, Effra-road, Brixton. It was at St. Mary's Church, Primrose Hill, that the bride's sister, Miss Daisy Wood (now in America), was married to Mr. Donald Munro.

The annual matinée for the benefit of the few survivors of the Balaclava Charge will take place this afternoon at 2.30 at the Alhambra. The whole of the programme has been provided by the directorate, and many well-known artists have generously promised their services. Seeing that this function is the chief source of Mr. T. H. Roberts' supplies for the support of these poor old soldiers, it is hoped that the matinée will be well patronised.

The preliminary list of artists includes Miss Marie Dainton, Miss Alice Ellison, Miss Violet Ludlow, Miss Ada Reeve, Miss Ida Rene, Miss Kitty Traney, Mr. John Bardsley, Mr. Leonard Barry, Mr. Arthur Boyd, Mr. Louis Bradfield, Mr. George Giddens, Mr. Nelson Hardy, Mr. Eric Williams, Coram (ventriloquist), the Frank Bonhair Troupe, the Master Mystery, the Imperial Concert Party, &c.

Master Ikey Moe, described as "the smallest Hebrew comedian in the world," has made a great hit this week at the Canterbury. He is a diminutive, rosy-cheeked young gentleman of some twelve summers, and he affords a somewhat remarkable example of youthful precocity. With a coolness and sangfroid which one cannot help admiring, he relates several funny Jewish anecdotes, in Yiddish dialect, which cause immense delight to the audience. His rendering of the song, "Oh, Solly," is also highly entertaining, and he also wins applause for his dancing, into which, by the way, he manages to infuse an element of humour.

Mr. Ben Woodger, Secretary of the Music Hall Home, wishes to thank, on behalf of the committee, the Brothers Obo (Ben and Jim) for parcel of men's clothes and boots, of which the fund is greatly in need. He also thankfully acknowledges the donation of £1 1s. from Mr. Arthur Wilson (late of the Hercules, Kennington-road); also Ted E. Box (committeeman, M.H.H.) for donation of £1 1s to the Music Hall Home fund, which is greatly in need of funds. The Home is keeping eleven old and infirm performers. The next committee meeting will be held at the Palace, Camberwell, on Thursday, Nov. 5, at 12 noon.

The heroine of the matinée hat, Miss Madge Temple, pays a visit to the Brighton Hippodrome next week. Last week, at the London Coliseum, it will be remembered, Miss Temple created a great sensation by appearing in a gigantic hat 14ft. in diameter, thereby satirising the present vogue in millinery. The hat cost £120 to make, and Miss Temple, at the conclusion of her Brighton engagement, intends to sell the hat to the highest bidder, the proceeds to be devoted to a charity. In addition to her notable song successes, "Kiss" and "Come, be my rainbow," Miss Temple will render in Brighton Hermann Darewski's novel number on "The Matinée Hat."

The third Tom Woottwell comic song album is shortly to be issued by that comedian through a well-known firm of publishers. He has published practically nothing during the last two years since he booked this, his fourth Australian engagement, as he knows from past experience that songs published in England are sung in America and the Colonies almost before the print is dry, and he values his Colonial reputation far above the few pounds he could get for the songs. Fifteen thousand of the Collin Album (No. 1) were sold in Australia and New Zealand alone, and Charles Sheard did very well out of the second. The third will contain:—"Blow'd if I didn't wake up," "The little shirt my mother made for me," "Wait a minute, half a minute," "What did I do?" "I've got it here," &c.

The M.H.A.R.A. will hold its general meeting to-morrow (Sunday) at 6.30, at the Bedford Head Hotel, Maiden-lane.

Signor Alegria, of the Circo Alegria, Barcelona and Saragossa (Zaragoza), shot himself on the 15th inst. at Barcelona. The sad occurrence has created a painful sensation in professional circles in Spain.

Miss Florence Esdaile has returned to London after a successful pantomime tour. Miss Esdaile is in excellent voice, and delights her many admirers at the Oxford by her charming rendition of "Carissima."

Miss Fanny Sinclair, of Howard and Sinclair, has probably introduced more successful American songs in London than any other artist. That she should select Witmark's latest hit, "Take me some place with you, Johnnie," as a vehicle for her peculiar and original style of work is proof positive that the song is a winner. Miss Sinclair has the first rights of the song, which can also be procured for certain pantomimes.

Gustave Hagenbeck, at the Indian arena, Franco-British Exhibition; William Schreida, elephant trainer; and Havadja, attendant, were summoned before Mr. Garrett, at West London on Monday with being concerned in cruelly abusing and terrifying two elephants, contrary to the Wild Animals in Captivity Protection Act. The case was adjourned to Nov. 3.

Mr. J. J. James, an entertainer who calls himself "the pierrot," is making his appearance at the Chelsea Palace next week in his funny and refined turn.

Miss Melinda May, secretary of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild, 61, New Oxford-street, W.C., tenders her thanks to Mrs. H. Maud Gamble for her generous gift of two guineas; Miss Maggie Bowman, 10s.; Mrs. Max, 5s.; Mrs. Horn, 2s. 6d. (through Mrs. Doust); Mrs. Eugene Stratton, a large leather trunk; Mr. Edward Luke, Portsmouth, boxes of fancy goods for Christmas tree; Miss Kate Vulcana (collection), 10s.; and Miss Florence Yaymen and Mrs. Redlich, for useful parcels of clothing. Miss May would be grateful for gentlemen's as well as ladies' wearing apparel. Friends of the charity are sure of a welcome to the tea and reception, held every Wednesday, three to five o'clock.

When the renewal of the licence to Mr. George Dance in respect of the Richmond Theatre was called on on Monday at the annual meeting of the music and dancing Licensing Committee for Surrey, Inspector Hart informed the committee that he had been directed by the Commissioner of the Metropolitan Police to bring to the notice of the committee that Sunday concerts were being held at the theatre, promoted by the National Sunday League. Mr. T. C. Wray, for Mr. Dance, said that the League were giving such concerts in nearly every theatre or place of amusement in London. No complaints had been received as to the concerts held in the past.

Alderman Gregory, of St. Pancras, a member of the executive of the National Sunday League, said that an exactly similar condition of things prevailed in London, as there were no seven-day licences. The League did not seek financial gain from the concerts, which were run purely for the pleasure of the community. They did not ask Mr. Dance to apply for a seven-day licence, and he asked the committee to make no protest. The committee eventually renewed the licence.

Open-air music is apparently not appreciated by the unco' guid at Richmond, for on Monday objection was raised to the renewal to Tom Alfred Brooks of the licence for the garden of the Red Lion Hotel, Castelnau, Barnes. Mr. G. Lodeidges, a churchwarden, of Barnes, who lives 120 yards away, gave evidence, saying that the voice of the lady who sang at the concerts was "like a railway whistle."

The applicant, in his evidence, said that only good music was provided at the concerts, which were of a high-class character. The lady artist referred to had belonged to Mr. Geo. Edwardes's and Mr. Seymour Hicks's companies, and sang at many Masonic gatherings. Many of the inhabitants attended the concerts, and on Saturday evenings the piano was supplemented by a string band. Inspector Hart, of the Metropolitan Police, said that he had attended many of the concerts unknown to the licensee, and he had seen nothing to object to in them. The committee renewed the licence on the condition that there were no Sunday concerts in future, and that the concerts should cease at 10.30 p.m.

There was more trouble over Sunday concerts in connection with the application of Mr. P. Twitchin for the renewal of the licence of the Castle Hotel, Richmond. The licence was held in respect of a large concert hall accommodating 800 people, "and if," said Mr. J. Wells Thatcher, who represented the licensee, "there could be any nuisance to the residents by the holding of the concerts it could only exude through the opening of some of the windows during the warm weather."

The Chairman: What about the Sunday concerts? If we grant the licence for six days you cannot use it for seven. Mr. Twitchin replied that he merely provided music for people having tea there. He made no charge for admission on Sundays. As it was done in well-known restaurants in London on Sundays he did not think that he was doing any harm. All he had was a piano and a vocalist. In the end the committee granted the renewal on condition that the Sunday concerts were discontinued.

At Bolton last week Charcot caused tremendous excitement with his great blindfold drive. Long before the time announced for starting large crowds began to gather in the vicinity of the Grand, and when Charcot emerged he was met by a solid wall of people stretching from the hall right along the main thoroughfare numbering some thousands. It was with the greatest difficulty the police cleared a way for Charcot's smart open carriage and beautiful pair of greys, after which, to the utter amazement of the beholders, he galloped off accompanied by Mr. Kenyon, followed by Miss Kate Carney and friends in her motor.

A whole tour of Bolton and its environments was covered and a safe return back to the Grand, where thousands still waited in anxious expectancy of seeing Charcot's automatic man released from his perilous position. Charcot's act since last in town has undergone great improvement, and wherever he goes he plays to record business. This fact coupled with such a sensational novelty has induced Mr. George Barclay to take it in hand, and this should mean plenty of dates for Charcot.

At the Paisley Hippodrome on Wednesday evening there was celebrated the second anniversary of the opening of the establishment. The first performance was under the distinguished patronage and presence of the Provost, Magistrates, and Town Councillors of Paisley and other well-known people of the town. Following the custom of the previous two years, Mr. E. H. Bostock again divided the entire proceeds of the first performance between the Royal Alexandra Infirmary, the Victoria Eye Infirmary, the Consumptive Sanatorium, and the Workshop for the Blind—all charitable institutions of the town.

A meeting of the Variety Artists' Federation was held yesterday afternoon at the Bedford Head, Maiden-lane. We were informed that it was not open to the Press, and that the proceedings were of a purely private character.

Mr. George Anthony, once a famous song writer and composer, died in San Francisco on Sept. 29, age fifty years. He was known in that city as Pat Kelly.

The news was flashed across the ocean that Mr. Isidore Witmark, who has many friends in London, was engaged to be married to Miss Violet Hahn, of Chicago. It was always thought that "Issy" was much too busy to think of matrimony, but he has evidently found just time enough to select a charming companion and helpmate, and his many friends are showering him with congratulations.

Miss Ray Maskell, the popular comedienne and speciality dancer, has created quite a furore with her new dancing act, Rehearsing Before the Show, introducing a new song by Phil Myvern, entitled "My big umbrella," at the Apollo Theatre, Berlin, where she tops the bill for the month of October. She opens at the Alhambra, Paris, Nov. 1.

"Pigs in Clover," Mr. Lawson's latest production, is continuing its successful run, and will be seen at Shoreditch and Walthamstow during the coming week. Crowded houses at the Holborn Empire testify to Mr. Lawson's drawing powers. Without a doubt he has at last found a sketch to beat Humanity in the matter of packing different halls.

The 581st meeting of the M.H.A.R.A. was held on Wednesday. Mr. Fred Herbert (vice-chairman) presided. There were also present W. H. Atlas, F. W Millis (vice-president), T. C. Callaghan, Harold Finden, Johnny Alexander, J. Tray, Horace White, and Marriott Edgar. The weekly statement showed an increase of 33 new members, and the receipts amounted to £50 16s. 6d.

Mr. Monte Bayly, the secretary of the V.A.F., states that the total amount of money paid by members, either in red, black, or subscription stamps, from the foundation of the Variety Artists' Federations up to the present time, has been £18,222 14s. 2d. The Emergency Fund has reached £620. During the year £3,333 worth of red stamps and £755 worth of black stamps had been sold.

Mr. T. Allan Edwardes, a prominent theatrical manager in the Midlands, will take over on Monday, Nov. 2, the Grand Theatre, Blackpool, where he will present high-class variety twice nightly. At present Mr. Edwardes runs the Grand and Palace Theatres, Derby, the Stoke Hippodrome, and the Sheffield Palace, and is credited with the intention of stirring things up in Blackpool during the winter.

Mr. Marriott Edgar, the entertaining light comedian, is scoring heavily at the Willesden Hippodrome this week. Mr. Edgar, who arranges all his own "business" and writes his songs, has an exceedingly amusing ditty on the subject of the colour red. Attired in a gorgeous scarlet lounge suit, he tells the audience, in diverting fashion, why he favours that showy hue, why tomatoes are red, and why his Satanic Majesty is represented in the colour of a flame. The verses, which are interspersed with laughable comments, are followed by a "gag" song, in which Mr. Edgar deals in humorous fashion with the ancient use of kilts in the Scottish regiments and the introduction of trousers. The turn has proved immensely popular.

Miss Pansy Montague, world-famed as La Milo, the beautiful young poseuse, has again been attacked by pulpit censure and prejudice. She is making her first appearance in the Walter de Frece circuit at the Hippodrome, Portsmouth. Hardly had La Milo alighted from her beautiful 30-h.p 6-cylinder car—in which, accompanied by her sister, she covered the distance from London on Sunday afternoon—before Stiggins made her the subject of his pharisaical censure from at least three pulpits, throwing out that innuendo which poisons truth and blinds justice.

If the booking-office is the test of public appreciation and approval, the ultra-Puritan has had one of the most withering defeats that clean truth can inflict, for on the rising of the curtain on the first night, despite his criticism of the unheard and unseen, La Milo was greeted by a tumult of delight, which must have done much to force into the heart of her most bitter opponents the conviction that, after all, Art was not the indecent exposition which the local Stiggins endeavours to prove it. However that may be, La Milo is scoring such a victory in Portsmouth that proofs are not wanting of the deposition of Prejudice and the enthroning of Truth, and the nimbus so exclusively claimed by the ultra-Puritan has lost some of its personal advertisement and dangerous glow.

Her defence of Art against the artfulness of her opponents in the pulpit points to the success of the week, and runs in line with the pluck and astuteness of Mr. Walter de Frece in deciding to compete against local and other influence for the public favour which is assured to him in his appreciative engagement of this world-known star, despite the fact that there are six other competing halls in the town.

If we desired personally a mentor in the domain of railway travel we should seek the guidance of Mr. C. Douglas Stuart, who did such yeoman service for the variety artist when he assisted in the establishment of the M.H.A.R.A. His handy "Railway Fare Book" is an absolute boon and blessing to the touring professional. Important advice is given regarding lost luggage, and special notes for artists travelling to or from the Continent are of great value. The times of rehearsals at London and provincial halls are also handy. This vade-mecum should be in the possession of every professional. Sixpence is the price, and twopence of this goes to the V.A.B.F.

When the act-drop rolls down on other places of amusement in Douglas the little Empire Theatre there still continues open with two houses nightly at popular prices. Mr. Charles Dare, who is also responsible for the burnt cork comedians, vocalists, and variety artists on the Head, has been for nigh on two decades the proprietor and lessee of this popular and pretty little playhouse. In his absence Mr. Rex Sugden takes charge, and an interesting programme is presented. The animated pictures are of the finest calibre and quite up to date. Mr. Syd Herman is a clever comedian whose talent as a raconteur is considerable.

A most successful charity matinée was given, by permission of Mr. Oswald Stoll, at the Hackney Empire on Thursday, to aid the cause of the underfed children of the neighbourhood, for which the Mayor of Hackney is raising a fund. The Lord Mayor, who takes a warm interest in the efforts made to cope with one of the most painful problems of London's poverty, gave his personal patronage, and brought the Sheriffs with him, and the Mayor of Hackney and many of the Borough Councillors were also present. Among the artists who entertained were Miss Evie Greene, Mr. Lewis Waller, Mr. George Lashwood, Mr. Ernest Shand, Mr. George Gray, the King's College Boys, and a number of others. Mr. Percy Percival, the popular resident manager, personally superintended the arrangements, and the affair was a gigantic success.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

Pantomime artists will be eager to secure Messrs. Francis and Day's latest "find" in the song line, a magnificent number by Fred Godfrey, Percy Edgar, and T. W. Thurban. It has one of the sweetest and most ear-haunting choruses ever written, and the item has been named "In the land of the kangaroo."

Mr. James Moran, the new Scotch comedian, opens in New York in December. Messrs. Francis and Day have secured the numbers with which he made so great a success at the Coliseum.

Mr. David Day's firm are issuing a clever song by Percy Tarling and Percy Vere, entitled "Won't you come for a canoodle in my canoe?"

Mr. Wilkie Bard's fine new song, "She sells sea shells," which Messrs. Francis and Day are publishing, is spoken of as likely to be in great request at police stations. Any person who can sing the chorus at sight is undoubtedly sober. The song is by Mellor, Lawrance, and Gifford.

A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott's latest and greatest chorus song, "Molly Maloney," had its first London production on Monday evening, at the Empress, Brixton. Mr. Dan Thomas was the successful exponent. He drove on to the stage with a real jaunting car and pony, and, after singing the song, was joined by a pretty Irish colleen, and after a wonderful reel she drove off with the happy jarvey, to the accompaniment of thunderous applause. Mr. Thomas was called before the curtain several times, and had to make a speech before he was allowed to finally retire. The Star Music Company are the lucky publishers.

During the past few weeks all the London publishers have been bombarded with applications for Harry Bedford's sensational skit on the Salome craze, "Salome—the sheep's head and tin tack." This is undoubtedly the biggest thing Mr. Bedford has done since his famous "A little bit off the top." Anyway, the applications have only met with blank replies up to now, but we understand the Star Music Company have been successful in securing this great number at an exceptionally heavy price. Comedians should apply early for copies, as pantomime rights are restricted to one for each town, and the ditty has been instantaneously secured for several of the big cities.

Tom Costello, who returned to town on Monday, has been appearing at the Hammersmith and Chelsea Palaces, in A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott's Irish emigrant song-scena, "Homeland, good-bye." Mr. F. H. Bull has duplicated his beautiful scenery and effects so that Mr. Costello could present the number to advantage at both houses. As a stage picture it is superb; as a song, it is enough to say Mr. Costello will not want to replace it for at least two years. "Homeland, good-bye" is published by the Star Music Co.

Arthur Sutcliffe is the latest recruit to the light comedians who help to dispel the care of weary Londoners. Though by no means an unknown performer, having a great provincial reputation, Mr. Sutcliffe is making his first bow to a London Pavilion audience. He is fortunate in being equipped with the two numbers "I don't care if there's a girl there" and "Have you got another girl at home like Mary?" which he sings with delightful abandon and breeziness. His songs are published by the Star Music Co.

Miss Marie Blythe, who has been associated with many popular chorus songs, is just now exploiting one of the Star Company's special numbers, "Don't put your umbrella up before it starts to rain." This song was a "hit" in London, but in the provinces it simply creates a furore. Miss Blythe is never allowed to retire with less than four calls, and usually a speech and an encore number are necessary before the next turn can go on. Such successes as these are few and far between, and principal boys and girls who want not only pretty numbers but those which also bring thunders of applause should secure this gem.

M. Witmark and Sons, whose efforts to supply the profession with all sorts of material are so much appreciated, have just published "The Witmark Aid to Entertainers." This booklet is a veritable encyclopædia of information for all kinds and conditions of amusement caterers. Lists of joke books, gag books, sketches, quartets, duets, and illustrated songs form a portion of the book, which is not only entertaining in itself, but is useful and instructive.

Managers and artists desirous of obtaining the tuneful jingles and rhymes with which to please their pantomime audiences wend their way to Witmark's, for this name conjures up the many successful songs that have delighted countless thousands.

The plentiful supply of excellent numbers offered by the Witmarks this year will doubtless be fully appreciated by the many patrons who have in former years taken advantage of the good things handed out at the "Home of Melody and Song."

The halfpenny dailies have recently been predicting the names of some songs as likely to be heard in the coming season's pantomimes. The limitations of space may have caused omission of others that have just as good a chance of being heard on Boxing Night. Many a principal boy, and possibly not a few comedians, will be declaiming their inability to get away from the girls:—

I can't get away from the girls—
The girls with the curly curls.
They've captured me, and now you see
I can't get away from the girls.

This song is published by Charles Sheard, and another from the same house that is destined to make a great reputation for itself and many a charming stage motorist is "Hold me tighter, Mr. Lighter." This is the chorus:—

Hold me tighter, Mr. Lighter, Mr. Lighter, pray!
I won't be the least bit afraid if you'll hold that way.
Round the world I would love to spin if you'll always just hold me in—
Hold a little bit tighter, Mr. Lighter, pray!

The inevitable coon song has a most piquant example of its genius this year in "Ma Limelight Lou," also issued by the firm of Sheard. Here is the chorus:—

Dainty Limelight Lou, how I worship you!
Somehow there is that about you that I cannot live without you.
Saucy little maid, why are you afraid?
Aggravatin', zasperatin', dainty Limelight Lou.

Another of Charles Sheard's songs that is certain to prove a great pantomime success, with its highly melodious maternal injunction to a tom-boy daughter, who is waiting for her sweetheart and amusing herself with swinging on the garden gate, is "Jennie! Jennie! Jennie! don't swing on the gate." Here is the refrain:—

Now, Jennie, don't swing on the gate;
It's certainly getting too late.
The bees have stopped humming, there's nobody coming—
Now, Jennie, don't swing on the gate!

"A DAY IN PARIS."

Ballet, in Five Scenes, by Lieut.-Col. N. Newnham-Davis; music composed and arranged by Cuthbert Clarke; produced by Fred Farren at the Empire on Monday, Oct. 19.

Jacques Bonnair	Mr. Fred Farren
Georges Legay	Miss Trevesick
Paul Sorel	Miss F. Martell
John Bullivant Smith	Mr. Jameson
Augusta Euphemia	Miss Elise Clerc
Ethel	Miss G. Tree
Poppy	Miss Phyllis Bedells
A Nurse	Miss M. Paston
A French Officer	Miss Hilda Edwardes
Le Comte de Canteloup	Mr. T. Walls
Sarotte	Miss B. Collier
Apaches	Messrs. Hunter and Ford
Mimi la Feuille	Miss D. Payer
Marie	Miss B. Hill
Phrynette	Miss Elsie Collier
La Granada	Mme. Zanfretta
La Gloire de Paris / L'Arc-en Ciel	Mlle. Lydia Kyasht

A ballet having for the base of its scenario la ville lumière comes with special appropriateness at a house like the Empire, which ministers in its scheme of amusement largely to the foreign dwellers in its immediate neighbourhood; and in securing the aid of the cosmopolitan Lieut.-Col. Newnham-Davis to map out the scheme and supply the plot the directorate have shown wisdom. The ballet might have been Chauvinistic in tone, or politically significant; but the librettist—wisely, as it seems to us—seems to have been content to present to us the gaiety of the city as it appears to the man in the street, and to have introduced into its various scenes well-known Parisian types. The ballet was produced on Monday amid manifestations of enthusiasm from a crowded house; and it was evident that the up-to-date nature of the production made a very popular appeal to every portion of the house. The superb mounting of the spectacle accentuates the brightness and brio of Parisian life, as it is seen through English eyes; there is just sufficient realism to give a dramatic touch to one or two of the scenes; and the final spectacle—the Artists' Ball at the Moulin Rouge—will become the talk of London. In its conception and development the sumptuously-mounted novelty reminds one of the Round the Town ballet, one of the most famous of Empire productions, of which there was a second edition. The adventures of Mr. Bullivant Smith (of Brixton), his wife and two daughters, who are on a trip to Paris, give all the necessary stimulus to the action. The Britisher has a decided inclination to flirt with La Granada, a smart model, upon whom he lavishes presents. In her turn Mrs. Bullivant Smith is on very friendly terms with a lively and nimble art student from the Latin quartier, who for the nonce assumes the costume and carries out the duties of guide.

The party commence their short Parisian pilgrimage at the Place de l'Opéra, where they witness a quaint dance of bakers' boys and midinettes. A scene on the quays gives an excellent conception of the grandeur of Notre Dame; and the gaiety and chic of the Parisians receive excellent illustration in the Champs Elysées scene, where a crowd composed of blanchisseuses, midinettes, artists, military students, street singers, and artists' models assemble. We have a delightful dance of children and nurses, in which Miss Phyllis Bedells, late of the Prince of Wales's, distinguishes herself. The military spectacle that succeeds the dances, and which forms a triumphant conclusion for the third scene, is particularly striking, the ballerine being dressed as cuirassiers, chasseurs d'Afrique, and dragoons. Later the troops are joined by a pretty coterie of cantinières, who join the officers in a dance. The Hôtel des Invalides in the background suddenly vanishes, and in its place is seen a fine tableau of the First Napoleon on horseback, surrounded by his troops, after the victory of Austerlitz; and Mlle. Kyasht, at the end of a particularly inspiring and pretty dance, poses most effectively as La Gloire de Paris.

The exterior of the Moulin Rouge shows us the sails of the "Red Mill" illuminated, and here we are treated to a most dramatic dance—the Apache—which is undoubtedly the great hit of the production. Miss Beatie Collier as the woman is really powerful in her creation of the truculent outcast, and shows rare ability both as a pantomimist and dancer. The duo between her and Mr. Fred Farren will be the rage of London if we are not mistaken.

The artists' ball is a happily-arranged feast of colour, for beneath a gigantic canopy of soft silk lit by prismatic arcs of electric light the revels of the ballerine are conducted. Mauve, blue, apricot, vieux rose, pink, heliotrope—all of the most delightful shades—are seen in the various divisions of the dancers. A group of Directoire belles appear, gowned in beautifully-draped robes of clinging white charmeuse, with large hats of white silk gauze and white uncurled ostrich plumes. The robes are heavily embroidered with gold in classical designs, and long scarves of silk gauze are draped across the shoulder, harmonising with a knot of coloured ribbons in the hat and with the lining of the robes themselves. A most original number is a cosmopolitan dance that is given by a selected contingent of coryphées, wearing mob caps. They commence with a country dance à l'Anglaise to the strains of "Cherry Ripe," and then, rapidly doffing their top skirts, appear in shorter costumes of richly-shaded orange, in which they accomplish the seguedilla. They eventually descend to the cake-walk, which is not exactly the poetry of motion, but is nevertheless still popular. Mlle. Lydia Kyasht's Russian dance is an interesting feature that comes towards the end of the ballet, which finished on Monday amid a hurricane of applause.

We have spoken of most of the principals, but we must give a word of praise to the excellent acting of Mme. Zanfretta as La Granada, who is the very embodiment of irresponsible gaiety; Miss Elsie Collier distinguishes herself in a solo as Phrynette; and Miss Elise Clerc's Augusta Euphemia is an amusing British matron with a nice assortment of delightful dance measures. Mr. T. Walls is decidedly clever in his character study of Le Comte de Canteloup. M. Wilhelm has again designed a magnificent colour scheme, and the production by Fred Farren reveals much ingenuity.

A large audience assembled at the Hastings Hippodrome on Tuesday evening to congratulate Mr. Walter Norman, the respected assistant-manager, on commencing his third year of office there.

The Canadians Troupe of John E. Brewster concluded their engagement with the Circo Alegria, Barcelona, on the 10th, and opened on the 11th at the Casino Espositione in Zaragoza (Saragossa).

Harry Carlo, of the Lach and Ford Trio, was arrested last week at Brixton, taken back to Jersey, and prosecuted at the local Police Court, where he was charged on Saturday last with having committed a serious assault on the person of Mr. Stanley Hope outside the Opera House on the night of Sept. 19. Carlo was remanded in custody.

Rarely have we met (writes a correspondent) such a clever entertainer as Mr. Frank Fredella. On Monday night at the Royal Assembly Rooms, Leamington, he kept the eyes of the audience riveted upon him as he gave his character impersonations of a lady vocalist and a Frenchman in English comic opera. As a mimic he was not less successful, and his acting as tragedian in The Vagabond King was much appreciated.

Charles Bradley, 45, a licensed pedlar, was charged at Lambeth Police Court on Monday with having in his possession and offering for sale eighteen copies of pirated music at Camberwell Green. The offence was proved by Mr. Arthur Preston, chief agent to the Music Publishers' Association. Mr. Hopkins (to the prisoner): It is a traffic we are all concerned to stop. I always fine the same amount. It is £5.

Councillor E. H. Bostock, of the Zoo-Hippodrome, Glasgow, has at present on view that mysterious hybrid animal which for want of a more definite name has been called the Uneeka. When sold at Tattersall's it realised £1,350, and an offer of £2,000 by Barnum and Bailey was afterwards refused for it. The animal is of special interest, both to people of scientific views and to the general public.

At the Coliseum, Glasgow, on Sunday Mr. Harry Burdette, resident-manager, organised an excellent concert in aid of the Unemployed Relief Fund. Bailie Archibald Campbell presided over a large audience. The programme included selections by a male-voice choir and numerous vocal and instrumental solos, while the contributions of the Coliseum Orchestra under Mr. Tom Walker were among the most enjoyable items.

A fire broke out on Monday afternoon at Lunéville Theatre during a cinematograph performance. It was noticed by the firemen on duty that a Soffit curtain had caught fire, and they quietly told the management to inform the spectators that the projecting apparatus had broken down, and the performance could not go on. The public left the theatre without suspecting that there was anything wrong. A few minutes afterwards the whole theatre was a mass of flames, nothing but the four walls being left standing. The coolness of the firemen avoided a catastrophe.

The National Music Publishing Company has acquired Mr. Fred Elton's 100-guinea song, entitled "When the leaves are tinged with gold." This they are making free for pantomime. They have also arranged with Mr. George Lashwood for an immediate production of two entirely original numbers, entitled "Nicolo, Nicolo, play on your piccolo," and "If it's a lady." Principal boys or girls should not overlook last year's tremendous success at the Princess Theatre, Glasgow, "My Little Eva." Among other numbers free for pantomime are "I wish I had a pal like you," "Call round any old time," "Kate, will you roller-skate?" and "I don't want to go on the Flip-Flap."

THE TIVOLI.

Cosmopolitanism reigns in most music-hall programmes, but there is something specially English about the scheme of amusement that Manager Joe Wilson is just now presenting. We know that Little Tich is an accomplished linguist, and that his artistic conceptions of character have won the praise of no less a master of comedy than Coquelin aîné; but at the Tivoli he is decidedly British, and presents types that are easily understood of the people. His "Keeper at the Zoo" touches the risible faculties immediately, and it forms a subject on which much more diverting gag and business might be grafted. The "Park-keeper" has very much developed in its broad drollery since we first laughed at its oddities. The sketch of character has increased unction, and the whimsical nature of the business throughout proves how much the possibilities of a number may be developed in the hands of a real comedian. As a final item, in answer to the strenuous demands of packed audiences Little Tich has to lengthen his turn by his remarkably clever assumption of "Miss Turpentine," a lady of the ballet who, like the aunt of Charles Surface, sets a value upon herself. It was an East End audience that first laughed at the germs of this really clever parody; but the West End has now set the seal of its approval upon its fun.

Mr. Wilkie Bard is exploiting a very amusing song, "Sea Shells," in which those who sing the chorus are likely to get their tongues in a tangle; Mr. Harry Randall has the house entirely with him in his patter song, "The Parlour Queen"; and Mr. Phill Ray's abbreviated English is as funny as ever. Mr. Tom Woottwell, the globe-trotting comedian, has a quaint item in "Not a word"; and Mr. George Robey keeps the house in a roar with his lion-tamer song.

Miss Millie Hylton has a real comedy song in "If I weren't so ladylike," to which she does complete justice. She wears two magnificent costumes, and the taste exhibited in these creations of the couturier's art is unexceptionable. One is in a lovely shade of grey—but it is not for the mere man to attempt the description of such lovely confections. There is probably nothing in which the variety stage has advanced so much as in the stage costumes of its lady stars. In the language of the Boulevards, Miss Hylton's dresses are le dernier cri. Miss Sadie Jerome gives a short entertainment in which she describes the walks of the Parisienne, the athletic girl, and Maud Allan. She appeals in another song to the Man in the Moon. This astronomical gentleman is becoming very popular. Miss Daisy Jerome is effective in her dramatic song; Miss Madoline Rees is pursuing her career as a comedienne with much success; and Miss Madge Grey's stories concerning the Kiddies are heartily welcomed. Marcel and Boris combine cleverly the art of hand-balancing and musical selections; and Selbo, a clever club juggler, on the night of our visit took the place of Paul Cinquevalli. Mr. Ernest Shand rouses the echoes with his quaint "parson" song; and the Poluski Brothers burlesque the illustrated song with much success, one of the brothers assisting the fun from the grand circle. Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope presents a series of interesting pictures. Mr. James Howell's courtesy in front and the excellent work of the band under Mr. Walter Johnson are features of the Tivoli management that should not be overlooked.

Frame, of "Hooch aye" fame, finishes his successful vaudeville tour of Scotland at (the Tail o' the Bank) Greenock, to-day.

Mr. J. H. Leroy, the Australian high trapeze performer, has finished a successful summer with John Penfold, and is resting until fresh engagements.

Madame Isobel, of 48, Shaftesbury-avenue, Piccadilly, W., is a new aspirant for fame in the world of theatrical dress. Costumes on the stage are growing more elaborate every day, and it is a necessity with the artist to consult a mistress of taste and ingenuity. Madame Isobel guarantees the latest styles and lowest prices.

The gaiety of Paris was further enhanced by the production of the new revue at the Moulin Rouge last week. It was especially interesting to the English auditors, as the cast included Fred Wright, jun., who was formerly a great Gaiety favourite, and now has firmly placed himself as a Parisian star of the first magnitude. His pantomime scene and dances with Gaby des Lys, who was also at the Gaiety, made the distinct hit of the performance, and was received by rounds of applause and half a dozen calls before the curtain. Mr. John Tiller's Manchester Mites have established themselves as great favourites, and make one of the successes of the revue. Among the songs introduced were "He's my pal," "Cupid is the captain of the army," "Way down in Colon Town," "Kiss, kiss, kiss," "I could learn to love a soldier," all published by M. Witmark and Sons, and also "Has anyone seen a German band?" which is controlled by the Whitmark Paris House.

WINNIE STANHOPE.

A UNIQUE TURN.

A FEW PRESS OPINIONS.

Winnie Stanhope, who has lately joined the music halls, is a dainty and fascinating little lady with a style quite her own. Her French song, which she delivers in a truly chic manner, is most exhilarating, and it should be, considering it was written by those talented authors Harrington and Powell. Then there's "A Lot to Learn," by Leigh and Pether, in itself a creation, and a saucy little monologue "Beautiful Stories of Love"; and as a fillip we get a military comedy song of the first water, into which Winnie introduces the sword exercise as done in the Army, and very smart it is.

WINNIE STANHOPE.

Miss Stanhope has had varied experience, being on the stage from childhood; has played in comic opera, musical comedy, drama, farcical comedy, burlesque, and is one of the best principal girls Pantomime can introduce, so she can claim to be a very versatile artist. Her dresses are in quite the best of style and taste.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE OXFORD.

Mr. Will Evans is adding much to the gaiety of Londoners, and incidentally of many of their country cousins, by his comic behaviour as the better half of Mr. Brown, who is waiting up in her feather-stitched nighty for that lagging husband, determined to give him a taste of "Mrs. Morgan's Cure" for the staying late at the club propensities of the husband of the British matron. The scene is a hall and staircase in a "desirable" residence in a southern suburb, and it is evident that Mrs. Brown means business by the playful way in which she handles a poker. With this weapon she proposes to administer tincture of iron in a more solidified form than is usual, and poor Brown, who is probably drowning care at the nearest pub., but little anticipates his warm reception. While waiting we hear some interesting particulars of Mrs. Morgan and her methods, which excite continuous laughter; and the more boisterous fun commences with the arrival of a gentleman whose potations have been deep and frequent. He has a warm time, and while he is being belaboured, another tipsy reveller invades the domestic hearth of the vigorous Mrs. Brown. He is none other than Brown. The first is Morgan. Mrs. Brown soon discovers her mistake, but when she tackles Mr. Brown she finds she has caught a tartar, and the curtain falls upon a mirthful melée. There is plenty of exuberant drollery in the concoction, which is from the pens of Messrs. Neville Piggott and George Arthurs.

Mr. Ernest Shand is exploiting his "last pub" song with immense success. There is many a true word spoken in jest; and it is evident that among the audience there are a large number of opponents of the bill, who vigorously applaud any sentence of condemnation passed by the comedian. In "What would the congregation say?" Mr. Shand has a curate's song in which the worldliness of both the vicar and his subordinate are very humorously and unctuously described.

Miss Mabel Bright, a dainty little girl, accompanies herself at the piano, and is generally concerned with coon songs and dances; Miss Edie King is a delightful dancer; and Miss Florence Esdaile, a prima donna who hails from the country of Melba, sings with much brio and culture.

Mr. Harry Randall has another great success in his "Parlour Queen" song. The lady monarch in this instance is the "general," who keeps the missus and the master completely under her thumb. She is an engaging little pet, gowned in pink cotton, and her "talk" evokes roars of laughter. Mr. George Robey's lion-tamer becomes a more amusing personage every week; and Mr. Wilkie Bard's business in his latest item, "She sells seashells on the seashore," convulses the house. Miss Alexandra Dagmar is quite up-to-date with an expressive and brilliant rendering of her new song, "A Marriage of Mayfair," well written by George Arthurs and Orlando Powell; and there are cheers in abundance for M. Van Biene, the actor-musician, in the playlet by Thos. Broadhurst, The Master Musician. In this he plays the 'cello like the great artist he is. Mr. Phil Ray's abbreviated gags are better understood perhaps at the Oxford than at any other hall; Miss May Mars is popular in her songs; the Poluski Brothers present successfully a new entertainment, entitled "Pictures"; and Foreman and Fannan's gags touch the springs of laughter. Miss Ethel Whiteside's piccanninnies dance uncommonly well; and there is plenty of entertainment to be found in Howard and Collinson's duologue, The Porter and the Parcel. Other attractions in the fine bill presented by the popular Mr. Blyth-Pratt are the San Remo Girls, a trio of fascinating comediennes and dancers; Miss Nora Guy, comedienne; Little Tich, labelled as the world's leading comedian; the episode Christmas Eve; and Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope, with some capital films.

HOLLOWAY EMPIRE.

The programmes at this popular hall are still maintained at a high level of excellence, and the audiences are, as a consequence, very large, seats being at a premium. Clark and Hamilton are at the top of the bill, and this popular couple score as big a success as ever with their patter, singing, and playing. Their reception was very hearty on Monday, and for an encore an effective Japanese scena was given. Bennie Barron, a youthful baritone, proved himself the possessor of a powerful voice, his singing of "Thora" being marked by great taste. The Ten Zerbinis, Continental speciality artists, present a very effective and gorgeous novelty entitled The Enchanted Glen. As instrumentalists their abilities are very great, and a large number of selections were very cordially received. An item of the act that caused great amusement was a burlesque of Sousa, very capitally done by one of the youthful members of the company, the same gentleman also giving a clever dance. Needless to say, the whole turn went with a swing, and was well greeted at the close.

Millie Payne, low comedy queen, scored an unmistakable hit in her two songs, "Tea-cup" and a number on the "Directoire" craze, the audience being loth to let her go. F. W. Purcell's company present the successful comedietta That Brute Simmons. The trifle is capitally written, and caused unlimited laughter, a result that Miss Oliph Webb and Messrs. Julian Cross and George Delaforce have to be thanked for, the acting by these three experienced players being altogether admirable. Another comedy sketch, Her Birthday, also figures in the programme, being performed by Miss Minnie Hunt and Mr. Rhys Thomas. This also was responsible for a good deal of laughter, and was smartly played.

Bonnie Goodwin's four real Apollo Piccaninnies, in a clever dancing act, with the assistance of Miss Lily Vine, gave a wonderful exhibition for such youthful artists, and secured a great reception that was well deserved. Walter King, comedian, who opened the programme, did well, his patter creating much amusement. Miss Marie Dainton, who is at the bottom of the bill, gives an interesting series of imitations, including Harry Lauder, Marie Lloyd, Connie Ediss, Evie Green, Hayden Coffin, &c. Her very faithful portrayals created great enthusiasm, and the gifted lady had to concede several encores. The Bioscope is amusing this week, and Mr. Camp's excellent orchestra renders valuable assistance throughout the evening.

RICHMOND HIPPODROME.

Despite Mr. George Dance's multifarious engagements he finds time to keep a watchful eye on his Richmond venture, and a good bill is the rule rather than the exception. Mystery is represented by a somewhat wonderful example of blackboard magic; in truth "Bhudda's Blackboard" is altogether mystifying, as in addition to replying to queries in caligraphic characters and removing all evidence at will from "Bhudda's Blackboard," the most satisfactory reply seemed to be the fate of the present Government, "How long will the present Government last?" queried someone of the audience athirst for information. "Two months," was the reply. Gus Harriss touched vocally on the Chosen Race. Francis and Alfred bring a lot of fun to bear on their balancing tricks, and are exceedingly clever. There is little in this peculiar line of business that Francis and Alfred do not know, and their methods are generally clean-cut and entirely praiseworthy.

Athas and Collins are popular and refreshingly funny; the "scarecrow" of Athas is quite a droll impersonation. A burlesque melodrama is smartly rattled through by this talented couple, and a coon song and dance raised the audience to a pitch of enthusiasm, and an encore was inevitable. Quite a gossip is Cullpitt, who combines conjuring with cajolery, and wins a lot of applause, which no one grudges. Cullpitt may be complimented on his effrontery and good humour. Mr. J. Drinkwater sings with plenty of spirit and dresses the part well; to this may be traced the reason for his well-deserved popularity.

Probably the funniest item in the bill is the exasperating cleverness of Mooney and Holbein's company, for they would draw smiles from a Stoic. There are four in this remarkably humorous crowd, and everyone works for dear life—and the amusement of the audience. The hit of the sketch belongs to an irresponsible nigger, whose difficulties in vending the succulent bivalve are the source of trouble and joy. The Bioscope is excellent.

CAMBERWELL EMPIRE.

A distinct feature of the entertainment at the Camberwell Empire this week is furnished by Mr. Herbert Cottesmore's company in The Old Willow Plate, an operatic phantasy, written by Robert Wilford, with music by Mark Strong. This little musical comedy, which was seen for the first time on Monday, is produced on a very elaborate scale. An excellent representaion of a large willow plate, of the dimensions of a full act drop, is first placed before our view. It dissolves, and reveals an exceedingly pretty and picturesque Chinese house and garden. This scene, as well as the opening one, is a capital piece of artistic work on the part of Mr. Francis Bull. The Old Willow Plate tells the story of a Chinese legend many centuries old, and shows that the course of true love, even in those ancient days, never ran smooth. Li-Chi, the daughter of a Chinese mandarin, falls in love with Chang, her father's secretary, but the mandarin, having other intentions regarding his daughter's future, upon discovering the state of affairs discharges Chang, who, before departing promises Li-Chi that he will return before the peach trees are in bloom. Six months elapse and we find the peach trees in full blossom, and Tajui, a wealthy noble selected by the mandarin as a fitting husband for his daughter, arrives to claim his bride. Li-Chi receives no tidings of Chang, her betrothed, but in the nick of time he arrives in a magic boat, fashioned by the aid of the Goddess of Love from the shell of a cocoanut. The lovers are about to elope when they are intercepted by the mandarin, who calls upon the God of Thunder to destroy them; but the Goddess of Love, true to her promise, transforms them into two doves, who, we are told, are to live and love for ever. The piece is extremely well acted, and the vocal numbers, notably "Whisper it, Bluebell," "Good-night," "A beach tree," and "Two doves," are rendered in fine style.

There are several other interesting items in the programme. Little Victoria, the "bijou comedienne," repeats her success of last week at the Middlesex, her delivery of "Will you buy a bunch of shamrock?" and "Take me on the flip-flap" being most pleasing to the ear. Mr. Ronald Bagnall tells some amusing stories and sings to his own accompaniment; and Wills and Warlock are seen and heard to advantage in a capital comedy dancing act. Haley's Prize Juveniles appear in a beautiful garden scene, and sing and dance in a most attractive manner, their numbers, "Annie Laurie" and "Moonlight," being especially worthy of commendation. Miss Rose Hamilton creates quite a diversion in her ditty, "Don't you think you would like to marry me now?" in which she gives a laughable burlesque of a tragic actress. On her second appearance, this time as a comely Chinese "boy," she delights her hearers with her rendering of "Sing, song See." Mr. Fred Ellis cuts a comical figure as a landlady, and in the song connected therewith, as well as in his other effort, proves highly entertaining. Pearce and Ward in a comedy and burlesque turn arouse in no small degree the risible susceptibilities of the audience; and Mr. Charles Clark, character comedian, wins loud applause for his hunting song. The Arthur-Bedini Trio are seen and admired in a smart and original pantomimic juggling act; and Jeapes' animated graphic brings the evening to a close by a splendid exhibition of pictures.

THE SOUTH LONDON.

Feats of strength and daring are pleasing the patrons of the old-established hall in London-road, where Mr. William Payne so efficiently discharges the difficult duties attaching to the post of manager. The strong man of the bill is Luis Hardt, who makes the significant statement that he cured himself of consumption when in the second stage of that disease by the practice of physical culture. He now presents a muscular specimen of humanity, and exhibits his remarkable development of biceps under a powerful light. Amid a picturesque setting he indulges in novel feats of strength, in one of which he lifts an attendant weighing considerably over 10st. at arm's length above his head. His final feat is the most extraordinary, and consists of sustaining no less than five men, three of whom are clad in real armour, the total weight aggregating nearly to half a ton. The clever performance is loudly and deservedly cheered.

Similar honours await the long-famous Menotti, who precedes a thrilling wire performance by a little target-practice, in the course of which, while seated in a chair balanced on its back legs, he puts out the candle-lights held by an assistant at the other end of the stage. Menotti's chief sensation is reached when he mounts his twentieth-century bicycle track. It consists of a single wire, which is propelled at a rapid rate by electricity, while Menotti, mounted on a bicycle, pedals in an opposite direction. The result is that the performer appears to be stationary, though in reality he is travelling at the rate of forty miles an hour. It is an intrepid feat, and is deservedly acclaimed. Miss Daisy Jerome is a welcome contributor to the bill. Her coon carol, "Can't go home in the dark," is rendered with irresistible point, and is succeeded by the descriptive song, "Temptation." An encore brings forth the popular "Do, re, mi, fa," in the chorus of which the audience revel.

The comedy novelty of Hunter and Maris embraces a series of clever side flip-flaps on the part of the comedian, who is also responsible for a couple of fearful and wonderful appearances while his lady partner is indulging in a song. Mr. Fred Shepard rejoices in the description of "the distinct comedy vocalist," and proves his right to the appellation by rendering two comic songs in a way that makes their humour fully apparent, the possibilities of the phrase, "Lor, lumme, look at that!" being fully tested. "Artful Aladdin" introduces Cromo and Hamilton in a singing and dancing act plentifully furnished with comedy, which is broadened by the comedian clothing his ample proportions in a "Gibson Girl" dress, and passing humorous comments on various portions of his anatomy. The sketch for the week is provided by Mr. Charles Worland's company, in Cromwell or the King, those two famous melodramatic associates, Mr. Ashley Page and Miss Marion Denvil, exercising a great impression in the principal rôles. Wilman plays the cornet and other brass instruments with great skill, and the programme is contributed to by the Lester Bros., capital pictures being furnished by Ruffell's Bioscope.

"THE REPTILE'S DEVOTION."

Dramatic Sketch, produced by Mr. Robert Trebor at the Empire Hippodrome, Gainsborough, on Monday, Oct. 19.

King of Umpah .....Mr. Robert Trebor
Mahmud .....Mr. Clifford North
Captain Montague .....Mr. Bert Oates
Princess Cleo .....Miss Kitty Fraser

The Reptile's Devotion, a sketch which was produced with considerable success at the Empire Hippodrome, Gainsborough, on Monday, is an artistic and romantic petite drama of Eastern life, and is of a decidedly more refined nature than the usual run of sketches, and given the advantage of a longer stage and more elaborate lighting effects, the success would have been greatly enhanced.

The scene is laid in Eastern climes, at the palace of the King of Umpah, who is madly in love with a Princess Cleo and anxious to make her his Queen. She, however, having met Captain Montague, an English officer, has renounced her old faith and become a Christian. She eventually escapes from the King's Court with Montague. The King, incensed at his discomfiture, sentences her to be tortured by reptiles. Captain Montague, overhearing this decree, disguises himself as Mahmud, one of the King's trusted servants, and obtaining the reptiles for the carrying out of the sentence, substitutes for them some tame snakes belonging to the Princess, knowing they will not harm her. Consequently the Princess, although undergoing the ordeal, is unharmed. The King, enraged at the apparent futility of his intended torture, approaches the Princess, whereupon the snakes which are coiled round her immediately attack him, causing him to fall dead on the spot. Princess Cleo is then proclaimed Queen, and her followers swear their allegiance and adopt the Christian faith.

Miss Kitty Fraser as Princess Cleo gave a graceful rendering of the part. She was artistically dressed, and the portion in which she was supposed to be in the clutches of the deadly serpents was presented in a clever and weird manner. Mr. Robert Trebor was a powerful representative of the cruel ruler, the King of Umpah; and Mr. Bert Oates as Captain Montague played the part in a straightforward and effective style. The scenery carried by Mr. Trebor consists of an excellently built-up representation of a Moorish Palace. The dresses are elaborate and tasteful, and the incidental music by Mr. Arthur Workman is appropriate.

THE L.C.C. AND AMUSEMENTS.

The London County Council met on Tuesday at the County Hall, Spring Gardens, Mr. R. A. Robinson (chairman) presiding.

RESIGNATION OF MR. REYNOLDS.

The Theatres and Music-Halls Committee reported that they regretted that Mr. Walter Reynolds had found it necessary to resign. They would report later as to filling the vacancy.

EXPLOSIVES.

The Committee reported that during the quarter ended Sept. 30 last explosives and dangerous substances were found to be in use in licensed premises on sixty-five occasions. In most cases the arrangements were found to be satisfactory, but it had been found necessary to take Police Court proceedings against one of the exhibitors at the Franco-British Exhibition on account of non-compliance with the regulations as to the storage of petroleum spirit.

FINSBURY PARK EMPIRE.

The Council have already approved plans submitted by Messrs. F. Matcham and Co. on behalf of Moss' Empires, Ltd., showing the arrangements proposed to be adopted in the erection of a music-hall to be known as the Finsbury Park Empire on a site at the junction of St. Thomas's-road and Prah-road, Finsbury Park. Application for a music and dancing licence for the premises was made at the Licensing Sessions in 1905, 1906, and 1907, but was refused. The application will be renewed at the Licensing Sessions, to be held in November, 1908, and the Council is asked to renew its approval of the drawings in question. The Theatres and Music-Halls Committee consider that the request may be complied with, and recommended accordingly.

The recommendation, which was agreed to, provided that the usual requirements of the Council were carried out.

INSPECTION.

The Committee reported that the expenditure incurred during the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1908, in connection with visits to unlicensed premises to ascertain whether public music or dancing was given thereat, and in connection with reports upon the character of the performances at licensed premises, amounted to £2 12s. 3d.

KILBURN VAUDEVILLE THEATRE.

The Committee reported that they had considered drawings submitted by Mr. W. G. R. Sprague, showing slight modifications of the Kilburn Priory elevation of the proposed Kilburn Vaudeville Theatre. They recommended that the Council has no objection to the arrangements shown on the five drawings submitted by Mr. Sprague with regard to the proposed modification of the Kilburn Priory frontage of the proposed Kilburn Vaudeville Theatre, provided that the means of escape from the flies be completed either by making the door to the manager's office at the stage level open outwards and fitting it with automatic fastenings, or by providing a means of exit on to the flat roof of the office, and the door to the gas-meter chamber be of fire-resisting materials and be made self-closing.

The recommendation was approved.

SANITARY CONVENIENCES IN THEATRES.

The Public Health Committee reported: We are informed that the Theatres and Music-Halls Committee have, from time to time, had before them the question of the unsuitability and insufficiency of sanitary conveniences in exhibitions, theatres, and similar places of public resort, not only for use by the public but for artists, and recently a similar question has been brought prominently into notice in connection with the Franco-British Exhibition. We understand that the Theatres and Music-Halls Committee in the past have fixed the number of conveniences which they deemed necessary in theatres and music-halls which, upon their recommendation, have been licensed by the Council; but, in the case of the Franco-British Exhibition, no requirements were made, and we are advised that neither the Council nor the sanitary authority has power to require provision of sanitary convenience adequate for the use both of employees and of the public seeking admission. We regard the matter of such importance that we strongly urge the Council to secure an amendment of the law in the direction indicated. We have been in communication with the Theatres and Music Halls Committee, but that Committee do not see their way to concur in our proposal.

The Council sat until a very late hour; and at 11.20 p.m. Sir John Benn moved the adjournment as a protest against the proposal to postpone the above report, threatening that his party would leave the Council chamber. The motion for the adjournment was defeated, and only three Progressives returned to the chamber.

Mr. Edward Smith then demanded a count, but Mr. Peel warmly protested, declaring that the Progressives were attempting to stop work which it was proposed should be given to the unemployed.

A scene of great confusion followed.

Sir John Benn said it was all nonsense about this work for the unemployed.

The Council was then counted, and there being only fifty-six members present, due to the fact that the Progressives remained outside the Council chamber, the chairman said they could take only unopposed business, and this was accordingly done.

ANOTHER COINCIDENCE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—May I point out yet another instance of the strange things that happen in connection with similar productions. Some time ago I copyrighted a Chinese musical romance at a suburban music hall. The week after my announcement appeared in your paper the notice of a forthcoming Chinese musical production was announced, the title, of four words only, varying by one. A strange coincidence, was it not? But, stranger still, when the production of this second operetta took place it happened to be at the very suburban hall where mine was copyrighted. Coincidence again! I find that the same scenic artist, who had my model from the beginning of July, is the artist who has painted the same scene for this other production. Strange to say, the libretto, music, and lyrics are not similar; but, then, my romance has no libretto, and no one has heard the words of the songs or the music.—Yours faithfully,

EUGENIE MAGNUS.

MR. MARTINO EXPLAINS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—Can you find space in your valuable columns to publish this letter in reference to a statement made by the Variety Artists' Federation in the last issue of The Performer to the effect that I did not accept the Federation office copy in the given time?

I beg to say that the office copy in question was accepted by me on sight, and since September 11, 1908, my old office copies have been altered in accordance with it. Surely there could be no better form of acceptance than this. My omitting to give the Federation my acceptance in writing was due to pressure of business and illness. —Thanking you in anticipation, yours faithfully,

FREDERIC MARTINO.

Martino's Agency, 125, Barcroft-street, Grimsby, Oct. 20.

One guinea has been received from Mr. H. Gomm in aid of the Fred Miller Testimonial.

A new dramatic and fairy spectacle is in preparation for immediate production at Hengler's Circus, in succession to the scena, The Dispatch Bearer. It is written by Mr. Austin Fryers, and composed by Mr. Denham Harrison.

The Musical Palmers have this week been playing their latest success, The Village Blacksmith, to a series of pictures illustrating Longfellow's verses, at the Metropole Theatre, Manchester, where the novelty has been highly appreciated.

Miss Maude May Murray is appearing at the Curzon Hall, Birmingham, in her beautiful electrical production, "Visions," and "The Dance of Light. Nothing so beautiful and effective has ever been seen at this hall before. She appears in flowing robes of white silk and dances in a most charming and graceful manner. She is received at every performance with the greatest enthusiasm.

Mme. Patti, who will appear at the Albert Hall on Nov. 4, when she has promised Father Vaughan that she will sing at the concert he and his committee are arranging on behalf of starving children, will be supported by a number of other well-known artists. Included in the programme will be Miss Maria Wadia, M. Zacharewitsch, and Mr. Wilhelm Ganz, all of whom—like Patti herself—are giving their services.

The Awards. The three interim Awards and the final Award, corrected and revised by George Ranken Askwith, Esq., the official arbitrator appointed in the Music Hall Dispute, may be had in pamphlet form at "The Era" Offices. Copy, including postage, three-half-pence. Address: The Publisher, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

MASONS AT WORK.

The last regular meeting of the session of the Chelsea Lodge of Freemasons was held at the Town Hall, Chelsea, on Friday (16th), the Lodge being constituted by Mr. Henry Coutts, W.M., Serpentello, I.P.M., W. H. Hitch, S.W., W. H. Atlas, Acting J.W. (in the absence of Mr. Harry Bawn in America), Wolfe S. Lyon, Treasurer, C. J. Doughty, Secretary, W. F. K. Walton, S.D., Douglas White Acting J.D., Fred Clay, D.C., B. A. Bigny, I.G., Angelo Asher, Organist, L. G. Sharpe and E. T. R. Lester, Stewards, J. H. McNaughton, Tyler.

The W.M. initiated Mr. Bertie Ralland, of the Holloway Empire, into the mysteries of the order, advanced Mr. Will Catling, and further advanced Messrs. Will Stone, Bowker Andrews, and Sydney Chaplin, being assisted at the latter ceremony by Mr. Herbert Chenery, who delivered the traditional history. The W.M. announced his intention of representing the Lodge at the annual festival in aid of the Royal Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons, and in response to his announcement the Treasurer stated that he was pleased to say the finances of the Lodge were in a sound condition, and proposed that twenty-five guineas should be placed on the Master's list, which was carried unanimously.

There was a fair attendance of the members, including Messrs. Dan Lipton, Fred Neiman, W. Collinson, Sydney Chaplin, J. W. Ellison, J. Laurie Graydon, C. H. Burton, Herbert Austin, Harry Gold, H. Leslie Bell, J. Grant, Harry Kato, Willie Benn, Frank Hardie, W Permane, Andie Cane, B. J. Whiteley, J. S. Lyon, &c., and as visitors Messrs. R. Whittaker (237), Norman Walters (2579), C. E. Hodges (346, San Francisco), W. G. Mendel (1705), G. W. Peachey (2524), and Chas. Cohan (219, Glasgow). An emergency meeting will be held at the Town Hall, Chelsea, on Friday, Nov. 28, at 1 p.m., when the whole of the ceremonies will be performed.

At the final performance at the Olympian Gardens, Rhyl, Mr. Eric Charlswood, the local manager for Messrs. Adeler and Sutton, thanked the public for the hearty support they had extended to the entertainments. He also announced that he would resume his duties as manager in Rhyl next season.

UNLICENSED PLAYS.

In the Cambridge Police-court on Monday three persons were summoned at the instance of the Theatrical Managers' Association for alleged infringements of the law governing the public performance of stage plays. Thomas Askham, coach-builder, of the Cambridge Hippodrome, was summoned for, on Sept. 16 and 19, having or keeping the Hippodrome for the public performance of stage plays without authority from His Majesty, or without licence from the Lord Chamberlain or from the Cambs County Council. George Leslie and Miss Violet Lisle were summoned that on Sept. 19 they did act or present a new stage play called by the name of True as Steel, or an act, scene, or part thereof, without the same having been allowed by the Lord Chamberlain. Gerald Leslie, described as a stage artist, of the Hippodrome, Auckland-road, was summoned that on Sept. 16 he did act or present part of a stage play called Sally in Our Alley at the Hippodrome, an unlicensed building. Gerald Leslie was also summoned for a similar offence in respect of the stage play called True as Steel.

Mr. H. Bodkin, instructed by Messrs. Stanley Woodhouse and Hedderwick, prosecuted for the Theatrical Managers' Association, and Mr. H. St. J. Raikes, instructed by Mr. Ernest Vinter, defended Miss Lsle and Leslie. The defendant Askham was unrepresented.

Mr. Bodkin read the following bill, which he remarked was dated Oct. 19:—

"THE LIFE OF AN ACTOR.

"The story is the companion one to the Life of an Actress, and fully explains the vicissitudes experienced by the struggling Actors of to-day, who, after winning the Public's favour, are often the victims of jealous rivals, who endeavour by foul means to crush them."

Mr. John H. Riley, 38, Maida Vale, London, an actor of forty years' experience, said he visited the Hippodrome on Sept. 16, and paid 1s. admission and 1d. for a programme. The programme set out the details of a piece called Sally in Our Alley. On the bills Sally in Our Alley was called "a grand episode, appealing to all." On the 19th he was also present when True as Steel was advertised. On the top of the bill he found Mr. Askham described as proprietor, Miss Violet Lisle as lessee, and Mr. Gerald Leslie as manager for Miss Lisle. On both occasions he saw the first of the two nightly performances. In Sally in Our Alley there were six characters and eight scenes, and the piece took thirty-five minutes to perform. Witness knew nothing about the piece before he went. The scenery was "more or less" appropriate to the scenes presented. Asked to describe the piece, witness said the lawyer of the piece was a lawyer.

Mr. Bodkin: Of course. (Laughter.) It does not say what branch of the profession, I take it?

Witness: Oh, I believe he was a conveyancing lawyer.

Mr. Bodkin: Ah! That is the worst type—quite the worst type. (Laughter.) And does the piece proceed to disclose to what depths of infamy even a conveyancing lawyer can sink?

"Yes, sir," replied the witness cheerfully, and proceeded to give a synopsis of a lurid plot with humorous emphasis. Miss Violet Lisle was the heroine and Mr. Gerald Leslie the hero. The end of the piece was the triumph of virtue over villainy.

Mr. Bodkin: There is nothing more common in dramatic representation than the triumph of virtue over vice?

Witness: I don't think so, sir. I don't think you would get much popularity without.

Mr. Bodkin: Well, I don't know. At the present time if you break the law it seems you will get more popularity than if you don't.

The witness proceeded to describe the piece True as Steel, which he saw at the Hippodrome on Sept. 19. There were six speaking parts. A well-known melodrama, very popular thirty or forty years ago, was entitled True as Steel. In the last ten years it had been played very considerably in the smaller towns of England. The piece True as Steel at the Hippodrome bore not the slightest resemblance to the melodrama of that name, and included a representation of a gas chamber similar to that in the well-known play Sherlock Holmes. This piece took thirty-five minutes to perform.

Mr. Bodkin: From your experience, and having seen each of those plays—in your judgment, do they present dramatic incidents?

Witness: Yes, certainly. There is a well-defined plot, carried through to its logical conclusion.

Mr. F. S. Osgood, employed in the office of the Lord Chamberlain in London, spoke to searching in the records of the office for a play named True as Steel. A play of that name was filed in 1871, and he produced the manuscript of it. He had read the manuscript, and found that it was not in the least like that described by Mr. Riley. Another play, a comedy, was licensed in the name of True as Steel. That also bore no resemblance to the play described by Mr. Riley.

The magistrates were unanimously of opinion that the defendant on Sept. 16 and 19 did keep the Hippodrome for the public performance of stage plays without a licence.

It was decided that the cases against Miss Lisle and Gerald Leslie should be taken together.

Mr. Riley was cross-examined by Mr. Raikes upon the agreement between the Theatrical Managers in London and the managers of music halls, but witness said he had no more knowledge of the agreement than the man in the street. He was not informed that managers of music halls might perform sketches lasting not more than thirty-five minutes, with no more than six speaking parts.

In each case pleas of not guilty were entered. The evidence given previously was taken as having been given in the remaining cases.

The chairman, on the magistrates' return to court after an absence of thirty-five minutes, announced that Askham would be fined £5 5s., including costs. In the first case against Leslie the fine would be £2 2s., and in the second case £1 1s., both including costs. Leslie and Miss Lisle would each be fined £1 1s., including costs.

Notice of appeal was given in respect of the four summonses against Mr. Leslie and Miss Lisle, and the magistrates fixed the amount of the sureties as £20 in each case. The fines were paid.

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

The first item in the Students' Concert on Wednesday evening was a pianoforte solo, "Il moto continuo" (R. Steggall), skilfully played by Miss Millie Flower. In Finden's song, "A Request," Miss Minnie Cox displayed much intelligence; and Miss Mimie Köhler was greatly applauded for her singing of "My dear soul." Grieg's "Sonata for pianoforte and violin in G major" was ably executed by Miss Doris Cloud, a clever pupil of Mr. Johannes Wolff. Miss Cloud was well supported by Mr. R. Stuart Welch on the pianoforte. The young performers were most successful in the second movement, Allegretto tranquillo. "Highland Mary," by Sunnington, was carefully sung by Mr. H. L. E. Lopresti; while Miss Ada Eshelby Phillips received a very hearty recall for her singing of Beethoven's "Busslied." Miss Emmeline Forster gave a neat and finished interpretation of Mendelssohn's piano solo "Andante cantabile and Presto agitato"; and Mr. A. Gourlay used his pleasing voice intelligently but with little dramatic feeling in the Prologue to Pagliacci. Miss Jenny Hyman was the accompanist, and the concert ended with an effective little duologue of Herbert Swears entitled Pansy, brightly acted by Misses Ellen Rice and Hilda Brooker, two promising pupils of Miss Kate Rorke.

JUDGE AND THE DANCING GIRL.

Some amusement was caused at the Southwark County Court on Tuesday, during the hearing of Brydge v. Dodsworth, an action brought by Mrs. Ellen Ann Brydge, a teacher of professional dancing, of Waleran Buildings, Old Kent-road. She claimed damages in respect of an alleged breach of contract on the part of William Dodsworth, a chemist's assistant, of Grosvenor-terrace, Camberwell, whose daughter the plaintiff taught dancing.

Mrs. Brydge handed up to his Honour Judge Willis, K.C., the written contract between the defendant and herself, by which the man's daughter was to work for the plaintiff for two years, Mr. Dodsworth to pay Mrs. Brydge one-third of the money his daughter earned during that time.

"Who is Mlle. Eleanor Estelle, première danseuse?" asked his Honour, reading from the contract.

Plaintiff: That is my professional name. Mrs. Brydge said that not only had the girl been taken away from her, but she had not been paid the third of the wages she had earned.

The defendant agreed that he had entered into the contract, but said that Mrs. Brydge had sublet his daughter to another man without his sanction. According to the contract she was to stop with the plaintiff. Mrs. Brydge said that the young lady danced at the Paragon and in another place with the father's consent.

The plaintiff signified that the judge had guessed correctly, and said that on account of the girl refusing to return to her she lost an engagement at the Southend Kursaal for the Sylvia Girls, of which Miss Dodsworth was a member.

Defendant told his Honour that his daughter had had to pay for her board and lodging, and she had used what she earned for herself. Girls in this business did about six weeks' work in the year, and often got stranded in "foreign" places.

The plaintiff said that parents expected their children to go on the stage directly they started learning.

Judge Willis: Is this the first she has earned for you?

Plaintiff: No; she went away for pantomime, and earned 30s. a week, out of which I deducted my share and gave her the £1.

The father said he was willing for his daughter to go back till the end of the two years.

In the end his Honour gave judgment for the plaintiff for the £2 16s. 8d. claimed, and said that he hoped the little hearing in court would lead to an increase of happiness for the ladies concerned.

Plaintiff: I still have the umbrella, your Honour, but it is not broken (Laughter.)

Mrs. Brydge agreed to accept payment of the debt by small monthly amounts.

EXHIBITION TICKETS STOLEN.

Sydney George Kingham, 27, clerk, of 5A, Clarendon-square, St. Pancras, and Charles Nuttall, 24, clerk, of 4, Collingbourne-row, Shepherd's Bush, were charged on remand, before Mr. Garrett, at West London, with stealing and receiving from the administrative offices at the Franco-British Exhibition 400 entrance tickets, worth £20, belonging to the Exhibition authorities.

Mr. Oswald Hanson (Hanson and Smith) prosecuted, and Mr. Pierron (Pierron and Ellis) represented the accused, who pleaded guilty.

It was stated that both the defendants were in the accountant's department at the Exhibition, and it appeared that for some weeks Kingham had been disposing of an enormous number of tickets, chiefly at a club at Camden Town, of which he was a member.

In answer to Mr. Hanson, Detective-sergeant Burrell stated that 120 men had been discharged in consequence of the deficiency in tickets, and that, in all, some thousands of tickets had been stolen.

For the defendants, Mr. Pierron urged that they were young men of good character, and that they had been inveigled into this wrong and loose way of dealing in these tickets. Kingham was for over thirteen years with Singer's Sewing Machine Company, who gave him the best of characters.

The magistrate observed that probably the defendants were not the principal offenders; but if, listening to the eloquent plea put forward by Mr. Pierron, he were to allow them to leave the dock unpunished, he would, under all the circumstances of the case, be failing in his duty. He sentenced Kingham to three months' hard labour, and Nuttall to two months' hard labour.

"THE GATES OF DAWN."

A Dramatic Sketch, by Arthur O'Keen, produced at the Canterbury on Monday, Oct. 19.

Hawkesley .....MR. ARTHUR O'KEEN
Maybury .....MR. NORMAN G. ACTON
Crafer .....MR. JOHN SLEIGHT
Mrs. Hawkesley ....MISS GERTRUDE CHURCHILL

The Gates of Dawn tells a very slight story; but, slight as it is, it is thrilling. The scene is given as Hawkesley's rooms at Monaco. Here Hawkesley and his beautiful wife are discussing things in general, and gambling in particular. He and his friend Crafer have arranged to play cards that evening with a rich traveller, Mr. Maybury. Hawkesley tells his wife to sit at the piano in a position from which she can easily see Maybury's cards, and she is to indicate the kind of cards the other two shall produce by her performances at the piano. She agrees to carry out her husband's plan, and the other two men duly arrive. But Gertrude Hawkesley plays on the piano so that the directions she thus gives to her husband and Crafer are favourable to Maybury, whom she really loves. The two swindlers lose all their money, and at the close of the game the police arrive to arrest them, for they are members of a notorious gang. Hawkesley shoots himself, and the curtain falls as Maybury is embracing Mrs. Hawkesley, and tells her that the happy gates of dawn are now open to her. Miss Gertrude Churchill acted in quite a charming manner as Mrs. Hawkesley, and performed in excellent style on the piano. Mr. Arthur O'Keen showed good tragic ability as Hawkesley; and Messrs. Norman G. Acton and John Sleight satisfactorily fulfilled the rôles of Maybury and Crafer.

A LADY writer who has entered the lists quite recently is Dora Langlois, dramatic and variety artist, who is the wife of Mr. H. A. Langlois. She comes this season with a tale calculated to hold the attention of even the most blasé reader of romance. At many a fireside this winter "In the Shadow of Pa-Menkh" will be read with zest and delight. Mystery, adventure, love, science, and scholarship are deftly mingled in a thrilling narrative. The author of "In the Shadow of Pa-Menkh" has had many opportunities for gaining materials for novels. Her father was the late Lieut.-Col. Rice Davies Knight, a cousin of that Rice Davies Powell who built Craig-y-Nos Castle, and grandson of Daniel Anthony Overbeck, the last Dutch Governor of Chinsurah. The late Professor William Wright, LL.D., F.L.S., &c., &c., custodian of the Sanscrit Antiquities of the British Museum, was a cousin of hers, and also her godfather.

MISS HENRIQUETTE MAUDE has been fortunate in securing as business-manager Mr. Leighton Demain, of Clifford's Inn, Fleet-street. Mr. Demain is not only a writer of considerable ability, but is also a pastmaster in stagecraft.

A GREAT revival in roller-skating in the United Kingdom is imminent, and announcements of the opening of skating-rinks are being daily made. The remarkable success experienced by roller-skating rinks which have been equipped with Winslow's skates is nothing short of marvellous, the celebrated "rollers" being in use in a large number of rinks in Great Britain. The Samuel Winslow Skate Manufacturing Co., of Worcester, Mass., U.S.A., are the oldest and largest manufacturers of skates in the world. Their goods are used in every civilised country, and have been sold on their merits for more than fifty years.

IT has been found that with skates, like everything else in the world, one pays for exactly what one gets. The Winslow Company has for fifty years furnished the very best skates which can be made. It can be said that Winslow's skates are used in the great bulk of the 5,000 rinks in operation in the United States at this time. The merits of the articles are further attested by the fact that many professional skaters use the Winslow product, as it has been found by experience that these famous skates are sufficiently durable to withstand the severe strain to which they are thus subjected.

THE Winslow Company has made skates continuously since 1866. 10,000 pairs of skates a day, or 3,130,000 per annum, can be made in the Winslow factory—a truly remarkable output.

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

A GENERAL meeting of the Theatrical Carpenters' Society will be held on Sunday evening at 8 p.m. at the Salisbury Hotel, St. Martin's Lane. The business being important, all members are urged to attend.

A MEETING of employees connected with the theatres and music halls in Birmingham and district will be held to-morrow (Sunday) evening in the Victoria Hotel, John Bright-street, Birmingham, at 7.30. The president of the Birmingham Trades and Labour Council will preside. Among the speakers will be Mr. Wm. Johnson, general secretary to the National Association of Theatrical Employees, Mr. F. J. Lees, secretary to the Birmingham branch of the Musicians' Union, and Mr. J. V. Stevens, secretary to the Metal Workers' Union. The purpose of the meeting is to establish a branch of the National Association of Theatrical Employees.

THE committee dealing with the sixth annual concert in aid of the Employees' Benevolent Fund, which will take place at His Majesty's Theatre on Nov. 29, is now meeting weekly. The tickets are now ready, price 6d. to 5s., and may be obtained from Wm. Johnson, the hon. secretary, and from members at the various halls and theatres. Mr. G. H. Dyball will be the stage-manager for the concert. Sir Charles Wyndham, Mr. Martin Harvey, and Mr. Alfred Butt have already consented to add their names to the list of patrons. Mr. Butt has sent a cheque for £1 1s. as a donation to the Benevolent Fund from the directors of the Palace Theatre. The committee hope to provide a programme representative of the dramatic, operatic, concert, and variety professions. Among those who have already promised to contribute are Mr. Alfred Lester, Mr. Cyril Clensy, Mr. G. H. Chirgwin, Mr. George Mozart, the Marriotts, Dutch Daly, Mr. Tom Clare, and the committee are delighted to hear that Miss Cecilia Loftus will, if possible, also contribute to the programme of the concert.

THE committee in charge of the "Open" Benevolent Fund for Employees have granted £3 on the recommendation of Mr. Cecil Paget, the manager of the Crown Theatre, to the widow and children of the late Mr. W. Chappell, formerly property master at the Pavilion Theatre, and also £1 to a carpenter who is partially blind. Several other applications for assistance are under consideration.

A MEETING of the committee of the Heads of Departments Association was held on Friday evening. Several matters of importance were considered, and applications for membership from heads of departments with touring companies and of theatres and music halls in London and several provincial towns were considered.

WITH regard to the formation of the new society to provide sick and funeral benefits to employees and to share out annually the surplus funds, particulars of which were some time ago given in this column, the executive committee of the N.A.T.E. are making an effort to secure the use of a theatre for the purpose of submitting the scheme to employees—men and women—generally. An application was made to Mr. Edward Terry for the use of Terry's Theatre, and the following very kind reply was received by Mr. Wm. Johnson:—

"Prince's Theatre, Bristol.
"Oct. 14, 1908.

"Dear Mr. Johnson,—

"I have the greatest possible sympathy with your new movement, and as far as I am concerned you are welcome to the use of the theatre for the movement, but Mr. James Welch is at present the tenant of Terry's, so you must apply to him for the necessary consent.

"With all good wishes,
"Yours sincerely,
"EDWARD TERRY."

IT is intended to hold a meeting at the earliest possible moment in order that the Fund may be inaugurated on Jan. 1.

CAICEDO, king of the wire, will finish his engagements in America at the end of this month, and will return to England in November, commencing the Moss and Stoll tour on the 23rd of that month. His first open date is in January next.

INVENTIONS.

[The particulars furnished below of recent applications for patents are taken from the official records. Correspondence is invited with our readers on all matters relating to new ideas and inventions, with a view to affording them advice and assistance. Letters should be addressed to the Manager, Inventions Department, "The Era," 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, London.]

Inventors and others who have no business representative are invited to communicate with the Manager of the Inventions Dept. as above.

APPLICATIONS.

20,951.—William Thomson Braham. Improved device for use in spiritual intercourse.

20,971.—Leus Herman Christensen, of London. Improvements in or relating to the manufacture of colour-plates or screens for colour photography.

21,038.—Harry Thomas Dumbleton, of Smethwick. Method of accurately registering "bull's-eyes" for air rifles or rifled guns.

COMPLETE SPECIFICATION ACCEPTED.

2,884.—Ostrovsky. Apparatus for use by musicians for promoting the lateral movements of the fingers.

ABRIDGMENTS OF SPECIFICATIONS.

12,181.—Skipping-ropes. Burford, H., of Birmingham.

Skipping-ropes are provided with bells, and the handles are made readily detachable so that they may be used as dumb-bells. The end of each handle is provided with a rattle or gong, preferably formed of two dome-shaped half-bells (1, 2), which are secured to the handle by an eye-bolt (3). A distance-piece (6) holds the bells apart. The rope is provided with a spring hook (9) to engage the eye (7). The end of the bolt may be formed into a hook, and threaded through a loop at the end of the rope, a rubber band being provided to prevent the loop from working off the hook; or the rope may carry either a split or a spring ring to engage the eye or recesses formed in its sides. In the modification shown in Fig. 4, an ordinary spherical bell (18) is secured by a screw to the end of the handle, recesses (20, 21) being formed in the bell to receive the ends (14, 15) of a spring-ring (13) threaded through the looped end of the rope.

TO STAGE MACHINISTS AND ELECTRICIANS.—The Manager will be pleased to receive particulars of any new stage appliances or ideas for same for illustration in this column.

Can You Invent?—Do you wish to know of prizes offered to inventors valued at £10,000, £5,300, £5,000, £4,000, £1,000, £400, £300, £200, £100, and £50? If so, then get a copy of Patents and Designs, a newspaper called into existence by Mr. Lloyd George's Patents and Designs Act, 1907, which lately came into operation. Patents and Designs, price 2d., can be had at all bookstalls, newsagents', and at the Publishing Office, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

A "HEAVY LADY."

The clever caricaturist of the Star read one of the "Wanted" advertisements in The Era, and his fertile imagination and facile pencil have provided a picture of the "heavy lady" he thinks is required.

The following was the advertisement:—

WANTED, for "When Other Lips," first-class heavy lady, capable strong emotion; lowest terms, photo, last two refs. T. Arthur Jones, New, Consett.

Messrs. Clark and Co. are dyers and cleaners at Retford. Their works are fitted with the latest machinery and appliances for cleaning, dyeing, and finishing every kind of article of personal wear or household furnishing. They are lighted by electricity, generated by their own plant; many of the machines are electrically driven. Newly built, and situated in the country, every attention has been paid to sanitation, and all the work is carried out in well ventilated and lighted buildings under the most comfortable conditions for the workers. They are specialists in dry cleaning, and have brought this process nearly to perfection. No unpicking whatever is now required, and articles cleaned by them have no disagreeable odour, nor is there risk of alteration in shape or colour, or of shrinkage.

Their dyeing department has all the latest colours, and is in touch with the best English and Continental practice. Their long experience and perfect equipment in this branch enable them to obtain the very best results possible.

Theatrical managers are invited to send their tableaux curtains and box draperies; artists to send their dresses, blouses, and other wearing apparel for cleaning or dyeing.

The facilities of the parcel post, which allows parcels up to 11lb. in weight being sent through the post, should induce artists to give Messrs. Clark and Co., of Retford, a trial order.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

Showmen at Hull Fair.

The following letter of thanks to the showmen and others at Hull Fair, communicated to the local Press by the Mayor, tells its own tale:—

"THE MAYOR'S THANKS.

"TO THE EDITOR OF THE 'HULL TIMES.'

"Sir,—Will you please allow me through the medium of your newspaper to thank most sincerely the showmen, stall-holders, and roundabout proprietors who so generously contributed to the Hospital Sunday Fund at the collection taken by the Mayoress and myself on Thursday last?

"I may say that the sum collected (two hours' takings) amounted to £70 15s. 5d.

"I also beg to thank Messrs. W. F. Lawton, R. Grace, and W. G. Harrison for their kind assistance in making the collection.—I am, Sir, &c.,

"H. FELDMAN (Mayor),

"Town Hall, Hull, Oct. 16, 1908."

Yet Another Tribute of Appreciation.

Quite in keeping with the above is an interesting letter, which we gladly reproduce, as showing that not only did the funds of the Hull General Hospital benefit, but that other charities were materially assisted:—

"SHOWMEN AND 'REFORMERS.'

"TO THE EDITOR OF THE 'DAILY MAIL.'

"Sir,—I was much interested to read in the 'Mail' of Monday the speech of the 'Showman's Parson' (Rev. Mr. Horne) as to the 'Misunderstood Showman.' I quite agree with the rev. gentleman that the showmen suffer from the faddy narrowmindedness of the so-called 'reformers,' who think what wicked people these people are. Now, Sir, it was my privilege to be present at the sacred concert in Bostock and Wombwell's Menagerie on Sunday night last, and I was struck with the evidence of the self-sacrifice displayed by the genial manager Mr. Burkitt and his staff; they did their best to make the concert a success, so that the funds of the Victoria Children's Hospital should benefit—even to providing a capital chairman in Mr. Trousen (lion tamer); in addition, collections are allowed every day for the charities in the show. I was pleased to hear from the President of the Working Men's Committee that Mr. Burkitt would be made a life member of the Children's Hospital. So I think, Mr. Editor, such acts go to prove that showmen are not what these faddists would try to make them out to be. Thanking you in anticipation.—I am, Sir, &c.,

"S. W.

Warwick Fair.

The grand old town of Warwick keeps its annual pleasure fair at the same time as the famous "Mop" at Stratford-on-Avon, and is, therefore, sometimes overshadowed by the bigger event in Shakespeare's town. Warwick Fair, however, maintains its popularity, not only locally, but it draws a great number of visitors from the Midland Counties. The fair this year was well supported by Chipperfield's Cinematograph Theatre and Empire of Varieties, T. Clarke's motor switchback, W. Davis' galloping horses, and C. Farrell's racing birds and varieties. The minor amusements consisted of shooting galleries, Winchester ranges, throwing games, variety and penalty frames, and were supplied by Messrs. Wilson, Farrell, and Mrs. Marsden.

Warwick has a second fair, known as the "Run away Mop," held a week later than the first "Mop," and is usually maintained by the same shows and amusements that are in attendance at the first "Mop."

Daventry Fair.

The pleasure fair at this interesting old town was under the direction of Billings, the local amusement caterer, who amongst other novelties provided steam galloping horses, park swings, and throwing games. The other caterers were Messrs. W. Harris, Barnard, Irving, and Shaw, who exhibited bottle batteries, hoop-la frames, and other varieties.

Brecon Pleasure Fair Threatened.

At the recent meeting of the Brecon Town Council a petition was presented from a number of the ratepayers asking that the Brecon pleasure fairs in May and November should be limited to two days. The petition also contained other reasons for wishing to curtail the fair, reflecting upon the health conditions of the showmen's living vans and paraphernalia. A correspondent of the Showmen's Guild has brought the matter under the notice of the Organising Chaplain, who has dealt with the attack upon the health conditions of showman life in a letter which he has addressed to the Town Clerk, to be submitted to the Mayor and Corporation. The petition led to a warm discussion at the Council Board, and the question was adjourned to an evening meeting. It was quite evident at the adjourned meeting that there was a great division of opinion with regard to the petition.

It was ultimately resolved that the matter should be submitted to a Town's Meeting, in order that the people should see what the proposal would cost them. One speaker put the loss to the town at something like a penny or a twopenny rate. And, further, it was suggested, in order that the Town's Meeting should have full information, that two tenders should be advertised for, one for the lease under the existing conditions as to the period of the fair, and the other in the case of the fair being restricted to the two days on the streets.

"To the Mayor and Corporation of the Borough of Brecon.

"Gentlemen,—My attention has been drawn by a member of the Guild to the words of a petition recently considered by you and reflecting seriously upon the health conditions of showmen's living vans and their working plant. The petition in question was one asking you to limit the May and November fairs to two clear and consecutive days, and the words to which I am requested to draw your attention are as follows:—'We (the petitioners) also respectfully submit the presence of so many living vans and show paraphernalia on the streets for such a lengthy space of time is a menace to public health, and is a matter which deserves your serious consideration as a sanitary authority.'

"With the other reasons adduced by the petitioners it is not my province to deal, and it is fairly a matter for the Town's Meeting to decide. My purpose is to inform you that showpeople have a clean bill of health from one end of the country to the other, and that they are a healthy and long-lived class of workers. Their movable dwellings are built upon perfect hygienic lines, and contrast favourably with regard to health conditions with even the best class of permanent dwellings.

"Your Medical Officer of Health and your Sanitary Officer have exactly the same powers of control and inspection over movable dwellings as over all other kinds of dwellings.

"By the Housing of the Working Classes Act and by other amending Acts of the Health and Sanitary Laws, it is provided that every van, tent, or similar structure used for human habitation is under exactly the same laws as though it were a permanent building.

"The showmen for whom I am speaking regard it as an extremely serious matter that these reckless accusations should be brought against them, when they are bound to observe exactly the same laws with regard to health and sanitation as all other citizens. It is serious for other reasons, because it creates in the public a fear and distrust of attending the fair, and it inflicts great injury upon a deserving class in the community. It is a stigma upon their home life which showmen justly resent, and subjects them to serious loss in their business.

"Nothing is so injurious to them as the creation of public opinion that would lead people to fear attending the fairs.

"Whatever may be the decision of the people of Brecon with regard to the curtailment of the pleasure fairs, I am particularly anxious on behalf of the showmen to dissipate the false impression that may have arisen in some minds, that it is wise to curtail the days of the fair on account of its being a menace to public health.

"I speak with knowledge and lifelong experience of the conditions of showman life. It has been my privilege for twenty years past to minister amongst them, and I am able to say from the fullness of this intimate knowledge that showpeople as a class live cleanly lives.

"That their homes are models of domestic comfort and are so built as to afford almost perfect conditions with regard to ventilation and the other necessaries of a healthy life.

"Signed on behalf of the Showmen's Guild of Great Britain.

"T. HORNE,

"Honorary Chaplain."

It is high time that this great bogey of menace to public health was scotched, and that the persistent, nay, almost invincible, ignorance of public bodies with regard to real conditions of van life was fully enlightened. When the organised showmen were meeting the attacks of George Smith and his supporters in the House of Commons twenty years ago, Mr. Stevens, M.P. for Hornsey (a sturdy champion of the showmen), did splendid service by proving that showmen were not lawless men, but that every law applying to other men applied with equal force to showmen—that living vans and tents when used for human habitation were just as much under the law as all other dwellings in town or country. Since those days every amendment of the Public Health Acts has been made to apply specifically to vans and tents, and it is to us a matter of the most profound astonishment that the enemies of show life persist in regarding showpeople as a class apart in the community, and also as being outside of the restraints and sanctions of the ordinary law of the land.

This petition with regard to the Pleasure Fairs of Brecon is the latest example of the persistence of the phantom of menace to public health that the coming of the show van is supposed to be.

Castleford Fair.

Held in the Castle Fields, had for its entertainers, Messrs. J. Manders, with menagerie; G. Proctor, with hippodrome and circus; Marshall, with cinematograph theatre and steam roundabouts; and throwing games, stalls, shooters, &c., by numerous caterers.

Gainsborough Fair.

This fair, as usual, attracted a big aggregation of show and machine novelties:—Tuby's Coliseum, motor set, and gallopers; Farrar and Tyler's two great theatres of animated pictures; Smith and Warren's motor set; P. Collins's ostrich set. Other machines were by Amos, Kent, Hunt, Warwick, Morley, Barwick, and Fisher, and a side show by Ling. There were also a capital array of shooting concerns, cokers, throwing games, and variety stalls, by Hart, Ball, Fisher, Hunt, Aitken, Gillett, Illingworth, Campfield, Seaton, Brook, Evans, Bond, Greaves, Boness, Webster, Smith, Amos, Ling, Barber, Sherran.

MITCHAM CONSERVATORS AND THE FAIR RIGHTS.

We are indebted to the Mitcham Mercury of Oct. 17 for the following report of a discussion at the meeting of the Board of Conservators, of great interest to showmen:—

"The most important business of the meeting was a statement by the Chairman on the subject of the Fair. He began by referring in detail to the negotiation for the purchase of the rights from Mrs. Bailey. In 1905 the Conservators, he said, accepted the purchase, provided £600 was raised by other bodies, and although that was the motion on Sept. 23, a contract had been entered into on Sept. 9 in the names of Messrs. Foss, A. Mizen, Cubison, and R. M. Chart, but the £600 was never subscribed. Only £514 1s. was raised, and that came from the Mitcham Parish Council and private subscribers. How it came from them no one would ever be able to find out, for though it was an extraordinary thing to say, there was nothing to show in their ledger or anywhere else how the money was paid, to whom it was paid, or by what authority it was dealt with. One would have thought that in an important transaction of that kind a clear statement of accounts would have been kept, and that their minutes would show by whom the money was received, and why it was paid out by the Conservators to the owners of the franchise. To complete the purchase price of £950 the Conservators voted annual sums of £100. The money subscribed by the outside gentleman whose name was mentioned was subscribed under the idea that the Conservators were the owners of the franchise. But another extraordinary fact had come to their notice. On July 31, 1906, Mr. Chart, as one of the owners of the franchise, attended, and those gentlemen all being present, it was stated that they did not intend to let any sites or exercise the franchise. On Feb. 2, 1907, it was resolved to pay £100 off the balance of the purchase money. The matter was then left in his (the Chairman's) hands, and he interviewed the Home Secretary. But only two days before the Fair was held he learned from Mr. Newnham that he had received documents from the solicitor to the vendors of the franchise, showing that the conveyance which purported to purchase the rights from Mrs. Bailey had not been taken out by the four gentlemen mentioned as trustees for the Conservators, but that it was a direct conveyance to them. So far as the Conservators were concerned the result was that their legal possession with regard to the rights or wrongs of holding the Fair was absolutely nil. He therefore instructed Mr. Newnham that the Conservators could take no action whatever against the showmen, as they had no legal right to do so. They all assumed that they were taking action against the showmen last year and obtaining injunctions against them as the owners of the franchise, but it was clear that they were nothing of the kind. No declaration of trust had ever been signed by the four gentlemen on behalf of the Conservators, and as the position stood revealed it was perfectly clear that neither the Clerk nor himself were going to issue writs against the showmen. The first thing brought against them would have been that they had no locus standi. Therefore, he took no action with regard to the showmen, and that was the present position of affairs so far as he had been able to ascertain. No account had been kept from whom the £514 had been received. The question had been asked of the Mitcham Parish Council over and over again where the sum of £400 had gone to, and it had been stated there that it had been received by the Conservators. Whoever was deceiving the Parish Council, it was certainly not the Conservators, because whatever information they had was entirely at the disposal of the Council, and they now knew as much as the Conservators did. They heard from the bank that there was an overdraft in connection with the purchase of the Fair of £117 10s. Mr. A. Mizen had the pass-book relating to it.

"Mr. Willcocks thought the two trustees present should give an explanation.

"Mr. Cubison asked whether anybody seriously supposed that a gentleman like Mr. Foss, after the years of experience he had had as a solicitor, would do anything that was not absolutely correct? If anybody had taken the trouble to inquire into the proceedings upon which they had obtained injunctions they would have found that the Fair owners were parties as plaintiffs, and that the Conservators were joined, and joined upon the advice of counsel. The reason was this. The owner of the franchise held the Fair on the Upper Green by virtue of some right of the commencement of which they did not know. Apart from that right the Conservators, being the successors in title to the Lords of the Manor, had the absolute control of the Upper Green. Consequently, if the owners of the franchise to-day did not desire to exercise their right and hold the Fair, the Conservators were the proper persons to prevent the showmen going on the Green. That was why, according to counsel's advice, the Conservators were joined as plaintiffs. What had been done was done perfectly regular, and that course should have been repeated this year, and as quickly as possible. The owners of the franchise stepped into the breach and bought the rights to prevent them being lost. Four persons had to make themselves personally liable for the money before it was possible to come before the Conservators and know their desires, and accordingly a contract was entered into. But when it came to finding the money they were required to make themselves responsible, and the Chairman had forgotten to tell them that the four persons were still liable to the bank for the overdraft.

"The Chairman: I have not forgotten anything of the kind, because it is quite impossible to find out by whom the overdraft was obtained and for whom it was obtained.

"Mr. Cubison said if the Conservators would relieve the trustees of the liability they would only be too glad to execute another deed of conveyance of the franchise rights to them. There was no mystery about it, and there was nothing difficult to understand. With regard to the 'mystery' of the £400, he was a member of the Parish Council when it was voted. It was, in fact, voted upon his resolution, and it did not refer to the Fair rights in any way at all. It was voted to the Conservators for the improvement of the Upper Green, and the Parish Council had good ground of complaint against them that they had not improved the Upper Green. The Council, in fact, had been remarkably long-suffering in putting up with it so long as they had done.

"Alderman Allen: I am perfectly certain that that £400 was paid to us for the purchase of the Fair rights and for no other purpose whatever.

"The Chairman: I have not been making up fairy tales. I am reading from your own minutes. As a matter of fact, in the account kept with regard to the Fair, there is the item 'Mitcham Fair account, by cash contributions, £412 10s.' How is it that it has taken the Council so many months to ascertain what has become of the money? They could only have got an answer from their own representatives, who are also Conservators, and I was determined to see if I could find an answer for you, because not only have the Council asked the question, but they have accused the Conservators of misleading them. I think that is a very improper thing, and we ought not to allow ourselves to remain under the stigma. All we did was to receive the £400 for the purchase of the Fair rights.

"Mr. Mizen produced the bank-book, and said the first time he had it in his possession was on Monday night. The Chairman had stated that £600 was never subscribed. Yet there was £400 from the Parish Council, £100 from the Rural District Council, and £142 14s. 6d. private subscriptions, making £642 14s. 6d. from outside sources, so that the resolution had been complied with.

"The Chairman: I am glad to hear it. It has taken three years to find it out.

"Mr. Mizen: There is now due to the bank £117 14s. 4d.

"The Clerk said there was no doubt about the legal position. The four gentlemen were the trustees of the Fair rights for the Conservators, subject to lien on their representatives to repay them the sum of £117 owing to the bank. With regard to the £400 which came from the Parish Council, it did not appear in the cash books of the Conservators where it came from. It was entered 'Contribution towards Fair rights.' But the four trustees had that money and paid it for the purchase of the Fair rights, so that there should be no misunderstanding.

"Mr. Cubison: There never has been any misunderstanding.

"Mr. Aldwinckle said the cheque was made out to the Conservators, and the words of the resolution were 'For the improvement of the Upper Green.'

"The Clerk said there could have been no misunderstanding as to what the money was for, because the four gentlemen were parties to the money being used for that particular purpose (the purchase of the Fair rights). He said the resolution that ought to be passed was, that the £117 overdraft be paid off on the trustees executing a new conveyance.

"Mr. Willcocks moved a resolution in these terms, and it was agreed to."

A BUBBLE FOUNTAIN.

In the Louvre Museum in Paris can be seen an Etruscan vase on which is depicted a group of children blowing bubbles, and from this poetical suggestion a clever mechanician has invented and constructed a most artistic feature of modern stage effect. These fountains can be constructed to form and discharge up to 20,000 bubbles per minute, and if the atmosphere be calm the bubbles, being inflated with gas, rise in a huge column in the air, and form a very imposing and charming spectacle. The beautiful series of tints of colour in the bubble-film is common knowledge, and on the stage a most fairylike effect can be produced with artificial illumination, two points of light being reflected from every bubble for each light employed, and with a large series of lights suitably arranged the dazzling illustration of a torrent of balls of fire can be obtained, or the rising column can be lighted at its base, producing a pillar of living fire. We do not think the producers of pantomimes at Drury Lane, Moss' Empires, and other theatres could do better than communicate with the Manager of The Era, with a view to arranging for the inclusion of this charming spectacular illusion in their forthcoming Christmas productions. The Bubble Fountain, which we learn is securely patented, is also suitable for erection on the lawn of a garden, surrounded by growing flowers; or it may be raised on a plinth like an ordinary fountain.

FILM GOSSIP.

Showmen and Managers throughout the United Kingdom, and in every English-speaking country, will find in this column particulars of some of the best and newest Films in the Market. Many of these Films we have seen ourselves, and can confidently recommend showmen to add them to their list of attractions

Pathé Frères.

The Heart of a Gipsy.—Messrs. Pathé offer an absorbingly interesting dramatic film under this title. Gipsies, having been seen pilfering, are driven away by some infuriated peasants. A young girl of their gang sprains her ankle in trying to overtake her people, and she falls to the ground helpless. She is made a prisoner by a peasant, and her beauty and youth move him so that he takes her with him to his farmhouse. When she has completely recovered the young man's mother sends her away, but the boy, who loves her dearly by now, obtains from the old woman the promise to let him marry the gipsy girl.

My Ma-in-Law Beats the Record.—Ma-in-law is not possessed of the sweetest of tempers, and her son-in-law is a grocer. During one of those stormy explanations which take place every day between the two a motor-car stops before the shop. The son-in-law, seeing a golden opportunity of getting rid of that shrew of a woman, packs her off in the automobile, which he at once sets in motion. Ma-in-law is now a runaway. She goes straight for a barrow. That she upsets, pulls down a barrier, collides with a train at the level crossing, and finally stops just in front of the goal of the New York-Paris race, where she is cheered by the crowd.

A Fashionable Waltz.—Here we have another comic series. The new waltz looks so attractive, represented as it is by a beautiful woman, that an artist buys it and begins waltzing in the street. Two policemen join in and whirl about. Then the artist asks a street organ-grinder for his instrument, and at the sound of the music everybody in the street, and the carriages also, turn and waltz madly.

The Happiest Day in Her Life.—While her little friends follow with fervour the religious meetings before their first communion, a small girl, Marie Blanche, kept in bed by bronchitis, sees with anguish the great day approaching. Is she going to die without knowing the great joy that she has dreamed about from her earliest days? No, she will take advantage of the absence of her mother to put on her pretty white dress, and with her body shaken by the terrible cough which is killing her, she goes out into the street and wanders away along the walls, which she uses as a support. At length her strength gives way, and she falls fainting at the church door. She is taken home shivering with fever. The doctor, hastily summoned, examines the little one for a long time, and in the end he gives very little hope. The child will be saved if she takes regularly the medicine he prescribes. But Marie Blanche is unwilling to take the medicine; she excites herself and increases the fever, and at last she falls asleep and dreams that she sees the good Abbé Martin, the kindly priest who has prepared her, advancing in the full light of the church towards the little communicants, who are kneeling before the altar. The whole church is brilliantly illuminated. Oh, would that she could approach and take her share in that divine feast. She eagerly stretches out her hands. And then the priest advances towards her, utters the sacred words, and gives her the holy bread. The emotion is too great for Marie Blanche. She faints, holding in her hands the vessel the contents of which she has just drunk. The little dreamer is healed. Heaven has worked a miracle on account of her strong faith.

Jerusalem.—Interesting open-air scenes are here brought to our notice. Jerusalem is built on four mountains, thus forming four different quarters. One of them possesses St. Sepulchre's Church, around which numerous shopkeepers deal in all sorts of eatables, beads, and arms, all to be found pell-mell in their more or less picturesque houses. Zion mountain is adorned with "the tower of David," and forms the most desolate and deserted part of the town. Cactus plants and all kinds of undergrowth block the way; miserable looking huts are scattered about, sheltering a population of lepers, which afford us a few vivid pictures. On another mountain are seen the remnants of the Gate of Damascus leading to Nazareth and the grotto of Jeremiah, with its Wall of Lament, used now as a burying ground, where people in mourning come and vent their grief most loudly. The film ends with a bird's-eye view of Jerusalem, showing the town surrounded by high walls formed of immense blocks of stones which used to support the terraces of the temple of Solomon, and flanked with embattled towers, rising from the walls every hundred yards from one another. With her high-arched porticos, her minarets, and the terraces in front of the houses, Jerusalem looks like a glorious apparition of the City of Jehovah, seemingly full of her own people, but on closer inspection one realises that it is only a magnificent sepulchre.

Charles Urban Trading Co., Ltd.

Scotland's Greatest Newspaper.—In this very attractive cinematograph series, the editing, printing, and publishing of The Scotsman is fully described. It is for the Urban Company a triumph of "midnight" cinematography. Every important process in the preparation, printing, publication, and despatch of a great daily newspaper is faithfully and with remarkable detail reproduced in motion-pictures of enthralling interest—undoubted technical and general educational value and absolutely perfect photographic quality. Special attention has been paid to the editorial departments, and the means of rapidly collating and disseminating news; to the working of the linotype machines; to the making of a matrix; the casting of plates, and the working of the monster Hoe presses; and the series is further especially noteworthy as a conquest by cinematographic skill and ingenuity of difficulties insurmountable by less fortunate competitors. The pictures begin with an exterior view of the offices of the Scotsman, the Weekly Scotsman, and the Edinburgh Evening Dispatch. The whole building, including the site, cost half a million pounds, and is the largest structure ever erected by private enterprise in Edinburgh. Then we are shown the sub-editors preparing copy for the Press, the pneumatic tubes by which news is received from the General Post Office and despatched to the sub-editors, and tape machines receiving news from London over the Scotsman private wires. These scenes were secured at the busiest hour—midnight—shortly before the issue went to press, and the importance of the department may be gauged by the miles of paper strips, or "tapes," which cover the floors. Other scenes show us a day's supply of paper used in printing the Scotsman, and the processes of spraying the paper as it arrives from the Scotsman mills at Balerno, linotyping, preparing the matrix, hot-pressing the matrix, inserting, pressing, and removing the mould, dusting and trimming the paper moulds and passing them by means of an "endless band traveller" to the foundry for the next process; stereotyping, preparing the Hoe printing press, machining, and finally packing and distributing.

COMPIÈGNE AND PIERREFONDS.—We are here treated to an exquisitely photographed and beautifully toned film, illustrating the Chateau of Compiègne with its superb forest, and the feudal castle of Pierrefonds, restored by Violette-le-Duc, two favourite tourist resorts in the environs of Paris. The Chateau of Compiègne was built by Gabriel in the reign of Louis XV., and the town, full of historic associations, is remarkably quaint and picturesque. The Hotel de Ville, in particular, is a graceful building, which affords one of the most charming specimens of the Renaissance. The Castle of Pierrefonds, dating from the twelfth century, was the theatre of many historic events, notably under Henry IV., when it formed the fortress of the Ligueurs (Leaguers). Dismantled, it was restored on the original plans by order of Emperor Napoleon III. in 1858.

RETRIBUTION.—This production tells one of the most powerful, touching, and beautiful dramatic stories ever unfolded upon the screen, containing a world of motive and emotion which only such films can elucidate. Based upon deep human interest, this strong and vital drama shows great insight into character, and moves with virile force to the inevitable end. Emotionally effective, loving and unerring touches portray a great struggle between paternal affection and natural craving for sympathy, superhumanly overcome for the welfare of its object, which will command the silent enthusiasm of every observer. Wisely and delicately handled, the subject never travels beyond just limits, and the superb enactment, coupled with the exquisite setting of every scene, have been caught by the camera with absolute faithfulness and perfect photographic quality.

TEN PICKANINNIES.—This is a subject which is funny from the introduction of the ten "chillun" to their entire disappearance under difficult circumstances. The first exit is caused by Melon and the last "monkeyed 'round a 'gator—now there's none."

SANDY MCPHERSON'S QUIET FISHING TRIP.—We have all heard "fishermen's tales" of big catches but none of them tell of the things they couldn't catch. This is a story of a braw laddie, who, to keep cool, dons Highland costume, but gets very hot instead as a result of the attention he receives from two bad boys, mosquitoes, tramps, and police. Poor Sandy goes off to the "Cooler," whilst the bad boys are rewarded with his lunch.

POCAHONTAS: A CHILD OF THE FOREST.—A film of historical interest, connected with the adventures of Captain John Smith, who founded Jamestown in 1607. The story tells us of the meeting with Pocahontas at a time when her father, the famous Powhatan, is in Jamestown for the signing of the Treaty of Peace. Love and jealousy play prominent parts in the exciting adventures of Smith. We see mutiny quelled, and order and progress established by him, for which he is trailed by "Kunder-Wacha" and a band of hostile Indians. After all Smith's companions are slain he is taken prisoner, and about to be tortured by his Indian rival when he produces a compass. Such knowledge brands him as a "medicine man," but at a council of tribesmen Kunder-Wacha gets the captain sentenced to death. Pocahontas now exercises her knowledge of Indian law, and obtains the release of Smith, who has been led forth for execution. Promising to repay Powhatan for his kindness, Smith sets out for Jamestown with a bodyguard of two Indians and Pocahontas, for part of the journey. Kunder-Wacha now appears and shoots Smith, but Pocahontas aids him, and he is able to set sail for England. We are now face to face with famine, and whilst on an errand of mercy in bringing food into Jamestown, Pocahontas meets a friend of Captain Smith's named Rolfe, who imparts the information that Smith is dead. Whilst grieving her loss, Kunder-Wacha endeavours to win her, but is repulsed, and Rolfe saves her from his hate by shooting the Indian. Winning the love of Pocahontas, Rolfe gets her father—Powhatan—to consent to their getting married, and a grand wedding is celebrated, which brings happiness and prosperity to the colonists.

Gaumont and Co.

AN ANIMALS' HOSPITAL is one of the finest subjects we have seen for some time, and should appeal to all lovers of animals. The film gives a very vivid depiction of the treatment of the patients. First we see the out-patients, then the in-patients, and views of the lethal chamber, and scenes in the convalescent ward. Messrs. Gaumont's have excellently produced every scene, and the quality is of the highest. The scenes were arranged by Mr. G. R. Sims, and everything goes to make the film a great success. Showmen will be wise in securing a copy, as descriptive animal scenes always appeal to, and attract, the public. Other films of note issued this week are THE CONSCIENTIOUS MUSICIAN (comic), THE CONSIDERATE CABBY (comic), THE BOTANIST (coloured trick).

THE QUEEN'S LOVE.—Thus is the story of this romance related. The Queen, who was not any longer very young, had been making love in her usual inconstant way to the young Sir X., who was engaged to be married to one of the young ladies at Court, the beautiful Lady Claire. Just as Sir X. has taken leave of his sweetheart, a page brings him a letter from the Queen telling him that Her Majesty wishes to see him in the evening. He considers the wishes of the Queen as a command, and at the appointed hour we see on the picture Sir X. on his way to the Queen's apartments. He meets the Royal lady, and her eyes express plainly enough the honour he may expect. Another gentleman at Court, the deceitful and brutal Y., who had for a long time tried in vain to win Claire's favour, was in the meantime watching in the courtyard. As Claire passes by him, he tries once more to make love to her. She gives the detested lover a scornful reply, and he tells her in his rage that her intended husband is now staying with the Queen. She believes this accusation to be false, slaps him in his face, and hurries away, while Sir Y. swears to revenge himself. The next morning the two rivals meet at the park. Under the guise of friendship Y. coaxes X. to tell him about his adventures with the Queen, and then he hurries away to tell the Queen that X. was boasting of her favour. X. is now sent for, and as he cannot deny the accusation he is taken to prison. As he is escorted by two guards and passes the courtyard, Claire rushes towards him. She hurries off to the Queen in order to plead for the life of her lover, but there she is also scornfully turned away. She now turns to her last resource—she humbles herself to the scoundrel Y. and implores his mercy. He promises to save her lover's life on condition that she will be the price. Pale with horror she agrees to belong to the villain in order to save her beloved one. The next morning Claire awaits in Y.'s bedroom, she pulls the heavy curtains aside, and opens the window to get some fresh air. With all her power she stifles a scream. Outside in the courtyard X. is hanging dead on the gallows. She sees now how dreadfully she has been cheated and collecting all her strength she stabs the villain through the heart. He has just time to see Claire standing by his bed as a goddess of revenge.

MR. HAROLD ARNOLD, having secured the necessary licence, is giving concerts and animated pictures at the King's Theatre, Gateshead. Mr. Arnold apportions ten per cent. of the takings each week to local charities.

A NEW series of pictures forms the chief attraction at the Market Hall, Whitehaven, this week, chief of which are The Franco-British Exhibition, The Train Wreckers, A Mother's Secret, Adventures of Dollie, Love Finds a Way, and The Music Teacher. Mr. Sam Shipley, comedian, is well received, and good business continues to be done.

Notes from Wales.

AT Pontypridd, Messrs. Hancock open their Welsh tour with their Coliseum and Theatre of Varieties. The pictures are new and up-to-date. The variety entertainment is composed of a good company of star artists:—Miss Dodo Hancock, comedienne and dancer; Mr. Ralph Chappel, comedian and dancer; Mr. Hugh Howarth, female impersonator; Miss Eugene Raymond, coon vocalist and dancer; Mr. Frank Bedford, bird mimic; Stidum, illusionist and juggler. A grand selection of music is played on the keyless Gaviolophone each evening.

SID WHITE'S Electric Coliseum and Fairground aggregation continued their very successful season at Pricetown for a fortnight. A benefit was given by Mr. White to the Ogmore Valley Temperance, and realised £12.

Caistor (Lincs.) Fair.

MESSRS. SMITH AND WARREN exhibited steam roundabouts, shooting saloons, and variety frames. The stall-holders and side shows were provided by Messrs. Russell, White, Needham, Quickfall, and others.

Princes Risborough Fair.

THE shows, machines, shooters, houpla frames, and other popular amusements at this fair were provided by Messrs. Peters, Irving, H. Peters, G. Bond, Tyler, Mrs. Bird, Mrs. Young, Mrs. Edwards, and local stall-holders.

Marlborough Fair.

HERE were the two superb cinematograph theatres of W. Taylor and J. Dooner and Son; W. Le Neve and Norah Sullivan, in physical culture demonstrations; Tom Taylor and school of boxers, in up-to-date fistiana pavilion; Professor Gillham and athletes; and Spinks' freak show. The machine novelties at this fair were provided by W. Symonds, H. Jennings, Greensway and Chapman; shooting concerns by Gould, Edwards, Gillham, and Jennings; houpla maypoles and frames by Frankham, Smith, Wellington, Chapman, Taylor, Crole, Bunce, Brewer, and Jones.

Salisbury Pleasure Fair.

THE annual three days' pleasure fair commenced on Monday in the spacious Market-place, and is this year, for the first time, under the sole management of the Town Council, who have done the utmost to assist the showpeople; consequently it is the largest held here for many years. With such a strong array of the best concerns travelling it only needs fine weather to ensure great success; but unfortunately rain fell heavily on Tuesday morning, but cleared off by the afternoon. Mr. Jacob Studt's Mammoth Picture Palace, with its gorgeous front and big array of paraders, is being crowded all day long. Mr. William Taylor, who has occupied the same site in the fair for over twelve years, has a splendid show, with another highly imposing front. Messrs. Dooner and Sons' New Empire is meeting with much success, and since last year they have added a mammoth front and organ. Professor and Madame Ruby, with X-Rays exhibition, are paying their first visit. Professor Taylor's boxing exhibition is, as usual, a favourite feature of the fair; the American fat lady drew crowds to her show; Mr. Jacob Studt has brought, for the first time, his motor-car track, and crowds are attracted by it; Mr. Marshall Hill's switchback and motor-car track is also a great source of attraction; and Mr. William Symonds has brought his galloping horses and switchback. Amongst the other attractions are Studt's lighthouse, Freeman's juvenile motor-cars, Chapman's big wheel, Marshall Hill's aeroplanes, and a very large number of Houpla Circles, which are drawing well. Mr. J. Haines has some fine shooting galleries, and the usual attractions of stalls, shies, hunt sallies, &c., seem endless, and good business is being done.

MARSHALL HILL'S Fun City has paid a visit to Salisbury this week. His splendid switchback and motor car track, with its fine organ and illuminations, were features of interest. Other attractions were aeroplanes and houp-la circles.

THE managing-director of the London Theatre of Varieties, Ltd., writes: "Contrary to the statements appearing in a contemporary, we have not taken the Scala Theatre, have entered into no negotiations in respect to, nor do we intend to enter into negotiations for, the acquisition of this property."

THE annual Liverpool Theatrical Licensing Session was held on Tuesday, when the Chairman of the Bench (Sir Thomas Hughes) drew special attention to the fact that stricter supervision would have to be shown by managers of places of amusement; further, that no children under fourteen years of age ought to be granted admission without being accompanied by parents or guardians, and that male attendants should be in uniform, so that patrons would know who was in authority to secure good order. Respecting the Empire Theatre, the Bench pointed out that objection had been taken to a female artist on account of her dances, and they thought that proprietors of theatres should know beforehand the kind of performance that was to be presented.

THE majority of the magistrates were in favour of renewing the licence, but it was with a caution. It was not the first time they had had to caution the Empire, an action which had not been found necessary in the case of any other music hall. In respect to the Tivoli, Park, and Paddington halls, which are now closed, a temporary licence was given to Mr. James Kiernan for the first-named, but the other two applications were refused on the ground that there was no probability, at present, of their being reopened.

MR. JOHN WARREN, the late Court magician to the Sultan of Morocco, will present his mystifying act at the Hackney Empire next week. On the rise of the curtain, Mr. Warren is discovered packing a travelling trunk, assisted by his chauffeur. A lady entering explains that she has made a bet of £10 with a police inspector that he cannot arrest her in ten minutes. Mr. Warren places her in the glass cabinet, and soon after the inspector enters. Mr. Warren puts on an overcoat, cap, and goggles, and tries to leave, but the inspector pulls him back. The latter, assisted by the chauffeur, wheels the cabinet down to the footlights, and out steps Mr. Warren, who turns off, followed by the inspector. Then the lady steps from behind the screen, and picks up a newspaper, and sinks into an armchair. The inspector makes a grab at her, but she vanishes completely.

THE chauffeur, standing on a cane settee, covers himself with the lady's cloak down to his knees, and changes to a lady, who runs out, followed by the inspector. Mr. Warren suddenly appears, followed by the lady. He puts her behind the screen just as the inspector holds her up, and orders her to put her hands over the top of the screen. She does so, and the inspector puts on a pair of handcuffs. As he does so the screen falls, disclosing the chauffeur. The inspector admits defeat, and offers the £10 note to the lady if she will come and claim it. To everyone's surprise Mr. Warren throws off the overcoat and is found to be the lady!

NOVEL SCENIC DOOR-KNOB.

Mr. Alfred Northway (Mr. A. E. Robbins), of the Northway and Garrod Tours, has applied for a patent for an improvement that should be heartily welcomed by theatrical managers and others responsible for stage scenery whilst in transit or storage, for he proposes to do away with the ordinary method of securing knobs to doors by means of screws—which is not at all suitable for attaching them to stage scenery, and to flats in particular. According to his invention, the shank or spindle of the door-knob is made with a T-shaped end. In combination with this door-knob and shank he employs a metal disc or plate, which is attached to the wooden frame supporting the canvas on which the scene is painted, by means of screws, and so as to project only very slightly, if at all, from the face of the piece of scenery. This plate has a circular recessed or countersunk part at its centre, in which an elongated slot is cut. After the metal disc has been secured to the scenery in the desired position, the T-ended shank is inserted through the slot therein until stopped by a part of the knob, which for this purpose is made to fit the above-mentioned circular recessed part of the plate, to limit the distance by which the shank can project through the plate. In this position the knob can be turned so as to set the T-end of the shank at an angle to the slot, and thus prevent the shank of the knob from being drawn out of the plate until turned, so as to bring again the cross-piece on the shank into position opposite to the slot. At the back of the disc or plate, and on one side of the slot therein, a catch or stop is provided to engage the cross-piece of the shank, and thus to prevent the same from being turned too far in one direction. Thus door-knobs are provided for stage or scenic purposes which can be put on or taken off at will, without the aid of tools, screws, or like accessories, and the scenery left without any substantial projection to obstruct the packing of the scene, or cause damage to other scenery with which it is packed. The employment, moreover, of an actual handle adds to the realistic and ornamental appearance of the door itself.

THE WEST LONDON.

A very excellent display of animated pictures is being shown, under the management of Mr. Harold Jeapes, at this old Marylebone playhouse, and this class of entertainment bids fair to become very popular with the West Londoners. The best of the films were Parisian Life in Miniature, Yusuf, the Pirate, Archie Goes Shopping, The Kind-hearted Bootblack, For His Child's Sake, The Wonderful Fertiliser, and Our Banana Supply, in which the transit of the fruit from the groves in Costa Rica until it finally reaches the shopkeeper in Edgware-road is interestingly depicted. Two illustrated songs were clearly and well rendered by Mr. Jack Charman, the house heartily joining in the choruses of "In a shady lane" and "Under my Merry Widow hat."

THE Elliott-Savonas, amid their sumptuous stage-setting of "The Palace of Orpheus," again contribute their instrumental selections from William Tell, and a catchy little piece, entitled A Trip on a Mississippi Steamer, at the Hippodrome, Stoke-on-Trent, this week. Marguerite Ismay and her White Coons meet with a good reception, as does also Alice Maude in her impersonations; the Brothers Hannaway are smart patterers and dancers; Senorita Elvina gives a graceful exhibition on the trapeze; the Alskarno Trio, amusing Risley acrobats, and Jack Hayton, the queer Lancashire lad, are to be noted. The film, A White Man, depicts various phases of cowboy life.

"THE MOUNTAIN BELLE."

A Sketch in Three Scenes, Libretto by Charles Crozier, Music by Harry Rushworth, first produced at Richmond Hippodrome, on Monday, Oct. 19.

Marcos Crespo .....Mr. Walter Freear
Pedrillo .....Mr. Bay Russell
Lionel Bernard .....Mr. Edward O'Brien
Don Jerome .....Mr. Bert Rolfe
Donna Lorenza .....Miss Edie McCarthy
Violante .....Miss Hilda Jacobson

When The Mountain Belle has been a little longer before the public she will have all the town at her heels. The production was received with enthusiasm at Richmond, and both the composer, Mr. Harry Rushforth, and the author, Mr. Charles Crozier, are to be heartily congratulated. The dialogue is smart, the business clever, the situations droll, and the general production above the average of its class.

The plot deals with a topic admirably adapted to the lyric stage. Marcos Crespo, a delightful villain, has turned brigand for want of an occupation. He is associated with a band of cut-throats, with an amiable second villain, Pedrillo to boot. Then there is the usurper, Don Jerome, and the Mountain Belle, Violante. As a plea for polite burglary the band are to visit Don Jerome's Palace disguised, the Mountain Belle to pose as a Countess and her followers as her attendants. The Don receives his guests, and is then faced by the rightful heir. Restitution follows. Interwoven with the plot there is the love story of the Mountain Belle for a certain itinerant artist, who succeeds in winning her hand, and thus all ends comme il faut.

The piece is mounted with prodigal sumptuousness; the scenery is particularly good, the opening tableau showing the Mountain of Cresso is in itself a veritable gem. The dresses are bright and the appointments appropriate. The chorus did fairly well, but the orchestra seemed a little timid of attack on the evening of our visit, and several of the numbers suffered. In the representation, Miss Hilda Jacobson took the house by storm in the title-rôle. She has a fine, well-trained voice, and was heard to advantage in a rousing ditty, "Hark to the tramp." She was equally successful in the farewell duet with Lionel Bernard. Mr. Bay Russell made a decided hit as Pedrillo; his antics and business resulted in a lot of merriment. His song, "I've just been introduced," was capital, too. Mr. Bert Rolfe did well as Don Jerome, and Miss Edie McCarthy was interesting as Donna Lorenza. Mr. Walter Freear was a huge success as Marcos Crespo, the bandit chief—a desperando with a vein of extravagant humour. All things considered, The Mountain Belle is a delightful item, thanks to an admirable all-round performance. For Mr. Bay Russell as stage manager we only have unqualified praise.

Mr. Billy Ross and company are meeting with great success in Scotland with their new comedy boxing act, Maloney's Troubles.

On Friday evening (16th) at the first house at Barrasford's Hippodrome, Sheffield, just as Jan Rudenyi had finished his sketch, The Power of Music, a young woman in the gallery gave birth to a child. Mother and baby were removed as speedily as possible, and hurried home in a cab.

The latest quotations for music-hall shares are as follow:—Alhambra, 1¼; Canterbury, ¼; Empire (15s. paid), 1¼; ditto (10s. paid), 1; London Pavilion ordinary, 3½; ditto, preference, 4½; Metropolitan, 14/0; Moss Empire, 5; ditto 5 per cent. preference, 3¼; Oxford, 6; Palace, 18/6; Tivoli, 5¼; Var. Cons. Theas., 9/6.

Miss Nellie Norway, another aspirant to the variety stage, is a younger sister of Miss Ethel Walker, the popular entertainer at the piano. She made her début at the grand charity matinée on Thursday at the Hackney Empire, where her speciality "Campanology," had a hearty reception from the vast audience that filled the building. It was manifest that the finely-played melodies on the bells were immensely appreciated. Miss Norway's selections were supported by the excellent orchestra.

Signor Augustus Greco, musical director of the Palace, Reading, was presented on Saturday evening by the gentlemen of his orchestra with a gold medal, bearing his monogram on the face, and on the back: "Presented to Signor Augustus Greco by his band as a token of esteem on the first anniversary of the opening of the Palace." The leader, Mr. Pizel, made the presentation, in the presence of Mr. George Howard Watson, managing-director, who also had something complimentary to say concerning Mr. Greco. The gratified recipient made a speech of grateful acknowledgment.

Opening her London tour of the Gibbons theatres at the Ealing Hippodrome last Monday Miss Annie Braddan ("the Manx girl") sang for the first time to Londoners her great provincial song success, by Willmott and Darewski, "Far away in Australia." "The boys" caught it up at once, and Miss Braddan's popularity in the metropolis was at once assured. Another catchy song, with novel effects, was sung by the same lady, embodying a warning that "The man at the door was father." It speaks volumes for Miss Braddan when it can be recorded that several well-known managing-directors sent their representatives out to Ealing during the week especially to book her turn.

Miss Lola Lee, an exponent of Eastern dancing, will make her first appearance on the European stage at the Canterbury on Monday. Miss Lee, who is still in her teens, is a member of a well-known Anglo-Indian family, and was born and brought up in the East, where her dances have hitherto been given from time to time privately before Indian notabilities. A feature of her dances are her snakes. From her earliest days she has had a peculiar influence over ophidians, and if there really is such a thing as snake-charming, she may certainly be said to be able to do it. The dances to be given at the Canterbury will be two characteristic instances of Miss Lee's style, and may be accepted as genuine Eastern art. Dances suitable for private entertainments in Indian drawing-rooms naturally required a certain amount of revision before being transferred to a London stage, and here Miss Lee has had the advantage of the practical advice of Mr. John D'Auban.

For the first time there is to be a "Winter Session" at Earl's Court. A syndicate has acquired the Empress Hall, and after spending £3,500 on a new parquet flooring and general rebuilding, will open it as a dancing and skating carnival on Nov. 5. Many novelties are promised. The "carnival area" will be the biggest ballroom in the world, surpassing even those at Blackpool, Isle of Man, and Coney Island. The programme will be changed daily, and all the time two spectacles will be going on at once. Skating will start at 11.30 a.m., and dancing will be added at 7 o'clock each evening. Among the novelties promised are "Sports on Wheels" and "Beauties on Skates," and a pony and trap is the first prize for the lady who exhibits the best head of hair. There are to be limelight effects. The M.C. will wear hunting evening dress; everyone dancing must wear proper shoes and remove hats. Lady and gentleman instructors will be everywhere. Admission will be 6d., with extras for dancing and skating.

"THE GAY DECEIVERS."
"THE GAY DECEIVERS."
The Funniest and Brightest Musical Show on Tour.
Breaking all records in every Town visited.
Catchy Songs, Clever Dances, Uproarious Comedy, and Pretty Girls.
Star Cast of London Artists.
Enormous success at Hippodrome, Sheerness, Eastbourne, and Aldershot.
Great Success on its return to Critical Brighton.
The Brighton Gazette says:—
Some musical comedy is rubbish. Some musical comedy serves to pass away an evening in a pleasant fashion. Some musical comedy is excellent, and well worth seeing on its merits. Of the latter order is "The Gay Deceivers," being played this week at the Palace Pier Theatre. There is a "plot"—if that is the correct term for musical comedy—and it is not hidden, as is so often the case; but it matters little. "The Gay Deceivers" is hilarious in its fun, full of subtle wit, and sparkles with pretty music—which is modestly described on the programme as "catchy songs." But the term is inadequate; it is not grand opera, certainly, it is not classical, but it is more than "catchy," it is pretty and tuneful, and on several occasions rises to the height of real music, with all that is meant by the word. And the fun is glorious, so absurd as to be positively clever; while the whole thing is carried through so brightly that it appears as though the artists are amusing themselves rather than playing for the benefit of the audience. As regards the cast, our difficulty is not who to praise, for the whole company play into each other's hands, and work for the success of the whole, and the consequence is that on the Palace Pier this week is to be seen one of the nicest musical comedies ever brought to Brighton, played by a company which is second to none. In a sentence, "The Gay Deceivers" is brilliant, and a certain cure for a fit of the blues.
WANTED, First-class Theatres only, Nov. 2 (S. Wales and North), Nov. 16 (North), Nov. 23. Wire, this, STANMORE, Palace Pier, Brighton; next, Grand T., Aberavon.

THE GIPSIES AND THEIR JESTER.
WANTED, Pier Pavilions, Winter Gardens, &c.

An evening spent in their company is a time to be remembered. For misanthropes, pessimists, and that ilk there could be no better prescription. The applause loud and long that always punctuates their numbers is an even inadequate criterion of the pleasure that they afford to their audiences. We are forced to the conviction that few if any of the other concert parties who have visited us this year are the equals of this troupe in the all-round excellence of their entertainments.—Folkestone Herald, Oct. 10, 1908.

The Directors of the Leas Pavilion, Folkestone, have re-engaged them for seventeen weeks next summer. Their returns showed another 40 per cent. advance over their previous season, which was 50 per cent. over any preceding year.

Only Vacancies Next Summer:
Week commencing Monday, April 19, 26, May 3, 10, 17, June 7, 14, 21, 28, Sept. 20, onward.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office.

Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns.

Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follow:

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT.
MR. S. GETHING,
Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT.
MR. T. GERALD MORTON,
Empire Palace, Leeds.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. HATTON WHARTON,
Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

LIVERPOOL, MANCHESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. ALBERT BULMER,
The Empire, Liverpool.

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.
MR. ALBERT MITCHELL,
Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

LONDON DISTRICT.
MR. J. CHRISTIE,
Empire Theatre, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously.

Our Pantomime Books are now ready, and will be sent only to bona fide Pantomime Artists, on receipt of 1/-.

JUST PUBLISHED.

"THE WITMARK AID TO ENTERTAINERS."

Everyone interested in stage, club, and home amusements should send for this encyclopædia of information relating to all and every kind of entertaining.
Sent post paid on receipt of two penny stamps.

All of our sanguine prophecies have been realised by the enormous success made by Miss LIL HAWTHORNE with

"JUST SOME ONE."

The present rage of America. The coming Christmas chorus song.

The comic song for the mirth-provoker—

"EVERYBODY KNOWS IT'S THERE."
with extra verses, by Mr. EDGAR BATEMAN.

And still another chorus number—

"YOU CAN'T STOP YOUR HEART FROM BEATING FOR THE GIRL YOU LOVE."

SPECIAL NOTICE.

ALL APPLICATIONS for professional copies must be accompanied by recent programmes and seven penny stamps to ensure attention. No postcard applications considered.

THIS WEEK'S NOVELTIES.

PRINCE FERDINAND, TSAR OF BULGARIA, ENTERING SOFIA

(OCTOBER 12, 1908).

Titles of Pictures:—Sofia en fête—The Clergy awaiting the Tsar at the Sofia Cathedral—The Tsar and his Staff—The Procession—The Tsar saluting the cheering crowd.

THE STOLEN WATCH.

Code Word, "FAILLITE."

Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins are enjoying a day in the country. After lunch they go to sleep in the grass, and presently two ruffians come and strip them of their valuables. On waking up, the worthy townspeople are very sorry they ever thought of leaving their jewellery shop. They are just reckoning up what their day's outing has cost them when the actual thieves walk in, and offer them their own articles of jewellery for sale. There is no need to say that presently everything is restored to them, and the scoundrels delivered over to the police.

JERUSALEM.

Code Word, "DEMENT."

This is a lovely picture of the ancient city of Jehovah, made so picturesque by the crowd of quaintly-clad people who are at home in the streets. Jerusalem, being built on four mountains, forms four different quarters. St. Sepulchre's Church, surrounded by a folk of shopkeepers dealing in eatables, beads, weapons, &c., makes a fine show; then on Zion mountain is the "Tower of David," and in other parts of the town other remnants of the past splendour of the Holy City.

314ft. The Subject, £5 4s. 8d.

A FASHIONABLE WALTZ.

Code Word, "FANATISME."

The new waltz looks so attractive, represented as it is by a beautiful woman, that an artist buys it and begins waltzing in the street. Two policemen join in and whirl about. Then the artist asks a street organ-grinder for his instrument, and at the sound of the music everybody in the street, and carriages also, turn and waltz madly.

379ft. The Subject, £6 6s. 4d.

MY MA-IN-LAW BEATS THE RECORD.

Code Word, "FARINE."

Ma-in-law is not possessed of the sweetest of tempers, and her son-in-law is a grocer. During one of those stormy interviews which take place every day between them a motor-car stops at the door. The son-in-law packs his ma off in the automobile, and ma-in-law is now a runaway. She upsets a barrow, pulls down a barrier, &c., and finally stops in front of the goal of the New York-Paris race, where she is cheered by the crowd.

280ft. The Subject, £4 13s. 4d.

A SCIENTIST'S ADVENTURES.

Code Word, "FANFARE."

While pursuing a rare butterfly, Mr. Knowall forgets that he is on earth, and, as a consequence of it, he falls into a pool. Soldiers, however, have pity on him, and lend him one of their uniforms after taking him to the barracks. Yet, some soldiers, taking him for a recruit, play practical jokes on him, just the usual kind of thing in such circumstances, until the sergeant-major, having been acquainted with the facts, comes and delivers poor Mr. Knowall from his plight.

346ft. The Subject, £5 15s. 4d.

THE MOHAWK'S REVENGE.

Code Word, "FASTE."

Two cowboys, having killed a young Mohawk who had taken a draught out of their spirit bottle, are now being tracked by the tribe. Presently they are taken by the Red Indians, and smoked out in a cave in the rocks. This is a horrible punishment, no more cruel, however, than the groundless murder of the poor child.

445ft. The Subject, £7 8s. 4d. Toning extra, 15s. 0d.

THE HEART OF A GIPSY.

Code Word, "FANGE."

Gipsies have been seen pilfering, and they are driven away by the infuriated peasants. A girl of their gang, having sprained her ankle, is taken home by a young peasant, and tended by the latter's mother. Now, the boy loves her for her beauty and gentleness of manners, and he entreats his mother to let him marry the gipsy girl. Presently she gives in, and they are all very happy.

495ft. The Subject, £8 5s. 0d. Toning extra, 18s. 0d.

TWO OLD COLLEGE CHUMS.

Code Word, "FARINEUX."

John Durand and J. P. Bridge have been great chums at school, but while the former makes a success of his life, the other descends the rungs of the social ladder one by one. John Durand meets him in the street in the garb of a sandwichman. Yet, as one must always give one's fellow-creatures a chance, Durand takes Bridge home with him, and sees what he can do for him. Soon, however, John finds, to his dismay, that Bridge is only fit for being a sandwichman, and he sends him back to his old work with a kick.

510ft. The Subject, £8 10s. 0d.

FANTASTIC HEADS.

Code Word, "FAIX."

A wizard takes his own head in his hands, and throws it on the floor; but it is immediately replaced by another, which swells to an extraordinary size, while the magician seems to be coming from far away to the foreground of the picture. The wizard repeats this turn several times, then he opens his mouth very wide, and in it are seen miniature artists.

314ft. The Subject, £5 4s. 8d. Colouring extra, £3 3s.

THE HAPPIEST DAY IN HER LIFE.

Code Word, "EXCESSIF."

A little girl, on the point of making her first communion, is taken ill, and obliged to stay in bed. She is so sorry at the idea of missing the great fête that she gets up, and dresses in her white frock, then goes out into the street, and manages to reach the church door before her strength fails her. She is carried home, and a doctor is immediately summoned; he gives little hope, but she must drink a medicine he prescribes, and perhaps she will recover. The little patient is unwilling to take the beverage, and she excites herself so that she falls asleep. In her dream she sees the whole ceremony as it actually takes place, she finds herself among the other communicants, and she partakes of the Divine feast. What she has taken for the Holy bread is the medicine, which heals her, and the little dreamer is saved.

MODERN MAGIC.

Code Word, "FAITAGE."

The magician puts panes of glass on to water-jugs, which serve as supports. On top of these she places a casket from which issue grimacing faces; smoke of different colours rises from the ground, and there appears in a frame a young woman who takes the shape of a butterfly, whose shining wings flutter and shimmer in the light.

396ft. The Subject, £6 13s. 0d. Colouring extra, £1.

FEMININE HATE.

Code Word, "ETEIGNOIR."

An idle young lady has become interested in a handsome Bohemian, and she goes out with him. Yet a gipsy girl of his gang is in love with him, and as this rouses her jealousy she tells the young lady's father of her idyll; he shrugs his shoulders, and resumes his walk. The gipsy runs to the beach where she is sure to find the couple, and she endeavours to kill the other girl with her stiletto; but the stranger snatches a revolver from her side, and fires. The last picture shows the Bohemian crying over the body of the girl his fickleness has caused to be so badly injured.

445ft. The Subject, £7 8s. 4d.

DETECTIVES FRITT AND PLOCK.

Code Word, "EXCITANT."

A very daring thief has been traced by the police, but as he always escapes when they least expect it, a reward of £1000 has been promised to the detective who can catch him. Our friends, Fritt and Plock, who have been given special instructions, see the man as he is enjoying his drink on the terrace of a café; but noticing that he is being watched the scoundrel jumps into a cab and drives to the station; just as the train is steaming out an old lady and a swell arrive in time to see that they are too late. Turning round, they recognise each other. Fritt boards a motor-car, and while he is preparing for the start Plock ties a small carriage belonging to a cripple to the rear of the automobile, and jumps in. And so forth, until at last they are both there to catch the thief in a curiosity shop, and shaking hands loyally they decide to share the reward.

626ft. The Subject, £10 8s. 8d.

SILHOUETTES.

Code Word, "FACTAGE."

Two Chinamen throw on the screen all sorts of personages that silhouette themselves on the dark background, then move and dance very prettily in a series of "tableaux vivants."

370ft. The Subject, £6 6s. 4d. Colouring extra, £3 3s. 0d.

RETRIBUTION.

ONE OF THE MOST POWERFUL, TOUCHING, AND BEAUTIFUL DRAMAS EVER UNFOLDED UPON THE SCREEN. THE SUPERB ENACTMENT, COUPLED WITH THE EXQUISITE SETTING OF EVERY SCENE, REPRODUCED WITH ABSOLUTE FAITHFULNESS AND PERFECT PHOTOGRAPHIC QUALITY.

Husband, maddened by jealousy, commits double murder. Filled with remorse, he abandons his baby at the church door, and gives himself up. Touching and beautiful scenes of the infant of three months, who is found and adopted by the priest. Twenty years later the child, now a young woman, is betrothed, and her father is released. He applies to the priest, who entreats and commands him to keep silence for ever. Great scene of renunciation and benediction as his daughter's wedding procession is passing from the church.

No. 4077. Code "Equity." Length 650ft.

NANCY (FRANCE) AND THE VOSGES.

VIEWS OF NANCY, THE ANCIENT CAPITAL OF LORRAINE, AND OF THE VOSGES RANGE ON THE FRANCO-GERMAN FRONTIER: Beyond Dispute one of the most beautiful Districts of France.

Wonderful light and shade effects on pine forest and mountain heights, with charming views of verdure and pool at Plombières, are given in fascinating railway and other panoramic sequences of great clearness, beauty, and perfect photographic quality.

THE TRAMP'S CYCLING MANIA.

A ROUGH-AND-TUMBLE SUBJECT OF GREAT ORIGINALITY. UPROARIOUS FARCE WITH HILARITY IN EVERY INCIDENT.

A tramp is seized with a madness for cycling, and, regardless of ownership, indulges to the full extent his mania. As one machine is wrecked he steals another; when this in turn comes to grief, he appropriates a third—and so on. Each machine is responsible for a thrilling situation, for the cyclist never does the right thing. He is caught beneath a motor, crushed flat by a huge stone; his remains are pasted against a wall as an ordinary poster—but why describe further? It is a film for every exhibitor to show, and every beholder to laugh at.

No. 2278. Code "Flat." Length 315ft.

A NEW AND CHEAP EDITION OFFERED TO "THE ERA" READERS ON SPECIALLY ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

THERE can be little doubt that the whole profession should have this Edition of the great dramatist's works, arranged as it has been by the greatest Shakespearean actor of modern times, in conjunction with Mr. Frank A. Marshall; with extensive Notes and Introductions by Joseph Knight, O. F. Adams, H. A. Evans, P. L. Round, Dr. Richard Garnett, A. Symons, W. J. Rolfe, A. Wilson Verity, Canon Beeching, P. A. Daniel, and Prof. Edward Dowden.

The Edition has many features to recommend it, which here can merely be touched upon: "Shakespeare as a Playwright" by Sir H. Irving, "An Appreciation of Sir Henry Irving" from the pen of Bram Stoker, "Shakespeare's Country" contributed by Jerome Harrison, being, perhaps, the most important. Whilst the text is given unmutilated, un-Bowdlerized, Sir Henry has specially marked those portions which can, in his judgment, best be omitted in dramatic presentation.

The books have been specially illustrated by celebrated artists and each has a coloured frontispiece.

6/= TO EACH SUBSCRIBER A MAGNIFICENT PHOTOGRAVURE PORTRAIT OF SIR HENRY IRVING AS HAMLET IS PRESENTED.

Send 6/- to-day, and complete edition in 14 volumes will be despatched, carriage paid; nine monthly payments of a similar sum and one payment of 3/- will complete the purchase.

"HIS WIFE'S FAMILY."

A Comedy, in Three Acts, by "George Egerton," Produced at Wallack's Theatre, New York, on Oct. 6.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Major Patrick Sarsfield Desmond, an aristocratic Irishman of the old school, whose devil-may-care light-heartedness and improvidence nothing can quench or cure, is the central figure of this comedy, and Mr. Arnold Daly, for whom the play was written by Mrs. R. Golding Bright, gives a representation of the character that is highly creditable to him. The comedy is rich in humour, and at times tenderly human and appealing. Certain Irish and English characteristics are contrasted in an entertaining and agreeable way, but there is one thing missing, and that is the conflict of interests that one expects to find in a three-act play. A feature of the performance that proved highly acceptable to the "old-timers" was the appearance of Mr. Edward Harrigan in the rôle of Corporal O'Carroll, the Major's manservant. Mr. Harrigan made the part stand out in bold relief, and was warmly applauded. His son William was also in the cast. Margaret Ellen Desmond has married Roderick Hay, an English gentleman of moderate means. The Desmond family become bankrupt, and the only thing for them to do is to "visit" Margaret Ellen. Accordingly they "drop in" one by one. The first to arrive is Bridget Casey, an old servant, who gives a happy-go-lucky account of the sale of Desmond Hall and the attending circumstances. Trixie Desmond, Mrs. Hay's sister, follows with still more humorous details of the domestic disaster. Next and last comes the father of the young women, Major Patrick Sarsfield Desmond, an elderly rollicking army man, who treats the whole affair as a huge joke. He insists upon mixing a punch, causing an immediate depletion of his son-in-law's resources in buying the ingredients for the beverage. From his son-in-law, too, he borrows the shilling with which he tips the boy who has carried the basket. By the time the Desmonds have quartered themselves upon their more fortunate relatives the story of their misfortunes has been told in every detail. The first act takes place in Roderick Hay's cottage near Richmond. The next is laid at the Major's lodgings in Guilford-street, London, eighteen months later. The fortunes of the Desmonds have steadily declined. Mrs. Hay has done her utmost to keep them in funds, but things have gone from bad to worse. Neither the Major nor his children can understand that they are expected to pay for anything they have. Their rent is in arrears, and they don't know how the next meal is to be provided, nor do they seem to care. The Major's servant, Corporal O'Carroll, has received no wages for five years; but he never presumes to mention the debt to the old officer, and to such straits is he reduced in caring for the family that he snares the pigeons that cluster about the British Museum and cooks them for the family breakfast.

Trixie Desmond is pursued by Captain Vesey Perry, another Irishman in London, with the idea of marriage, and she is half inclined to accept him, but the Major thinks she might do better. Margaret Ellen, familiarly known as "Maginel," drops in, and learns from O'Carroll that her relatives are "broke." She pawns her watch, buys a steak, and cooks a nice dinner, only to see Trixie and the Major dash off to dine with Captain Perry in response to his invitation. In the last act the Major receives an annuity from a relative, which proves to be a much smaller sum than he expected, as the principal is eventually to go to his son, Bryan, who of all the family has alone shown a disposition to do something for a living. The Major thinks he is entitled to live as "an Irish gentleman" should, and begins to fritter away his income, counting on his daughter Trixie to contract a wealthy marriage. He brings gifts for everybody, and arrays himself in the most expensive of fur motor-coats. Trixie weds Captain Perry, however, against the Major's wishes, and he splutters with rage every time his daughter's name is mentioned until he suddenly discovers a baby's shoe that Margaret Ellen has been treasuring in anticipation of a new arrival in the family. The Major's delight at having discovered this secret, even before it is known to Margaret Ellen's husband, brings forgiveness all round, and the play ends with a scene of general rejoicing. Mr. Edwin Arden as Roderick Hay and Miss Doris Keane as Margaret Ellen played their parts well.

AMUSEMENTS IN SOUTH AFRICA.

JOHANNESBURG, Sept. 24.—Standard Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. Leonard Rayne; Manager, Mr. Grant Fallowes.—Oh, Susannah! is being staged here this week, and good houses are the rule. Miss Freda Godfrey, who made her first appearance since her return from England, appeared as Aurora, and was extended a hearty welcome. She made a thorough success of the part. Mr. Chas. Howitt as John Sheppard caused endless laughter; Mr. E. Burton Seymour as Mr. Plant was excellent; the Lieut. Andrew Merry of Mr. Brough Pierce was a finished piece of acting; Mr. Tearle as Hon. Waverley Vane was satisfactory; Mr. Harry Paine as Tupper showed himself to be a first-rate comedian; Miss Susannah Shepherd was well accounted for by Miss Annie Leaf; and Miss Eva Speight gave a fine character-study of Mrs. O'Hara. Miss Esther Tearle as Flora was all that could be desired.

The Wheeler-Edwardes Gaiety company is at His Majesty's Theatre in The Girl Behind the Counter, which is being enthusiastically received.

At the Crystal Palace this week Mr. Charles Macdona's company has been winning golden opinions in Are You a Mason? Mr. Langdon Bruce as George Fisher creates very hearty laughter by his diverting performance; Mr. Frank Groom as Frank Perry acts with spirit and ability; Mr. E. H. Paterson is admirable as Amos Bloodgood; and Mr. G. P. Polson as Mr. Halton is very droll. Mr. Erskholme E. Clive as Hamilton Travers does good work; and Mr. Wilton Ross as Ernest Morrison is highly commendable. Miss Adelaide Grace as Caroline Bloodgood shows ability; and Miss Rita Narcelli as Annie is acceptable. Miss Dulcie Verney as Lulu deserves praise; and Miss Viola Garland as Mrs. Halton and Miss Mary Kilpack as Lottie are worthy of warm commendation. The play is appropriately mounted.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

ABERAVON.—Grand Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. D. Jones; Manager, Mr. A. Burrows.—Perhaps the smartest thing seen at this theatre this season is Mr. Frank Stanmore's company in The Gay Deceivers. The cast included Messrs. Arthur Dennis, Douglas Phillips, Francis Chamier, Frank Stanmore, Pat Eden, and a capital comedian in Mr. Mark Lester; Misses Dorothy Chard, Kate Chard, Dora Lane, a graceful dancer in Miss Pauline Prim, and an excellent chorus.

ABERDEEN.—His Majesty's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Adair Nelson.—The Beloved Vagabond occupies the boards this week. Mr. Arthur Royston gives a fascinating portraiture of Paragot; and that brilliant actress Miss Nita Faydon makes a sweet and graceful picture as the strolling player; while Miss Kathleen Harrington is a captivating Joanna. Mr. Ramsay Macbeth plays powerfully as Asticot; and Mr. Alfred Drayton and Mr. Warburton Gamble cleverly represent Lord Rushworth and the Count Verneuil. The play is finely staged.

Palace Theatre.—Lessees, The United County Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—Miss Maud Mortimer makes a conspicuous hit this week with her vivacious and piquantly rendered songs; Signor Venturini's latest device, "The Mysterious Bedroom," is one of the most bewilderingly ingenious effects in illusionism that have been seen on the stage; Mr. John Donald fully justifies the high reputation he has earned as a vocalist; and among the other successful turns are those of Mr. Ben Harris, with his clever Nippers; Bellman and Moore, two delightfully original American burlesque artists; Mr. Archie Pitt, comedian; Miss Gertie Lewis, male impersonator and dancer; Miss Cissie Thompson, comedienne; and Bernard and Watson, a couple of excellent comedians and dancers.

Beach Pavilion.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. David Thomson.—A principal feature of the show last week was the Beauty Competition for men. One of the artists, that fine vocalist Mr. Jack Marson, came in third. The variety part of the entertainment is excellent, as usual.

Alhambra Music Hall.—Proprietor, Mr John Sinclair; General-Manager, Mr. G. B. Lee.—The company here attracts crowded houses. Chief among the artists are Mr. Edward Stevens, a clever comedian and dancer; Miss Vesta Rae, a first-rate ballad vocalist, who accompanies the illustrated songs most sympathetically; and Gilroy and Gross, a pair of talented and versatile eccentric comedians.

Empire Music Hall.—Managers, Messrs. R. Caller and J. Montague.—A capital entertainment is provided by such accomplished artists as Miss Marie Rose, vocalist and dancer; Mr. Archie Murray, coon singer and banjoist; Prof. Montague, conjurer; Mr. Arthur Bright, topical vocalist and instrumentalist; and Mr. Henry Mitchell, gymnast. An amusing burlesque, The Suffragette, is cleverly played by the Empire sketch company.

The U.S.A. Animated Picture Company, which is under the experienced management of Mr. Victor Hamilton, opened for a short season in Aberdeen in the Music Hall on Monday. The first show was attended by a large audience, who expressed their entire satisfaction.

ABERTILLERY.—Metropole Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. J. Seaborn.—The visit of Hardie and Von Leer's company to this theatre in Two Little Vagabonds attracted a crowded house at the opening performance. Mr. George Denham was a clever and effective George Thornton; Mr. Herbert Standing a successful Captain Darville; and Mr. Herbert Russell an excellent Bill Mullins. Miss Dora F. Harvey acted impressively as Marion Thornton; Miss Leonora Castelle was a thoroughly capable Barbara Scarth; and the waifs are presented in a pleasing and pathetic way by Miss Chrissie Francess and Miss Ethel F. Greene.

Pavilion.—Lessees, Messrs. E. and H. Tilney; Manager, Mr. E. Pryce.—In the interesting programme provided here the Zenarys give a smart entertainment as trick cyclists; Stanley Waller receives applause for his manipulation of the piano; a pleasing item is contributed by the Desmonds; a laughable sketch is given by John Holland and company; Irene Meldon is a dainty vocalist and dancer; a beautiful electrical scena is produced by the Broughtons; and Charcot's automatic man performs with great skill. The Bioscope is shown to advantage.

ACCRINGTON.—Prince's Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—Mr. T. Edward Ward's company are paying a welcome return visit with Second to None. Mr. Theo Balfour capably sustains the part of Sir Reginald Greystone; Mr. Leonard Williams as Harry Wilding gives a strong and forcible impersonation; Mr. Charles Halling plays with power and finish as Frank Wilding; Mr. Fred F. Lloyd as Capt. Philip Mannering is convincing; Mr. J. G. Maine admirably fits the part of Sergeant Jack Horseman; Mr. Arthur D. Layland acquits himself with credit as Lieut. Archie Ballater; Miss Dorothy Clifton acts with sympathy and charm as Nell Greystone; and Miss Mary Mallalieu merits praise as May Greystone. The play is excellently staged.

ALDERSHOT. — Royal and Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Jack Gladwin.—The Aldershot Operatic Society, who are "in possession" this week, are presenting the comic opera, Paul Jones.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill, jun.—This week we have W. W. Kelly's company in the drama founded on Mrs. Henry Wood's novel, and called The New East Lynne. The piece receives intelligent treatment from Mr. Frederick Harker as Archibald Carlyle, Mr. W. H. Garbois as Francis Levison, and Mr. Richard Nugent as Murty O'Flynn, a typical Hibernian. Lady Isabel finds in Miss Beth Elliott an adequate representative of the erring wife; Miss Sophy Shenton is good as Cornelia Carlyle; Miss Josephine Gwynne as Barbara Hare is amiable and graceful; Miss Guinevere Shilton doubles the parts of Afy Hallijohn and Joyce Hallijohn with good effect.

Empire Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H Broadhead and Sons.—Messrs. Teddy Braund and Bert Davies, the comedy merchants, open the ball of fun at each performance with humorous cross-talk; Fame and Fortune have gained a notoriety for their laughable absurdity; J. L. Cunliffe, on his native heath, gains much local popularity; an expert juggler is seen in Eugene; Barrie and Wood call for special commendation for their comedy and acrobatic dancing; the Three Behans (Arthur, Cissie, and Kitty) win favour in a quick-change comedy act; Edwin Adeler is a good singing funmaker; Ben Jackson a good banjo specialist; and a sketch is introduced by Thompson Carruthers, a sensational card-manipulating novelty called The Master Card. There are five character impersonations. Dunningarto, the master of the cards, is the leading actor in the scene, and as Powlo Delbosco creates considerable sensation with his acting. He is well supported by Fred H. Constable and Misses Ethel Arto, Bertha Clifton, and Ivy Chandos.

Picturedrome.—Lessees, Messrs. Weisker Bros.—Some really good films are put on the canvas from week to week here. This week's list includes moving pictures of Yachting on the Solent, Catching a Tartar, The Guardian of the Bank, An Abduction (Louis XVI. reign), detective stories, balloon ascents, aeroplane (comic), and many other impressive pictures. George Christian, armless comedian, and Delmar and Denney also appear.

ATTERCLIFFE.—Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Bert Dent; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Harry Sanders.—An excellent programme here is contributed to by the following artists:—Pasquali Brothers, clever equilibrists and acrobats; the Three Orleans, harmonising vocalists and smart dancers; Denby and Dent, in a laughable comedy act; Natalia and Diana, smart aerial gymnasts; Mr. J. C. Price, baritone vocalist; Miss Rosie Dawn, Scotch comedienne and dancer; little Alice Maud, mimic and male impersonator; Mr. Walter Stanley, an acceptable comedian. The Attergraph pictures are also on view.

AYR.—New Gaiety Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry W. Day.—Mr. Herbert Greville's company in the comedy Merely Mary Ann is here for a six nights' run. Mr. Paul Lovett as Lancelot and Miss Jessica Solomon as Mary Ann do ample justice to their parts; Mr. Stanley Logan as Lancelot's friend Peter gives a good rendering; Miss Violet Greville as the lodging-house keeper is excellent; and for a fine conception of the part of the Rev. Samuel Smedge Mr. Robert Entwistle is responsible.

BACUP.—New Court Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Denman-Wood.—Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Willard's company in The Midnight Mail forms the attraction here this week. Mr. George Harvard gives a fine impersonation of the engine driver, Harry Steyne; as Billy Brewer Mr. Grant Lytton's performance is decidedly clever; Mr. Charles H. Longden as Leonard Royle ably acquits himself; and Mr. C. P. Wentworth supplies an excellent sketch as Hussen Padisha. Miss Trissie Humphreys as Mary Steyne submits a sympathetic embodiment of the rôle; Miss Daisy Clifford is a bright Nancy Brewer; Miss Jeannie Weston gives a pleasing impersonation of Lady Phyllis Eustace; and Miss Marie Longden plays Miss Mildmay very naturally. Minor parts in a long cast all have capable representatives.

BARGOED.—New Hall.—Proprietors, Welsh Halls, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Popkin Calloway.—Messrs. Armitage and Leigh's company in Leah Kleschna is drawing good audiences. Mr. William Clayton as Kleschna, Mr. Hamilton Deane as Paul Sylvaine, Mr. Gilbert Heron as Schram, and Mr. Algernon J. Hicks as Raoul Berton make a great impression. Miss Bessie Rignold's rendering of Leah Kleschna is a natural and finished performance; as Sophie Chaponniere Miss Dorrie Turner is very charming. The rest of the parts are in good hands.

BARNSLEY.—Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr. A. C. Mitchell.—Mr. Edward Marris's company in The Dandy Doctor is paying a return visit this week. Miss Florence Smithers keeps the house in roars of laughter by her inimitable acting as Jane "the general"; Mr. George Brentwood is very amusing as Melchisadek Brown; Mr. A. Leslie Martin has a part in Bertie Bolingbroke which suits him admirably; Miss Mollie Wynne is a charming Ivy Pendred, and Mr. Herbert Pearce does well as Colonel Pendred. Mr. C. Burrunston Williams is a capital Arthur Vandyke, M.D., and the minor parts are well sustained.

New Empire Palace.—Proprietors, The Barnsley Empire Palace, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Will Smithson.—The Dunedin Troupe, acrobatic cyclists, who occupy premier place on the programme, are clever and sensational entertainers; the Emson Girls (Rita and Kitty) are accomplished duettists and dancers; Wyndham and Kitty provide a daring wire act; the Evalos appear in a novel juggling and gymnastic act; Bennett and Martell in a good turn entitled The Shipwrecked Mariners provoke laughter; the Burnells are well received in a musical and acrobatic turn; Flo Inman, descriptive vocalist, and "Mr. E." with up-to-date jokes, are heard to advantage. Some laughable pictures by the Palacescope conclude.

BARNSTAPLE.—Albert Hall.—Proprietors, the Barnstaple Town Council; Manager, Mr. O. J. Nicklin.—Mr. Joseph Poole's new Myriorama met with a hearty reception on Monday. In addition, the following artists are sustaining a capital programme:—Morritt, magician; Miss Alicia May, in song scena; the Blind Man of Memory; Vela, a smart equilibrist; Silly Selby, musical momus; the Veronas, lady dancers; Mr. Nat Abatt, guide and raconteur; the Cedrics, pattering comedians; Mme. Beulah in mental telepathy; Fil Gerard, with living portraits of "people we know"; Lieut. Chard's canine hippodrome; and Poole's Myriograph.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS. — Royalty Theatre and Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Mr. Joseph Bebb's company is here in A Lion's Heart. Mr. Henry Bedford plays the exacting part of Rizardo with success; Mr. Leonard Booker is a fine Dick Lorimore; the villainies of Colonel Robert de Villefort and Gaspard Doble are cleverly presented by Messrs. Archie Helsby and Stephen Scanlan respectively; as Marion Miss Ada Oakley is sympathetic; and Miss Madge Beresford as Bessie and Mr. Edgar J. Coyne as Jack Bealey are humorous.

His Majesty's Theatre.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—Miss Lena Ashwell's company, in Diana of Dobson's, is here. Miss Emilie Polini is a delightfully vigorous Diana; and Mr. Frank Woolfe makes in interesting Capt. Bretherton. Mr. Edward Harrison is an excellent P.-C. Fellowes; and Mr. W. Kingsford Pearce a capable Sir Jabez Grinlay, Bart. Mr. Stewart Dawson is a typical waiter; Mrs. White Frazer is well drawn by Miss Clarissa Selwynne; and the Misses Eva Gould, Eva Lonsdale, Dorothy Garth, and Olga Esme are severally good as the remaining assistants.

Tivoli.—Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edgar G. Laban.—The top of the bill is occupied by the Paxton Troupe, who give a very daring and clever acrobatic turn; the Sisters Warwick provide a really excellent trick cycle act; the Raymond Trio's musical turn, interspersed with pleasing step-dancing, is much appreciated; Noble and Nash are two good comedians; Annie Lang is a pleasing serio and dancer; Harry Marte is a quaint comedian; and Vernon's Bioscope concludes.

New Hippodrome. — Owners and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ralph D. Fenton.—A very excellent array of pictures is being shown here this week, and the programme is interspersed with several good vaudeville turns.

BARRY DOCK.—New Theatre and Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Brogden.—Mr. Morton Powell presented Greed for Gold here on Monday to a good house. Mr. James Jarret, an excellent Jim Welstead, was well supported by Messrs. H. C. Warde, Wilson Gunning, Sydney Bryant, V. C. Rolfe, J. P. Marsden, and Misses Elma C. Turner, Jennie Hicks, May W. Knight, and Beatrice M. Hughes.

BATH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—On Saturday last the Bensonians concluded another successful annual visit, by presenting, at a matinée, Henry V. (when the house was crowded out), and The Taming of the Shrew in the evening. At the final fall of the curtain, Mr. and Mrs. Benson were the recipients of an ovation, the charming lady receiving a beautiful bouquet. Mr. Benson was called upon for a speech, and in returning thanks for the kind reception accorded the company gracefully referred to the unveiling of the tablet earlier in the week to the great orator, Edmund Burke, and trusted that Bath playgoers would erect in their memory a tablet of their own small efforts, and he wished to convey grateful thanks for the pleasurable time spent during their stay in Bath. On Monday The Thief commenced a week's engagement. Miss Marie Polini as Marise Chelford adds greatly to her reputation; Mr. Rupert Lister also enhances his popularity by his embodiment of Richard Chelford; the Leytons, husband and wife, find in Mr. Cyril Harcourt and Miss Jean Cadell excellent representatives, Harry being undertaken with discretion and ability by Mr. Owen Nares; Mr. Luke Forster as the detective Protheroe handled the part with much cleverness. A play in one act, Too Happy by Half, precedes.

Palace Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—Carl and Mary Ohm's miniature circus is quite an entertainment; the hand-balancing of Leo and Roland and the comedy acrobatic feats of Lacardo Bros. arouse interest and enthusiasm; Gold and Sterling score in their capital interlude, The Welsh Girl and the Artist; Phern and Phern present a clever musical act; Dave O'Toole meets with a rousing reception; and Ellis and Watts, comedians and dancers, go well, as does Harry Simms, light comedian.

BATLEY.—Theatre.—Proprietors, Mr. and Mrs. J. Edward Whitty; Manager, Mr. Alfred A. Taylor.—The attraction here this week is The Girl Who Went Astray, presented by Mr. Bulmer's company. Mr. John B. Shinton makes the most of the part of Captain Frank Julian; Mr. Fred Lloyd does well as Rupert Murdock, Mr. Evan Roland's Adolphus Boomer is smart; and Mr. Tod Squires ably portrays James Yellowsocks. Miss Ada M. Ryder is very successful as Violet, the heroine; Miss Gwynne Warren gives a forceful delineation of Zara, "the girl who went astray"; and Miss Mary Dalby scores as Molly Smart.

BEDFORD.—Royal County Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—Mr. E. Graham Falcon's company is this week presenting the famous comedy The Private Secretary. Mr. Cyril Price Evans is an admirable Rev. Robert Spalding; Mr. Chas. Sims keeps the fun going as Mr. Cattermole; and Mr. Chas. Clayton gives a clever sketch of Mr. Gibson. Mr. Ben Barnett and Mr. Wentworth Fane act with much zest as Harry Marsland and Douglas Cattermole; Miss Josephine Richards is a charming Edith Marsland; and Miss Winifred Williamson a vivacious Eva Webster.

BELFAST. — Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—We are favoured this week with a return visit of the celebrated play The Hypocrites, presented by Mr. Charles Frohman's company. The rôle of Rev. Edgar Linnell was on this occasion presented by Mr. H. Lawrence Leyton, who achieved much success; congratulations are also due to Miss Gladys Harvey, who in the emotional and difficult rôle of Rachel Neve was thoroughly convincing; Mr. Alfred S. Barber would be difficult to excel as Mr. Wilmore, Lord of the Manor; and Mr. King Fordham as the erring son Leonard Wilmore furnishes a most satisfactory impersonation. Miss Amy Ravenscroft must be highly commended for her skilful interpretation of Mrs. Wilmore; humour was displayed by Mr. Cecil Brooking in his treatment of the rôle of the Rev. Everard Daubeney; Mr. Sydney Hamilton was the dignified Sir John Plugenet to the life; and Miss Gladys Purnell was charming as Helen Plugenet. Mr. Charles Harley's acting as Mr. Viveash calls for high praise. Other rôles were admirably sustained by Miss Florence Stevenson, Miss Greta Hahn, Miss Violet Harley, and Messrs. Hanworth, Browning, and Douglas Jefferies.

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. A. Salmond.—The leading attraction here is provided by Miss Amy Augarde and company, who present a Spanish episode entitled La Carmencita, Miss Augarde achieving quite a triumph in the title-rôle. Mr. Charles Baldwin's comedians return with their up-to-date absurdity The Bank Clerks, which creates roars of laughter, and a hit of no small magnitude has been made by Mr. Alfred Graham's Premier Juveniles in their vocal scena entitled A Concert on the Lawn, arranged and produced by Mr. R. L. Griffiths. Mr. Oliver Conroy's comic songs have been hugely enjoyed, and Mack Olive exhibits his well-known ability in his whistling scena. Mr. Charles F. Best as "MacBunker the Mountebank" succeeds in keeping the audience highly amused, and also on the programme are Miss Flo Cecil, comedienne and dancer, Mr. Billy Hubbard, comedian, and the Palace Pictures.

Royal Hippodrome.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Will Sley and Fred Willmott; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—The chief attraction here is provided by Merrill and Ward, whose cycling feats are really remarkable; much fun has been created by Harry Tate's company, who produce their mirth-provoking sketch entitled Fishing; the comedy bar act and bicycle performance of the Vasilescu Troupe has created quite a sensation; and Harry Brayne and Bert Lloyd appear to much advantage in their absurdity The Tree of Truth. Miss Kitty Collyer, described as the new star, made a big hit on Monday with her clever dancing, and also here are Percy Curry, comedian, Kit Keen, coloured comedian, Tray and Rich, comedians and dancers, Mr. Bert Lytton, swell comedian, and the Hipposcope.

Empire Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John A. Walker.—Much disappointment was expressed here on Monday owing to the fact that Miss Ella Retford was unable to appear through indisposition; Verno and Voyce under the circumstances occupied the chief position, and appeared with much success in their comedy act. Dion Wade is one of the drollest of comedians, and his reception has been flattering; the Cromwells appear in what is aptly described as a novel and unique juggling act; Kent and Keith are a capable comedy duo; and also appearing are Mr. Will Knox, described as the world's champion diabolist, and the Bioscope.

New Alhambra Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Will White.—Under the direction of Mr. Gerald Tweedie the following films have been exhibited: The Two Rivals, Unlucky Motor-Car, The Pardon, The Clown Doctor, Apple of Discord, &c. Deans and Wilton, comedy acrobats, appear with much success, also that droll Scotch comedian Mr. Dave Summerhill, whose songs have been encored.

St. George's Hall.—General-Manager, Mr. Robert Wilson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred L. Arthur.—Undoubtedly at this hall are exhibited some of the finest pictures imaginable, and this week the series shown include: A Reckless Horseman, Winner of the Lottery, Day at the Sports, &c. In addition, Mr. R. C. Note, a capital comedian with good songs, appears. Miss Marie Scott, winner of the ladies' competition, was accorded a flattering reception on Monday.

BILSTON.—New Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. John M. Dawson; General-Manager, Mr. S. Hadskiss Dawson.—Man to Man, presented by Messrs. Edward Lloyd and Frank Adair's company, is attracting successfully. Mr. Edward Lloyd makes a vigorous George Gordon; Miss Louie Adair looks and acts well as Ethel Maythorne; and Mr. Frank Adair stands out prominently as Richard Ellerton, voice and appearance being admirably suited to the part.

BIRKENHEAD. — New Theatre Royal. — Sole Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant; Secretary, Miss Isabel Morris.—Messrs. Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's company in The Midnight Wedding is doing a good week's business here. Mr. Paumier appears to decided advantage in the important part of Paul Valmar, the impersonation being in every respect excellent; he is ably supported by Miss Vyonne

Orchardson, who in the dual rôle of Lieut. Karl Heisburg and Princess Astrea Von Strelsburg displays much skill and versatility. Mr. Mayor Cooke is a good Captain Rudolf von Scarsbruck; the Crown Prince Leopold is well impersonated by Mr. John Nesbitt; and Mr. A. F. Winnington Barnes is a capable Lieut. Eugene von Strelsburg. Miss Gwladys Faunce acquits herself with ability as Rozel; and the lighter passages of the play given are admirably sustained by Messrs. James E. Page, Harry Richardson, and Algie Spalding. Remaining characters are adequately filled, and the production is liberally staged.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—Attention centres in the engagement of Miss Maidie Scott, a charming and talented comedienne, on a highly successful return visit; the Harvey Boys, in a well-sustained boxing sketch, go well; and Miss Marguerite Broadfoote, an accomplished comedienne, is a leading attraction. The Three Prestons are successful in their amusing act The Liftman's Rise; and Curwen and Bell, in a musical comedy; Godfrey James, the singing collier; Donal McDougal, Scotch comedian; Will H. Stopit, a humorous acrobat; and Brown's Royal Bioscope help to strengthen an excellent programme.

BIRMINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—Dorothy, recently revived under the direction of Moss' Empires, is delighting both old and young playgoers here. Those two old favourites of the original production, Messrs. Hayden Coffin and Arthur Williams, appear as fresh as ever as, respectively, Harry Sherwood and Lurcher, the former singing in his best form, while the latter positively excels himself. Mr. John Coates supplies the hero, Geoffrey Wilder, in a very melodious guise; Miss Ruth Davenport sings sweetly and is dainty as Dorothy; and Miss Hebe Bliss as Lydia Hawthorne, Miss Emily Spiller as Mrs. Privett, and Mr. Colin Coop as the deep-chested Squire Bantam are each excellent. The scenery, by Mr. Julian Hicks, is very choice.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—Jack Straw is drawing the myriad devoted admirers of Miss Florence St. John, who as Mrs. Parker-Jennings has a rôle perfectly suited to her special gifts of comedy. Mr. Lionel Glenister carries out the title-rôle in just the right spirit. Bland and imperturbable as the pseudo waiter, with a dash of hauteur to temper the natural bonhomie of the Archduke, he scored all the time. Mr. A. T. Gullifer as Mr. Parker-Jennings, Mr. Frederick Moyes as Ambrose Holland, Mr. J. W. Wood-Ingram as Count Adrian, Mr. Ernest Graham as Lewis Abbott, Mr. J. Edgar Stevenson as the Marquis, and Mr. Christmas Grose as Vincent are all very good; and Miss Lucy Milner as Ethel acts her little part graciously. The others include Miss Edie Graham, Miss Estelle Despa, and Miss Jessica Waters. The comedy is preceded by A Long Journey, which is well worth seeing.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. T. Guest.—An Unwedded Wife is received with great fervour here, Miss Ethel Van Praagh and Mr. J. Edward Whitty and company being greeted right royally. Mr. Whitty's appearance in the rôle of Police-constable Runyin is the signal for cheers and laughter galore; Miss Van Praagh's acting as Marion is distinguished by the utmost charm and sympathy; Mr. George Draper is applauded for his manly portrayal of Frank Hawthorne; Mr. Chas. Stirling's depiction of the villainous Philip Blackstone is conspicuous for its all-round excellence; Mr. Will Casey as Napoleon B. Boomer gives evidence of much ability; Miss Jessie Gillette imparts genuine humour to the rôle of Caraway Crumpet; and clever work is contributed by little Doris, Mr. R. Wilton Bedford, &c.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—Sexton Blake continues to attract the public here this week. Mr. Horace Hunter's style suggests the clever detective in all his actions, quite an ovation awaiting him at the dénouement. Mr. Billy Ross as his comic ally, Tinker, is very successful; Mr. William Felton brings out the character of Roger Blackburn to full advantage; Mr. Charles East enacts the rôle of Randolph Lovell very well; Miss Lily Hammersley makes a charming and amiable Marjorie; Miss East Robertson acts with fine dash and distinction as Philadelphia Kate; and Mr. John M. East gives a good piece of acting as the burglar, Faggas.

CARLTON THEATRE, SALTLEY.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—Uncle Tom's Cabin, with Mr. Charles Harrington's unrivalled company, is making a big success here. Mr. J. Carr again gives an admirable expression of benevolence to the character of Uncle Tom; Mr. Charles Harrington is well recognised as Phineas Fletcher; Mr. Frank Forbes Robertson proves very successful as St. Clair; Mr. Ernest Regent makes a popular rôle of George Harris; Messrs. H. Manley and Alf. Lafolle are responsible for the respective rôles of Legree and Haley; Mr. Walter Langford scores as Marks; Miss Hathaway's portrayal of Eliza is marked with much refinement; and the Misses Jenny Malcolm, Annie Watson, Kitty Bell, and a number of clever specialities support.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Lake.—The Conscience of a Judge is depicted here by Mrs. Sam Duckworth's company. Mr. Kenyon Musgrave in the titular rôle, Herbert Granstone, impresses the audience immensely with the power of his portrayal; Mr. Reginald Maurice does admirable work as Cecil Bentley; Mr. Sam Courtney acts cleverly as Sir Edwin Mervin; Miss Nelly Howitt is praised all round for her style and ability as Jessica Draycott; Miss Mabel Coleman shines in a graceful manner as Ethel Vaughan; and Mr. Walter Clarke, Miss Mona Dawlish, and Miss Elsie Isaacs are successful. The comedy parts are exceedingly well rendered by Mr. Frank Ayrton, Mr. F. W. Graham, and Miss Madge Seymour.

PALACE THEATRE, BORDESLEY.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Goodwin Woodward.—A Wife's Triumph is received with the greatest acclamation here, with Mr. Ernest R. Abbott and company. Miss Ada Abbott shows clearly the trials and sufferings of the heroine, Bessie; Mr. Frank Stephens gives an engrossing study of the gambler, Frank Wilton; Mr. Abbott's personification of the Squire, Robert Dewhurst, is very popular; Mr. Vincent W. Carlyle well earns the execrations that follow his clever acting of Ellis Jordan; Mr. Edwin Keene enlivens the play with his humour as Ben Bradford; Miss Isabel Singleton supports vivaciously as Marjory; Miss Florence North is able and sympathetic as Alice Wilton; and there is plenty of other good support.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham.—Chung Ling Soo is attracting crowded houses here; another big turn is that of the Musical Twelve, who have a new musical mélange, The Bohemian Girl, which is artistically rendered; a dramatic episode, The Spy, is presented by Ford and Webb's company; Collins' Eight Stella Girls sing and dance themselves into favour; Nettie Starr, Georgina Leno, Hunt and Thomas, Hall Hughman, and Les Marsumas complete an excellent programme.

HIPPODROME. — Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Lyons.—Edwin Boyne is at the head of the bill here; his songs are repeatedly encored; and George French also comes in for a big share of applause. The Walleys are smart jugglers; Cecile and François are expert acrobatic dancers; plenty of mirth is provided by the Mackweys; and the bill includes Billy Williams, Floretti and Elly, Hayes and Merritt, Sam Thompson, and the Sisters Brooke.

GAIETY THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—Fred Karno's company are delighting large houses here with their amusing sketch Saturday to Monday; Pipifax and Paulo do a daring knockabout turn; the Austral Trio have a pleasing musical mélange; Harry Leybourne is warmly applauded; Charles Russell, Jenny Hartley, Harry Edison's dogs, and Francis O'Flynn complete the company.

BISHOP AUCKLAND. — EDEN THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. Huntley.—Mr. H. Hamilton Stewart and his company opened here to a capital audience on Monday in Sherlock Holmes. Mr. Stewart in the title-rôle is once again a huge success, his acting capacity being really wonderful; Mr. Arthur Shelton gives an effective portrayal of Dr. Watson, and an equal share of praise is due to Mr. Walter A. Chetham for his rendition of John Forman; Mr. Robert Gilbert plays the rôle of Professor Moriarty exceptionally well; Mr. Mark D. Draper (James Larabee), Mr. Douglas Murray (Sydney Prince), and Mr. Louis Alexander (Alfred Bassick) are very good; Master Thomas Russell pleases by his smartness as Billy, Sherlock Holmes' assistant; Miss Betty Fairfax as Alice Faulkner acts admirably as Madge Larabee; Miss Edith Vogne is undoubtedly fine; and Miss Elsie Goulding is good as Therèse. The scenic effects are praiseworthy.

BOLTON. — THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Moncur.—Mr. George Edwardes's company opened here on Monday with The Merry Widow. The theatre was crowded and enthusiasm ran high. In the title-rôle Miss Clara Evelyn won all hearts by her talented performance; Mr. Lionel Victor fairly revels in the part of Baron Popoff, and keeps the house in roars of laughter; Mr. Grafton Williams is a capital General Novikovitch; Mr. Tom Redmond is highly entertaining with his quiet, unforced humour as Nisch; Mr. Haigh Jackson sings delightfully as Viscomte Camille de Jolidon; Marquis de Cascada, M. de St. Brioche, and M. Khadja all find excellent exponents in Messrs. Albert Kavanagh, Lennox Coombs, and J. S. Durant; and Mr. Basil S. Foster quickly establishes himself a prime favourite and is seen to great advantage in his delightful rendering of Prince Danilo. Miss Mary Grey sings splendidly and acts with consummate charm as Natalie; and the parts of Olga, Sylvanie, and Prascovia are well played by the Misses Norah Barry, Susanne Selborne, and Mary Morrison. The chorus is strong and attractive, the dresses superb, and the scenery and mounting beyond praise.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—The principal turn on the programme here is Atlas, athlete, and the beautiful Miss Vulcana, strong lady, together with the Sisters Atlas, strong girls. Valvo, military ventriloquist, with his obtrusive orderly; George Antill, comedian; France and Stewart in their racing comedy The 100 to 1 Chance; the beautiful Lillian, lady cyclist; W. J. Churchill ("Uncle Willie"), comedian; the Sohos, in a vocal and terpsichorean novelty; Harry Nelson, comedian; Starr and Leslie in a novel and clever speciality act; and Vernon's Imperial Bioscope are included in the bill of fare.

EMPIRE THEATRE. — Proprietor, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves; General-Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. R. Harrison.—The Mysterious Lilith heads the bill here with her wonderful performance. The following clever turns also appear:—Marcus Boyle, funny comedian; Ada Whitton, male impersonator; Lillian Warren, pictorial songstress; the Florias, novel comedy wire and equilibristic speciality act; the Four Dorians, gymnastic athletes on trapeze and rings; Ada and Mervel Webb, queens of the crystal tank; Bert Danson, comedian; and Evelyn Taylor, comedienne, the Bioscope also doing duty.

BOOTLE. — MUNCASTER THEATRE. — Proprietors, Messrs. Pennington; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Fred Wilmott; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Young.—The stock company is this week presenting the celebrated Irish drama The Irishman. As Captain Frank Delahurst Mr. Albert Sember is excellent; Miss Nina Vaughton as Kate Kearney is sweet and graceful; Father Kelly has a capital exponent in Mr. Cyril Grier; a convincing performance comes from Mr. Alfred D. Adams as the scheming Felix Blake; Nora Desmond, as played by Miss Kathleen Magee, is a praiseworthy delineation; Sir Owen Cavanagh is ably played by Mr. H. Arnold Allen; and Mr. Stanley S. Gordon gives a capital performance of Owen Cavanagh. Mr. Tom H. Solly causes hearty laughter as Larry O'Rourke; and is ably supported by Miss Effie Macintosh, who makes a pleasing and vivacious Molly O'Flaherty. Mr. Alfred Grenville gives a capital character study of Mickey Whelan.

BOSTON.—PALACE.—Lessee, Mr. H. Fountain; Manager, Mr. E. Cass.—We have a capital bill here. Leonoto gives a fine contortion act, together with comedy juggling; Lillie Keith is an admirable comedienne; the Two Clarkes submit a good show on the rolling globe; Harry Harvey is popular; Japanese juggling is given by the Balzens; the Sisters Delmore are favourites in their Wild West scena; Phil Lister, vocalist, introduces a smart instrumental turn and his singing mannikin; an amusing farce is entitled The Spanish Bull-fight; and the famous La Dor Troupe of acrobats, ladder wonders, and pyramid groupings also entertain.

BOURNEMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietors, David Allen and Sons; Sole Lessee, Mr. Mouillot; Manager, Mr. Hubert Dunbar.—Mr. Edward Compton, a great favourite here, opened on Monday in Davy Garrick. Mr. Compton was seen to great advantage in the name-part, and fairly excelled himself in the drunken scene. He was strongly supported by Mr. H. Crocker as Alderman Gresham and Miss Kathleen Leigh, who was a great success as Violet Gresham. The comedy was preceded by The Desperate Lover, in which Miss Viola Compton greatly distinguished herself. During the week The Rivals, The School for Scandal, The Gentleman in Grey, A Reformed Rake, and She Stoops to Conquer were also staged.

BRADFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—The Thief is being played here this week by Mr. George Alexander's company to large audiences. The applause which greets the thrilling scene between Richard Chelford (Mr. Stephen T. Ewart) and Marise Chelford (Miss May Congdon) in the second act is loud and prolonged. The acting, in fact, throughout is splendid. The characters above mentioned are impersonations of great power, and Mr. Gerald Ames, too, gives an excellent study of the part of Raymond Leyton; Mr. Alfred Lugg does not fail in impressing the audience as his son Harry Leyton; Miss Mary Dibley gracefully and sympathetically fills the part of Isabel Leyton, and Mr. Cyril Cattley is distinctly convincing as the detective, Mr. Protheroe. As a curtain-raiser Mr. Julian Field's Too Happy by Half is delightful, and is capitally played by Mr. Percy Marmont as Eric Verner, Mr. Lugg as Jack Fortescue, and Miss Irene Leonard as Maud Verner.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Councillor F. Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—Mr. Wentworth Croke's company is here this week with The Christian. The play has lost none of its absorbing interest. The audiences are large and very demonstrative, and Miss Doris Gilham's powerful and emotional acting as Glory Quayle evokes hearty applause. As John Storm Mr. Henry Renouf is as realistic and convincing as ever; the part of Horatio Drake Mr. Oswald Marshall impersonates effectively; Mr. G. R. Montfort's Lord Robert Ure is an able effort; Mr. B. Ling as Father Lamplugh and Mr. C. T. Turpin as Archdeacon Wealthy are both good, and the other parts, too, are in capable hands.

THE EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—Fred Karno's company appear here this week in G.P.O., their latest production, a notice of which appears elsewhere. Tom Child, Yorkshire tenor, contributes to the programme some well-known ballads in good style; good gymnastic work is done by Howe and Ardie in their comedy turn Up in a Balloon; delightful violin and harp solos, together with smart dancing, combine in making The Itinerant, by the Norman and Leonard Trio, very enjoyable; Fred Keeton, comedian, contributes acceptably; George Newburn returns with his clever mimicry with his usual success; there is some eccentric comedy and clever acrobatic work in the turn by Will Dacey and Nellie Lewis; the Delomes with their "Phantom Clogs" win applause for clever dancing, and the Bioscope shows some entertaining pictures.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Harrison.—Mr. John Humphreys and company contribute an amusing and piquant little farce, Ancient Britons, here; Cliff and Kean, comedy artists, sing and dance well; Baby Vi Davis, a winsome child actress and singer, quite wins her audience; a very marvellous performance by Irma Orbasany's cockatoos wins admiration and applause; Woodhouse and Wells are very entertaining comedians; Fun in a Railway Station is a most amusing turn by Farley, Rennie and Farley; as a comedienne Minnie Kirby is popular; a wonderful exhibition of thought and silent mental telepathy is given by the Mysterious Howards, and Raymond's Bio-tableaux are very interesting.

BRIGHOUSE.—ALBERT THEATRE — Lessees, Messrs. Beanland and Emerson; Manager, Mr. Charles H. Beanland.—There was a full house on Monday night and the attractive programme was highly enjoyed. Elmo and Rego as comedy acrobats keep the audience in a continual roar of laughter; the Bros. Obo, laughing comedians and patterers, are old Brighouse favourites; Fred Horsfall is a Tyrolean singer with a capital tenor voice; a smart combination of international dancers are the Royal Quintette; Sisters Clare are a neat pair of duettists and dancers; Gus Hindell is enthusiastically received in his song scena Boys Will be Boys, in which he is assisted by local lads; Bros. Lauri are clever and graceful acrobats; A. G. Spry, comedian, Sam Shipley, comedian, and animated pictures conclude.

BRIGHTON. — GRAND THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ben Court.—Miss Ellen Snow's company is attracting large audiences here this week with Why Men Love Women. Miss Ellen Snow achieves complete success as the heroine, Violet Livingstone; Mr. Oliver Rogers gives an admirable impersonation of the hero, Gerald Fielding; Mr. Lionel Gadsden is forcible and convincing as the villainous Captain Staniloff; Mr. N. Carter Slaughter makes a capital Lieut. Tommy Fitzherbert; Mr. Ernest Griffin is well suited as the Maharajah; and Mr. A. W. Norman ably sustains the part of the Rev. Arthur Gray. Much fun is afforded by Mr. Harwood Roberts as Orlando Figgins; Miss Nita Owen as Birdie, Miss Freda Vaughan as Baby, and Miss Beresford-Glynn as Orlando's better half.

ALHAMBRA.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. Ernest Lepard.—There is an excellent company here this week. May Moore-Duprez, America's jolly Dutch girl, is a great favourite; the Eight 'Varsity Girls are charming vocal entertainers; Charles Fisher's Pocket Opera Company, a trio of operatic singers, are very cordially received; Farr and Farland, "the humorous aristocrats," are very amusing patterers; Bruce Green, "the talkative dame," is diverting; Belle Braham is warmly applauded for her picture songs; Ada Martine, comedienne, wins hearty applause; Blanche and Powell are refined entertainers with song and dance; and the Alhambrascope pictures are interesting and amusing.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr. B. J. Brown.—An attractive programme is sustained here this week. Bessie Slaughter, an accomplished contralto vocalist, is enthusiastically applauded for her songs; the Carmos are skilful and Herculean jugglers; Leonie de Lausanne, the world's champion lady shot, gives an excellent turn; the Reynolds Minstrel Quartette are highly entertaining; Hanvarr and Lee present The Golfer and the Maid with great success; Simms and Simms, old favourites, give a capital musical turn; the Troupe Lafaille are marvellous gymnasts and equilibrists; Kellie and Agnas, comedy duo, evoke hearty laughter; George Blunt and E. H. Knight's company, including Mr. Fred Powell as Simmonet, are powerfully effective in the dramatic sketch The Grip of Iron; Madge Temple, "London's musical-comedy queen," sings delightfully; and the Barrascope pictures are very interesting.

WEST PIER.—Secretary, Mr. A. W. Scholey.—Messrs. E. Taylor Platt and Trevor Lowe's company is here this week with Arms and the Man. Mr. George Howard gives a fine enactment of Nicola; Mr. Leslie Hamer is distinctly successful as Major Sergius Savanoff; Mr. J. Edward Pearce is well placed as Major Paul Petkoff; Mr. Trevor Lowe's Captain Bluntschli merits high praise; Miss Clara Earle displays marked ability as Raina; Miss Gwladys Morris as Louka and Miss Katherine Stewart as Catherine Tetkoff submit pleasing sketches.

PALACE PIER THEATRE.—Miss Grace Warner and company opened here on Monday with Lady Audley's Secret. Miss Grace Warner gave an excellent impersonation of Lady Audley; Miss K. Stewart was highly effective as Alicia Audley; Miss A. M. Corri made an admirable Phœbe Marks; Mr. George Gordon's Robert Audley and Mr. Roy Rhind's Sir Michael Audley were ably enacted; Mr. A. B. Lyons' Luke Marks was a good character-study; and Little Norah Bretton was a pleasing Prinella. The programme for the week also included The Little Widow and My Artful Valet.

COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs. M. Barrasford; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Fred Bauer.—The animated pictures exhibited here this week are interesting and amusing. Yusuf the Pirate is full of dramatic incidents; For His Sake conveys a pathetic drama; A Trip Through France and Our Banana Supply are highly picturesque; the Kind-Hearted Bootblack gives a pretty story; and very entertaining are Archie Goes Shopping, The Wonderful Fertiliser, and An Extraordinary Stickfast. Miss Rene Willoughby contributes ballads in pleasing style.

BRISTOL.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—Mr. George Dance's principal company is here for the week with Miss Hook of Holland, the musical play being well staged. Miss Marie Wilson is pleasing as Sally Hook, both acting and singing very effectively; Miss Mabel Sealby is vivacious and entertaining as Mina, her songs and dances meeting with approval; Mr. Arthur Reynolds displays much dry humour as Mr. Hook; Mr. Frederick Hobbs is a dashing Captain Adrian Paap; Mr. Lionel Scott makes the most of Lieut. De Coop; Mr. Power Pinder is highly successful as Bandmaster Van Vuyt; Mr. Percy Davidson makes an alert foreman as Ludwig Schnapps; Mr. Fred Lyne is amusing as the loafer Simon Slinks; and the remaining parts are all carefully taken. The chorus is exceptionally tuneful, the dresses are bright and tasteful, and the augmented band is ably conducted by Mr. Sydney Shaw.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. C. Alty.—An interesting drama, The Woman Pays, is the attraction here. Mr. Phil Harper as Sid Armstrong and Miss Maud Russell as Madge Armstrong are both successful in presenting powerful and convincing expositions of their respective parts; Mr. John Davidson acts with much discretion the unpopular part of Roger Marchant; Mr. Frank M. Thorne (the author of the play and proprietor of the company) is amusing as Mike Maloney; Miss Florence Thorne makes a capital part of Tabitha; and other important parts are carefully taken by Miss Anena Walton, Miss Kate Blair, and Mr. Berresford Innes. The play is staged in a very effective manner.

PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Treasurer, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—The Royal Tokio Company, Japanese equilibrists, &c., head the programme, their feats, especially the "three-ladder act," being very cleverly done. Phil Rees' Stable Lads present a novel racing act, songs and dances being introduced; Curtis and Piccaninnies, including little Sam Curtis, do a good turn; Flo Hilton, male impersonator, renders her songs in excellent style; the Sisters Brand are smart comediennes and dancers; Bert and Dora are entertaining comedy artists; Brothers Brooks, comedians, are successful, as also is Charles Rowen, comedian; and the performance concludes with interesting and amusing animated pictures.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sid Macaire.—Six Brothers Luck and company head the bill with their new sketch Lift-'Ems, Limited, the comic sketch meeting with approval; Russell Wallett, "the lady in black," is exceptionally clever as a female impersonator; Madge Bryce, contralto comedienne, presents a pleasing turn; the Victoria Family excel as instrumentalists, vocalists, and dancers; Lambert and Butler, comedians, obtain applause; Fred Mulvey and Minnie Miriam are successful comedy entertainers; the Three Warners are good vocalists and expert dancers; the Errols do a smart tumbling and leaping act; the Langford Trio do well as vocalists and dancers; and Marie Blythe, comedienne, obtains much appreciation. The performance concludes with up-to-date animated pictures.

COLSTON HALL.—Ralph Pringle's animated pictures and variety entertainment still obtains good support. The pictures are changed every week, and amongst numerous attractive subjects special mention may be made of a magnificent length of films representing The Land of the Midnight Sun. There is also an excellent band.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA THEATRE, LTD.—Manager and Licensee, Mr. J. Fred Watson.—Mr. George D. Day's company, in Hall Caine's great play, The Prodigal Son, had a full house on Monday. Mr. Albert Ward was very fine as Oscar; and the self-denying Magnus was an excellent piece of work by Mr. H. J. Crane. Mr. Jackson Hayes cleverly portrayed Stephen. The ambitious Helga Neilson was ably acted by Miss Pearla Gardner; Miss Florence Lovell made a charming Anna Magnusson; Miss Kate Osborne was very droll as the crusty Aunt Anna; Miss Pauline Emeric as Thora, and afterwards as Young Elin, gave a charming performance in each character. Mr. James English (Oscar Neilsen), Mr. J. E. Savery (Dr. Olsen), Mr. A. J. Williams (the Pastor), Mr. R. C. Brooksmith (the Sheriff), Mr. Norman Liddell, and others also did well. The staging was excellent.

BURNLEY.—VICTORIA OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—The Burnley Amateur Operatic Society are in occupation here this week, performing Gilbert and Sullivan's tuneful and charming comic opera The Gondoliers. The proceeds are in aid of local charities, the Mayor's Distress Fund having prior claim. The various principal rôles are capitally represented, and the chorus is deserving of high praise. Mr. Henry Leffler, late of the Savoy Theatre, has again coached the company, and his patient and intelligent work is reflected in a smooth performance. The beautiful dresses are provided by Messrs. B. J. Simmons and Co., London, and the excellent scenic arrangements and properties by Mr. W. C. Horner. The resident staff, under Mr. John Ford, are to be complimented for their share in an excellent production.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—The quality of the fare here this week is drawing good houses. The Enrico Martialo Trio, in a juggling and balancing act, perform a host of excellent feats demanding strength and skill; and Mephisto has a number of smart tricks of the vanishing girl order. Wood, Wells, and Wilkins are a capital vocal trio with beautiful renderings of good music; Thora is an exceedingly fine ventriloquist; Powell and Vesey introduce a laughable sketch which keeps the audience merry; Gladys Hooley, "the violin girl," plays several pieces delightfully; Master Richard May is a fine soprano vocalist; and W. G. Wesley is a funny character comedian. Good pictures are displayed by the Empire Theatroscope.

PALACE THEATRE AND HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Julius Simpson.—The extremely funny absurdity Mumming Birds, by the Karno troupe of comedians, causes hilarity throughout; Sivroni and Miss Amy Broughton in Opera Gone Mad prove themselves capable vocalists; as also does Bella Leaburn, a descriptive vocalist, whose song is well received; Gravetta and Parr give a novel entertainment of clay-modelling and quick changes; and the Smythsons, in Love Germs, cause much amusement; Albert Letine in his female impersonations is a great success; and Akbas, on the silver rings, is an expert performer; Ernest Rees, the popular comedian, highly pleases with patter and song; Raymond's Bio-tableaux concludes a capital programme. "The picture hour" has been a most pleasing feature, and large audiences have shown their highest appreciation of the films thrown on the screen. For this week seven of the newest films have been secured, and the dramatic element includes The Heart of a Hero and The Tragedy in a Stone Quarry. The Invincible Man is a pantomimical production, and four humorous films are Nurses on Strike, King for a Day, The Handy Man, and Music Hath Charms.

BURTON-ON-TRENT.—NEW THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. de Hague Body.—Mr. F. R. Benson's (North) Shakespearean company is paying a welcome return here, presenting during the visit The Merchant of Venice, Romeo and Juliet, The School for Scandal, The Taming of the Shrew, Faust, and Hamlet. The first-named piece was presented on Monday, when a fine performance was witnessed by a crowded house. Mr. Hy. Herbert as Shylock is seen at his best, and gives a most finished and telling impersonation; Portia is in the hands of Miss Gladys Vandergee, whose acting is natural and finished; Mr. Barnard Limpus as Bassanio is sincere, and renders his part in a forcible manner; Mr. James Berry as Antonio invests the character with culture and ability; Jessica is sweetly enacted by Miss Jean Graeme; Miss Violet Fairbrother does well as Nerissa; and other parts are well played by Mr. A. Fayne, Mr. Chas. Trail, Mr. Vincent Holman, and Mr. R. Vanderlip. The dressing and mounting are first-rate.

BURY (Lancs.).—THEATRE ROYAL AND PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant-Acting-Manager, Mr. H. H. Potter.—The attraction this week is The Power of the King, presented by Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley, Travis Green, and Arthur Hinton's principal company. Prominent in the cast is Mr. Travis Green, who as Prince Oscar gives an effective performance; Mr. Charles Whitlock is happily placed as the King of Vallambrosa; Mr. Gerald Blake is convincing in the part of Captain Rupert Landgrave; Miss Leila Zillwood is a charming Lady Annastasia, and succeeds in getting all possible out of her part. Lady Florina is strongly played by Miss Georgina France; and the other characters are in the capable hands of Messrs. Morton Wright, Wilton Drury, Fred Hughes, George Madden, Lionel Strong, John Campling, T. Granville, and Misses Ruby Sutherland, Violet Jarson, and Grace Barton. Costumes and staging are good.

CIRCUS OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant-Acting-Manager, Mr. H. H. Potter.—Prominent in an excellently varied bill is Charles Norton in a racing sketch, introducing imitations of well-known artists; as equilibrists the Resna Troupe are clever, particularly on the wire; an excellent turn is that of the Mexzettis on the horizontal bars; Mildred Bryan possesses a good voice, which she uses to the fullest advantage; Blanco J. White dances and sings in a finished manner; and the glees of the L. and Y. Railway Quartette are enjoyable. Ottograph pictures conclude the programme.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thomas Baker.—The Village Fire Brigade, as presented by Ritchie Hearn, is responsible for much amusement; a dramatic episode entitled The Usurer is a big attraction, the chief parts being sustained by Sidney Mason and Theresa Moore; the Carney Brothers are excellent vocalists; Monty Walker, swell comedian, is decidedly smart, his songs and patter being well chosen; George Westland is a good Scotch comedian; the Miners' Quartette, Jack Truman (vocalist), Frank E. Ford (clog-dancer), and the bioscope pictures make up a good bill.

CAMBRIDGE. — NEW THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—An excellent evening's entertainment was provided on Monday night, when Mr. Robert Courtneidge's company opened with The Dairymaids. Mr. Nelson Keys always puts plenty of life into his parts, and his Sam Brudenell was no exception to the rule; Mr. Johnny Osborne's Joe Mivens kept the house in high good humour; Mr. J. A. Warden was very natural as Dr. O'Byrne; Miss Clare Marsden has a pleasing voice, and her Peggy was admirable; Miss Clarice Lockstone was also good as Winifred; Miss Gladys Silvani played Eliza to the life; and Miss Mabel Younge deserves unqualified praise for her dignified Lady Brudenell. The chorus was good and well conducted under the direction of Mr. Albert Bartlett.

CARDIFF.—NEW THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford.—Lovers of Shakespeare are well catered for this week by Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Benson and their company, and crowded houses have been the rule nightly. The Merchant of Venice was presented on Monday to a critical audience. Mr. Benson's impersonation of Shylock was most interesting; Mrs. Benson's Portia was all that could be desired; Mr. Murray Carrington as Antonio acquitted himself creditably; and as Bassanio Mr. Balliol Holloway displayed ability; Mr. G. Hannam Clark's portrayal of Gratiano being a carefully studied delineation; Mr. Geo. R. Weir was welcomed again in his clever impersonation of Launcelot Gobbo; Miss Helen Haye as Nerissa and Miss M. Bright Morris as Jessica gave two acceptable impersonations; Mr. E. A. Warburton as the Prince of Morocco and Mr. F. G. Worlock as Lorenzo were both excellent. On Tuesday and Saturday The Merry Wives of Windsor was billed, and Macbeth, Julius Cæsar, The School for Scandal, and Twelfth Night are also in the répertoire.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. S. Dring.—This

About six weeks ago I was suffering with

PIMPLES

ALL OVER MY FACE,

brought on probably by painting my face for my eccentric business. I was also suffering with SCURF IN THE HAIR. Being rather alarmed, I asked a friend's advice, and he recommended me to take "Clarke's Blood Mixture." I purchased a 2/9 bottle, and within a week I found marked improvement. The pimples and the scurf is entirely gone. I cannot tell you how thankful I am at having taken "Clarke's Blood Mixture," and I shall recommend it to everybody, as I think it only right that such a remedy should be known.—(Signed) JOHN HENRY JONES, known as "Little Johnny," Llandudno's Popular Comedian, Thorndale, Llandudno, Feb. 24, 1908.

spacious building is just out of the hands of the decorators and painters, and now looks extremely beautiful, being a wonderful blend of perfect colouring. Before a large audience on Monday night a fine programme was presented, foremost in which was the American racing playlet entitled Futurity Winner. This capitally staged sketch is presented by a clever company of artists, and proves, with its exciting finish, a most interesting entertainment. A very popular turn was that provided by Terry and Lambert, whose character sketches of "English types through American eyes" won these two gifted vocalists much applause; a clever and humorous item is given by Harry May Hemsley, whose impersonations of children and amusing lightning drawing form a pleasant interlude; the Dumond Trio of instrumentalists and vocalists are distinguished by the remarkable violin playing of one of their members; Prof. Dubois' educated baboon causes considerable laughter; Harry Bedford's latest song adds to his popularity; and Gus Le Clerq, with his smart dancing, Ida Kathrena in a clever doll song, Lottie Govell in a pretty song and dance, and the Bioscope complete a programme of exceptional merit.

Theatre Royal.—Under the Management of Mr. Rollo Balmain.—The drama put forward by Mr. Balmain this week is The Great World of London. Mr. Hugh Carmichael appears in a most successful rendering of Jack Clinton; Miss Rosie Ralph, as Mrs. Clinton, is stately and prepossessing; Richard Thornton, the villain, has a most reliable exponent is Mr. C. Baddeley; and Mr. Edgar Snow is a particularly dignified and imposing John Meredith; Mr. Naomi Hope and Mr. Andrew Emm as Sally and Tom Bates enact two comedy characters cleverly.

Palace and Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Burton.—First place on the programme here is given to Carlotta De Yonson and company in an exciting detective playlet entitled The Red Triangle. Miss De Yonson herself undertakes the only lady rôle of Leah Courcell with undeniable skill. Mr. C. Douglas Carlisle as Sexton Blake gives a portrayal which is equally meritorious. The Davenports, lightning magicians, are exceptionally clever; a most entertaining turn is provided by Harvey's American Boys and Girls; Charles Tuppen delights his audience with coach horn selections; the Five Broadway Girls are refined singers and talented dancers; and Tom Yorke is a character comedian of no mean ability; Lily Eyton is a charming character comedienne; and Raymond's Bio-tableaux are popular.

CARLISLE.—H.M. Theatre.—Lessees, Mr. Thos. Courtice and Mrs. R. Stewart M'Kim; Manager, Mr. Thos. Courtice.—The Tyrant is being played this week by Miss Marie Dagmar's company. As Tisbe Miss Dagmar has a fine part, which she plays for all it is worth, and soon becomes a big favourite. Miss Margaret Frame's performance as Lady Katherine meets with well-deserved appreciation; Mr. Roy Fortescue in the title-rôle is sufficiently ferocious and brutal; and Mr. J. Sidney Pitts's powerful rendering of Homodei the Avenger is a big factor in the success.

Palace.—Managing-Director, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. F. Morgan.—Carter's Ten Dixie Girls are starring here in a bright, sparkling vocal and terpsichorean scena, The Silver Coon; V. L. Granville in his character impersonations displays histrionic ability; Conway and Leland are old favourites; Primavesi is an amusing juggler; Will Cornish submits a most enjoyable musical turn; and Lorne and Lorne are much appreciated in a smart sketch, Capital and Labour. George Rae and the Pepiscope complete the bill.

CASTLEFORD.—Royal.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Councillor Hy. Masterman, J.P.—Mr. Frank Bertram's company is here, under the personal supervision of Mr. F. R. Gwyn-Richardson on a first visit with The Breed of the Treshams. The scenery and dresses are good, and the acting of a high order of merit. Mr. Sydney Bland makes a capital Lieut. Reresby; Miss Mildred Hodson is a natural and sympathetic Margaret; Mr. Howard Brenan plays Francis Tresham with distinct success; Mr. W. R. Winning depicts the malevolent Colonel Hungerford with power; Miss Grace Harlington is highly successful as Batty; Mr. Alfred Holles makes a dignified and imperious Viscount Dorsington; and Sir Henry Curwin is played with care and discretion by Mr. George Traill.

Queen's Theatre of Varieties. — Proprietors, Messrs. Chas. Beanland and W. H. Emerson; General-Manager, Mr. Will H. Emerson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jas. Travis.—A well varied programme is being presented here to large audiences. The Five Paulastas head the bill as eccentric acrobats; the three Sisters Urma are smart and daring in a gymnastic speciality act; Blarney and Kennard, in a comedy act, introduce a couple of waltzing dogs; Maston contributes an enjoyable turn of mimicry; Vowles and Bryan, in a pretty garden scene, are much appreciated; Sid Bandon's songs are an admirable blending of the humorous, the pathetic, and the dramatic; Nancy Renshaw, as a laughing comedienne and bone soloist, is well received; the Mosaics' speciality, The Suffragette, causes much laughter; and the Loyal Dominion's Animated Pictures are good.

CHATHAM. — Theatre Royal. — Proprietors, Messrs. C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lionel Barnard.—Miss Decima Moore is making a welcome reappearance here. This time she is playing the title-rôle in Mrs. Dot, and delights all with her clever impersonation; as James Blenkinsop Mr. Frank Lacy gives a finished performance; Mr. Philip Leslie is a very popular Freddie Perkins; and Mr. James Gelderd undertakes successfully the character of Gerald Halstane; Miss Ethel Grahame makes a pleasing Nellie, and Miss Emma Hutchison is a skilful Lady Sellenger. The company is toured by Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison, under the able direction of the former. The comedy is admirably staged, and good houses prevail.

Barnard's Palace of Varieties.—Sole Proprietor, M. L. B. Barnard.—Bumper houses are attracted here nightly, the leading item being Zeynard's Lilliputians, who are creating quite a sensation with their midget circus performance. Mr. and Mrs. Royston-Dene and company are staging a dramatic episode, At the Stroke of Twelve, which finds much favour; Harry Barnes and company are well received in an act entitled A School of Dancing; Dale and Vale are smart dancers; Mlle. Bartinelli gives her novelty act on the golden column; and Terence Shine and Lacey's Erascope complete the bill of fare.

Gaiety Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor, Capt. H. E. Davis.—Florrie Forde tops the bill here, and among other songs gives in excellent style "Oh, oh, Antonio"; Onra and Gillino execute neat feats on the silver wire; Winnie Winn has an interesting illustrated song entitled "Great Men"; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Finden are freely applauded for their duologue, A Mare's Nest; and the Edisonograph has some realistic films.

CHELTENHAM.—Opera House.—General-Manager, Mr. H. Oswald Redford.—Mr. Mouillot's No. 1 company introduced Tom Jones on Monday evening. Mr. Cyril Thompson is a beau-ideal hero in the title-rôle; Sophia has a captivating representative in Miss Alice Moffat, whose charming voice is heard to advantage in many tuneful numbers; Miss Florrie Saunders is a vivacious Honour, possessing a genuine gift of comedy, pleasing voice, a neat foot, and a delightful personality; Mr. George Elton is very clever and amusing as Benjamin Partridge; Mr. Fred Seymour gives a capital study of the bullying old ignoramus Squire Western; Squire Allworthy is suitably represented by Mr. A. J. Nicholls; Mr. Michael Dwyer contributes a comical study of Gregory; and smaller parts excellently played are the Blifil of Mr. Alfred H. Majilton, the officer of Mr. John Walker, the Lady Bellaston of Miss Olivia Eltone, and the Miss Western of Miss Florence McAvoy. The capable chorus and augmented orchestra are directed by Mr. Ernest K. Irving.

COLCHESTER.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Chas. Macdona; Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. Graham Macdona.—Poole's Myriorama opened a week's engagement here on Monday. The pictures are replete with all that is new and most interesting, and Mr. John R. Poole acts as cicerone. Some capital varieties are interspersed, among them being the Royal Banzais, including the prodigy Little Togo; Sydney Bach, the Welsh landlady, an amusing turn at the piano; the Seven Bramusas, in a juvenile brass band speciality scena; Eileen Russell, with illustrated songs; Harry Raymond, a clever dancer; and Willie Dean, a hard-working comedian.

Hippodrome.—Joint Proprietors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. Jack de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben de Frece.—Another of Mr. John Tiller's companies, viz., Jolly Jack, is here this week, and lacks nothing which one expects in the shows put on by Mr. Tiller. Among the strong cast may be mentioned Messrs. Will Lytton, C. Martinette, W. Martinette, Fred Danvers, and Sydney Vincent, and the Misses Cissy Iris, May Merry, Emmie Franks, and Madge Read. The piece is managed by Mr. Herbert Garside, and the conductor is Mr. Peter Flitcroft. A really smart and pretty item is the dancing by Signorita Papucci, which is much admired; Ivy Moore shines as a ballad vocalist; Harry Chester is a comedian of the vigorous type; Willie, Wallie, and Welby amuse as comedy sketch artists; and Sydney Vincent also contributes.

CONSETT.—New Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance.—Mr. Lingford Carson's Fight for a Throne company is here. Mr. John S. Milward is well placed as Captain Fortescue; Mr. Gerald Byrne is an admirable Nicholai I.; Mr. Charles E. Linney a most creditable Prince Otto; as Lord Fitzmaurice Mr. Patrick Evans is really good; Mr. John Worth makes a powerful Lieut. Paul Rodna; and Mr. Tom Roydan an excellent General Rodna; Miss Dora Hammersley is well received as Princess Esmee, and Miss Margaret Tueski does well as Countess Waleska, and Miss Emmeline B. Lewis is an amusing Lady Pat.

CORK.—Palace Theatre, Ltd. — Manager, Mr. Thomas F. O'Brien.—The leading turn here is Mlle. L'Incognita, the masked vocalist—a remarkable soprano; the Boccaccios, Italian singers and instrumentalists, provide a most entertaining turn; Burke, Andrus, and Frisco play a spectacular absurdity, in which Frisco—a mule—is very amusing; Kid Johnson and Maise Pelham supply an American pot-pourri act, in which the lady dances daintily; Zano Brothers, comedy triple bar performers, introduce plenty of fun; the Kramer Family of gymnasts contribute some clever tricks on rings and trapeze; the Bonanzas are skilful hand balancers; and Arthur Boyne, comedian, the Sisters Beatrice, duettists and dancers, and the Palascope are other attractions.

COVENTRY.—The Opera House.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Bennett.—An Abandoned Woman, a stirring drama by Miles Wallerton and Francis Gilbert, is being presented with successful results at the above house this week. The chief character is that of Ninon Malvoisin, a French adventuress, of whom Miss Nellie Thorne Hallam gives an effective interpretation; the villain Phillipe is characteristically rendered by Mr. Wm. Fraser-Brunner; as the hero Herbert Seaton Mr. Herbert M. King is responsible for some very fine acting; the lighter side of the play is in the hands of Mr. Teddy Myles, who is an Irish humourist, and Miss Queenie Fraser-Brunner, as Paddy Boyle and Sally Sloper respectively. Other admirably-played parts are those of Robert Saunders by Mr. Arthur Curzon, Sammy Sharp by Mr. Garnet-Vayne, Sir Marmaduke Seaton by Mr. Frederick Healy, and Eleanor Deane (Miss Lily Annesley).

Hippodrome Theatre.—Manager, Mr. S. T. Newsome; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. E. Wright.—Messrs. Foy and company give a successful sketch entitled The Yorkshire Lad in London; James Willard and company appear in a very interesting episode entitled The Ace of Hearts; Houston, the "Chinese magician," shows some clever and extraordinary tricks; some good comedy juggling is performed by Harry Friskey. Other artists are Miss Sybil Lester, Miss Winifred Ward, Messrs. Walker and Lake, Mr. Chris Van Bern, and Miss Florence Shuberth. Some very interesting pictures are shown on the cinematograph.

Empire.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Dance; Manager, Mr. K. Draco.—For the second anniversary of the opening of this popular house a programme of special interest is arranged, the chief item being a local and district brass band contest for fifty guineas in cash prizes. One of the best variety turns is that of Jay Laurier, who is a very droll comedian, and keeps the audience well amused; the Sisters Sprightly are seen to advantage in a Dutch character dance and song. Able acting is done by Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Leonard in a comedy skit entitled Coming Home; Welda and Wynne are responsible for some clever juggling and sand-dancing; Rose Reval is a pleasing singer and dancer; the Brothers Bradshaw are comedy acrobats; and Fred Land, comedian, and the bioscope complete the bill.

CREWE.—Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. G. Dudley Bennett; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. Howard. Messrs. Cowper Smith and Douglas Payne's company is here in The New Girl. Mr. Edward W. Colman is a capital Colonel Bullett, Mr. Ralph Lynn a brilliantly clever Bertie Holbrook, Mr. Harold Clemence a suitable Harry Harrow, and Mr. Kenneth Black, jun., a highly amusing Butler Brown. Miss Rose Bennett is bright and pleasing as Hilda Coleman; Miss Ivy Leighton a dainty Cerise; Miss Beatrice Sutherland in the dual rôles of Flossie and Jane shows exceptional ability; and Miss Victoria Douglas as Martha Grimm is a typical schoolmistress.

CROOK.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Wallace Davidson, Ltd.; Resident-Manageress, Mrs. Wallace Davidson.—The management have been fortunate in securing a welcome return visit of Mr. Walter Melville's stirring play A Girl's Cross Roads. Mr. Charles Franmore as John Meadows is capital; and Miss Hilda Beverley is an excellent Barbara Wade; the part of Jack Livingstone is in the capable hands of Mr. Jack Fortescue; and as Nellie Meadows Miss Nita Langford is clever.

CROYDON. — Grand Theatre. — Manager, Mr. Roland Daniel; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Ernest Archer.—Miss Mabel Love is making a success here in Lady Frederick, and is admirably supported by Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company. Mr. Patrick Quill is quite up to the mark as Sir Gerald O'Mara; Mr. Robert Minster scores all along the line in the rôle of Paradine Fouldes; Mr. E. F. Meads is sincere as Lord Mereston; Mr. Edward Bonfield acts carefully as Captain Montgomery; Captain Gerald Gambier is suitable in the part of Admiral Carlisle; and Messrs. John Orme, Harry Winton, and Bruce Smith make the most of the rôles of Thompson, Pierre, and Albert. Miss Elsie Irving is good as Lady Mereston; Miss Lynn Fontanne is a charming Rose; Miss Beatrice Grosvenor gives a faithful rendering of Mme. Claude; and Miss Rita Ward is pretty as Angelique. Miss Mabel Love fairly eclipses herself in the title-rôle, and is delightfully fresh and entrancing. The curtain-raiser is The Peacemaker.

Hippodrome and New Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Osmond.—Mr. Harry Battersby's company in The King of Crime is here this week. Mr. F. B. Woulfe submits an admirable impersonation of Ronjarre; Mr. William Miller as Gandelu is seen to advantage; Mr. Claud Aymond plays the part of Simon the villain with intensity and power; Mr. William Melvyn as Louis Mascarot is good; and Mr. Sam Wilford's portrayal of Mick Maloney is vastly amusing. A word of praise is due to Mr. Willie Black, who appears as Tabaret; Mr. E. Morris as Bordogne and Mr. Cecil Stuart as Baptiste play their respective parts well; Miss Agnese D'Aragon capitally fulfils the rôle of Mere Crochard; Miss Nance Battersby as Mathilde is received with favour; Miss Edith Loraine ably represents Clarisse; and Miss Mildred Eversleigh plays the part of Henriette, Ronjarre's blind wife, in a sympathetic and convincing manner.

DERBY.—Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Charles Denley.—Mr. Milton Bode's company is this week producing the successful musical comedy The Belle of Mayfair. As Julia Miss Florence Imeson is a distinct success. Besides being an accomplished actress, she is a vocalist and dancer of the highest excellence. As Pincott, Julia's maid, Miss Blanche Astley scores heavily with her neat performance, and her singing and dancing are also meritorious; Miss Agnes Tandy as the Princess gives a pleasing rendering of her part; and Miss Aurelie de Loriere sings and poses as the Gibson Girl remarkably well. Mr. Harry Parker portrays Sir John Chaldicott in a most diverting manner; Mr. Percy Yorke is a realistic Earl, and is heard to advantage in the various numbers allotted to him; Mr. Edward Hugonnet plays Raymond with considerable ability; Mr. Lawrence Wensley as Meredith and Mr. Laurie Lisle as the Comte de Perrier are to be complimented on their respective impersonations; and the remaining characters are ably sustained by Messrs. G. McCloskie and J. Syme, Miss Nellie Cozens, and Miss Paula Fernan.

Palace. — Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes.—An excellent bill this week is headed by Florrie Gallimore, whose latest songs are a bigger success than ever. The Three Comedy Chanters in humorous and harmonious interludes are eminently successful; Harry Bickley, an eccentric comedian, causes much hearty laughter; Hughes and Elliott are clevers vocalists and neat sand-dancers; Rennie gives an entertaining ventriloquial turn, in which he is assisted by his intelligent dog, Popsey; the Sisters Barnes are charming comediennes and dancers; the Markies are responsible for a skilful musical item entitled From Pavement to Stage; and the Bioscope concludes with an amusing film.

DEVONPORT.—Theatre Metropole.—Manager, Mr. G. S. King.—Mr. Junius Booth and company are on a return visit with their dramatised version of Monte Cristo. Mr. Junius Booth successfully impersonates Edmond Dantes, Prisoner 17, Soloman Van Grippe, Abbé Busoni, and the Count, the various characters furnishing striking testimony of Mr. Booth's versatility. Miss Cecilia Dare as Mercedes is particularly graceful and attractive. By the kindness of the manager, a large party of Russian officers and seamen attended the performance on Tuesday.

Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. Herbert Taylor.—The principal attraction for the week is Miss Violet Hope in "Salome" and "Cleopatra" dances; Damerell and Rutland have a particularly amusing sketch, entitled House Full; Shrillo is a really clever whistler; Ethel Dunford is a vocalist of ability; and Mark Merry's original style is much enjoyed. Johnson and Devere, finished cyclists, introduce smart comedy business; and the Canworths conclude the programme with skilfully-executed banjo selections.

DEWSBURY.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees, The Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. H. Asquith.—A cordial welcome has been accorded The Fatal Wedding. The whimsical Toto, as impersonated by Mr. Chas. Locke, has an innate and inexhaustible attraction; Mr. Frank Harrison depicts with very creditable realism the besotted intriguer, Robert Curtis; Miss Ethel Kay plays with womanly power and delicacy as Mabel Wilson; Cora Williams is represented effectively by Miss Elaine Vanbrugh; Miss Lulu Wohlmann plays Jessie prettily; and little Miss Ada Dews sings with delicious purity and sweetness.

DONCASTER. — New Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Manager, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—Daintiness marked every unit in the cast of His House in Order, presented here on Monday. Golden opinions were created of the virile and convincing animadversions of Mr. J. Herbert Beaumont in the rôle of Hilary Jesson; and scarcely less capable was Mr. W. Henry Hargreaves in upholding Filmer Jesson. Mr. Langford Browne's assumption of Sir Daniel Ridgeley was well executed; and Mr. Randolfe Reade bestowed great care upon the interpretation of Major Maurewarde. Miss Aves Grahame was a refreshing Lady Ridgeley; and as Geraldine Ridgeley Miss Victoria Wray gave an exceptionally good account of herself, as did also Miss Katie Neville in her conception of Mlle. Thome. Miss Kitty Cavendish's treatment of Nina was artistic.

DOUGLAS.—The Empire Theatre.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Charles Dare; Resident-Manager, Mr. Rex Sugden.—Mr. Charles Dare's smart and up-to-date resident-manager keeps the programme at the Empire up to high-water mark. The animated pictures are excellent; the Two Warlocks are quaint comedians, their turn exciting laughter; another interesting turn is that of the Little Magician, which possesses originality.

DUBLIN.—Gaiety Theatre.—Managing-Director Mrs. Michael Gunn; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Hyland.—The Girls of Gottenburg is the centre of attraction here this week, and is played to large and appreciative audiences by Mr. George Edwardes's company. Mr. Edmund Payne in his creation of Max Moddelkopf is irresistibly funny and amusing, and keeps the audience in the highest of spirits; Happy Fanny Fields' embodiment of the innkeeper's daughter, Mitzi, invests the part with genuine ability, and she is vivacious and pleasing in her singing and dancing; Miss Maisie Gay gives an excellent portrayal of Clementine, and her vocalism is greatly admired; Miss Thelma Raye makes an effective Elsa; Mr. Leslie Holland gives a capital representation of Prince Otto, as does Mr. Fred Allandale in the part of the Captain of Dragoons; and the Burgomaster is ably played by Mr. Douglas Munro. Mr. A. Chentrens as the innkeeper and Mr. Louis Denver as the Town Clerk are both good. The College Girls officers of the Blue Hussars in their beautiful dresses and uniforms make a pretty picture. In the second act Miss Florence Phillips is accorded rounds of applause for her graceful and artistic dance. The choruses and orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Philip Braham, are admirable.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Parrington.—Mr. Arthur Bourchier and company entered on their second week here on Monday, when the new play An Outsider met with a flattering reception. In the part of General Mortimer Mr. Bourchier has plenty of scope to display his abilities, and wins the highest admiration. Miss Violet Vanbrugh distinguishes herself in the rôle of Lady Helen Caldwell; Mr. Charles Bryant is particularly good as the Hon. Richard Caldwell; and Miss Eva Killock makes an excellent Lady Vereker. Captain Ferningham has an able exponent in Mr. Bertram Forsyth; and Mr. Arthur Whitby is capital as Admiral Sir Thomas Farleigh. The part of the Right Hon. Sir John Craven is ably undertaken by Mr. F. Cecil; and Miss Henriette Watson is all that could be desired as Margaret Hepplestone. The remaining parts are well filled, and the staging and scenery excellent.

Queen's Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. W. S. Pearce; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. Hereford Jones.—The pictures here this week are both interesting and amusing, the subjects shown including The Bandit King, A Mother's Voice, His Daughter's Voice, Black and White, The New Maid, The Vigilant Commissioner of Police, Hi, Hi, Stop! A Chase for a Husband, &c. The variety programme is well sustained by Miss Lilian, assisted by Clown Agouste and Bob Pearson, the popular humorist and guide.

Empire.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. George H. Marsh.—A capital star turn is provided here this week by the Lukushima Troupe, sensational acrobats and gymnasts, whose feats are very smartly accomplished. The Jackson Family contribute a charming musical mélange, and are repeatedly recalled; and Lilian Lowe, the possessor of a tuneful soprano voice, renders several numbers with pleasing effect. The Brothers Redmond, acrobatic comedians, create great hilarity; and Phil and Nellie Peters are agreeable vocal entertainers. Spry and Austin are eminently successful in their vaudeville act; and Marion Scott, a dainty comedienne, has a good reception. Bert Williams, ventriloquist, is both clever and entertaining; and the Empire Pictures are, as usual, up to date.

Tivoli.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Secretary, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—Wilson and Waring head an excellent programme here this week with an exceedingly funny sketch, entitled The Ugly Duckling. "Another successful turn is that of the Bohemians (Will and Madge), instrumentalists and comedy artists; and Arthur Holland, character vocalist, is popular. Sandy McNab and company in their sketch The Egyptian Mummy cause no end of merriment; and Carr and Matey, comedy acrobats, are both clever and amusing. In a musical comedy act, Two's Company, Three's ——? Ferris and May merit applause; and Leolin, in a smart juggling act, is well received. Other entertaining turns are offered by Fred Carey, comedian, and Dancit, Queen of the Golden Clog. Wanted, a Son-in-Law, is the amusing subject shown on the Bioscope.

Round Room, Rotunda.—Poole's Myriorama, which entered on its last five nights here on Monday, after a most successful season, was patronised by a large audience. The programme was again greatly varied, one of its features being the number of attractive and amusing animated pictures which have been introduced. The excellent variety entertainment included the following: The Snow Family, expert skaters; Miss Phyllis St. Clair, ballad vocalist; Harry Dowsett, comedian; George French Troupe of Cyclists; Learto and his clever dog Babs; and Bert Gates, ventriloquist and guide.

World's Fair and Music Hall.—Proprietor, Mr. C. A. James.—In addition to the cinematograph pictures, the following artists are appearing here: Harry Hewitt, ventriloquist; Miss Ada Brogden, soprano vocalist; George Millard, comedian; Queenie Vane, speciality dancer; and the Millars, refined comedy couple.

Pavilion, Kingstown.—This popular resort was successfully reopened here on Monday as a roller-skating rink and band promenade, under the management of Mr. Jack McDermott, and attracted a large number of patrons. The band of the Inniskilling Fusiliers played an excellent programme of music during the evening.

DUMFRIES.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Payne Seddon.—For three nights this week we had Mr. Thornton Powell's company in When it was Dark. The principal part was sustained in an able manner by Mr. Wilfred Lyndon as the Rev. Basil Goitre; Mr. Haldane Dalton played Constantine Schwabe most successfully; Mr. William H. Burton was very good as the Rev. Mr. Byers; Miss Marie Barrett as Gertrude Hunt was charming; and Miss Florrie Lyndon was sweet as Helena Byers.

DUNDEE.—Her Majesty's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Manager, Mr. Louis Karpe.—The Flower Girl is presented here this week by Mr. Charles Bestic's company, and had a good reception from a large house on Monday. The effective scenery includes a representation of the Italian Garden at the White City—a very pretty piece of staging. Miss Dorothy Firmin gives a really clever impersonation of the title-rôle, her dainty acting, charming singing, and neat dancing winning her rounds of applause. The part of Joe Wheeler, the ex-'busman, is capitally played by that good all-round comedian Mr. Martin Adeson, whose wit and humour are of the best; he is ably assisted in the fun-making by Mr. Alfred Donnohoe as Johnny Wheeler. Mr. Norman Bowyer in the amusing rôle of Reginald Rackit has a lot to do, and does it unusually well; Mr. Robert H. Howard is distinctly good as the Hon. Billy Greenhill; and Mr. Henry Adnes and Miss Florence Wilton as Alphonse and Lizette le Racquet respectively score in several smart songs and dances. Miss Jeannie Holmes makes a picturesque and pleasing Suffragette, and Miss Townley Lawrence is a vivacious Maisie Flirtington. Other parts are creditably performed by Misses Cassie King, Alice King, Phyllis Leslie, Kitty Hyde, and Messrs. L. Stanislaus, Arthur Carter, and F. Williams.

Palace Theatre. — Lessees, the United County Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. S. McIntosh.—At the head of affairs here are Harry Roxbury and company in their funny musical mélange entitled The Prince of Monte Carlo, which goes with a fine swing from start to finish. The Cheers introduce with much effect a troupe of highly-trained cats into their delightful scena Dick Whittington; an original ventriloquial entertainment is given by Barney Vox; and Charlie Pitt scores a big success as a comedian. Leslie Talmage, "the humoristical mysterio," does well; and Mabel Carr proves a very entertaining comedienne. A fine display of the art of Ju-Jitsu is provided by Frank Long, Omoyo San, and company, and several interesting pictures by the Bioscope conclude.

Gaiety Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. A. P. Williams; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—An excellent bill is headed by that smart musical comedy, King for a Day. The Gem Operatic Trio give with much acceptance the prison scene from Faust; Cliff and Vanston are also successful in a brilliant musical act; Jack Easy, the quaint comedian, rattles off his comic patter in good style; Vera Mayne is a strong favourite; Hallam and Stanton present their sketch A Broken Journey with good results; while Phillips and Merritt appear with advantage in their well-worked musical mélange. The Five X-Rays in a remarkably smart and novel acrobatic turn complete a most enjoyable bill.

Empire Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. A. P. Williams; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—The Franco-British Picture Co. entered upon their concluding week here on Monday evening, when another fine series of pictures was presented. The films include The Story of a Crime, A Kind-hearted Shoeblack, Hunting the Rat, The Two Fairies, &c. Arthur Harris, the popular actor-vocalist, also appears.

Newman's Picture Palace.—An interesting film was shown here on Monday evening of the Marathon Race from Linlithgow to the grounds of the Edinburgh Exhibition, with incidents on the way. Other pictures were A Woman's Revenge, Old College Chums, The Gipsy's Model, Only Plain Folk, Tricks of an Artist, The Dude's Dream, and The Demon Card-shuffler. A clever turn was provided by J. C. Heffron, comedian, and a "climbing the greasy pole" competition caused no end of amusement.

DUNFERMLINE.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Manager, Mr. W. E. Potts.—Mrs. Fred J. Kirke's company, on a week's engagement here, opened on Monday with In Old Madrid. Mr. O. B. Stanley displayed ability in the dual part of Frank Lyndhurst and Count Correglio; Mr. Franklyn Daly was a good Mendoza; Mr. G. H. Holloway acquitted himself with credit as Fernando Cassillis; Mr. W. T. Hybert is an amusing and clever Horatio J. Rodgers; Mr. C. Burns is successful as Marmaduke R. Fitzsimmons; Miss Edith Claris creates a good impression as Madeline Earlsmore; Miss Lily Seymour is well received as Martha Jane; and Miss Florrie Jackson is satisfactory as Lolo. Miss Francesca Strickland gives a dramatic and capable impersonation of Violet Hyndhurst; and the dancing of Misses Edith and Maude Gage is much appreciated. The Naval Detective and Our Sailor Lad complete the répertoire for the week.

EASTBOURNE. — Pier Pavilion. — Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—Mr. Brandon Thomas's company is appearing here in Charley's Aunt. Mr. G. A. Seager as Lord Fancourt Babberley is able and painstaking, and creates endless amusement; Mr. Hastings Lynn and Mr. Basil Lynton play breezily and brightly as Jack and Charley; Mr. Theo McCausland Stewart is a dignified and polished Colonel Chesney; Mr. Roy Byford gets many laughs as Stephen Spettigue; and Mr. Sydney Compton repeats his capital sketch of the college scout Brasset. Miss Vere Gerald is a handsome and regal Donna Lucia; Miss Olivia Glynn and Miss G. Denbeigh Russel are the pretty, attractive exponents of the parts of Kitty and Amy, and Miss Evelyn Grey is a very sympathetic Ela.

Devonshire Park Theatre.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Murray, King, and Clark.—Mr. Harry Nicholls and his company are appearing here in If We Only Knew. Mr. Nicholls, serenely funny and excellently made-up, excites much genuine laughter as Slippery Sam; Mr. P. A. Gawthorn as Dick Steen does much and difficult work in a clever and pleasing manner; Mr. Ernest Young succeeds admirably as Ensign Wilmott; Mr. H. Benedick Butler is a happy and very effective Mr. Bignell; Mr. William Ames does well as Crampton; and Mr. George Page as Jackson, Mr. Henry Jessop as Naylor, and Mr. Alfred Wynne as the inn waiter give excellent assistance. Miss Sylvia Morris, with a sympathetic voice and appealing manner, is a capital Barbara Wentworth; Miss M. Van Hollister is a powerful Ruth Steen; Miss Kate Kearney is a most successful Priscilla; Miss Violet Langley, animated and bright, is a commendable landlady, Mrs. Thornhill; and Miss Cicely Nicholls as Hebe and Miss Lorna Treherne ably complete the cast.

Royal Hippodrome.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sidney W. Winter; District-Manager, Mr. Egbert; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Holloway.—Heading the bill here are the Attilla Brothers, whose strong show is given on novel lines; Daddy's Boy is a sketch excellently acted by Miss Florence Creagh, Mr. H. W. Hatchman, and company; Maddison and Webb gain many hearty laughs; the Bright Trio play particularly well as instrumentalists; Mr. Herbert Bates is a pleasing and popular tenor; Mr. Charles Ashdown is a clever legmania comedian; Miss Maudie Haile pleases as a comedienne, and new pictures are shown.

ECCLES.—Crown Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs W. H. Broadhead and Son; Manager, Mr. R. Andrews.—The Three Coopers are clever; Jukes and Earle are amusing eccentric dancers; Zeta Grey and Wal Grace in The Lancashire Lass receive applause; Kingstone Trollope in dramatic monologue, "Only a Dream," is powerful; Frances Hanlon makes a dainty comedienne; Rousby and Rene in Fine Feathers submit a good performance; Angelina gives a smart juggling act; Margit and Lener are quite a success; Victor and Louis are responsible for a lot of fun; and Lovelace's pictures are exceedingly clear.

EDINBURGH.—Royal Lyceum Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie.—Mr. Fred Terry has been delighting packed houses with the bright comedy-drama The Scarlet Pimpernel. As Sir Percy Blakeney Mr. Terry is altogether admirable; Miss Miriam Lewes in the part of Lady Blakeney gives a fine performance; and the Chauvelin of Mr. Horace Hodges is a most effective study. The long cast is adequately filled, so that the production is agreeably artistic in its ensemble. Mr. Alfred Kendrick, Mr. Malcolm Cherry, and Mr. Frederick Groves in the several rôles of Sir Andrew Ffoulkes, Lord Dewhurst, and Lord Greville provide excellent support; and efficient aid is rendered by the De Tournai of Mr. Harry F. Wright, the St. Just of Mr. L. Race Dunrobin, and by Mr. A. E. Anson as the Prince of Wales. Well-contrasted character-sketches of the English and French rustic inn-keepers are given by Mr. D. J. Williams and Mr. J. Carter Edwards; and the Mère Brogard of Miss Marion Sterling is quite a bit of animated genre painting. The Comtesse de Tournai is portrayed in stately fashion by Miss Claire Pauncefort; Miss Katherine Doyle makes a most attractive Susanne; and Miss Mary Jennings is pleasingly natural as the inn-keeper's daughter. Careful attention is bestowed on the interpretation of all minor parts and in the details of stage setting, which are in every way complete.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Whitehead.—Edinburgh playgoers renew pleasant associations in the visit of the Follies, who are appearing here this week. The first part of the entertainment consists of song, story, and "potted plays," into all of which the members of the company enter with zest, and the theatre rings with laughter during the evening. Mr. Pélissier is a host in himself, and whether in song, travesty, or musical accompaniment, he shows himself to be a thorough artist. Mr. Lewis Sydney, a comedian with a quiet, effective style, calls forth enthusiastic applause by his droll stories and imitations on the pianoforte; Mr. Norman Blume, a young Edinburgh man, acts easily and dances with exceeding neatness; and Miss Gwennie Mars, Miss Muriel George, Miss Dollis Brooke, and Mr. Dan Everard are buoyant and talented performers. The second part of the programme is devoted to the smart skit Everybody's Benefit. The theatre has been crowded every evening during the week.

King's Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Amand Mascard.—First honours this week are accorded to Mrs. Lewis Waller and company for their production of The Admiral's Lady, in which the rendering of the leading rôle by Mrs. Waller and the acting of Mr. Leonard Robson as the Admiral, combined with good support all round, raised the performance to a high standard of excellence. Mr. Hal Forde's success as a light comedian and singer of popular ditties is undoubted; Corman's Juveniles do good work in their pretty vocal scena, The Waif; Pyck, Tholl, and Taylor prove themselves clever and versatile dancers; Farrell and Dunn submit a unique comedy act, introducing smart patter with tumbling and dancing; and Mr. Fred Russell shows a pleasing sense of humour in a ventriloquial turn with his automaton friend "Coster Joe." Stelling and his trained dog also provide enjoyable entertainment; Miss Lily Black sings a couple of taking songs very charmingly; Mr. Sidney Dolf displays considerable skill as a juggler; and the Bioscope has a good selection of pictures.

Empire Palace Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Aynsley Cook.—Charles—His Friend is presented by Mr. Courtice Pounds and Miss Louie Pounds' company, and it affords Mr. Pounds the opportunity, of Craven, Mr. Chris Walker, Mr. Frederick James, Mr. A. Corney Grain, and Miss Margaret Omar. The Carina Sisters provide a pleasing musical entertainment, in which they play with taste on piano, violin, and flute; Miss Emmie Ames finds favour in her pretty Christmas tree song; the Maples show themselves to be expert dancers in their sketch, How to Treat a Burglar; Mr. Harry Bancroft is very successful in his scena, Fifty Long Years Ago; Bellonini gives an exhibition of surprising juggling feats, and his assistant, Wal, proves himself to be possessed of much humour; the Cumberlands are daring, easy cyclists; Mr. Jock Mills, Scotch comedian, is a clear, tuneful singer; and the Bioscope has some funny films.

EXETER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr. Edward J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy M. Dunsford.—Mr Charles Frohman's company is here in The Hypocrites. Mr. A. B. Imeson is capital as the Rev. Edgar Linnell; Miss Laura Graves as Mrs. Wilmore is decidedly good; Miss Muriel Pope earns the sympathies of the audience in the difficult part of Rachel Neve; Mr. E. H. Ruston as the overbearing Lord of the Manor is amusing; Mr. Fred Morland's family lawyer is a good character-study; and the same may be said of Mr. F. G. Thurstans as the easy-going, well-fed Vicar. Miss Muriel Mason is charming as Helen Plugenet; and Mr. John Dennys ably sustains the part of Leonard Wilmore.

FALKIRK.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. W. Ebbutt.—This house is given up for the week to a variety entertainment (two houses nightly), with Yukio Tani, jujitsu wrestler, as star. An excellent all-round bill includes Rappo and Ella, who do some very artistic work in the gymnastic way; the Acmes, who provide much fun as "musical grotesques"; W. B. Raby, comedian, who is a great favourite; Jack Cobril and Annie Tate, comedy artists; Harry Carlton, character comedian and dancer; Billie Burford, comedienne; and the Swains, in a comedy act.

FOLKESTONE.—PLEASURE GARDENS THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—Messrs. Lyn Harding and Sidney Cooper are presenting The Flag Lieutenant, magnificently staged, to enthusiastic and crowded houses. Mr. Langhorne Burton makes a debonair Richard Lascelles, and gives a clever impersonation of the fine part created by Mr. Cyril Maude. Mr. Montague Love meets all the requirements of the difficult rôle of William Thesiger, the unfortunate Major of the Royal Marines; Mr. George Mallett as the Hon. Sir Berkeley Wynne, K.C.B., enacts the dignified admiral of the modern school with considerable credit; the pair of impish midshipmen are amusingly portrayed by Mr. Hugh Wakefield and Mr. Lyonel Watts; Miss Florence Jackson cleverly fulfills the part of Mrs. Cameron, being especially good in the scene in which she attempts to vindicate the honour of Richard Lascelles; both Mr. Yoldham and Miss Stella Leigh are seen to advantage as the mischief-making scandal-mongers General and Mrs. Gough Bogle; Miss Marjorie Chard and Miss Viva Birkett are delightfully sweet and natural as Lady Hermione Wynne and Viola Hood. Messrs. Harding and Cooper are to be congratulated upon securing such a powerful combination for the provincial tour of this popular play.

GAINSBOROUGH.—KING'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. H. Stear.—For the last three nights last week we had a visit from Messrs. Taylor Platt and Trevor Lowe's company in Bernard Shaw's play You Never can Tell. Mr. Lowe as the waiter was perfect, and he was splendidly supported by Mr. J. E. Pearce as Crompton, Mr. Donald Calthorp as Philip, Mr. Leslie Horner as Valentine, and Mr. Charles Daly (McComos) and Mr. George Howard (Bohun). The ladies, consisting of Miss K. Stuart, Miss Gladys Morris, Miss Clara Earle, and Miss Ivy Fenton, were equally well placed. This week we had on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday Mr. Morton Powell's company in The Woman Who Gambles. Miss Laura Walker gave a powerful rendering of the title-rôle, and the Baron Cratzlaw of Mr. Norman Overton was equally effective. Mr. Reginald Fox was an earnest Karl, and Mr. Clifford Rean portrayed the part of Count Otto in a dignified manner.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Gainsborough Syndicate; Manager, Mr. Scott Alexander.—Mr. and Mrs. Levy and J. E. Cardwell's company opened on Monday to two full houses with A Merry Maid. Mr. Wakeman as Larry made the most of his part and gave some excellent imitations; Master Wee George West as Bertie is one of the best child actors we have seen.

GATESHEAD.—KING'S THEATRE.—Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Resident-Manager and Licensee, Mr. Harold Arnold.—"Starring" here this week is Herbert Clifton, a "male soprano," whose voice is said to be insured for £1,000; J. W. Hall pays a return visit, and is successful with his talk on "Suffragitis"; Albert Wyndham and company, in the ever-welcome episode, Prince Arthur, are popular; the Kimberley Boys form another of the bright items on the programme; Harry Zetter, a quaint comedian and eccentric dancer, finds much favour; Les Zelovas, gymnasts, are warmly applauded; and Marie Neilson dances cleverly. Bella and Greta, duettists and dancers, and pictures by Vernon's Bioscope, make up a capital entertainment.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. F. W. Bolam; General-Manager, Mr. R. G. Elder; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Dixon.—Mr. Frederick Mouillot's company, in A Message from Mars, has drawn large audiences to this house. Mr. Wallace Widdicombe's rendering of the part of Horace Parker leaves nothing to be desired; and an exceptionally fine messenger is presented by Mr. Wm. H. Brougham. The rôle of Minnie Templar is safely entrusted to Miss Rose Helene; and Miss Flora Hastings cleverly portrays Miss Parker. Other parts are in capable hands.

GILLINGHAM (Kent).—HIPPODROME.—Lessees, The Electric Vaudeville Co.; General-Manager, Mr. W. H. White.—This building has now reopened for the season. A novelty for this district is the Chronophone singing pictures, which are introduced into the programme. The best of these is The Bedouin Love Song. Among the other films special mention may be made of the interesting picture A Tale of Two Cities. The programme is considerably enlivened with selections by the orchestra, under Mr. Harold Price.

GLASGOW.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Humphreys—Glasgow playgoers are enjoying a rare treat this week in the visit of Mr. Robert Courtneidge's company in Tom Jones, and the house shows its keen appreciation of Mr. Edward German's tuneful numbers in no unmistakable manner. Mr. Harry Welchman in the part of Tom Jones submits a fine performance, his vocal efforts calling forth many evidences of appreciation. The Sophia of Miss Florence Smithson is a charming performance, her share of the music being rendered in a finished and artistic manner. Mr. Dan Rolyat as Benjamin Partridge is exceedingly entertaining. He gives a matured portrayal full of original business, and it tells accordingly. Mr. Ambrose Manning proves himself an able comedian as Squire Western; Miss Isabelle Dillon acts with much spirit as Honour; Mr. J. T. Macmillan gets plenty of humour out of Gregory; Mr. John Morley is an admirable representative of Mr. Allworthy; and Mr. Deane Percival is successful as Blifil. Miss Alice Appitz scores as Lady Bellaston. The chorus is well trained, and works briskly together.

KING'S, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. Hugh Macfarlane.—Those prime Glasgow favourites Mr. and Mrs. Kendal opened here on Monday in The Elder Miss Blossom, and both artists were in excellent artistic form and were given a hearty reception. Mr. W. M. Rutherford is a breezy and cheery Christopher Blossom; and a clever sketch is contributed by Mr. Bassett Roe as Major Twentyman. Mr. T. Holding acts pleasantly as the Rev. Arthur Leacroft, and his love scenes with Miss Jessica Thorne as Sophia were much enjoyed; Mr. Metcalfe Wood as Withers, Mrs. A. B. Tapping as Cooper, and Mr. F. C. Pool as Wells gave able support. Later in the week the Kendals were seen in two plays new to Glasgow—The Whirlpool and The House of Clay.

ROYALTY, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Carpenter.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's principal company appears this week in Florodora, with Mr. Fred Eastman in the part of Tweedlepunch. Mr. Eastman's impersonation of the eccentric phrenologist is quaint and amusing throughout, and the fun is never unduly forced; Miss Maisie Ellinger is the Dolores, and, possessing a mellow and powerful voice, sings her numbers with irresistible effect; Mr. H. V. Cropton makes an excellent appearance in the baritone part (Abercoed), singing "The Sheltering Palm" in very pleasing style; as Gilfain Mr. Stanley White acts with dash and humour; a smart and good-looking Captain Donegal is seen in Mr. Herbert St. John; and Mr. Edwin Oxlee gives a melodramatic touch to the part of Leandro. Miss Edith Housley's Lady Holyrood is a particularly smart performance; as Angela Gilfain Miss Bessie Middleton acts with quiet grace; and the rôles of the typist and the maid are well filled by Miss Dora McLaskey and Miss M. Van Dieman. The chorus and orchestra are under the direction of Mr. J. Morton Hutchison.

GRAND.—Proprietors, Moss Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Christie Grant.—Mr. Roland Yorke presents here this week The Old Home, one of the best-acted dramas we have had for some time. As Daddy Dean Mr. Harding Thomas presents a lifelike picture of the hardy and good-hearted old sailor; and his daughter Hazle is played with brightness and animation by Miss Nina Blake-Adams. The clergyman lover of Mr. T. W. Dunscombe is another finely-acted part, and forms a fitting contrast to the scoundrelly Lord Avondale of Mr. Roland Yorke. An extremely amusing type of longshoreman is played with infinite gusto by Mr. Fred L. Connynghame, and much enjoyed by the audience; as are also the witticisms of Mrs. J. W. Braithwaite as Biddy Donoghan. Mr. James L. Air as Timothy Twaddle gives a picture of a typical dude. The setting of the play is much above the average.

ROYAL PRINCESS'S.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—A talented company appears here this week in Her Road to Ruin, which attracts good houses. The part of the heroic curate, Frank Temple, gets a good interpretation at the hands of Mr. Henry Wolston; while Miss Beatrice Edwards as Jess, the girl who went "the road to ruin," gives an excellent rendering; an attractive character charmingly played is that of May Willoughby by Miss Alice Bowes; Mr. Alex. Bradley as Philip Hardy makes a rather good-looking villain; Mr. Ernest Hague is excellent as Tom Wells; the pompous Bishop gets a fine rendering from Mr. Dane Clarke; and Miss Nellie Bonsor ably acts the part of Mary Dawson, the girl from Lancashire. The comic element is ably handled by Miss Marie Wright as Jennie Crackling and Mr. Harry Talbot as Billy Boots. The play is efficiently staged.

METROPOLE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Gordon Jefferson.—The late Wilson Barrett's play Claudian is this week staged at the Metropole by Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Maclaren, supported by a large and talented company. Mr. Maclaren gives a striking rendition of Claudian; and Miss Bandmann as Almida is admirable. Mr. Bernard Elliot as Thariogalus, Mr. Weston Hubbard as Alcares, and Mr. C. T. Chaloner as Belos are entitled to mention; Miss Ruth Trafford and Miss Nellie C. Bilbe as Edessa and Hera respectively are responsible for excellent work. On Wednesday the company gave a special matinée, the proceeds of which go to augment the Lord Provost's Unemployment Fund.

LYCEUM.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—The Mystery of Edwin Drood, a play founded on the late Charles Dickens' unfinished novel, provides the fare this week. Weirdness may be said to be the keynote of the whole performance, and in the hands of Mr. Morton Powell's company the play loses nothing. Conspicuous all through is Mr. Bartlett Garth, who as John Jasper gets through an amount of hard work with great success; Mrs. Morton Powell as Rosa Bud gives a charming picture of the troubled lover, and is well supported in the various scenes by Miss May Beatrice as Helena Landless. Mr. Richard Harris as Septimus Crisparkle acts with marked ability; Mr. Henry Twyford in the dual rôle of Neville Landless and Mr. Datchery is to be complimented; as also is Mr. David Phillips for his masterly representation of Durdles. The play is staged in a most effective style.

EMPIRE.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Manners.—George Lashwood in "Hang out the front-door key" makes a decided hit, and his other songs are catchy and up to date; the Brothers Egbert's comicalities and clever tumbling in The Happy Dustmen draw forth the plaudits of the audience nightly; Arthur Playfair, assisted by Eily Hélène, is responsible for a good racing sketch entitled 327 Finsbury; a neat and pretty little song-scena is produced by Adele Crispen, who has the support of Tiller's Twelve Forget-Me-Nots, their singing and dancing making them immediate favourites; Edith Fink is dainty and sings well; a capital vocal and musical turn in which Olga and Elgar appear is very much above the average; Sydney Stern sings well; Nell Emerald is a cheery comedienne, whose dancing is highly appreciated; Frank Maura, the Mexican equilibrist, pays a return visit, and is well received; and the Bioscope proves interesting.

ZOO-HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Councillor E. H. Bostock; Assistant-Manager, Mr. E. H. A. Bostock.—The programme this week is topped by Garland and Douglas's company in A Trip to Coontown, an operetta sustained by ladies and gentlemen of colour, whose voices blend charmingly in harmonious choruses; Yangar, the African wonder-worker, does some astonishing feats of natural magic; the Dancing Gilberts are graceful; Ormonde Penstone and Mlle. San-go present an entertainment in which sleight-of-hand and smoke painting are pleasantly blended; Daisy Meyer's stories are delightful mixtures of pathos and humour; Ferdie's Ma-in-Law is a sketch which provokes roars of laughter; the Three Fidardys contrive to give their clever acrobatic feats a comical complexion; Eileen Douglas gives a lively impersonation of a musical comedy girl; the Bioscope supplies an interesting series.

PAVILION, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Evan Good.—R. A. Roberts, the famous protean actor, is the star turn here, and is giving his three sketches, Dick Turpin, Ringing the Changes, and Lucinda's Elopement. In the first he was enthusiastically received on Monday and Tuesday evenings. King and Benson are among the most popular comedy duos who visit here, and their singing and patter are the best of the kind; Fred Earle is another strong favourite, and his new songs go immensely well; Francini, Olloms, and Page give a smart acrobatic and musical turn, which is accorded a well-deserved ovation; Jane Eyre is a sweet singer, whose pantomime engagement here made her a favourite; Arthur Royce gives a smart show as a comedian and pianist; Estrella, a clever dancer, in a series of international dances, also shares in the honours of the evening.

PALACE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Rich. Waldon; General-Manager, Mr. Harry M'Kelvie.—The principal item of this week's bill is Jake Friedman's Happy Holland, which was thoroughly enjoyed by the audience; Sanford and Lyons, comedians and dancers, are as smart as ever; and Irene Rose depicts an incident entitled Her First Engagement, which is well received; Helen Martin is an excellent vocalist; and Herbert La Martine gives a finished display of eccentric dancing; Harry Arnold sings some quaint Scotch comic songs; and the Bartholomew Girls are good singers and dancers; a series of up-to-date pictures is given on the bioscope.

COLISEUM.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette.—The Boisset Troupe (Frank and Albert and company) are retained for another week, and their sketch, The Bricklayers, is greatly enjoyed; Billy Howard and Kathryn Harris's boxing sketch, The Biter Bit, is full of humour; the Great Lumars contribute an original acrobatic act; and Billy French, the wonderful wooden-shoe dancer, earns rounds of applause. Other notable artists include George Young, pianist and concertina soloist; the Lyric Quartette, harmonising vocalists with picture effects; Happy Tom Parker, eccentric comedian; Rosa Loader, comedienne; and the Bioscope, with a display of original pictures.

GAIETY, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Harry Bowerman.—Business is good. Joe Westley's Minstrels, a local combination, introduce some catchy songs and choruses, and in a sketch entitled Capers at the Coast, their efforts are greeted with roars of laughter; the Four Monte Carlo Girls give a smart singing and dancing turn; Joe Cookson is an original ventriloquist, and his speaking crayon sketches are a decided hit; Harry King renders some songs in fine style; Maddison Brothers, comedians, are responsible for a fine entertainment of patter and burlesque boxing. A fine series of animated pictures conclude.

PANOPTICON.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. A. E. Pickard.—Donaldson and Emslie give a diverting little sketch; East and West are a pleasing comedy duo; Rose Bower contributes two good songs; and Will Leslie is a Scotch comedian of ability. The bioscope, with a series of pictures, is a very strong item on this programme.

GLOSSOP.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spenser.—Mr. Reginald Dance's company is here this week in Raffles, which on Monday met with keen appreciation. Mr. Lewis Edgard delineates the amateur cracksman with consummate skill; Mr. Curtis Bedford, the shrewd and calculating detective, is finely presented by Mr. C. Kean; the portrayal of Harry Manders (Bunny) by Mr. Arthur Bell is admirable; Lord Amersteth is rendered in sympathetic style by Mr. P. Alexandra; Mr. Oswald Griffiths in the rôle of Crawshay is satisfactory; Mr. Rivers Bertram's Lord Crowley shows distinct merit; Mr. D. Grogson does well as Barraclough; and Mr. Chas. Baker is effective in the part of Merton. Miss Kitty Lofting sustains the part of Lady Melrose with dignity; Miss Winnie Radcliffe as Lady Ethel is captivating; Miss Frances Titheradge makes a charming Gwendoline; Miss Brenda Gibson as Mrs. Vidal is exceptionally fine; and Miss Eva Benington smartly interprets the part of Marie.

GLOUCESTER.—PALACE.—Owners, Messrs. Poole's Theatres, Ltd.—Jack Pleasants is first favourite with clever songs; the Derrington Family of cyclists accomplish some difficult feats; Vernando is an excellent ventriloquist; and Mlle. Renee, a real musician, does a clever act. Jack Hylton, comedian, who reappears, is well liked; Cora Caselli is seen to advantage in a Spanish song; Martin Henderson, the blind musician, is good; and Harry Kirk, comedian, is amusing. The Palascope interests with two good films.

GOOLE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Fred Greaves.—Miss Bonwin Carlton and company are paying a welcome return visit with The Old, Old Story, and met with a good reception on Monday. Mr. J. P. Dryden as Jas. Marlow portrays the villain to the life; Mr. Edward Surrey is exceedingly smart as Gimshaw, the detective; Mr. C. Wilson is very amusing as Bobby Blossom; Mr. A. P. Leo is successful as John Hazel; Mr. B. Martin enacts the rôle of Sir Humphrey Hazel in a thorough manner; Mr. T. Hadlin is seen to advantage as Hilton Thorpe; and Mr. Wilson Lowther is a capital Higgins. Miss Bonwin Carlton keeps the house convulsed as Tilly, the lady "bookie"; Miss Esther Lamont is well suited to the trying part of Janet Marlow; Miss Bernice Fielding is graceful and sympathetic as Netty Hazel; and Miss Kitty Maynard is a charming Jessie Hazel. During the week the company present East Lynne, Poor Jo, and The Plucky Nipper.

GREAT YARMOUTH.—ROYAL AQUARIUM.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—Mr. W. W. Kelly's company is appearing here this week in A Royal Divorce. Mr. Keith Fraser gives an excellent portrayal of Napoleon; Miss Margaret Watson elicits the sympathy of the audience as Josephine; Mr. George Hudson is a very humorous Grimaud; Talleyrand has a clever exponent in Mr. Percy H. Vernon; Mr. Stanley Harrison is good as Marquis de Beaumont; Mr. C. Jackson is a fine Lord Keith; Miss Winnie Tempest is good as Marie Louise; and Miss Maude Lacey is an excellent Stephanie.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—Excellent pictures and variety turns are being presented for the third week of Mr. Victor Rowe's season. George Regan is a good comedian; Clarence Rayner's excellent chorus songs are very popular; Harlin and Hanlon are successful as cross-talkers; James Lawrence is a very funny comedian; and the Glovers have a cordial reception for their sketch, Can You Do This?

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. George Gilbert; Ring-Director, Mr. Leicester Cooke.—Lockhart's Elephants are topping the bill this week, and are a big draw; Aiston's White Stars appear in a unique entertainment, blending music with comedy; Leo Dryden, the well-known character vocalist, is very popular; Mlle. Lumière, fairy grotto dancer, is picturesque and entertaining; Addison introduces some cleverly-trained dogs; Frank Hartly is an excellent juggler; Charles Buval creates much merriment; Doodles is very funny in the laughter-raising sketch entitled The Long-Lost Son; and excellent pictures are exhibited on the Bioscope.

THE GEM.—Proprietors, The Yarmouth Amusement Centre, Ltd.; Resident-Director, Mr. C. B. Cochran—The series of pictures this week comprises Genevieve de Brabant, a historical and dramatic story in pictures; a number of comic scenes, consisting of The Sandwich Women, An Explosive Calf, Intruding Husband, and Mary is Dismissed. Beatrice Cenci, Catching a Tartar, A Mexican Love Story, and Hoisted with his Own Bomb are also shown. The song each evening is "Moon, Dear," an American hit.

GREENOCK.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Directors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—The premier turn here is provided by Miss Ella and her troupe of marvellously well-trained lions; Onda and Artell submit a novel gymnastic pot-pourri act; Mlle Sara's Marblesque Trio appear in a series of beautiful poses; Lily Davis is successful in illustrated songs; the Eltons contribute a capital turn on the horizontal bars; and others on the list are Neil Nelson, Scotch comedian; Florence Sharp, a pleasing contralto; Jack Macormack, comedian; and Jack Ramsay, the versatile Scot; the Alexandroscope pictures are much appreciated.

EMPIRE.—Lessees, the Greenock Empire Syndicate; Responsible-Manager, Mr. Edward McCormick; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. J. Colquhoun.—Miss Helen Kennedy's sketch company in The Pride of the Heather is a prominent attraction, and well merits the success achieved; the New Macs are entertaining; Spangles and Sawdust are highly successful in their aerial act; and other good turns include Beattie Bloom, comedienne; Allis and Casati, a clever comedy couple; Wisper, a smart juggler; and the Sisters Dorrell, duettists and dancers.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry L. Skivington.—Mr. Arthur Watson, supported by an able company, presents in a highly capable manner a musical comedy sketch entitled The Cruise of H.M.S. Victory; the Four Regals submit some extraordinary feats of strength; Spry and Monti are deservedly successful with their clever and versatile comedy act; and Fanny Humber, instrumentalist and dancer; A. J. Gamble, Scotch comedian; Clivetto, dancing juggler; Jack Barker, light comedian; and Georgina Leonard, burlesque artist are also appreciated.

HAMILTON, N.B.—HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Resident-Manager, Mr. René Clayton.—Barton and Ashley, in their comedy duo, Canal Boat Sue, Low Bridge, are topping the bill here this week; Vere and Nelldon are excellent in burlesque song and dance; the Westbrooks prove popular in their novel dancing scena, Two Little Maids from School; the Corcoran Brothers are entertaining in a musical instrumental turn entitled Sons of Toil; Alex. Kendall is droll in the extreme; Benson and Rose do well in a bright little sketch, Elizabeth's Baby; Bessie Knight, comedienne and buck dancer; the Sisters Belmont, dancers; and the Faludy troupe of acrobats, together with the Bioscope, conclude.

HANLEY.—ROYAL.—Proprietors, Hanley Theatres and Circus Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Douglas Elphinstone.—Miss Emma and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company is here with Lady Frederick. Mrs. Brown-Potter is very popular; Mr. Philip Cuningham plays Paradine admirably; Mr. Herbert Garthorne gives a fine interpretation of Lord Mereston; Mr. W. Barnett Parker is decidedly clever as Sir Gerald; Mr. Cecil Bevan is decidedly strong as Captain Montgomerie; Mr. Shirley Lea as Admiral Carlisle gives a fine character performance; Miss Madeline du Val plays Lady Mereston with skill; Miss Edith Deverell is a charming Rose; Miss Phyllis Manners as Mme. Claude wins warm approbation; and Miss E. Nolan O'Connor makes a fine Angelique. The Peacemakers, the curtain-raiser, is well played by Miss O'Connor and Miss Deverell.

GRAND.—Proprietors, Hanley Theatres and Circus Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Arthur Rand.—The bill here is headed by Reano and his famous band, who win warm applause; the Sutcliffe Family make a big hit with a novel acrobatic, dancing, and musical act; Dot Hardy does well with some catchy songs; Raymond's Bio-tableaux are admired; Arthur Slater whistles cleverly; the Sisters St. Julian are decidedly smart; the Napoli Singers are enthusiastically recalled; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Shelley are responsible for hearty laughter in a screamingly funny farce; and Jessie Buckle appears with success.

KING'S EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Moore and Kennedy; Manager, Mr. H. Kennedy.—The pictures here include Harry Lauder off to America, Wilbur Wright's Aeroplane Flight, The Tempter, All for a Drink, The Gladiator's Bride, Rag-picker Caricaturist, and The Magic Bust. Mme. Garabaldi supplies the vaudeville items successfully.

HARROGATE.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Eric Fielding Smith.—For the first three nights of this week Miss May Palfrey and company appeared in the famous light comedy Mrs. Dot. A very large audience was present on Monday, and the brilliant play went with a swing from start to finish. As Mrs. Dot Miss Palfrey came out with flying colours, and is to be heartily congratulated on her performance. She was capitally supported by Mr. F. Kinsey Peile, who was excellent throughout as James Blenkinsop; Mr. Hugh C. Buckler was good as Gerald Halstane, and Mr. Basil Hallam as Freddie Perkins soon established himself as prime favourite. Miss Ada Jenoure was excellent as the worldly Lady Sellenger, and Miss Beaumont was a pretty and pleasing Nellie Sellenger, while Mrs. Kemmis made all that was possible out of the small part of Miss Eliza Macgregor. A special word of praise is due to Mr. McIntyre Wicksteed as Charles the valet. The piece was beautifully mounted and dressed. For the remainder of the week Mr. Tree's company in The Mystery of Edwin Drood is billed.

ST. JAMES'S HALL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Sydney H. Carter; General-Manager, Mr. F. D. Sunderland; Resident-Manager, Mr. Fred Parker.—Houses assemble here twice daily. Chief among the pictures this week are The Police Dogs of Paris, A Modern Don Juan, The Riding School at Saumur, and the Island of St. Kilda, and When the Cat's Away is a really funny picture. The Dunvilles appear in their comic musical act. Mr. Walter S. Pratt is an able accompanist.

THE KURSAAL.—General Manager and Musical Director, Mr. Julian Clifford; Assistant-Manager and Secretary, Mr. R. Eldrid.—This is the last week of the Harrogate season here. Early in the week the Alexandra Quartet appeared.

HASTINGS.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Scutt.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company is here this week in the comedy drama From Slave to Princess. Mr. Austen Milroy is an effective Prince Julian; Miss Dorothy Lart secures complete success in her impersonation of Vera; Miss Agnes Verity displays remarkable ability as the cruel-hearted and plotting Princess; Mr. Arthur Elwyn realises the traitorous character of Michael Bardoni; excellent fun is secured by the low-comedy acting of Mr. Harry Benson as Patrick O'Brien, who is supported by Miss Kitty Sinclair as Amelia; Mr. Dermont Fitzgibbon is a powerful Lieut. Alexis; and Mr. Arthur Estcourt plays the part of King Adrian capably.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. H. Vivian-Fisher; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Walter Norman.—Some very pleasing duets are sung by the Lancashire Mill Lads. The new Hipposcope is an attractive feature; the Musical Keiths perform very cleverly on a variety of instruments; a comic sketch, The New Office Boy, is introduced by Ingram and Irving; La Petite Carlina's international dances are very pretty; Hyram Travers delights the audience with his character impersonations, and creates much laughter by his patter; and Mr. John Alexander's burlesque, The Actors, concludes the programme.

PIER PAVILION.—General-Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter.—Mr. Walter Payne's Bio-photoscope exhibits an excellent selection of films, A Bear Hunt in Russia being particularly effective. A pleasing soubrette vocalist is seen in Miss Tina Korrie, who is also a graceful dancer; the clever and amusing ventriloquism of Professor Golding is always appreciated; Miss Marie Caritta renders her illustrated songs attractively. The programme also includes some clever juggling by Romano, and Chin-Chin, the Japanese equilibrist.

PUBLIC HALL.—The People's Picture Palace Company's series of animated pictures this week includes a thrilling story of The Hunchback's Vengeance.

ST. LEONARDS PIER PAVILION.—General-Manager, Mr. Elvey Thomas.—Mr. Walter Maclean, the well known actor, is presented by Mr. M. Russell Rosse in Sydney Grundy's interesting play A Bunch of Violets. The story is pathetically and well acted, and receives well-merited approval. The part of Sir Philip Marchant is assumed by Mr. Walter Maclean with never-failing ability and skill; Mr. Maurice Denham takes the character of Lord Mount Sorrel; a good sketch of Mark Murgatroyd is submitted by Mr. Henry Darrell; Mr. Prince Wells is good as the Hon. Harold Inglis; Jacob Schwartz is played with great judgment by Mr. W. J. Robertson; Mr. Robert Harcourt as Harker makes an excellent clerk; Miss Eveleen Mills is a most agreeable exponent of Lady Marchant; Mrs.

Murgatroyd gets full justice at the hands of Miss Diane d'Orsey; and Miss Helena Parsons is a charming Violet.

HEREFORD.—Garrick Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. P. Barnsley.—Well billed, well managed, and well staged there is little wonder that Mr. Frank Pitt's play £1000 Reward retains its hold on the public. Miss Kathryne Eckart as Mme. Sanson is admirable; Mr. Fred Ingleford is ably interpreted by Mr. William Gibson; as Inspector Gilbert Mr. Frank Dallas thoroughly enters into the spirit of the character; Mr. J. Wilton satisfactorily undertakes the part of Gilbert Lisle; Mr. Frank Pitt as Vincent Rainsworth is commendable; Miss Marjorie Seymour sings and acts with pleasing freshness as Meg; Mrs. McCarthy by Miss Alice Clarke is a capital character study, and Miss Minnie Goepel as Kitty and Mr. Joe English as Dick provide much amusement.

HORWICH.—Princes' Theatre.—Lessees, The Horwich Theatre Co.; Manager, Mr. R. H. White.—Mr. Henry Swinerd's company in Dare-devil Dorothy (under the direction of Mr. J. W. Cordiner) opened on Monday to a crowded and enthusiastic audience. Miss Dorothy Desmonde's impersonation of the title-rôle is capital, and her musical numbers received unstinted applause.; Miss Nellie Harcourt made her 2,637th appearance as Judith and created quite a furore, her singing and dancing being greatly enjoyed; Miss Nellie Valentine as Ruth Montrose played her part to perfection; Miss Florence Corri and Miss Daisy Holbrook as Polly and Rosy Ann danced themselves into great favour, their acrobatic business being very clever; Mr. Harry Ugar was responsible for the comedy element, and his quaint sayings, humorous songs, and clever dancing were greatly in demand; Mr. Walter Ashley played Capt. George Fielding in good style, his singing being good; Mr. Walter B. Nugent as Captain Edward Dudley played the part of the villain with distinction; Mr. Deane Cliffe gave a humorous portrayal of Featherstone Haugh; and Mr. Edward Aldworth as Hawkins acted ably.

HUDDERSFIELD.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. T. J. Phillips.—Messrs. Bennett and Wray's company is playing here this week the musical comedy The Catch of the Season. The part of the Duke of St. Jermyns is sustained with much vivacity by Mr. Charles Hanbury; Miss Gladys Guy is bright and winsome as Angela; Mr. H. C. Barry looks very funny as Isaac Isaacstein; and a clever little artist has been found in Master Peter Grata for the part of Bucket. The chorus is smart and well dressed, and the scenery satisfactory.

Hippodrome, Ltd.—Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—A pleasing programme here this week includes Miss Carrie Laurie' clever troupe of juveniles; Miss Kate Cohen, vocalist; Jack Lane, in a diverting turn as a Yorkshire rustic; De Wynne Bros., a pair of smart and original athletes; Albert Christian, the well-known and popular baritone singer; Miss Kitty Kennedy Allen, comedienne; Messrs. Fred Winn and company in a touching sketch, The Light in the Window; and some good films on the Bioscope.

HULL.—Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Morton's, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. W. F. Morton.—When in Hull last spring Miss Lily Brayton and Mr. Oscar Asche created the utmost enthusiasm by their Shakespearean productions, hence their return visit has awakened the utmost interest. They opened on Monday with The Taming of the Shrew, to which we made pleasant allusion on the last visit. On Tuesday night they took a further step into the public's good graces by the presentation of Frank Stayton's Two Pins. Miss Brayton realises the rôle of Elsa in no half-hearted spirit, and whether as girl or boy, she carries it through with wonderful artistry. Mr. Asche is the ideal Philip in physique and with all the attributes of the swashbuckling knight. The company does not consist simply of two star turns, but includes such fine artists as Mr. Kay Souper (Rudolph) and Miss Muriel Ashwynne (Rosaline), whilst Mr. Henry Frankiss is an actor who can sing as well as act. On Thursday night Othello, with Mr. Asche in the title-rôle and Miss Brayton as Desdemona, figured on the bill.

Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Manager, Mr. Tom Bogue.—Messrs. Armitage and Leigh's company in Lucky Durham hold the boards at the Royal. The play has been seen on several occasions in Hull. Mr. Herbert Humber is a very effective representative of the title-rôle, and has made his reading a very popular one in Hull; Mr. Arthur Leigh makes a clever character study of Reggie. The Mrs. Durham of Miss Beatrice Sinclair is a clever performance; Miss A. E. Belmore was all that one could wish as Hélène Vallerton. Lucky Durham is a play that has still strong wealth-producing power.

Alexandra Theatre.—Morton's, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. Geo. Morton.—Mr. and Mrs. Walter Howard's stirring drama Two Little Drummer Boys, which is once more in our midst, is meeting with a very cordial reception. The General Kingsley of Mr. E. Bikker has been commented upon very favourably; Miss Maud Douglas and Miss Maggie English carry the house with them in their representation of the Drummer Boys; and Mr. Dick Seddon and Mr. Will Percy prove the possession of a fund of rich humour.

ILKESTON.—Theatre Royal.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—The Love of a Princess is the attraction, the exponents being the company of Mr. T. Edward Ward. As Prince Conrad Mr. Wilson Coleman gives an interesting performance; Miss Ward plays with pathos as Princess Idalia; Miss Nellie Garside as Irene Ramona is charming; and Miss Helen Elmar is successful as Constantia. Mr. Graham Winsford as Lieut. Zaroff makes the most of his opportunities; the part of Josef, King of Ilarnia, is cleverly undertaken by Mr. E. H. Dobell; and the Prince Regent of Mr. W. F. Stirling is deserving of praise. Lieut. Orlans and Duke Scarfe are interpreted in good style by Messrs. Beckett Bould and George Antley; Mr. Edgar Morgan is an amusing Boris; and Mr. Ernest E. Imeson scores in the unpleasant part of Count Nicholas Danillo.

ILKLEY.—King's Hall.—Proprietors, The Ilkley Urban District Council; Licensee, Mr. Frank Hall.—Mr. Julian Graham's company in The Gay Goddess, a delightful musical comedy in three acts, occupied the hall on Monday and Tuesday evenings. Mr. Charles Leverton made a good solicitor's clerk; Mr. Fred Hammond was an amusing father-in-law; Mr. Richard Blake as the detective did his work well; Mr. George Watson as Anthony Summers was also good; the burglars, Messrs. W. Millard and Sam Baylis, played very well; Miss Fanny Morse was an amusing Mrs. Marie Strong; Miss Leah Howard a satisfactory Priscilla Strong, and Miss Dolly Shaw and Miss May Davis as the sisters Rivers were responsible for a fine performance. Miss Marie Carlisle played capitally as the Tivoli Garden dancer, and Miss Kate Graham Beck in a difficult rôle won appreciation.

IPSWICH. — Lyceum. — Miss Nora Carton's excellent company in Captain Drew on Leave opened here on Monday to a good audience. In the part of Captain Drew Mr. Charles B. Vaughan has a character eminently fitted to his versatile talents, and every point of the epigrammatic dialogue is well brought out; Miss Cynthia Brooke is a charming Mrs. Moxon; Mr. Wilcox Cadogan, Mr. Tom Mowbray, Mr. Gerald Venning are also excellent exponents of their respective parts. The part of Miss Mills was charmingly played by Miss Norah Carton, and Miss Lydia Hayward completes the cast.

Hippodrome.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—Mr. T. E. Dunville appeared for the first time in Ipswich this week, and his inimitable patter, clever acting, and singing at once found the appreciation that was to be expected by a comedian so well known; Mr. George Brooks has added some excellent songs to his repertoire; Lotto, Lilo, and Otto perform astounding cycle tricks with an ease that excites the greatest admiration; Tiny Arnold is an agile dancer, and Lizzie Daniels both sings and dances well. Ernest Montefiore and company have a dramatic sketch entitled The Little Colonel; the Ellimans have a smart musical turn, and Miss Ada Coveto, a versatile comedienne, completes a strong bill.

JARROW.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson.—Mr. T. A. Jones and company are here with When Other Lips. Mr. Juan d'Alberti plays with force the part of Basil Cunningham; Mr. T. A. Jones is seen to advantage as Ted Daunton; Mr. Cecil H. Raymond does full justice to the rôle of Tommy Neccles; and Mr. Herbert Bentone is well placed as Phylocrates Jenkins. Miss Daventry gives a good account of the part of Ruth Linley; Miss Jane Watson is seen to advantage as "a woman in black"; and Kitty Topwash is in the capable hands of Miss L. Lennon.

JERSEY.—Opera House.—Lessee, Mr. E. Marris; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley Hope. — This week Walter Melville's highly sensational play, The Second Time on Earth, is being presented here by Mr. Edward Marris's company. The cast is a good all-round one, and the staging is particularly worthy of praise. Special praise must be awarded to Miss Grace Murielle's dramatic and effective rendering of the part of Dora Grey, and to Miss Amy Wood's vivid and telling representation of the drunken mother. Miss Nita Imeson is a captivating Kitty Rosebud; Miss Nellie Mason appears as the maid; and Miss Doris Digby is successful as Laura Norman. Mr. Phil Le Sueur gives a finished and painstaking study of Jack Carlton; Mr. Charles Weir is a creditable Captain Norman; Mr. James Salter an amusing Teddy Butterfly; Mr. Percy Maitland a convincing villain; whilst the many minor rôles are ably undertaken.

KETTERING.—Avenue Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Payne.—Miss Florence Glossop-Harris and company are presenting a round of popular plays this week. On Monday The Royal Oak was produced, with Mr. Frank Cellier as King Charles. He portrays the character most artistically, and Miss Harris gives a charming rendering of the part of Mildred Cavering. The Merchant of Venice, Hamlet, Romeo and Juliet, and David Garrick are billed for the remainder of the week.

KIDDERMINSTER. — New Opera House.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. Jas. P. Moore; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. C. Gudgeon.—Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Draycott's company commenced a week's engagement here on Monday in The Shaughraun. Mr. Chas. Draycott as Conn gave a clever and forceful display of acting, and Mrs. Chas. Draycott ably supported him in the rôle of Clara Ffolliott; Mr. George Steele ably portrays the part of Captain Molineaux. The Octoroon, The Colleen Bawn, The Ticket-of-Leave Man, East Lynne, and A Stolen Birthright are also billed. The plays are excellently staged.

KIDWELLY.—Town Hall.—Proprietors, The Corporation; Secretary, Mr. P. S. James.—The veteran Mr. Josh A. Hybert is here this week with Uncle Tom's Cabin and The Prodigal Son. In the latter the part of Sir John Fanshaw is exceedingly well taken by Mr. H. Clifford; Messrs. Philip Crotchett and Arthur Hayes as Harry and Jack Fanshaw are both very good; Mr. Hybert in the part of Bill Burke is most successful; Mr. D. A. Ward as Ralph L. Marsden does good work; as Margaret Marsden Miss Ruby Rosini is very sympathetic; Miss Mabel Vernon as Kellie Burke is capital; Miss Kitty Wood as Mary fills the part to perfection and is most clever, and little Miss Daisy Dawson makes an effective Dick, an outcast. In Uncle Tom Miss Kitty Wood scores greatly as Topsy, whilst Miss Daisy Dawson is a charming Eva.

KIRKCALDY.—Hippodrome.—Lessee, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—Parke's Eton Boys and Girls are paying a visit this week; Rudge Whitworth is a versatile entertainer, and Ena Compton a dainty comedienne. The Brothers Danube, who occupy the bottom position on the bill, are deputised for by a smart instrumental turn and by Dan Hendry, comedian. The Gordon Shields troupe of dancers are also on the bill, and the pictures conclude.

LANCASTER. — Grand Theatre. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. C. Howitt.—The attraction this week is Her Marriage Vow, presented by Mr. Edward L. Garside and J. Forbes Knowles' capable company. As Ned Benton Mr. J. Forbes Knowles appears to special advantage; and he is ably supported by Miss Lillian Herries, who gives a painstaking portrayal of Kate Walters. Mr. Charles B. Bedells does exceedingly well as Gilbert Carlton; and the same may be said of Mr. Vincent Wardle as Daffy Dan. Mr. Wilford Bailey is successful as Eben Chubb, and the remaining parts are in commendable hands.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. John Porter and W. J. Fergusson.—At the head of affairs this week is Fred Kitchen and Frank Lister's sketch The Sundowner, which is exceedingly well presented. Hearne and Palmer win favour; Florence Raymond, ventriloquist, is very good; Frank Cumminger and Frances Colonna give a clever display of dancing; and Bert Bowden is a comedian up to date. Odeyne Spark sings nicely; Dora Poole and Fred Maguire are pleasing vocalists; and the Hippograph completes a first-rate programme.

LEAMINGTON. — Theatre Royal.—Lessees, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Manager, Mr. George Anthony.—Miss Horniman's company appeared here the earlier part of the week, in a repertoire of plays by Charles McEvoy and Bernard Shaw. On Monday Charles McEvoy's David Ballard was played. A very intelligent representation of the title-part was given by Mr. B. Iden Payne; whilst Miss Ada King achieved an artistic triumph as Mrs. Ballard; Miss Hilda Bruce Porter endowed Mercy with much charm; and Miss Louise Holbrook played Lonisa with distinct success. The Percy Ballard of Mr. Lewis Casson, the Darwin Snodge of Mr. Jules Shaw, and the Gladys of Miss Penelope Wheeler were all performances of exceptional merit. The piece was preceded by Gentlemen of the Road. On Tuesday evening When the Devil Was Ill was played, and on Wednesday, at a matinée and evening performance, Candida and Widowers' Houses were given.

Royal Assembly Rooms.—Lessee, Mr. A. White; Acting-Manager, Mr. Francis Longberg.—Mr. Waller Jeffs's New Century Picture Co. is still doing good business. The finest picture this week is the one illustrating the tour of the Prince of Wales to Canada, the Tercentenary Celebrations on the Quebec Battlefield, and the Trip from the River St. Lawrence to the Niagara. Others worthy of mention are the Dieppe Motor Race 1908, Hypnotic Policeman, Paris Fire Brigade Drill. Miss Leah Pinnick's soprano solos are greatly appreciated, and Mr. Frank Fredalla, character-actor and mimic, gives four new character impersonations, which gain unbounded applause. Some good music is played at the piano by Bert Holmes.

LEEDS.—Grand Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. Wynn Miller.—A large audience was moved to enthusiasm on Monday by the presentation of The Sins of Society by Mr. F. W. Bolam's company. Miss Grace E. Leslie presents a fine delineation of Lady Marion Beaumont; a clever impersonation of the stage villain is to be credited to Mr. C. F. Collins; Mr. E. Vassal Vaughan is effective as the hero; Mr. Blake Adams distinguishes himself in a prominent rôle; and Miss Mabel Murray, Miss Dorothy Giles, and Miss Pattie Brown also portray leading parts in pleasing style.

Theatre Royal.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr. R. Ernest Liston. —The Girl Who Took the Wrong Turning is the attraction here, a capable company making the most of the many thrilling incidents with which the piece abounds. Miss Jessie Belmore again enacts the central part with great ability, and the work of Mr. F. Ronald Adair as the generous Will Mason carries conviction. On the humorous side Mr. Fred Ingram and Miss Marie Kildare are extremely effective.

Empire Palace.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alex Galley.—Fred Ginnett's company are prominent here with the equestrian sketch Dick Turpin; the Donaldson Bros. are doing good business with their jungle farce; Albert Whelan adds to a big reputation; a capital turn is subscribed by Stewart and Morgan; and others who entertain are Sybil St. Elmo, Nora Emerald, Alf Maynall, Bob Hamilton, and the Sisters Grovini.

Queen's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Bush.—The principal item here this week is a sensational dramatic episode A Society Woman. A novelty by the Two Cabiacs goes extremely well; L. B. Athol proves to be a capable actor-vocalist; expert acrobatic entertainment is subscribed by Azelia Wilson, and there are also excellent turns by Coggin and Davis, Millie Denham, E. Budden, and Martinett Wallace.

Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. Thos. Barrasford.—A humorous sketch The Pawnbroker presented by Joe Peterman's company, is a leading line here, and proves vastly amusing; Leonard Barry also does a comedy turn which takes well; Lawrence Barclay is another old favourite; acceptable comedy is subscribed by Ed. E. Ford, Dave Carter, and Harry Vardon; the Lyons Trio are popular with pantomime business; performing cockatoos are presented by Clotilde and Musto; and Flora Cromer is a pleasing vocalist.

City Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Wood; General-Manager, Mr. J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Jones.—A popular turn here is Jack Lorimer, the versatile Scotch comedian. In a similar line Fred Barnes scores a pronounced success; Geoffreys and Benson are an entertaining comedy couple; the Vyponds are also favourite entertainers; those pleasing vocalists the Sisters Marion get a big reception; and the O'Gorman Bros. are also in the bill.

LEICESTER.—Royal Opera House.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business-Manager, Mr. Charles Hermann.—For the first three nights of the week Miss Ellen Terry and company were here on a first visit in Captain Brassbound's Conversion, in which Miss Terry as Lady Cicely Waynflete was most charming. She is ably supported by her husband, Mr. James Carew, as Captain Brassbound; Mr. Max Montesole deserved high praise as Felix Drinkwater, and both Mr. Story-Gofton as the Rev. Leslie Rankin and Mr. George Fitzgerald as Sir Howard Hallam played with their accustomed ability; Mr. Frank Powell stage-managed and played well as Captain Hamlin Kearney. For the last three nights of the week Mr. Eugene C. Stafford's No. 1 company in The Private Secretary was billed.

Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business Manager, Mr. E. R. Beaumont.—A capital attraction is presented here this week in Mr. Stephen Pritt's company in the domestic drama His Wife No Longer. Both Mr. E. Paul Neville as Harold Medworth and Miss Florrie Hayes as Marion Jefferies are suited to the parts, and Mr. Clavering Craig is effective as Anthony Merivale; Mr. C. Wordley Hulse is good as the Rev. Frank Willacy; Miss Rosa Mervyn deserves commendation as Mrs. Merivale; Mr. David McFarlane (under whose direction the tour is) is an amusing Tommy Oglethorpe, and Miss Nellie Lawson a vivacious Lucy; Mr. David Donaldson is capital as Daniel Trench; and Mr. Fred Wood deserves praise as P.C. Michael Flanagan.

Palace Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. S. Buccleuch.—Mark Sheridan, a thoroughly amusing comedian, stars this week; George Formby returns, and is again scoring a decided success with his really mirth-provoking and highly original drolleries; J. A. Wilson introduces his remarkably cleverly-trained dog Private Towser, to the delight of all; Edward Lauri and May Beatty present a delightfully smart and cleverly-enacted musical comedy protean mélange entitled In Her Boudoir; Harry Rogers and company are seen to advantage in the comedy and dramatic episode Told in a Flat; the Five Olracs create hearty laughter in a smart acrobatic display; La Danseuse, a young lady, scores a well-deserved success in her scena, Santa Claus; the Three Welsh Girls are heard to advantage in pretty illustrated songs; Boyd and Gilfain are an amusing and versatile couple; and the American Bioscope completes a good all-round show.

Pavilion Theatre.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Joe Lawrence.—Topping this week's programme are Ford and Barras, who introduce since their last visit their new act, The Boys in White and Gold. They are having most hearty receptions, the dancing of Ford especially calling forth praise. A competition is also taking place in connection with the engagement. Another popular turn is Taree, the Australian musical bushman, a remarkably smart player on the mouth organ. There is also a competition in connection with this turn. The Florodora Girls are making a big hit with their smart and entertaining act, Two's Company, Three's None, in which plenty of merriment is evoked. Others entertaining are Edith Chantler, an excellent juvenile soprano; Harry Milton, Dutch comedian and clog dancer; Lily Hayes, comedienne and dancer; and Walter H. Pallister's Bioscope is prominent with three good films.

The Empire.—Lessees, The New Bioscope Trading Company; District-Manager, Mr. Gerald Hunt.—Splendid business continues here, the programme this week being well up to the usual high standard. The leading moving pictures are In a Submarine, The Quebec Pageant, Antiquary Burglars, A Quiet Inn, A Noble Jester, The Tempter, and Little Chimney Sweepers. The variety is supplied by Hector Castle, a fancy ball puncher of great cleverness, in connection with whose engagement a contest for three prizes is billed; Frank Stanert, a refined and entertaining musical comedian; and Ephraim Clarke, baritone vocalist, all of whom are accorded hearty appreciation. Mr. Gerald Hunt, the district manager, who is now in charge of this hall, is having the place redecorated.

LEIGH.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Cragg; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wallace Childs.—Mr. Charles W. Poole's myriorama is occupying the boards here with interesting tableaux representing Trafalgar; Harland and Rollison, eccentric musicians, appear in a much-appreciated musical act; the Four Craigs, society gymnasts, give a smart display; Anasis proves himself a magician of no mean order; Ray and Miles, comedy jugglers, are received with marked approval; Dai Davies, Welsh comedian, is a clever mimic and whistler; and Mr. Frank Lyndon deserves praise for his efforts as the guide and raconteur.

LEITH.—New Gaiety Theatre.—Licensee and Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—The Soldier's Wedding, one of the most attractive and popular in the well-known series of Melville dramas, has been here on a return visit. Mr. Winggold Lawrence and Mr. Beresford Whitcomb repeat their sound and acceptable presentations of Jack Brown and Colonel Graham; Mr. Fred Yarnold is still seen in his happy character sketch of the old farmer; and the parts of David and Teddy Munroe continue to be successfully interpreted by Mr. Frederick Biron and Little Albert; Tommy Spratt is amusingly played by Mr. Johnny Chippendale; Mr. Gerald Jordan revels in the villainy of Charles Courtney, his accomplice, Julie de Beauvrais, being, as formerly, acted with great strength by Miss Marie Macaulay; and Miss Dorothy Richardson is winsome and convincing as Nancy Lee; while Lizzie Walker and Peggie Munroe find capable and earnest representatives in Miss Mattie Everett and Miss Mabel Lowe.

LICHFIELD.—St. James's Hall.—A crowded and enthusiastic house welcomed Mr. Dudley Bennett and Mr. J. C. Wray's company in Miss Hook of Holland here on Wednesday. The great success of the evening was undoubtedly Miss Carew, whose acting and singing as Mina took the house by storm. The Sally of Miss Ethel James was a very vivacious impersonation, and Mr. Edmund Russell as Mr. Hook invested his part with delightful humour. The Simon Slinks of Mr. Fred Dark, the Captain Paap of Mr. J. B. Fox, the Bandmaster of Mr. Adrian Burgon, who has a very charming tenor voice, and the Schnapps of Mr. R. Conray were notable impersonations. The chorus and stage band were both excellent, and the work of Mr. H. Richardson, who conducted, artistic.

LIVERPOOL.—Royal Court Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Lawrence.—This city was afforded a first glimpse at the sterling dramatic romance A White Man on Monday, and the general opinion regarding the production was particularly favourable. Admirably staged and skilfully played, this story of life among the American cowboys made a distinct impression upon the attentive audience. The company was that of the London Lyric Theatre, and included Mr. Herbert Sleath, whose assumption of the heroic part of Captain Wynnegate was marked by dramatic intensity and manly spirit, the curtains to which the able artist had to respond being many. Miss Enid Sass gave a sympathetic and touching rendering of Diana; a perfect picture of the devoted Naturitch was provided by Miss Dorothy Dix, whose sorrows seemed to be shared by the audience; Mr. Harold Weston did the most with the Earl of Kerhill; a capital idea of the bluff, faithful leading cowboy, Big Bill, was given by Mr. George Fawcett; all the necessary fire and braggadocio of the cowardly Cash Hawkins were well brought out by Mr. Menifee Johnstone; the Dowager Lady Kerhill found in Miss Emma Gwynne a faithful exponent; and other satisfactory parts were in the good keeping of Messrs. A. G. Poulton (Sir John Applegate), Herbert Vyvyan (Malcolm Petrie), A. Plumpton (Baco White), A. S. Aspland (a dignified and altogether fine Indian Chief), Miss Evelyn Maxwell (Lady Wynnegate), and Messrs. Cecil Yapp, S. J. Warmington, and R. F. Symons (three lively cowboys). Miss Victoria May Harris played the child's part with sweet intelligence.

Shakespeare Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wentworth Croke; Manager and Secretary, Mr. John Gaffney.—Here this week Turtle Doves was the curtain-raiser to a capital all-round production of Peter's Mother, presented by the Hutchison company. Miss Violet Ley made an admirable Lady Crewys; Mr. Vivian Gilbert did the most with the thankless part of Peter; as John Crewys Mr. Eille Norwood was noteworthy; Mr. Walter Russell acquitted himself as Canon Birch; a capital Sir Timothy Crewys was presented by Mr. Townsend Whitling; the baronet's sisters, Lady Belstone and Miss G. Crewys, were admirably impersonated by Miss Mary Griffiths and Miss Josephine Rae; Miss Hilda Sims pleased greatly as Sarah; and Miss Ada Rainey did justice to the rôle of Mrs. Hewell.

Rotunda Theatre.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—The popularity of The Sign of the Cross seems as great as ever judging by the large audiences that have this week filled this favourite theatre. Mr. William Greet sent his chief company, which is now in its eleventh year of tour. As Marcus Mr. Cyril Austen-Lee showed all the necessary dramatic strength, his performance being in every way a finished one; in the hands of Miss Constance Little the exacting rôle of Mercia lost none of its sweetness and point; Miss Edith Drayson made a most effective Stephanus; a well-rendered part was that of Nero by Mr. C. Yorke; Messrs. Charles Aldred and J. Weatherall showed to advantage as Tigellinus and Licinius respectively; the humorous Glabrio was capitally undertaken by Mr. F. Wood; Miss Lily Ward deserved praise for her masterly Berenice; and worthy support also came from Messrs. Walter Fleet (Favius) and Clifton Yates (Titus). The staging was very complete.

Star Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—The Melville dramas are always well supported in Liverpool, and this week The Girl Who Wrecked His Home, presented at this theatre, met with the customary approbation. Mr. Fred Goddard showed much histrionic ability in the character of Jack Marshall, gaining considerable applause; Miss Louise Hampton sustained that of Bertha, with which she impressed her audience, who followed her work with deep attention; Miss Georgie De Lara filled the ungracious rôle of the villainous Val Raymond with judgment and tact; most enjoyable comedy was provided by Mr. Francis Hope (Tommy Biffin) and Miss Alys Eden (Lottie Primrose); Mr. Paul Barry Lewers as Leonard Kenyon was particularly good; and valuable were the efforts of Messrs. Will L. Clement, Herbert Goddard, Dick Evans, Norman B. Cannon and the Misses Ida Thompson and Lulu Bowes.

Empire.—Proprietors, Moss Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Cole.—Good business has been done here during the week. The bill includes Bella and Bijou (who a few weeks ago could not appear owing to the illness of the latter), Whit Cunliffe, Ella Shields, and May Henderson, who all had flattering receptions. Les Esdonians present a clever dancing act; J. L. Shine and company render a delightful sketch, The Actor's Art; Mlle. Haydee pleases exceedingly with her miniature vaudeville theatre; Syd May amuses with a wrestling skit; and there also appear Mendel, the blind pianist, and Johnny Walker, comedian.

Queen's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred Granville.—Here this week we have had Mr. R. A. Roberts's company with Straight From the Shoulder.

Lyric. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold.—The programme here is headed by Charles Austin and company with the highly amusing trifle Parker, P.C.; Sterling and Love, an able couple of vocal and instrumental comedy artists, are well to the fore with their sketch A Domestic Musical Squabble; Barrett and Knowles show themselves to be a couple of smart versatile comedians; Josh Dixon makes everybody laugh; as comedy burlesque artists the Gallimore Trio acquit themselves capably; Harry Lavaine has some bright patter; and also in the list are Martine and Son, song illustrators; Maud Prenton, comedienne; and Langalow, rifle expert.

Royal Hippodrome. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Walter Hassan. —Foremost here this week in an attractive bill are Freddie French and company with the screaming absurdity The Policeman's Ballet; or, Votes, Votes, Votes! Jan Rudenyi delights with his scena, The Power of Music; remarkable work with the skates is done by Willie Gardner; F. V. St. Clair gives some entertaining extempore songs; Cedar and Elgar cause much laughter with the skit Ye Dayes of Olde; the Three Panamas present a clever pot-pourri act; some amusing ditties and smart dancing come from Mike Nono; and the list also contains the names of Carr and Rose, comedians; and Joe Conway, comedian.

Royal Theatre of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole. —Black-Eyed Susan has this week been given here by the stock dramatic company, the principal parts being undertaken by Messrs. R. Seath Innes (Captain Crosstree), David G. Noble (William), Cecil Ravenswood (Doggrass and the Admiral), Sydney Grant (Hatchet), Robb Wilton (Jacob Twigg), Miss Florence Palmer (Susan), and Miss Gertrude Entwistle (Dolly Mayflower).

Westminster.—Lessee, Mr. Fred E. Welsker; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Montgomery.—In addition to the Bioscope pictures given here, the following artists appeared during the week:—Bertha Collins, comedienne and dancer; J. H. Wakefield, coon singer and dancer; and Bessie Travis, ventriloquist.

Olympia.—District-Manager, Mr. Albert Bulmer; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Wighton.—Horace Goldin topped the programme here this week, and, as usual, mystified his audiences with some remarkable illusions; the favourite Mike S. Whallen had a flattering reception; Tom Lloyd, well known in Liverpool, kept his audience in a merry mood; Gus Garrick brought his latest music-hall titbits; Tennyson and Wallis as comedians, patterers, and dancers proved an excellent turn; the Gaudsmidts, with their dog, went through some neat comedy acrobatic feats; and contributions also came from Frances McNulty, dancer, and Barry Lindon, "the Welsh Foli."

Pavilion.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Manager, Mr. Henry Hearn.—This latest place of amusement has now settled down in public favour, and good business is being done. Top of the bill this week is George Dance's company with the very funny comedy sketch The Burglar's Ball, which caused shouts of laughter; the favourite Ada Fawn brings her latest successes, including "Why does the world go round?" Gillin, the ventriloquial humorist, amuses greatly; Walter Buxton, possessed of an excellent baritone, sings several popular numbers in good style; the Milsted-Bell Trio presents a laughable trifle, Three Sharps in a Flat; and others who appear are George Lawrence, comedian; George Hall, whistler; Alf Drinkwater, comedian; and the Yokohama Troupe of jugglers and equilibrists.

LLANDUDNO.—Prince's Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. Ritson.—Mr. John Gerant's company appeared here the first three nights of the week in At Duty's Call. Mr. Gerant ably portrays Harold Alison; Mr. Chas. C. Calvert as Capt. George Alison renders a good account of himself; Mr. Ernest St. John is a typical General Gordon; Mr. J. Tilly Dillsen as Terry O'Hallaron creates amusement; and Mr. Frank P. Morton as Jack Spencer gives a good boxing turn. Miss Ada Roscoe as Salema is all that could be desired, and Dora Drummond is in the capable hands of Miss Beatrice Western.

Hippodrome.—The roller skating-rink closes today for the winter season.

LLANELLY.—Royalty Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews; Resident-Manageress, Miss Alice Rocheforte.—Another success is being recorded here this week with the visit of Mr. Lingford Carson's The Power of the Cross company. Mr. George A. de Grey powerfully enacts the part of Baron Carzola; Mr. Alexander Haviland as Dr. Leslie Fairfax and Mr. Robert Hall as Robert Fairfax are both excellent; Mr. Tyrone Power well fits the part of Timothy O'Dowd, and creates much amusement; and Mr. Francis Searle as Benjamin Hawk and Mr. Gilson Brook as Dr. Kingsley are both good; Miss Annie Hylton is sweetly sympathetic as Margaret Seaton; Miss Etta Timson as Dolly Grey is capital; the Blanche Kingsley of Miss Phillys Vaughan and the Kate Lascelles of Miss Stella Carmichael are both capable impersonations; and Mr. Dan Rose in the small part of the Postman is commendable.

LONG EATON.—St. James' Theatre.—An old favourite, Mrs. Bandmann-Palmer heads a large company here this week. Opening on Monday as the Duchess of Dantzig, Mrs. Palmer evinced a freshness and charm in that character that captivated the audience. For the 515th time she appeared as Hamlet, giving a wonderful performance, and was well supported by a capable company. Nell Gwynn and East Lynne were the other pieces.

The Palace.—This week we have Mr. L. Austin Millais, who presents Venus, in her new spectacular production. The company includes the Neilson Comedy Couple, Dan Dunville, Fred Christie, and Coombes and Webbe; while Miss Neale's dancing is very good. A sketch is greatly enjoyed. The pictures are good.

LOUGHBOROUGH.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Payne Seddon and George Robertson; Resident Business-Manager, Mr. W. Payne Seddon.—Mr. Tom H. Taylor's company in The Female Swindler has been occupying the boards with great success. Mr. Jerrold Heather as Jack Coulson deserved the applause he received; Miss Violet Ellicott as Lu Valroy, the female swindler, played with power; Mr. John Hichins in various rôles and Miss Bella Moody as Mary Ann Mee created genuine hilarity; Mr. Stanley Radcliffe as Geoffrey Warden acted with his customary ability; Mr. Fred Rignold as Mikestein personated the Jew very cleverly; Mr. Alfred Masters was responsible for the exacting part of Harold Travers, acquitting himself with honour; and Miss Beatrice Hone as May Andrews infused a great amount of pathos in the part.

LOWESTOFT.—Marina.—Manager, Mr. E. A. Smith.—Variety gives way to drama this week, Who is She? being staged for the first time locally. Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson (whose company is responsible for the production) does fine work as the Prince; Miss Violet Carlyle is decidedly clever in the name part; King Vladimar has a capital exponent in Graham Woods; and good support is given by Misses J. Boyne, Sinclair Holden, Arthur McCulloch, and the Misses Mabel Rignold and Mary Collier.

Hippodrome.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Gilbert; Manager, Mr. Frank Freeland.—Splendid business continues at this popular house, and the programme presented this week maintains its usual excellence. At the top of the bill are the Seven Perezoffs in their clever juggling act "An Evening at Monte Carlo"; Aiston's White Arabs present a smart musical entertainment; and other capital numbers are furnished by Harry Tomlin, comedian; Jessie Star, Scotch comedienne; King Leo, "panto" act; the Two Maros on the triple bars; and the Voca Duo. The British Biograph Co. present a number of pleasing and instructive films, which are greatly enjoyed.

MACCLESFIELD. — Theatre Royal. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. K. Gatley.—Mr. Stanley Carlton and company are presenting London with the Lid Off here this week; Mr. Stanley Carlton makes an admirable Rev. Allen Gordon; Miss Rubie Maude in the rôle of Astra Bell submits an artistic portrayal; Miss Amy Ellam acts with judgment as Madge Rendall; Gratton Gale is effectively played by Mr. Wm. G. Marshall; Mr. James Hart does well as Colonel; humour is provided by Mr. Lancelot Usher as Percy Plunker, and Miss Annie Montague does well as Mary Elliot. Mr. Marshall Meade is a capable Mr. Templeman; Miss R. H. Belasco a successful Mrs. Glandale; and Miss C. B. Ballinger a satisfactory Sarah Shatto.

MAIDENHEAD.—TOWN HALL.—Secretary, the Town Clerk.—The Empire Animated Picture Company was here on Friday and Saturday last week, and the show gave great satisfaction. Mr. R. J. Golding supplied acceptable turns in sleight-of-hand and ventriloquism.

MAIDSTONE.—PALACE.—Manager, Mr. Stanley Baskerville.—Radford and Valentine are at the head of affairs here this week, and laughter loud and long greets their efforts to amuse, their juggling being clever as well as exceedingly funny; the Sisters Herbert are clever dancers; Marco is a smart illusionist; H. C. Lovell and company appear in the popular comedietta, Mam'selle Pom-Pom; Kitty Malone is a singer with some well-sung songs; and other attractions appearing are The Orchids, duettists; Harry Clifford; and the Palace Pictures.

MANCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, The United Theatres, Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edmondstone Shirra.—The Vedrenne-Barker combination occupies the stage here in a performance of Shaw's Arms and the Man. The company is practically the same as that seen recently in Man and Superman, which was so amply patronised and enjoyed by the playgoing public. Mr. Granville Barker heads the cast, and is seen to great advantage as Captain Bluntschli; Mr. James Hearn plays Nicolo with his usual finish; Miss Auriol Lee scores a considerable success as Raina; and, among other clever people, Miss Frances Dillon makes an excellent Louka. The play is preceded by The Convict on the Hearth.

PRINCE'S THEATRE. — Proprietors, The United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Lee.—Mrs. Madge Carr Cook and company, in Gaston Mayer's production of Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch, had a most gratifying reception here on Monday night. The piece was followed with the keenest interest, provoking such laughter as has not been heard in the theatre for a long time. Mrs. Madge Carr Cook is, of course, the central figure, and she carried off the prime honours by her depiction of Mrs. Wiggs's motherly virtues and quaint philosophy. She was well supported throughout, especially by Mr. Frederick Forrest as Stubbins and Miss Rita Carlyle as Miss Hazy, who exploited the humour of their parts in capital style; Miss Mabel Durrant and Miss Violet Vivian were comic as Mrs. Elchorn and Mrs. Schultz; Miss Christine Rayner played nicely as Lovey Mary; and a variety of minor rôles, all more or less interesting, and all "in the picture," were cleverly handled by the remainder of the cast.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Hewitt.—Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Willard's company is here this week in The Girl with the Angel Face, after a successful week at the Royal Osborne Theatre.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietor, Miss A. E. F. Horniman; Manager, Mr. B. Iden Payne.—The stage is given up this week to performances of Rob Roy, the Scottish national operatic drama, in support of the N.S.P.C.C. The play is depicted in three acts, comprising fourteen scenes, and is strengthened by a chorus of forty voices of the Manchester Scottish Choir, together with a full compliment of pipers and dancers. The cast is a long and capable one, the principal success being gained by Mr. Dickson Moffat as Bailie Nicol Jarvie, and, apart from the admirable object of the performances, the production is interesting, and very well equipped in point of dress and staging.

ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Mason.—Messrs. Mathew H. Glenville and Fred Osmond's company is here this week in a romantic military drama, A Soldier of France. The chief honours are divided by Mr. Percy Ballard, Miss Carlotta Anson, and Mr. Albert Guyon for their effective impersonation of the manly Corporal Jean, Pauline Lorraine, and the unscrupulous Judas Delara; while Mr. Edward Hobart is good in the dual rôle of Captain Lorraine and Lieut. Louis; and other strong parts are well depicted by Mr. Milton C. Curtis, Mr. Freddie Edwards, and Miss Jennie Clare.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Dry.—Messrs. Paumier and Howard's company is again delighting local audiences in the fine drama, The Prince and the Beggar Maid, excellently played throughout.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—The principal turns are provided here by G. H. Elliott, the chocolate-coloured coon, in his latest successes; and Albert Toft's statuary act, Makers of History. Charles R. Whittle, the well-known comedian, is also popular; and other good turns are Frank and Free, comedy artists; the Hartley Wonders, in their jumping speciality; Maggie Walsh, the Lancashire singing mill girl; Horace Pollock and company, in Hester's Mystery, a capital little comedy by Pinero; the New York Nippers, in their novel dancing act; the Musical Schafers, in The Garden of Melody; and Nellie Martell, comedienne and dancer. The pictures are good, as usual.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry. — Miss Evie Greene, the well-known musical comedy artist, is to the front here this week, and meets with a deserved great reception; George Leyton, the popular actor vocalist, scores a big success with his military scena, The Last Muster; and J. P. Ling, a smart comedian and mimic, makes a decided hit. Eli Hudson plays on the piccolo and flute in an expert manner, and wins great applause; whilst other excellent turns are those of Reichen and his dogs; the Four Jumels, in a pleasing muscial act; Bert Harrow, eccentric comedian; Bellew and Stock's Juvenile Entertainers, vocalists and dancers; and Maud Vera, a pleasing comedienne and dancer. Up-to-date Bioscope pictures complete.

PALACE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Manager, Mr. Fred Leighton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. J. Carter.—Arthur Prince, the well-known ventriloquist, tops the bill here this week with great success, his performance being exceptionally fine. G. H. Chirgwin amuses as of old; and Hall and Hall are highly entertaining in a comedy sketch entitled Bertie and the Barmaid. Other smart turns are offered by the Bros. Dean, excellent dancers; Maud Courtney, in song and story; Mr. C, who also sings and talks; Mike Cray, juggling comedian and his dog; Nita Glem, comedienne; and Charles Deane, in funny songs. Bioscope pictures complete.

TIVOLI. — Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—Ethel Newman is here in her smart monologue, Her Wedding Day, and is well received; the Six Æolians are exceedingly good in an effective vocal and dancing act of much merit; Joe Mac is a highly amusing comedian and dancer; Georgina Delmar sings well; whilst others who offer good turns are Cliff Rock, baritone vocalist; Frank Coyle, the "continuous" comedian; Dolly Golden, speciality dancer; Marie Francis, comedienne; and Hayes and Watson, capital dancers. Ruffell's Bioscope Pictures are excellent, as usual.

KING'S, LONGSIGHT.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jas. R. Trippett.—The Five M.P.'s are to the front here this week, in their delightful musical entertainment; A Ba Be's Picture Postcard Album shows some pretty living pictures; Leo Trainor, comedian, takes well; and Maxford and O'Neill are excellent laughter-makers. Other pleasing turns are those of Emil and Edies, banjoists; Carl Howard, comedy conjurer; Barfoot and Corson, comedians; Ada Parker, comedienne and neat dancer; A. E. Clifford, vocalist; and George Acre, character vocalist. Tommy and the Policeman's Whistle is an amusing film shown on the Bioscope.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Meek.—Walter Ellis and company are seen to advantage here this week in that very amusing playlet, The Sleepwalker; the Wedburns have some smart business, and are well received; and Cecilia Gold is a neat burlesque artist. Other capital items are provided by Satani in a novel scena of magic; Victor Courtney, at the piano; Fred Athalan, a clever head-balancer; the Deuchars, duettists and dancers; Jack Walker, versatile comedian; Harry Russon, actor comedian; and Clifford Stuart, Lancashire comedian. Uncle's Picnic on the Bioscope is amusing.

HULME HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son.—Signor and Mme. Borelli are an entertaining couple, and here this week are meeting with a hearty reception; Mabel Thorne, comedienne, has several taking songs; Herr Karoly Czynski is a fine instrumentalist; Cyclumina, a wonderful electric cycle act, produced by Herbert Adams, is excellent; J. H. Greener, the singing pit lad, is popular; and other smart turns are given by Dix, the necromancer; Francis Haskell, song illustrator; Kail Stern, comedian and eccentric acrobatic dancer; the Sisters Hardie, Scottish duettists and dancers; and Mark Henton, comedian. In a Stone Quarry is an interesting Bioscope subject.

RUSHOLME PAVILION.—Proprietor, Mr. Harry Leslie; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. Phillips.—Here this week Arthur Guilford, Scotch comedian, makes a big hit; Albert Chapman, baritone vocalist, is repeatedly recalled; Vernon Noble, a favourite light comedian, is capital; Rene Steadman is a pleasing comedienne; Annie Coxen, contralto vocalist, sings nicely; George Ford does well as a mimic and ventriloquist; and Fred Shepherd is excellent at the piano.

MANSFIELD.—GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Capt. Clayton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Mark Lorne.—Man and Wife is this week presented here by Messrs. Van Biene and Traynor's company, and was witnessed by a large audience on Monday. Mr. John F. Traynor gives a fine performance in the part of Paul Revere; Mr George Rammell is an able Colonel Latour; Mr. E. M. Hamilton is powerful as Captain D'Esparre; Mr. G. Overs is admirable as Jean; Mr. Ambrose Horton makes a fine Sergeant Jacques; the twin brothers Bimbo and Bambo are amusingly portrayed by Mr. E. Hall Eldon and Mr. George Vinning; Miss Kate Hallam is a refined and graceful Marcella; Miss Violet Temple does very well as the blind Mrs. Revere, and Miss Millie Doris is a sprightly and charming Rosette.

MARGATE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr Edward Michael; General-Manager, Mr. W. W. Kenne.—The Black Flag has been presented here this week by the stock company. Mr. Tom Craven, who has been specially engaged, has appeared with great success as Sim Lazarus; Mr. W. Edwyn Holloway has played Harry Glyndon, the village vagabond, capitally; Mr. Frank Stone has scored as Owen Glyndon; Mr. Arthur Burne has been seen to advantage as John Glyndon; and Mr. Reginald H. Stephens as Augustus Scarem, Mr. A. C. Thornhill as Captain Handysides, and Mr. Louis Palgrave as Jem Seton have each done well in their respective rôles. Miss Rita Trekelle has made a favourable impression as Naomi Blandford; and Miss Dorothy Hullah as Ruth Glyndon, Miss Nora Hoffe as Topsy Carroll, and Miss Jessie Lothian as Ned have individually sustained the parts allotted to them most satisfactorily.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. F. Bawtree.—George Marriott and company headed the bill this week with the dramatic sketch The Maid of the Alps. Mr. G. M. Marriott as Mother Pothard, the hag of the hills, played a repulsive character effectively; Miss Edith Finlay made an attractive Louise, singing her numbers pleasingly; Mr. Frank Seton as Sir Stratton Towers, Mr. Fred Conyers as Lucas, a brigand chief, Mr. J. A. Stimson, most amusing as Jeremy Biggs, and Mr. R. Albion as Nicolo, were each good in their respective parts. Other contributors to the programme have included Gladys Passmore, comedienne and dancer; Marlo, juggler; the Zampas, duettists and dancers; the Fitzroys, trapeze specialists; and Charles Gardener, dame comedian.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessees, the South Wales Entertainments, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Albert Jackson.—Sergeant Brue, presented by Mr. Harry Benet's company, is here. The title-rôle is played with much spirit and humour by Mr. Denis Lyndon; Mr. Harry Benet makes an effective Crookie Scrubbs; Lady Beckenhall is filled with ability by Miss Kay Anderson; Michael Brue is admirably played by Mr. Lester Morrah; Miss Daisie Dale is a delightful Aurora Brue; Miss Mabel Davis a lively Mabel; and Miss Stella Millar a smart Daisy.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Manager, Mr. Israel Price.—The progrmme here this week is headed by the Brothers O'Brien in a fine display on the triple bars; the Brothers Zenary are clever acrobats, and Les Treppellos high-class musicians. The Itrams, in a pot pourri act; Charles Cardle, gipsy vocalist; Gibbon and Bell, in an acrobatic speciality; Mart and Pep, hand balancers and tumblers; and Mabelle May, vocalist and dancer, complete a first-class programme.

METHIL.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Methil Theatre Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Sydney Arnold.—Mr. Montague Beaudyn's company in Send Him Victorious is a powerful attraction this week. Miss Marie Robson's delineation of the complex character of Countess Kara Von Mechlinberg was artistic, appealing irresistibly to the sympathy and intelligence of the audience; Miss Irene Munroe was sweet and natural as Ethel Hardinge, and Miss Cecilia Crawford was clever and amusing as Gretchen Holtz. Mr. Montague Beaudyn gave a strong and well sustained rendering of the part of Capt. Frank Allison; Mr. Jerold E. Reed played well as Colonel Kaufmann; Geordie Walker, as portrayed by Mr. Arthur Tomlin, was popular, and his jealousy of Major Strauss (Mr. John Baxter) caused much amusement; Mr. James Burt was a dignified Sergeant Max; and Mr. Frank Holyoake was haughty and austere as the King of Ravonia. Several smaller parts were in good hands. The play was excellently well staged. The Power of a Wicked Woman was billed for the last three nights of the week. The Gaietyscope continues popular.

MEXBOROUGH.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levy and Mr. J. E. Cardwell's juvenile company is this week presenting the pantomime, The House that Jack Built. Miss Daisy Wood is a dashing Jack and Miss Dolly Dodds a charming Jill, the singing of both being thoroughly enjoyed; Miss Jennie Hughes is a pleasing fairy, and sings in good taste; Mr. Jimmie Watson is a capital dame; Squire Bounce has a clever exponent in Mr. H. Hillerby; Graham and Barron get through a lot of work as the broker's men. There are a number of pretty ballets and a tuneful chorus. Specialities are given by Jimmie Watson, Forget-me-Not Quartette of Dancers, and La Belle Annette, the latter and Miss Gladys Wyse being the solo dancers.

NEW PICTURE HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. Will Hunter; Manager, Mr. E. H. Jones.—A fine series of animated pictures this week include the following, amongst others:—The Quebec Pageant, The Ragpicker's Daughter, When Casey Joined the Lodge, A Brother's Sacrifice, &c.

MIDDLESBROUGH.—OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Joseph Edward Jowsey; Manager and Licensee, Mr. W. Ker Chatto.—The visit of the Moody-Manners Opera Company is always looked forward to with much enthusiasm by Middlesbrough playgoers, and on Monday night the house was crowded to its utmost capacity. Verdi's charming opera Aida was presented, and at the fall of the curtain on every act there were loud calls, to which the artists had to respond. Mme. De Vere Sapio gave a flawless portrayal of the part of Aida, her magnificent soprano enabling her to meet with admirable ease the heavy calls made upon her; Mr. Philip Brozel proved himself to be a worthy successor to Mr. Joseph O'Mara, one of the most brilliant tenors in English opera. His singing in the second act was superb, and the exquisite beauty of Verdi's music could scarce have found more able or more sympathetic exponents than Mr. Brozel and Mme. De Vere Sapio. Miss Toni Leiter gave a fine interpretation of the difficult rôle of Amneris, and also had a reception. The play calls for exceptional strength to basses, and with Mr. Charles Manners, Mr. Charles Magrath and Mr. W. Dever, the company is well equipped in this respect. The work of the chorus was one of the features of the production, whilst there were some delightful passages by the orchestra, who were ably conducted by Signor Romuld Sapio. During the week the following operas have been produced:—Il Trovatore, Lily of Killarney, Faust, The Meistersingers, Tannhäuser, and Maritana.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Charles Imeson.—Mr. Leonard Boyne and his company were received with the utmost cordiality on Monday when they appeared in Raffles. Mr. Boyne's portrayal of the title-rôle is one of his greatest successes. His impersonation of the amateur cracksman is a brilliant study, and he had a great ovation; Harry Manders is admirably represented by Mr. Harold West, and Mr. E. W. Thomas gives a very fine portrayal of the American detective, Curtis Bedford. Miss Hilda Moore is a charming exponent of Gwendoline Couran, and Miss Lilian Hallows is excellent as Mrs. Vidal. The play is nicely staged.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Brill; Manager, Mr. Charles G. Rembges.—W. D. Mackenzie and company occupy the star position here this week in an effective musical scena, "Moments with the Masters"; Livesey and Roseberry create roars of laughter in the skit, Would-be Actors, and Newco and Sulloe give a clever dancing turn; Richard Fineberg is pleasing in his character impersonations, as is also Albert Rees in instrumental imitations. Tamamoto, on wire and rope, is smart, and Marion Armitage, the comedy girl, is funny.

HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Manager, Mr. A. E. Nicholls.—Lafayette is again here this week, and scores a great success in his new sensational scena, The Lion's Bride. Jannette Hall is a cultivated baritone, and the Debreans give a clever Japanese entertainment; the Complins, in A Dressing Room Interlude, are good, and Ryan and Hall, eccentric comedians, and Miss Marie Collins, in her latest successes, are well received.

OXFORD.—Proprietor, Mr. Alfred Graham; Manager, Mr. Geo. French.—Robbins and Cellier cause much laughter here this week in their comedy railway scena, The Lady and the Porter, and the Two Anartos also amuse the audience; Lucy Coventry renders some excellent dancing and singing; Edmunda proves himself a very clever ventriloquist, and Patrick Playfair (assisted by Miss Vera Davis), Geo. Burns, Billy Richardson, and Mark Daly also provide interesting turns.

MOTHERWELL.—NEW CENTURY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Hales.—Dr. Walford Bodie, the famous bloodless surgeon, is paying a return visit here, and on Monday opened to a crowded house. Dr. Bodie gave his usual mystifying electrical and mesmeric turn, besides dealing with his various patients on the stage in full view of his audience. Miss Bella Skene is a charming and dainty burlesque actress; Little Dolly Robson sings a number of songs in a charming manner, and is encored; Francisco, juggler and equilibrist; the Brothers Baxter, comedians; Miss Mabel Martin, in a musical mélange; and Li Chang Hi, Chinese conjuror, who is assisted by the Princess Toko, conclude.

NELSON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietress, Mrs. T. Greenwood Croft; Business-Manager, Mr. Geo. E. Mudd.—This week Mr. Alfred Northway and Mr. W. V. Garrod presented, for the first time here, A Country Girl in London. On Friday, Miss Bertha Kingston, who plays the title-rôle, had a benefit night, for which special attractions were arranged in the shape of a variety entertainment. The old Squire of Langdale was admirably played by Mr. Jno. S. Sheridan; and both Mr. Garrod and Mr. G. Moreton-Williams added to their laurels in the respective characters of Frank Gordon and Godfrey Clinton; Joe Smithers was capably treated by Mr. Clifford Marle; and Mr. E. W. Avery was distinctly clever as Heinrich Oppenheim. As Wilberforce and Adelaide Phuddyphat Mr. Seymour Perry and Miss Leslie Adair were both intensely humorous. Miss Kingston gave a touching delineation of Marjorie Hamilton; Miss Josephine Colona being equally successful in portraying Gwendoline Gordon.

NEW BRIGHTON.—WINTER GARDENS.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. H. E. Jones and A. Douglass.—A programme of first-class turns is submitted this week and good business continues. Mr. Walter Curtis scores in his humorous songs and clever patter; Kendrick and Laura are wonderful dancers; Mr. F. A. Martell is responsible for a new and novel equilibristic performance; Mr. Walter Barratt has a warm reception for his cultured vocalism; Miss Ethel Thomas has a very nice appearance and sings well; Howard and Wallace cause roars of laughter with their sketch Taming a Wife, whilst Miss Lucy Gillet, child juggler, Little Dorris Druce, in impersonations, Mr. Robert Williams in dramatic scena, and the beautiful animated pictures complete the bill.

PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. Frank W. Nall.—Skating is still the rage here. The band plays afternoon and evening, and the attendance is satisfactory.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Teale Lingham.—A crowded and enthusiastic audience on Monday evening greeted the appearance of Miss Ellaline Terriss and Mr. Seymour Hicks in their successful musical play, The Gay Gordons. Miss Terriss in the rôle of Peggy Quainton is as delightfully charming as ever, and sings her various songs in a most effective and fascinating style. The irrepressible Mr. Seymour Hicks plays the part of the handsome Highlander, Angus Graeme, in a manner which carries everyone with him, and receives the heartiest appreciation from delighted audiences; Mr. Johnny Danvers, as Nervy Nat, the old showman, Mr. George Carroll as his son, and Sidney Fairbrother as his wife, contribute the major portion of the comic element, and are responsible for any amount of genuine amusement and laughter; and in this respect Mr. Will Bishop as Jack McPhrisky gives able assistance with his clever and eccentric dancing. As the American father, Mr. E. Lugg is seen to advantage; whilst Miss Coralie Blythe gives a charming and piquant study of Victoria Siddons.

TYNE THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessees, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham; Manager, Mr. Fred C. Sutcliffe.—Excellent business is the outcome of Miss Annie Hughes's return visit with The Mollusc. Miss Hughes sustains the rôle of Mrs. Baxter with complete success; Mr. Athol Stewart does excellently well as Tom Kemp; and Miss Lilias Waldegrave gives a delightful rendering of Miss Roberts, Mr. Alick Chumley being equally successful as Mr. Baxter. The curtain-raiser is A Bit of Old Chelsea.

PALACE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. T. W. Rowe.—The attraction here this week is Mr. Fredk. Melville's company in Married to the Wrong Man. Mr. Oswald Cray gives a manly portrayal of Captain Gladwin; Mr. H. Lane Bayliff plays with force and skill the part of Captain Deering; and Mr. Charles Vivian gives an excellent interpretation of Jasper Skinner. Mr. Paige Lawrence is well placed as Archie Bird; Mr. Ray Raymond does full justice to the rôle of Sergeant Manners; and Miss Gertrude Boswell is responsible for a finished study of the heroine. Miss Mary Pemberton acquits herself admirably as Rose O'Connor. The comedy element is made much of by Mr. Syd Claydon as Timothy Clinker and Miss May Davis as Dolly Fritters.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. F. W. Bolam.—The attraction at this popular house this week is the late Henry Pettit's Hands Across the Sea. The company is headed by Mr. Cecil A. Collins, who appears as Jack Dudley, and gives a manly rendering of the character. Mr. Adam Alexander, in a quietly effective way, plays the part of Joseph Stillwood; while Mr. Frank Woodville is equally successful as Dick Melford; and Miss Beatrice Whitney and Miss Lilla Nordon appear as Lillian Melford and Lucy Nettleford respectively.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Resident-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Manager, Mr. W. Parham Wells.—The queen of music-hall comediennes, Miss Marie Lloyd, is at the head of a fine bill here this week, and is receiving the most flattering reception for her smartly-written and musical songs, rendered in her own inimitable style, and is greatly appreciated. Cruikshanks, a talented musician and singer, enhances a clever turn with an abundance of smart and amusing patter, and also comes in for generous applause; whilst Leo Tell, a humorous mimic of musical instruments and animal calls, is seen to great advantage. Herbert Shelley gives a splendid entertainment in his protean play, Dan the Outlaw; whilst another pleasing turn is contributed by Agnes Tina, an exceedingly clever juvenile comedienne and mimic. The Three Brothers Huxter, who do some marvellous leaping; La Belle Nello, a lady contortionist of more than average merit; Charles Stevens, character vocalist; and Rousby's company in Greater London, a sort of panoramic display, all contribute to an all-round interesting programme, the Bioscope completing.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thos. Barrasford; Manager, Mr. W. H. Boardman.—Mr. R. G. Knowles, the American comedian, tops the bill here this week, and other artists appearing are Heeley and Meeley, Hamid Alexander, the Hiatts, John Le Hay and company, C. D. Reekie, Violet Loraine, Rich. Taylor, and Karr and Mooney, the Barrascope completing.

EXHIBITION HALL, ROLLER SKATING RINK.—Manager, Mr. Crowe.—During the past week the numbers of skaters has been large enough to make the rink a most animated and attractive spectacle at every session, and there has been no more popular place of amusement. On Thursday is another "invitation" afternoon to members of the theatrical profession playing in the city.

NEWPORT.—LYCEUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sidney Cooper.—Mr. Reginald Dance's company commenced a week's engagement here on Monday, with Beau Brocade. The piece is admirably dressed and mounted. Mr. Reginald Dance plays Capt. Jack Bathurst with spirit and tenderness; Miss Ruth Mackay is a sweet and charming heroine, Lady Patience Gascoyne; and Mr. Dalziel Heron is a bluff, honest John Stich. Miss May Brooke makes a bright Betty; the Duke of Cumberland is well played by Mr. R. Hayes; Mr. Frank Powell impersonates Sir Humphrey Challoner with credit; and Mr. A. E. Mayne as Squire West is a dignified study. Mr. Stanley Lathbury gives a capital character study of Mr. Mittachip; and humour is also provided by Mr. Edward Irwin as Jock Miggs, the shepherd; while Mr. H. Asheton Tonge is funny as Jeremiah Inch, the parish beadle. The piece is preceded each evening by the one-act play, The Proof.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll.—The Old Neighbourhood, in which the scenery is gorgeous, is presented by Callaham and St. George, in a very effective manner; and a very cleverly trained troupe of monkeys is put through an interesting and amusing series of performances, by Maud Rochez. Victor Travers is as eccentric as ever; Chas. Vincent's song is much appreciated; and Ray Wallace, the original lady mimic, gives good imitations of music-hall artists. Billy McClain and his happy blacks are amusing; W. G. Webber, who possesses a really fine bass voice, is warmly applauded; Maudie Francis sings and dances admirably; as also does Leoni Dixon. The Bioscope, showing a fine dramatic subject, Gentleman James, completes the bill.

NORTHAMPTON.—NEW PALACE THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Director, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Manager, Mr. Thos. A. Evans; Musical-Director, Mr. Walter Ashton.—An excellent programme is headed by Lalie Brooke, in a scena, entitled Girls, Past and Present, which meets with great applause, the Gibson and the Sandow Girls being the favourites. The Lombards give a good display of athletic equilibrism; Eldra and his dog are both clever balancers; the Sisters Henderson give a diversified performance as harpists, drummers, and dancers; Petro and Leon present a smart and pretty gymnastic show on the flying wings; Royston and Royce are amusing lady and gentleman comedians; Harry Lawson tenders comic songs, with meet with loud approval; Nib Hinman, gipsy comedian, and the Palace pictures, which are interesting, still continue in favour.

NORTH SHIELDS. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—Miss Emma Litchfield and company are here this week, with A Clever Imposter. In the rôles of Nora Grosvenor, Sarah Allen, Old Rebecca, and Molly O'Flynn, Miss Emma Litchfield makes the most of her opportunities; Mr. Stuart Cleveland gains much applause for his excellent portrayal of Manuel Teleira; Mr. Alf. Stretton as Captain Desmond does full justice to the part; Mr. Johnnie McElroy is funny as Jim Brightside; Mr. Fred Hawkes makes the most of Harris; Mr. C. A. Britton scores as Sir George Ashfield; and Mr. Arthur Derrick makes a satisfactory Stephen Grosvenor. As Maisie Grosvenor Miss Mabel Durham displays ability; Miss Nancy Blackwood proves an effective Margaret Grosvenor; and Miss Alice Granville makes a hit as Annie Pleasant.

CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Wm. Mould.—The bill here is headed by Mr. Will Vay's Juveniles, who appear in Life in the Slums, which is greatly enjoyed; Mr. George Belrose and Miss Maude de Delin come in for a hearty reception; and Miss Gertie Cavagan, Dutch comedienne and dancer, is clever. Miss Dolly Cusdin, in illustrated songs, is much appreciated; Miss Mabel Brixton, speciality artist, is well received; Mr. Harry Bland, eccentric comedian, is popular; and the Mouldoscope interests with some capital pictures.

NORTHWICH.—CENTRAL THEATRE.—Proprietress, Mrs. S. Golden; Secretary, Miss E. Golden.—My Sweetheart is proving popular here this week, presented by Messrs. Alwyne and Thompson's company. Special credit is due to Miss Violet Hurley, who makes a charming Tina; Mr. Wilfred E. Brandon renews his acquaintance with local theatregoers in the rôle of Tony, and proves to have lost none of his skill; Mr. Chas. Cameron as Dr. Oliver is a good type of the old-fashioned country practitioner; as Dudley Harcourt, Mr. M. Alwyne proves himself a comedian decidedly above the average; Miss K. Bratby plays Mrs. Fletcher in a quiet, convincing manner, and is ably supported by Mr. Stewart Quartermayne, in the disagreeable part of Harold Bartlett; Mr. A. W. Thompson looks and acts the broken-down husband, Joe Shotwell, to the life; Miss Belle Russell makes an excellent Mrs. Hatzell. The Empire Troupe of singers and dancers are clever.

PAVILION.—Proprietress, Mrs. P. E. Fletcher; Manager, Mr. Towyn Thomas.—This house continues to draw packed audiences nightly. One of the most popular turns this week is Percy Victor's troupe of performing dogs; the Shamrocks are excellent vocalists, and their dancing is very skilful; Mr. Will Daniels is the cause of much merriment with his quaint patter; Miss Alice Lingard is a dainty soubrette; Arthur and Angus are clever comedians; Miss Beattie Howard was accorded well-deserved encores for her songs; Eddie Clay convulses the house nightly with his novel comedy musical act; and Ruffell's Bioscope is one of the most popular items.

NORWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Morgan.—Mr. George Dance's excellent company is here this week performing Miss Hook of Holland. Mr. T. A. Shale is thoroughly humorous as Mr. Hook, and Mr. Tom Seymour equally so as Simon Slinks; Mr. George Idle as Capt. Adrian Paap and Mr. Frank Crimp as Van Vuyt are very good; Mr. Geo. Mudie, jun., as Ludwig Schnapps deserves mention; Miss Cissie Sephton as Mina secures an excellent reception for her singing and acting; Miss Alice Coverick as Miss Hook deserves every praise, and Miss Tattie Leonard is good as Gretchen.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. Councillor F. W. Fitt.—The Six Brothers Luck are here in their laughable travesty The Demon of the Cellar; Frances Letty gets a hearty greeting; Enid Errol and company in The Magic Vase are good; Princess Pauline is a popular comedienne; J. W. Gallagher, comedian, Pete and Juno, coloured comedians, Elton and Elma, knockabouts, and Abalo and Hurst, in a comedy act, are very satisfactory, and the Hippo-Bio is attractive.

NOTTINGHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—The Merry Widow made her first appearance on Monday and had a flattering reception. The name part was played by Miss Constance Drever with delightful archness, and her perfect vocalism roused storms of applause; Miss Ethel Cadman gave a charming rendering of the music of Natalie; Miss Sylvia May sang and acted with the necessary vivaciousness as Olga, and Miss Kathleen Courtney supplied an artistic embodiment of Sylvaine. Mr. W. Talleur Andrews made a distinct hit as the Vicomte, singing with commendable vigour and taste, and Mr. Leonard Mackay's well-balanced voice was heard with effect in the songs of Prince Danilo. The quaint and quiet comedy of Mr. W. H. Rawlins was well exemplified in the part of Nisch, and as Baron Popoff Mr. Eric Thorne gave full rein to his exuberant humour. Mr. Norman Greene played St. Brioche on thoroughly amusing lines, and high praise is also due to Messrs. Somers Bellamy, Sinclair Cotter, and Theodore Leonard. The chorus num-

WHAT ARE MILLIONS TO THE MAN WHO IS ILL

Only a bitter mockery. The world is full of delights in which he cannot share. He can buy them but not enjoy them, and is poor despite his millions. This is specially true of the dyspeptic—the man who cannot digest his food. When the stomach ceases to effectually perform its natural work, food ceases to nourish and causes pain, heartburn, wind, acidity, and a host of other troubles which spoil life. Perfect digestion is the foundation of sound health, and that is assured by the use of the world- renowned digestive tonic and stomachic remedy, Mother Seig el's Syrup.

Mrs. S. A. Carter, of Welbeck Street, Castleford, Yorks, writes on April 13th, 1908: "I lost much time and money upon medicines which quite failed to cure me of indigestion before Mother Seigel's Syrup was recommended to me. But soon after I began to take that remedy a new world opened to me. I could again breathe freely, my appetite retu rned, and so did my old strength and energy."

Mother Seigel's Syrup is now also prepared in Tablet Form as Mother Seigel's Syrup Tablets. Price 2s. 9d.

bers were admirably rendered, and the dainty dancing of Miss Vivienne Vowles was quite a feature of the performance.

Grand Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Harry Upton.—In The Kiss of Judas Hardie and Von Leer have a first-class drama, and have gathered together a capital company for its presentation. Mr. E. Howard Templeton, an actor of robust methods, represents the hero in a fine manly fashion and receives considerable assistance from Miss Jess Dorynne, who works hard from start to finish as Dorothy Marlow; Miss Catherine Clarke as Nancy Nollid does well in a difficult part, and Mr. Charles V. Sanford has a congenial rôle as Frank Sudley. A thorough-going villain is ably portrayed by Mr. J. H. Darnley as Captain Brandon, and the child part of Little Jack is prettily sustained by Miss Bertha Hanbury. The fun of the piece is amply provided by Mr. Henry C. Moreton as Parkiss and Miss Laura Dyson as Daisy. Mr. Herbert Leonard makes a satisfactory Jake Long and Mr. Herbert de Ville does well as the parson. Miss Isabel de Cresse is good as the Indian girl.

Empire Theatre of Varieties.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert C. Duncan.—Mme. Alice Esty's glorious voice is heard in operatic selections and ballads, and audiences testify their high appreciation of this famous artist's work; the ventriloquial patter of Tom Edwards is always smart, and creates roars of laughter; W. L. Murray, winner of the Sandow statuette, delights his friends by the easy manner in which he manipulates unwieldy articles; the coster songs of Gus Elen are an undoubted attraction, and include his latest, "The Wrong 'Un's Bedroom"; Bertha Winder, who is quite a youngster, gives a remarkable exhibition of clog-dancing; Naughton and Gold add to the merriment by their cross-talking, and Les Voces are heard in several songs and duets. The Imperial Russian Troupe dance themselves into favour, and the programme also contains pictures on the Bioscope and Frank Cough, comedian.

Royal Hippodrome. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. V. Carnell.—Miss Kate Carney heads the bill here. She is supported by a large company that does the greatest credit to her two sketches, The Postman and The Yiddisher Boy. The impersonations of well-known actors by George Carncross are well done; Keen and Waller, a smart couple of knock-about comedians, keep the fun rolling; Vasey and Ramsey are equally at home in dancing or in humorous patter; the bijou animal circus of Charles Prelle is further helped by his clever ventriloquism; La Freya provides an artistic item, and the Zaid Trio of Spanish Moors supply a speciality act. The song of Michael Nolan and pictures on the Barrascope add to the general enjoyment.

NUNEATON.—Prince of Wales's.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Joseph Coyle.—Mr. Fred J. Webb's company is this week presenting the stirring drama The Hour of Her Triumph. Mr. F. J. Webb as the villain, Eugene Harberry, plays with energy and resource; Mr. Will Henderson as Harold Clavering is well suited; Mr. Frank Wheatley as Jack Vernon and Mr. James Stuart as Roscenes Montmorency act in a manner highly creditable, and Mr. Louis Nanton in the rôle of Ben Brodie gives a fine humorous rendering of a typical Yorkshireman. Miss M. Danvers-Smith plays as Zelis Clairmont with marked success; Miss Lallah Price in the double rôle of Sal Soaker and Martha Jinks is entirely satisfactory; Miss F. MacInnes makes a vivacious Jenny Jinks; the pathetic Nellie Clavering is admirably portrayed by Miss Isabel Stevenson, and Miss Pauline Nanton wins much approval as Linda Denton.

OLDBURY.—Palace.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Jas. Tyrer.—The Sisters Holman have been retained another week, and are encored nightly; Mr. Dave Sands (late of Sands and Shipley) is a refined comedian and dancer; Little Dolly Monk has a good voice; the Kennards keep the house in one scream of laughter; Miss West is a good vocalist; and the pictures are A1.

OLDHAM.—Empire Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—Hardie and Von Leer's company, in Two Lancashire Lasses in London, is here on a return visit. The sisters, Constance and Nellie, played by Misses Rosslyn Vane and Alice Defoe respectively, are both well acted; Miss Marguerite Trevosper is capable as Bessie Edmunds; Miss Marie Corri as the daughter Lucy is excellent; Miss Evelyn Shaw as Jane Adelaide is smart, and along with Mr. Chris Mason as Samuel Hallett causes hearty laughter; Mr. Herbert Pearson makes an interesting John Edmunds; and Mr. E. Rayson Cousens is capital as the Rev. Frank Selby. Mr. Fred Morgan is fully equal to the demands of the heavy character of Jonas Deane; Messrs. Jack Miller and Walter Walmsley as Jim Price and Ratty Gabbitt are well suited; and Mr. Dick Winslow makes a smart Dr. Gay. Mr. Ronald Clive as Jellaby and Mr. R. Elliston Bevens as Edward Langley are also very good.

Colosseum Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Wm. Eastwood.—Mr. Frederick Melville's company, in Her Forbidden Marriage, has been attracting large audiences. Mr. Henry Lonsdale is a manly George Madison; his enemy, Charles Devereaux, being ably sustained by Mr. Louis Hector. Miss Geraldine Le Sage plays Lucy in a winning manner; Miss Grace Lester makes a powerfully vindictive Lady Lucretia; Miss Maud Merrick as Patty and Mr. Fred De Vere as Timothy cause much laughter; and Mr. Vincent Loraine also does well as Joe Lambkin. Mr. C. Davidson is good as Geoffrey Broughton; and Mr. H. Gomer May is a capable Sir George Lancaster.

Royal Theatre of Varieties.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Kilrow.—Charlene and Charlene top the bill here in their clever musical and juggling act; Joe O'Gorman's Irish humour is infectious; Iben-Obed is clever in his equilibristic turn; Nada Moret, in her delightful entertainment, again proves her ability; Miss Georgette Thierry, Bernard Lieli, and company present a capitally acted sketch, A Daughter of the Revolution; Morrin and Cardiff introduce smart dancing; Minnie D'Aubyn sings good songs; and Harry Claff is capital in "The Demon and the Fairy."

Hippodrome.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge.—The Collar Stud, played by Muir, Bartlett, and company, goes merrily, causing hearty laughter; Fred W. Millis is highly successful with his ventriloquial act; Jimmy Shields takes well in his songs and dances; the Sisters Casselli are smart dancers; Harris and Worth are amusing as sporting comedians; Nat Watkins is a capable eccentric; and the Dottoscope concludes.

OXFORD.—New Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. C. C. Dorrill; Assistant-Manager, Mr. G. T. Lucas.—Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch attracted excellent business here the latter half of last week; and Miss Madge Carr Cook's impersonation of Mrs. Wiggs was a triumphant success. This week, Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company is playing Brewster's Millions to full and highly appreciative houses, the piece being represented so smartly that it completely carried the house with it, and there was a positive furore of applause atthe finish. Mr. Percy Hutchison was never better suited than as Monty Brewster, and plays in a natural free style that completely captures the house. He is ably supported by an excellent company, including Miss Cicely Stuckey as Peggy, a dainty and fascinating performance; Miss Lilias Earle (a great favourite here) as Mrs. Dan; and Miss Eva Stuart, who plays Barbara Drew in a satisfactory fashion. Mr. Percy Hutchison has every reason to be pleased with one of the most successful visits he has ever paid us.

East Oxford Theatre.—Lessees, East Oxford Theatre Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Frank Stuart.—Boswell's Royal Circus is proving a great attraction. The show, as a whole, is exceptionally good, and some very clever turns are given. Amongst those worthy of special mention are the marvellous spring-board leaping act by the clowns over a number of ponies; Charles Austin, a clever feet equilibrist; and Kame Yasuda, a smart little Jap, who does some skilful rope-walking and balancing. Among other items are Lily and Elsie Judge's cockatoos, the comic ponies, and the revolving table, which causes considerable fun and laughter. The performance concludes with fun in a circus riding-school, the riding machine being introduced on the stage.

PAISLEY.—Paisley Theatre.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—Arrah-na-Pogue is being staged here this week by Mr. Chalmers Mackey and company. Shaun is excellently and humorously portrayed by Mr. Mackey, and as Arrah-na-Pogue Miss Nana Flensberg deports herself in characteristic style. A fine portraiture of Beamish McCoul is submitted by Mr. Percy Horton; Mr. Charles Homer essays with considerable success the part of Col. O'Grady; Mr. Henry Sainsbury gives a capital embodiment of Oiny Farrell; and as Michael Feeney Mr. St. John Stuart furnishes a splendid characterisation. Mrs. Chalmers Mackey as Fanny Power plays well; Miss Adele Liddon as Kitty Walsh scores a success, and as Eily O'More Mme. Constance Bellamy sings delightfully.

Hippodrome.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Stead.—Charles Majilton and his company sustain the leading place on the programme this week, and in the sketch The Trippers are accountable for a vast amount of fun; Peter Bermingham, Scotch comedian, is as entertaining as ever and scores with new songs; the Three Orros give a marvellous demonstration of feats of strength and posing on the silver chains; Frand Harwood, actor-vocalist, delights with some excellent singing; Colin Bryce and company furnish an entertaining comedy act, Are You a Socialist? Rose Coleman as a comedienne and dancer is well received; Harry Conlin, comedian, sings very funny songs; George Probyn and Lydia Bates submit a clever pot-pourri act; and the Bioscope is interesting with new pictures.

PEMBROKE DOCK.—Queen's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Tom Barger; Business-Manager, Mr. Norman Barger.—Mr. F. Chabôt's company is here this week, and on Monday and Tuesday Only a Woman was presented to packed houses. Mr. Leslie K. Manton earned much praise as Courtney Wallace; Mr. F. Green as Lieut. Richard Summerfield, R.N., filled the hero's rôle with good effect; Mr. Charles Wilton as Lieut. Rodney Summerfield proved himself a gifted stage villain; as Billy Bumpkins, a buttons, Mr. Geo. Willis is extremely funny, with a craze for Limericks and a love for Eliza Jane, Miss Flo Bevan filling the latter rôle admirably, and singing a good song; as James Dobson, a flunkey, Mr. A. Silvernie plays well. The child Harold is in the safe keeping of little Miss Jessie Burdett, who not only acts prettily, but also sings uncommonly well. The part of Violet Redgrave is admirably sustained by Miss Lily Ferris; Miss Violet Cranfurd, in the title-rôle (Marie Lestoc), acts almost to perfection, and is full of dramatic instinct; Marie's child (Grace) is well entrusted to Miss Rosie Field. On Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday The Vengeance of Women was presented.

PENTRE.—Tivoli Palace and Hippodrome, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. C. W. Poole; Acting-Manager, Mr. James Gunn.—Topping an excellent bill here this week are the Piccolinis (Liliputian wonders), whose marvellous wire-walking, acrobatic, and cycling feats evoke loud admiration; Viviana and company (who were engaged to replace the Ombardos, who were unavoidably absent) create screams of laughter in their funny sketch The Toy Shop; Slippere, the blind entertainer, performs with admirable skill and dexterity on the piano and other instruments; Percy Farrimond excites the admiration of the audience in his well-rendered solos; comedy boxing and wrestling is indulged in by Tom and Neil; a clever exhibition of clog and big-boot dancing is contributed by Macintosh and Royal; Bert Terrell, the Dutch comedian and vocalist, is cordially received; and the Tivoliscope with its series of up-to-date films completes the programme.

Workmen's Hall and Institute.—Secretary, Mr. D. Davies.—Will Stone's Twentieth Century Pictures are here for the season, and are well patronised. The films include the latest in every department, comic and otherwise, the Franco-British Exhibition being an exceptional draw. Sidney Parker, the blind male soprano, and Frank Parr, the Welsh comedian and tenor, in their successful acts, Taffy and the Toff and The Rivals, also prove an attraction.

PERTH.—Perth Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Aldridge.—Dear Old Charlie provides the entertainment here this week. Mr. George Lestocq in the title-rôle is very successful; Mr. C. Douglas Cox and Mr. R. S. Trelawny as Charlie's friends, Gabriel Peploe and Thomas Dumphie, assist largely in providing the fun of the piece; Mr. Duncan Young acts with dignity the part of Colonel Fishbourne; Mr. Stanley Arthur is quietly humorous as Purkitt; and Mr. G. Smythe gives satisfaction as the florist's boy. Miss Enid G. Forde as Agnes is very pleasing; Miss Leonora Braham gives a capital performance as Mrs. Fishbourne, the Colonel's wife; and Miss Viola Holland is good as the maid.

PETERBOROUGH.—New Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. Fred Karno and A. H. Edwards.—The leading turn here this week is provided by Edward Croslands' melody makers in their phantom scena, The Burglar's Dream, introducing Darren Llewellyn, the Welsh baritone; Fred Ginnett and Wal Pink's company in St. George and the Dragon is well worth seeing; T. G. Carroll is a comedian and dancer; Jennie Alexander is a very clever child comedienne and mimic; Sam Redfern is well received; Lytton and Bland give an up-to-date speciality act; and Stratton Mills and company are most amusing in an absurdity entitled Fooled.

PLYMOUTH.—Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—The "first and last" visit of Sir John Hare has been an unqualified success, and notwithstanding a substantial increase in the prices large and fashionable audiences have nightly assembled to bear tribute to his popularity. On Monday in A Pair of Spectacles Sir John furnished a splendid character study of Goldfinch, while Mr. Charles Groves as the careful, calculating Uncle Gregory was hardly less successful. Mr. Ivo Dawson as Percy Goldfinch and Mr. Bertram Steer as Dick Goldfinch raised hearty laughter with their troubles as briefless barristers; Mr. W. J. Lovell as Lorimer introduced an element of pathos into the piece; Miss A. B. Thomas made a sympathetic Lucy Lorimer and Miss Mona K. Oram was a graceful Mrs. Goldfinch. In A Quiet Rubber Sir John's conception of the irascible, impecunious, yet proud, Lord Kilclare and the delineation of the warm-tempered, yet generous, Irishman, Mr. Sullivan, by Mr. Charles Groves were again received with unfeigned delight.

Palace of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. Jack Field.—George Hackenschmidt is paying his farewell visit to the West and continues to prove an enormous draw. The Tally-Ho Trio's musical contributions are worth going a long way to hear; Rene is a lady juggler whose feats of skill are followed with rapt attention; McDonald and Huntingdon are an amusing pair of American eccentrics, and Sandy and Carl furnish a first-rate pot-pourri comedy turn. Edwin Rutland, billed as the "cheerful idiot," Edith St. Claire, vocalist, and Roy Beavis, conjurer, add materially to the attractiveness of the programme.

PONTEFRACT.—Alexandra Theatre of Varieties.—General-Manager, Mr. Tom Diacoff.—At the head of the bill this week are the Four Elwyns, who prove a perfectly balanced quartette, and give a dramatic and vocal sketch illustrative of an incident in a mine; they are really good. The Saletos are more than clever in hand and head balancing; the Bellevilles dance and sing daintily; and Henriette and Selina do a clever musical turn; Carl Bennie is a capable ventriloquist; and the Brothers Harrison are screamingly funny in their "patter." Wat Tyler sings well; the Rowntrees add to the hilarity; and Alf Passmore is a comedian of exceptional ability.

PORTH.—The Palace, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. C. W. Poole; Manager, Mr. Walter Bynorth.—Topping the bill we have Harry Blake in his patter songs and comedy scena The Man in the Moon; Mlle. Du Roche is accorded a good reception; Hyde and Cody are undoubtedly smart in their performance; Stanley's Urchins meet with great approval in their harmony, comedy, and dancing act; Ada Gatley gives a graceful performance on the slack wire; Winnie Derson scores as a comedienne; Tom E. Cliff is a capital comedian and dancer; Rita Rhylle is also well received; the Palascope has a series of up-to-date films; and Harry Anderson also appears.

PORTSMOUTH.—Theatre Royal.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—Mr. Frank Curzon's company is here this week with My Mimosa Maid. Miss Marie Studholme as Paulette is charming, singing delightfully; Mr. Charles McNaughton is irresistibly funny as Victor Guilbert; Max Guilbert is divertingly played by Mr. Charles Paton; Mr. Percy Carr as M. Emilie Gerrard is admirable; Captain Louis de Laurier is capably enacted by Mr. John H. Goldsworthy; Mr. Arthur Jackson is amusing as Grove; Master Archie McCaig does excellent work as Bock; Miss May Garstang as Mme. de Piliane appears with success; Miss Eva Sandford ably impersonates Popitte, and Miss Ruby Gray is praiseworthy as Marcelle Pilaine.

Prince's Theatre.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Agate.—The Diver's Luck is being performed here by Mr. Andrew Emm's company. Mr. Henry Cullenford cleverly sustains the part of Martin Fisher; Mr. Fred A. Marston as Barney Brawn does excellent and appreciated work; Tom Hall, alias Cranston, is ably delineated by Mr. William J. Miller; Mr. Fred Scarth depicts Maurice Wyngate with vigour and ability; and Pedro is played with success by Mr. Kendrew Milsom. Miss Dora Pass's Helen Wyngate is all that could be desired, and Miss Pearl Noyle admirably sustains the part of Peggy Mahoney.

King's Theatre.—Licensee and Manager, Mr J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Claude Marner; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—Mr. John Tiller's company is here in High Jinks. It is full of animation and "go," and pleases greatly. The Werds are a smart and spirited pair of knockabouts; B. Troba, strong-man juggler, does some wonderful tricks, and receives ample recognition; Lauri Wylie and his manikins please by capable imitations of popular artists; Fred Walmsley, comedian, in his latest success, "The Dotty Poet," causes plenty of laughter; the Three Comerfords are clever and score highly; W. T. Ellwanger and company in the comedy sketch The Peacemaker do an excellent turn; Myra Love and troupe, The Idlers, and animated pictures of more than usually diverting character fill up the programme.

Empire Palace.—Managing-Director, Captain Warren Wright; Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—Mr. Arthur Lennard is heading the bill here and meeting with unqualified approval; Musical Silvo gives an enjoyable performance on the musical glasses, &c.; Chenton and Chicks present a creditable entertainment in The Children's Birthday Party; Charles Carr, singing and dancing cowboy, submits an agreeable turn; Crissie Cross, a dainty comedienne, pleases all; Duncan and Godfrey are excellent in their coster comedy Me and 'Er; Payne's Bio shows some new instructive and amusing pictures; and Wild, Willie, and West with their extravagantly humorous sketch The Three Bounding Navvies are responsible for vociferous hilarity.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Harris; Acting-Manager, Col. Roberts, V.D.—Miss Ethel Arden and George Abel score well here with their excellent sketch Three of a Kind; Les Vallis are a clever comedy acrobatic trio; Lillian Farrar, a smart comedienne and dancer, pleases all; Ross and Grayson, a comedy couple, submit a quaint musical turn, "Piano Playing Extraordinary," causing much amusement; Rex Fox gives a novel item, "Ventriloquism on the Wire"; the Wakeman Quintette are harmonious and take well in their musical comedy sketch; Athas and Collins are a popular comedy duo; Lester May does some attractive work; Miss Hilda Jacobsen is a dashing comedienne whose vocalisation is much admired, and the Hippo pictures conclude the entertainment.

PRESTON.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, the Executors of the late W. Johnson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Stephen Pritt.—Mr. George Dance's company in The Girls of Gottenberg was welcomed by a crowded house on Monday, who thoroughly enjoyed this brisk and sparkling piece; Mr. Bertie Wright was immensely funny as Max Moddelkopf, and his every entry was the signal for much merriment; Mr. Tom Shelford as Otto also met with a hearty reception, which he well deserved; Mr. Howard Cridland as Brittl Bottl was responsible for much laughter; Mr. Hugh Henson was a capital Albrech; Mr. Morgan Rickards as the Burgomaster, and Mr. Edwin Stanley as Kannenbier were both good; and Mr. Tom Squire was a very droll Adolph. Miss Ellaline Thorne was a captivating Mitzi, and won loud applause for her excellent rendition of the part; much praise is due to Miss Annie Grey, who added greatly to the success of the piece by her capital rendering of Elsa; Miss Susie Bearden was a vivacious Katrina; and Miss May Marshall was deservedly applauded for her clever portrayal of Clementine. Miss Violet Romaine was a smart and effective Minna. The minor characters were all in good hands, and a most efficient chorus rendered the catchy musical numbers with excellent effect, under the able conductorship of Mr. Otto Manns. The dresses and scenery are excellent.

Prince's Theatre.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Sawyer and Woodruff.—Mr. Lingford Carson and company, in The Great White Chief, is here this week, arousing enthusiasm. Leo Stanley (the Great White Chief) finds a powerful exponent in Mr. Mansell Fane; Mr. Lingford Carson's Reindeer (the Dumb Chief) is a clever bit of acting; Mr. George Butler as Hartley Deane, Mr. Norman Purnell as Black Forest, and Mr. Dobson Clyde as Sparrow Hawke are all good; Mr. Leonard Maitland as George Rupert Walker, and Miss Amy Ross Clyde as Martha Jane Curtley are responsible for much of the comedy element, which is thoroughly appreciated. Miss Dulcie Lawrence gives a strong rendering of the part of Hester Stafford, and, together with Miss Polly Denville as Latika, scores a decided success; Mr. Hugh Brady as John Warton, Jack Story as Ernest John Wallett, W. Melrose as Strong Arm, S. Elland as Dave Carter, and Hector Saunbly as Pierre, also do well. The play is capitally mounted.

Royal Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank E. Burdett.—Chief among the items of this week's bill are Tuby Edlin and a strong company in a merry little musical production, entitled The Cowboy Millionaire, produced by Mr. Harry Roxbury, which contains humorous situations, capital choruses, and is well staged and dressed. Ajax and George give a most original and daring gymnastic act; Arthur Bearle, the Lancashire comedian, meets with a good reception; Radie Forman is a great success as the Jolly Little Dutch Girl, her sabot dancing being really excellent; the Swift Duo, the lady cyclist and the inimitable gratesque, give a good turn; the Bros. Lydamore, vocalists, patterers, and dancers, are decidedly popular; George Prince, the crazy comedian, is funny without being in the least vulgar; Milner and Storey, a comedy duo, entertain with some capital duets and dances; and the Bioscope concludes.

RAMSGATE.—Royal Victoria Theatre.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jules Richeux.—Admirable performances have been given on the evenings of the past week by Miss Mary Neil, Mr. George Kirk, and company in the effective drama From Shopgirl to Duchess, which tells a cleverly-written story in an interesting manner. Miss Mary Neil, in most accomplished fashion, plays Sylvia Grey, the shopgirl who afterwards becomes a Duchess, her acting being marked by fine dramatic force. Mr. Douglas Cecil handles with skill the character of the Duke of St. Baynum, and the other parts are represented in a manner which calls only for praise.

Royal Palace Theatre.—Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; Resident-Manager, Mr. Dan Forrest.—Popular performances have been put on twice nightly during the week by the Palace Picture Co., whose exhibitions of animated pictures have been considerably appreciated. Variety turns intersperse the pictures, Derrick and Brereton being responsible for an amusing sketch entitled An Unhappy Pair.

Marina Theatre.—Interesting animal picture shows continue to give marked satisfaction to Marina audiences. The shows, which include vaudeville turns, are given twice nightly.

RAWTENSTALL.—Grand Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; General Business-Manager, Mr. A. B. Feather.—Hardie and Von Leer's company is here this week with Two Little Vagabonds. As the "little vagabonds" the Misses Alice Leon (Wally) and Denise Zaleski (Dick) give charming impersonations, their acting being most sympathetic; Miss Florence Dalton acts with true womanly feeling as Marion Thornton; and Miss Marion Fawcett gives an excellent interpretation of Barbara. Miss Ida Drayton as Nurse Randall submits an artistic portrayal; and Miss Marie Pritchard as Biddy and Mr. Martin Sands as Bill Mullins were responsible for the comedy of the play. Mr. Richard A. Greene is a clever and artistic George Thornton; as Captain Darville Mr. Arthur E. Melborne is most successful; and Mr. Joseph Brandon as John Scarth is everything that is desirable. The remaining characters are well sustained, and the staging all that could be desired.

READING.—Royal County Theatre.—Proprietors and Managers, Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Benton.—Mr. James Welch's company is appearing this week in the mirthful farce When Knights Were Bold. Mr. Henry J. Ford as Sir Guy de Vere gives a clever impersonation; Mr. Vernon Sansbury as Isaac Isaacson and Mr. Cecil Clayton as Hon. Charles Widdicombe appear to advantage; Mr. William Lockhart is good as the Rev. Peter Pottlebury; Mr. George Rowlands ably enacts Sir Brian Ballymote; Miss Phyllis Back meets with success as Miss Sarah Isaacson; Miss Violet Graham as Lady Millicent and Miss Gretchen Yates as Lady Marjorie merit praise; Miss Adrienne Yates is accomplished as Kate Pottlebury; and Miss Bruce Joy as Lady Rowena is all that could be desired. The tour is under the direction of Mr. Arthur Whittaker.

The Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. Geo. Howard Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr P. E. Draco.—Dolly Elsworthy and company, in the romantic sketch The Orange Girl, meet with unqualified success; Newham and Latimer, burlesque artists, are good; The Brewsters, banjoists and dancers, play and dance well; Ronald Bagnell is a good entertainer; the Moxon Trio of eccentrics are clever; and other good turns are Kate Marsh, comedienne; Lloyd Morgan, a light comedian; and the Palace Bioscope.

ROCHDALE.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Burton.—The Prince of Pilsen occupies the boards here this week. Mr. Harry Kilburn creates roars of laughter by his droll impersonation of Hans Wagner; Mr. Leslie Owen appears to advantage as Carl Otto; Mr. Arthur Geary possesses a good voice, and scores heavily as Lieut. Tom Wagner; Mr. Charles Rogers is amusing as the dude, Arthur Willoughby; and Mr. Ernest Gifford makes a capital François. Miss Dora Christian as Edith Adams vocalises in fine style; Miss Nellie Lomas sweetly enacts the part of Nellie Wagner; Sidonie is in the good hands of Miss Mabel Dent; and Miss Sophie Harriss is a host in herself as Mrs. Maddison Crocker.

Empire Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. T. Hargreaves; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Hargreaves.—Gertie Gitana tops the bill here this week with an entertaining vocal and dancing act; Morny Cash as "the Lancashire Lad" has a gratifying reception; Ernie Meyers is a comedian who always pleases here; Lily Lonsdale is an exceptional vocalist; Lavelle Brothers are clever comedy acrobats; and other artists appearing are Nellie Ridgway and Clown in pot-pourri act; Jack E. Dawe, comedian; and the Empire Bioscope pictures.

RUGBY.—Town Hall.—Entertainment-Manager, Mr. W. Payne Seddon.—On Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday nights Mr. Clarence C. Corri's company presented the comic opera The Dandy Fifth. Mr. Percy Baverstock as the Colonel gave a clever and amusing rendering; Mr. J. Edward Frazer as Dick Darville, and also as Claude Duval, was a great success; as Sergeant-Major Milligan Mr. George Beverley created much amusement; Mr. Jack Crichton as Brown was much appreciated; Miss Pauline Hague as the Merry Madcap made a great success; Miss Nora Morra is a smart and piquant Polly; and the singing of the Male Quartette party is very fine; Miss Sadie Thompson's dancing is popular.

RUNCORN.—Public Hall Theatre.—Proprietors, The Public Hall Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. E. S. Lea.—Gustave Roselle's company of "Merry Zingaras" are attracting good houses here this week with a bright round of songs, dances, legerdemain exhibition, and pictures. The vocalists and dancers are Miss Vera Winston, Miss Violet Nana, Miss Nance Lewis, Miss Marjorie Rogers, Miss Ada Andrews, Mr. R. J. Goldston, Mr. Gus Burridge, and Mrs. Gustave Roselle. Prince Levvie introduces some novel sleight-of-hand work, and the Cinematograph display is up to date in subjects and working.

SALFORD.—Prince of Wales's.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—For Love of a Woman was followed with interest by a good audience on Monday, when Mr. and Mrs. Eustace Day's company commenced a week's engagement here. Miss May Day presented the heroine, Nance Manor, with ability; Ned Merrick was in the capable hands of Mr. J. Ord; Mr. Frederick Garratt made an excellent villain of Guy Manor; Mr. Eustace Day cleverly portrayed the blind old Allen Paget. Much laughter was contributed by Mr. C. Ninian as Major Hulmes, Mr. Leonard S. Harrison as the dude Albert, Mr. Fred Ramsdale as the would-be detective Sam Holland, and Miss Belle Victoria as the giddy Marjory Hulmes. Miss Nellie de Lacy as Nell Paget and Miss Eva St. Vincent as Jane Manor were charming; and Mr. Ernest Yandel (Tom Jones) and Mr. Brook Leicester gave good support.

Royal Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; General-Manager, Mr. H. Winstanley; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Slatter.—The Bouncing Dillons head a good programme this week, and get much applause; Billy Farrell causes amusement; Edwin Garth, the quaint dame, keeps the house highly amused; Vernon Harcourt's mimicry is much enjoyed; Coverdale and Huxley's Bijou Juveniles in musical scena, Pansy's Birthday, submit some good singing and dancing. Other meritorious turns include Will Sullivan, comedian and patterer; Baddow, ventriloquist; Dolly Ross, comedienne and dancer; Bros. Ford, in "The Poetry of Motion"; Ida Barr, burlesque actress; and Beau and Belle, in scena Past and Present.

Opera House and Assembly Rooms, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Lester King.—Blind is the title of an excellent pathetic film, and other good pictures include Organ-grinder's Daughter, Detectives Fritt and Flock, Killing Remorse, Banana Industry, Poor Doggy, Living Blackbird, Nick Carter, Detective, Amorous Nurse, and His First Experiment in Chemistry. The illustrated song, "When the hills are white with heather," by Mr. Lester King, goes well.

SALISBURY.—County Hall.—Proprietor, Mr. Arthur Whitehead; Business-Manager, Mr. T. Brinsmead.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company opened here on Monday to a full house in The Belle of Mayfair, and had a good reception. As Sir John Chaldicott Mr. Sidney Burt deserves the greatest praise, Mr. Stephen Hall as the Earl of Mount Highgate is excellent; Mr. Michael Raven is clever as Hugh Meredith; the Raymond Finchley of Mr. Stanley Ravenscroft is much appreciated; Mr. A. Batting as Comte de Perrier is capable; Mr. Tom Lyle as the Bishop of Brighton is good; Miss Patricia Weldon in the rôle of the Princess both looks and acts in a charming manner; Miss Denny Fitzherbert makes a delightful Lady Chaldicott, and as Julia Chaldicott Miss Nellie Barnwell scores heavily; Miss Grace Mackay proves herself very smart as Lady Rosaline; and Pincott has a dainty exponent in Miss Dora Lyons.

SEACOMBE.—Irving Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Kiernan.—Houses packed from stalls to gallery testify to the popularity of Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's company, which is fulfilling a successful engagement here this week in With Edged Tools. Sir John Meredith is a serious and convincing character as presented by Mr. J. A. Rosier, and the fine voice and style of Mr. William F. Grant are displayed to advantage in the character of Jack Meredith. Mr. Charles Hartopp takes advantage of every opportunity as Guy Oscard; the Victor Durnove of Mr. Campbell Goldsmid is a cleverly-conceived study in villainy; Mr. J. Pockett and Mr. F. Leyton fulfil easily the requirements of their respective parts, viz., Maurice Gordon and Lieut. Conynghame; Miss Phyllis Relph presents an interesting and pleasing study of Jocelyn Gordon; the difficult rôle of the young and pretty deceiver is powerfully enacted by Miss Marie Leonhard; the placid and peaceful style of Miss Isabel Grey embellishes gracefully the part of Lady Cantourne, a powerful contrast being afforded by the brisk and vivacious rendering of Lady Herries by Miss Violet Thorold; Marie is skilfully portrayed by Miss Frances Wolviston; and the remaining characters are all adequately represented.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.—New Theatre Royal.—Proprietor, Mr. A. C. Harrison; Manager, Mr. H. D. Lyle.—Messrs. Armadale and Warren's company is paying a return visit here with The Face at the Window. Mr. E. Hoggan Armadale portrays Lucio Delgado in his customary admirable manner; Mr. Scott Leighton is a resourceful Paul Gouffet; Lucian Cortier is agreeably presented by Mr. Arthur Beverley; Mr. Alfred Warne is a praiseworthy Henry de Brisson; as Peter Pottlebury Mr. Henri Stewart provokes much mirth; Miss Elsie Marriott Watson wins praise for her charming portrayal of Marie; and as Babette Miss Louie Lonora is popular.

SHEFFIELD.—Lyceum Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—Mr. Robert Courtneidge again presented his brilliantly-staged musical comedy production The Dairymaids to a large audience on Monday, when the familiar features of the play were received with hearty applause. That excellent dramatic artist Miss Edith Blanche again proved the value of a sound early training combined with inherited talent by her graceful and dignified acting in the part of Lady Brudenell; the character of Peggy was charmingly played by dainty and accomplished Miss Phyllis Dare; Winifred had a fascinating and tuneful representative in Miss Gladys Ivery; Miss Lottie Sargent was a pretty and vivacious Eliza, and, in company with Mr. Harry Dent as Joe Mivins, kept the house in a continuous ripple of laughter; Mr. E. Statham-Staples was first-rate as Lieutenant Brudenell; and Mr. Percy Marshall was, as usual, admirable in a comedy part. The chorus was good, and the costumes and scenery were magnificent.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—Oliver Twist, a clever adaptation of Charles Dickens's famous story, is being acted to good houses by Miss Winifred Chalmers's special company.

Alexandra Theatre. — Managing-Director, Mr. William D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Ramsay.—When London Sleeps is being played this week by the following artists: Miss Mabel Scudamore, Miss Lilla Wilde, Miss Mona Hall, Miss Bella Power, Miss C. Middleton, Miss Doris Brereton, Miss H. Holmes, and Messrs. Edward E. Ashby, Harry Wren, E. C. Edwards, F. Thomas, Douglas Campbell, F. C. Pick, Frank Howard, C. Clements, Fred Bernardo, and the popular representative of Ezra Lazerack the Jew, Mr. Harry Emmerson. The drama is effectively staged.

Empire Palace Theatre.—The Moss Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—The names of Arthur Roberts and J. W. Rowley on the bill arouse pleasurable memories in the minds of old music-hall habitués, and both of these "good old pros" were accorded the enthusiastic welcome typical of the Sheffield public—a public ever loyal to its deserved and well-tried stage favourites. "J. W." was as full of wholesome fun as audiences. Munstead's Circus, combined with the original Colibris Midgets, makes an entertainment complete in all the familiar details of an equestrian establishment; Mr. Max Waldon's realistic female impersonations are loudly applauded, and his elegant dancing brings down the house; the Van Host trio are three clever, agile, and diverting eccentric acrobats; Herr Vandehoff does some artistic pictures at a rapid rate; Blake and Amber are a smart pair of American burlesque artists, and win deserved applause; the two Barraois are intrepid hand-balancers; the Summersons appear in a comic domestic sketch; and the Barrascope, with the production of an evening paper, the three Sisters Thurban, in a refined musical and Terpsichorean entertainment, and Mr. Jack Hayworth, vocalist, conclude the generous programme.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. A. W. Turpin.—Winona and King, American rifle experts; Mr. Ryder Davis, vocal comedian; Miss Cissy Esdaile, burlesque actress; Miss Eva Ward, soubrette; the Raymond Animated Pictures, and an exciting shooting competition are amusing the many habitués of this popular "down-town" variety theatre.

CENTRAL THEATRE.—Lessees, the Jasper Redfern Co.—In addition to the moving pictures, Mr. Tom Kelso and his company are appearing in the funny sketch The Haunted Servant.

SHREWSBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. W. Yates Gregory; Licensee and Business-Manager, Mr. W. C. Dornton.—Lovers of Shakespearean plays have this week had an intellectual treat in the visit of Mr. Allan Wilkie's talented company, the bill of fare including Macbeth, Romeo and Juliet, Julius Cæsar, The Merchant of Venice, and Hamlet, with the addition of two classic plays, David Garrick and She Stoops to Conquer, and the tragic drama The Sleigh Bells. In Macbeth, admirably played on the opening night, Mr. Alexander Marsh was seen to advantage as Macduff, a part which he performed with power and talent; Mr. Allan Wilkie gave a very fine interpretation of the rôle of Macbeth; Miss Haidee Gunn as Lady Macbeth may be deservedly complimented upon her admirable acting; Mr. John Paley made a most capable Banquo; Mr. Ernest Digges had the advantage of a fine presence and excellent delivery in the character of Malcolm; Mr. Ivor Barnard was very successful as Donalbain; Mr. Sinclair Neill as Rosse acted carefully and well; Mr. Mark Turner as Lennox performed his part in a creditable manner; Master E. Burnley made a very good Fleance; Mr. F. J. Fay is deserving of praise as the physician; Mr. J. Phelps was a capital Sergeant; Mr. James Wood acted Seyton with ability; Miss Mildred Luiry played a gentlewoman in an artistic manner; and the rôles of witches and murderers all found capable exponents.

SMETHWICK. — ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. C. Barnard; Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson.—Hardie and Von Leer's company is this week presenting the popular drama The Sailor's Wedding. Mr. C. W. Standing gives a powerful interpretation of Gordon Drake. As Sir Victor Lascelles Mr. Cecil Klein supplies a very clever study; Mr. William Seguin as Count Bellini quite realises the part, and Mr. Frank Gordon's portrayal of Giacomo is a strong and well studied piece of character. Messrs. Walter Pemberton as Jack Hawkins and Huntley Gifford as Bill Burns create much amusement; and are ably assisted in their efforts by Miss M. Sadie as Polly Clarke and Miss Celestine Bertram as Ninette; Mr. Hodgson Taylor plays with much ability as Giovanni Ferici; Miss Laura Hansen represents Countess Bellini with much success; Miss Dulcie Greatwich makes a sweet and womanly Mary; and Miss Winifred Pearson as Lenore de Gresac plays with dramatic force throughout. The scenes, which are laid in the district of Naples, are admirably set.

SOUTHAMPTON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frederick Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Weston.—Lively and novel fare is provided this week by Miss Lena Ashwell's touring company in Diana of Dobson's. Miss Dorothy Green does remarkably well in the title-rôle; Mr. H. Grendon Bentley plays with quiet forcefulness as Captain Bretherton; Miss Mary Stuart is excellent as Mrs. Cantalupe; and Miss Georgette de Serville makes the part of Mrs. Whyte Fraser interesting and agreeable. Mr. Alfred Harris as Sir Jabez is good, and the other parts are all well played. On Thursday Mr. Cyril Maude and his London Playhouse company gave a flying matinée of Toddles.

PALACE.—Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wm. Trussell.—Mr. Fred Maxwell and company are again proving a strong card, their drama The Last Command being well played. The Waldrons in their sketch The Silly Burglar are popular; Lew Lake's comedians, "Nobbler and Jerry," are entertaining; and others who do well are Cullen and Carthy, Burns and Bentley, Ethel Sheffer, Dolly and Elsie, and Marion Fletcher.

HIPPODROME.—Managers, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. Yardley.—Consul, the man-monkey, is proving a tremendous attraction; Fred Ginnett's scena The Hunting Morn is once again well received; Dusty Rhodes excels as a comedy merchant; the Four Amaranths are accomplished acrobatic dancers; and the Gargany Trio of acrobats, Leah Arden, comedienne, and Arthur Hickman, tenor, complete a capital bill.

PHILHARMONIC HALL.—Joseph Poole's Myriorama is attracting crowded houses, and the entertainment is a capital one. Mr. Bert Berry is the guide, and the variety entertainment is exceedingly good.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.—EMPIRE THEATRE, LTD. Managing-Directors, Messrs. Geo. Conquest and Richard H. Nervey; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Lingham Power.—Our Flat commenced a week's engagement on Monday, and the company, under the management of Mr. Charles Steuart, gave a thoroughly enjoyable portrayal, and which provoked the heartiest laughter throughout. Mr. Steuart gives a talented impersonation of Reginald Sylvester, and Miss Daisy Atherton as his wife, Margery, submits a vigorous and creditable characterisation; Miss Louie Tinsley as Bella is mirth-provoking; Mr. Wilfred E. Shine as Nathaniel Glover and Mr. Fred Knight as Mr. McCullum also cause merriment; and Mr. G. P. Trevor is well suited as Clarence Vane. The Misses Kattie and May Yates ably sustain the characters of Lucy McCullum and Clara Pryout respectively. The Vagabond Poet makes a capital curtain-raiser. Mr. Robert Whittier, an American actor, who made his first appearance in England, was seen to every advantage in the name part.

PIER PAVILION.—Lessee, Mr. H. E. Angless; Manager, Mr. Stanley E. Angless.—The Bioscope entertainments are well appreciated. This week's programme is replete with an interesting series of up-to-date and humorous films.

SOUTHPORT.—OPERA HOUSE, WINTER GARDENS.—Proprietors, The Southport Opera House and Winter Gardens Co., Ltd.; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. R. Singleton.—Mr. Popple of Ippleton made his first appearance at this theatre on Monday evening, and met with a cordial reception. The company is that of Mr. Charles Macdona, who presented a capital all-round interpretation of this highly-diverting musical comedy. Mr. Charles Macdona, in the rôle of Freddy Popple is excellent in every way, his display of humour and versatility being greatly appreciated; Miss Nellie Hodson depicted the part of La Bolero with charming piquancy and effect; Miss May Hart presents a clever and very smart character sketch as the maid Louise; Platt, the servant, was effectively portrayed by Mr. Tom May; Miss Lilyan Lait was very successful as Mrs. Hennay; Mrs. Doring was well played by Miss Amy Singleton; Mr. Louis du Cane acquitted himself with credit as Norman Popple; Miss Marie Moss did full justice to the character of Violet Brintor; Mr. Eric Barrington appeared to advantage as Jacques Kenyon; other good impersonations were supplied by Mr. Nap Barry (George Hennay), Mr. James Stevenson (Henry Doring), and Mr. Edmund Russen (Lord Downe).

SOUTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. John and Fred Coulson.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company is here this week in At Roaring Camp. Mr. Henry Hare as Will Gordon gives a good reading; Miss Constance Elgin as the adventuress acts in powerful and convincing style; Tom Barnes is hit off in forceful fashion by Mr. C. E. Johnson; Mr. Roy Jackson is good as Gonzales; Miss May Foster makes a sweet Nell Curtis. The comedy parts are well represented by Mr. Clarence Ibbotson as Ebenezer, Mr. J. W. Braithwaite as Paddy McGinty, and Miss Gwen Clifford as Mrs. O'Flynn.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietors, The South Shields Empire Palace, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. The remaining good turns are Marie Goodwin, comedienne; Madge Osmond, the immaculate dandy; Ben Albert, comedian; and the Bioscope.

TIVOLI, LAYGATE CIRCUS.—Proprietor, Councillor J. K. Hall.—Lambert and Hands, character sketch duettists, submit a pleasing turn, and are well received; Andy Fagan, Irish comedian, creates a good impression; and the Tivoloscope completes a good bill.

STAFFORD. — LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Elphinstone.—Mr. Ian Maclaren and Shakespearean company opened here on Monday with The Merchant of Venice. Mr. Frank Clewlow as the Duke of Venice and Prince of Morocco played the two parts effectively and with ability; Mr. Guy Cunningham gave a clever interpretation of Antonio; Mr. George Relph was an ideal Bassanio; Mr. Manning Sproston won universal approval as Lorenzo; and Mr. Ian Maclaren's Shylock was a clever performance, revealing much scholarly intuition; Tubal, Gratiano, and Salarino were well played by Mr. A. C. Wentworth, Mr. J. V. Bryant, and Mr. Charles Weldon; Miss Muriel Dole's Portia was praiseworthy in every way; Miss Claire Townshend was an excellent Nerissa; and Miss Constance Brook's Jessica was a meritorious performance. The School for Scandal, David Garrick, She Stoops to Conquer, and Hamlet are also in the week's bill.

ST. HELENS.—THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, St. Helens Theatre, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. A. McLeod Loader.—The popular play Her Love Against the World is being presented here by Messrs. W. H. Hallatt and Walter Howard's company. Mr. Fred Emery acts powerfully in the exacting rôle of Eric Earl of Strathmere; and Miss Rosie St. John makes a lovable boy of Lionel. The evildoing is in the hands of Mr. Lewis Gilbert, who takes the part of Ulric in a highly capable manner; Mr. W. H. Hallatt is well placed as Prince Othmar; and Mr. Victor Rowland also is excellent as Prince Maurice. Miss Grace Heywood, who appears in the character of Iris, is exceptionally pleasing. The lighter element is worked in by Miss Gertie Reid (Katinka) and Miss Hettie Fergusson (Gretchen), who, with Messrs. Henry B. Lewis and John Mill, are very effective.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford, Sley, and Willmot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Mould.—At the head of a big programme here is Fred Maitland and company in a laughable sketch entitled Talked Out. Leo Carle, a smart quick-change artist, presents a one-man drama The Betrayed Professor; the Four Scoreys are loudly applauded for their clever work; Miss Rose Atherton and company are amusing in Murphy's Affinity; Edie Veno is encored for her songs; and Olive and Vera, Frank Dunlop, and Phil Bransby provide capital turns. The special engagement of Bert Wickham is proving attractive.

STOCKPORT.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—The representations of the comic opera Amasis have thoroughly amused and entertained large audiences here this week. As Pharaoh Mr. W. H. Denny is exceedingly humorous and talented; Mr. Edward MacKeown as Prince Anhotep has a fine presence and sings ably; Mr. Walter D. Brodie is distinctly funny as Sebak; Ptolemy is amusingly portrayed by Mr. Frank Attree; and Cheiro is admirably acted by Mr. Arthur Stroud. Miss Mabel Burnage as Princess Amasis sings delightfully, and a pleasing character is Natis, sustained by Miss Elsie Don. The chorus is excellent.

EMPIRE. — Proprietors, The Stockport Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Black.—A dramatic sketch of much interest, The Girl and the Tough, presented by John G. Brandon and company, is the chief attraction here this week; and included in an array of varied talent are the Three Sisters Tree, in their act Hunting; Bowman and Merton, in their burlesque, She Loved a Policeman; Horace and Olga's troupe of trained dogs and cats; Maggie Rimmer in pleasing songs; Frantz's Comedy Five in a clever acrobatic act; Lozelle, a smart gymnast; and Charlie Craston, a mirth-provoking comedian.

Reach.—The engagement for this week of Miss Maud Hildyard and her company in The Great Awakening was appreciated on Monday evening by a crowded house. Miss Hildyard is seen to advantage as Lola, and goes through her part with commendable spirit; James Selby is successfully assumed by Mr. Wallis Clark; and Mr. Herbert Robinson is very good as Guy Rogan, the villain. Mr. Cecil Gray is responsible for excellent interpretations in his double rôle of Sir Henry Merton, Bart., and Jack Merton, his son; Miss Fay Garnet-Vane gives a sympathetic presentment of Molly Merton; Mr. Tracy Barrow as Billy Brass and Miss Cissie Podmore as Selina contribute humour in excellent style. Mr. Conrad Franklin as Captain Harry Lambert and Mr. Curtis as Richard Wilson are both excellent, and the other rôles are in able hands.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton.—Mr. G. Carlton Wallace's company in The Lancashire Lad is the attraction here this week. Mr. Alec Alexander gave a fine portrayal of David Elmore, "the Lancashire lad"; the part of his sweetheart Jesse was ably handled by Miss Stanley Burt; the villain, Max Carlton, was well done by Mr. T. G. Vane; his paramour, Lorna Wincote, was well delineated by Miss Nell Oliver; Mr. Wilton Reed's was a meritorious Jem Wincote; Misses Molly Monoghan (Mother Wardle) and Jenny Hallworth (Jane Alice Clitheroe) and Mr. Bob Anderson (John Willy Wardle), all typical Lancashire characters, created much amusement. Clever varieties are introduced.

EMPIRE THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden.—An interesting programme is headed this week by La Scala Opera Company, who provide an excellent musical entertainment. The singers are all talented vocalists, actors and actresses, and their turn was received with hearty applause. George Bastow scored a great success with his rollicking "Galloping Major"; the novel act of Les Martineks is another very smart turn; the Athlones give an attractive trapeze performance; the Three Cape Girls are remarkably clever dancers; Ruth Lytton is a delightful Scotch comedienne; and other artists contributing meritorious turns are Charles Perceval and Vena Morley, in their comedy duologue Turtle Doves; Little Keeno, juvenile comedian and dancer; and Sinclair and Parr, comedians and vocalists.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. L. Barry.—Jock Whiteford, the famous Scotch comedian, provides the star turn this week; he is as full of good humour as ever, and received a hearty reception. Binns and Binns are a very funny pair of vagabond musicians; Lieut. Travers' ventriloquial powers were fully appreciated; Clark's Nippers introduced some clever club swinging and dancing; Correze and Keith were very interesting in their juggling scena. Other turns were given in smart style by Lisbon and Barker, in their funny act Extemporising; Ethel Dove, comedienne and dancer; and Brothers Milford, comedians and dancers.

SWANSEA.—GRAND.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Oswald Brooks; Acting-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. Walter Dean.—Beautifully dressed and presented in irreproachable fashion by Mr. George Edwarde's No. 1 company, The Merry Widow has taken Swansea by storm. Miss Mysie Devine's interpretation of the title-rôle was a triumph of artistic skill; no less successful was Mr. Frank Green as Prince Danilo; Mr. Edward D'Arcy, entrusted with the part of Baron Popoff, brings out the baron's witticisms in irresistible fashion, in which he receives grand support from Mr. Fred Fowler, a humorist of ability; Miss Ada Thomas uses her voice beautifully as Natalie, her duets with Mr. Ripley Evans as Jolidon being excellent.

THE STAR.—Manager, Mr. William Coutts; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. J. Powell.—Fred C. Somerfield's company is presenting here Geoffrey Langdon's Wife. Mr. Paul Beckett is in happy vein as Felix Beverley, and Mr. Wilson Summers' delineation of Jack Stirling is clever; Mr. Robin Shiells does well as Colonel Miles; and the humour of Messrs. Percy Brown and Herbert Fuller as Thomas and Charles keeps the house well amused; Mr. Harland Brooks also distinguishes himself as Detective Banks; Miss Mary Lovett as Mary Langdon portrays the part in a natural and telling manner; and as Sweet Nancy Miss Kate Lever is clever. Miss Cissie Bellamy as the Hon. Mrs. Sands greatly distinguishes herself.

EMPIRES, LTD.—Manager, Mr. P. C. Rowe; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. H. Lennon.—An astounding performance is given by Colonel Gaston Bordeverry, whose skill with the rifle and pistol is wellnigh incredible; Nellie Wallace so delighted her audience on Monday that three songs were demanded from her; the Ten Ji Troupe give an unparalleled exhibition of juggling; and Lively Lily Langtry as usual has good songs, and her reception is as enthusiastic as ever. Ernie Mayne's parody on "Excelsior" is particularly good; Dare Austin in the duologue His Wedding Morn is well assisted by Frank Hawthorne; The Mayvilles, lilliputian entertainers; Alf Chester, comedian; and the Bioscope are other attractions.

SWINDON.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Wiltshire Entertainments Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Manners.—At the head of the bill this week is Leonard Anarto and Harry Rushworth's company in a musical comedy sketch entitled The Mountain Belle. Marcos Crespo is briskly taken by Mr. Bert Rolfe; Mr. Bay Russell makes much fun out of the part of Pedrillo; Mr. Edward O'Brien is good as Lionel Bernard; Miss Lena Maitland sings sweetly in the title-rôle; the characters of Don Jerome and Donna Lorenzo are respectively taken by Mr. Arthur Deane and Miss Edie McCarthy; and the chorus is well balanced. Francis and Alfred are smart jugglers; Charles Sloman, patterer and comedian, pleases; the Maximilian Trio are clever equilibrists; and Jack Selway, comedian, also appears. The Empire Pictures are amusing.

TORQUAY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. W. H. Mortimer; Secretary, Mr. Arthur Pearse.—Mr. Wentworth Croke is this week presenting for the first time here Mr. Hall Caine's great drama, The Bondman. The principal and difficult rôle of Greeba is admirably sustained by Miss Georgina Wynter, who submits a capital study, portraying the varying phases of the part with conspicuous success; Mr. R. Scrope Quentin works hard and is deservedly applauded for his representation of Jason; and Mr. Lionel Atwill is equally successful as Michael Sunlocks, the two playing together harmoniously. As Adam Fairbrother, Mr. Oswald Lingard is well placed; and Miss Madge Lanerton does excellently as Mrs. Fairbrother. Mr. W. H. Rotherham makes a typical Father Ferrati, also provoking much fun by his impersonation of the grandfather in the first act. Mention should be made of the clever performances of Miss Gertrude Helene and Master Walter Neville as Mona and Danny respectively. General admiration is expressed of the scenery of the play, and particularly of the excellent Sulphur Mine scene in the third act.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Walton Dale; Manager, Mr. A. H. Burdett.—Hippodrome Season.—Mr. Will Van Allen, the tramp musician, scores a success here. Other excellent turns include Miss Maud Dennis, a Salome dancer; Alice Maple, comedienne; Harry Bent, mimic, in impersonations of well-known comedians; Mark Leslie, a coon comedian; and Hugo and Smidt in a smart horizontal bar act.

TYLDESLEY. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. W. Brierley, A. Brierley, and W. German; Manager, Mr. W. W. Brierley.—Mr. Ernest Vaughan and company occupy the boards here this week in the exciting drama Man or Beast? Mr. Charles D. Pitt gives a manly portrayal of the Hon. Jack Newton; Mr. Ernest Vaughan earns distinction by his acting in the title-rôle; whilst Captain Macdonald receives a praiseworthy rendering from Mr. Charles H. Phelps. Mr. Fred Gresham proves himself a clever comedian as Pat O'Brien; Miss Irene Carrington is a delightful exponent of Bella Newton; and Miss Phyllis Elton is well placed as Nurse Annetta. The other parts are in capable hands.

WAKEFIELD. — OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—The Wakefield and District Amateur Operatic Society occupy the stage this week, presenting the comic opera, The Pirates of Penzance, followed by Trial by Jury, for the benefit of local charities.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. Sydney Tolfree.—Maurin's Marvellous Fountains are highly appreciated; Mr. Harry Briggs, triple-voiced vocalist, has a good reception; the Three Pirmans are clever in a comedy pot-pourri act; Haley's Juveniles, a smart combination of singers and dancers, provide an interesting turn; the Two Yorkshire Mill Lasses sing well; Mr. Fred Bamford, whistling soloist, wins applause; and Mr. Harry Keeble, ventriloquist, is entertaining.

WARRINGTON. — ROYAL COURT.—Proprietor, Mr. W. Johnson; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. J. Reece.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company is here, with Mrs. Ponderbury's Past. Mr. George Mudie as Mr. Ponderbury scores admirably; and Miss Annie Stalman as Mrs. Ponderbury wins the highest encomiums for her acting. Miss Florence Wellesley is a chic Ethel; and Miss Madge Elswick as Lady Baring, and Miss Florence Wix as Madame Modjiski are well placed. Mr. Drew Mackintosh is good as Mr. Mervyn Thorpe; Mr. George Child is a typical Naval Captain; and Mr. H. Burns as Sir Rover Baring, and Mr. James Michael as Dr. Oliver are commendable impersonations. The Peter of Mr. Alfred Iberson is a clever character sketch. A pretty curtain-raiser, His Landlady, is well received.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. W. Johnson; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Waters.—There are some delightful pictures being shown here this week, those depicting the Salving of the Gladiator, and A Magistrate's Conscience being particularly good. Brady and Johnson are a clever pair of sketch artists; and Beattie and Babs an especially clever pair of juveniles.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. G. D Bradbury.—Nat Clifford delighted a crowded house here on Monday, with his songs and patter; Effie White is a delightful kaleidoscope dancer; Jessie Burnett, a charming comedienne, sings her songs well; Happy Attwood is amusing; and the Three Royal Temples score in operatic selections, Madame Louie Gilbert singing in fine style; some wonderful execution on the drum is done by Dan Merrett; Keith and Merson are well received for their hunting absurdity, The Meet; and Munroe's Black and White Team sing several glees in delightful fashion.

WEDNESBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Battersby; Acting-Manager, Mr. Tom Kuner.—Mr. E. H. Knight's No. 1 company in the domestic drama The Lighthouse Robbery is paying a visit here. Mr. Henry Herne ably depicts the rôle of Tom Manly; whilst a characteristic portrayal of William Farren is ably presented by Mr. William Annersley. An excellent study of James Hammond is shown by Mr. Percy Beresford; and as David Morris Mr. Herbert Lewis is seen to advantage. Miss Hilda Baynton scores a decided success in the rôle of Rose Prescott; considerable enthusiasm is infused into the part of Ruth Manly by Miss Maggie Stewart; and as little Nellie, a waif, Miss Ethel Lovett proves quite a favourite.

WEST BROMWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. R. Nightingale.—Mr. J. A. Campbell's company, which is producing The Old Folks at Home, by Mr. Campbell himself, has had a hearty and well-deserved reception. The part of Lord Howard Kenilworth is well taken by Mr. Frank Liston; Mr. Aidan Lovitt is excellent as Andrew Ross; Miss Maud Warburton makes a charming Dorothy Robin, afterwards Lady Kenilworth; and the other parts are admirably sustained. In the third act the Excelsior Quartette of glee singers introduce with great effect a number of old plantation glees, melodies, &c., and the Chronoscope pictures are decidedly good.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. Archie Ainsleigh.—Variety entertainment is dropped again this week, its place being taken with musical comedy, Mr. Robert Macdonald's company producing that delightfully bright and charming play The Dairymaids. The company is a most capable one. Miss Carrie Lacy is excellent as Lady Prudenell; Miss Nellie Bowman as Eliza, Miss Empsie Bowman as Peggy, and Miss Vera Crichton as Winifred are all very charming, and their singing leaves nothing to be desired. Mr. Bernard Vaughan is a breezy Dr. O'Bryne; and Mr. Dan Agar is a great success as Joe Mivens. The play is finely staged.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. A. E. Dobney.—The building was packed in every available portion on Monday. Mr. William Jackson's Eight Lancashire Lads provide the star turn, and go well, their singing being only excelled by their clever dancing; the Japanese duologue Yo-San, by Talbot and Pearce, is a pretty act; Dan Whiteley's comicalities fully deserved the applause awarded; Baines and Reed, in their original act, Humpsti Bumpsti, take well; and other turns which meet with good receptions are those of Steve Bartle, vocalist and concertina soloist; W. H. Downs, ballad vocalist; Rose Pink, a lively singer and dancer; and Willie and Johnny, two coloured boys, in a smart exhibition of head and hand balancing.

GRAND.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Manager, Mr. H. E. Feather.—Mr. G. Carlton Wallace's company is this week presenting The Love that Women Desire, and is being well received.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE. — KNIGHTSTONE PAVILION AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. W. Payne. — Fabbro's electric singing pictures and vaudeville company are on a return visit. The pictures are exceedingly good, especially those by Pathé Frères. Two very comic films are those entitled Byker Does the Impossible and Mr. and Mrs. Brown and Baby. Ryche and Pore are humorous entertainers above the average; Miss Bessie Farrell, a pretty little lady, excels as a comedienne; a really good turn is the Columbia Quartette; Alice May and Cecil Bradley are praiseworthy and refined vocalists; and Bessie Farrell and Leslie Sears as duettists are warmly applauded.

WEYMOUTH. — OPERA HOUSE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. J. Nobbs.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company played The Belle of Mayfair here recently. Sir John Chaldicott was in the capable hands of Mr. Sydney Bint, ably supported by Miss Denny Fitzherbert as Lady Chaldicott; Mr. Michael Raven gave a capital impersonation of Hugh Meredith; and Mr. Stephen Hall was thoroughly at home as the Earl of Mount Highgate; Mr. Stanley Ravenscroft was a very good Raymond Finchley; Miss Nellie Barnwell an excellent Julia Chaldicott; Miss Patricia Welldon was well suited with the part of the Princess; Miss Grace Mackay won rounds of applause with her song, "Why do they call me a Gibson girl"; and Miss Dora Lyons was charming as Pincott.

WHITEHAVEN.—MARKET HALL.—Lessees, The Edison Picture Co.; Manager, Mr. Victor Branford.—Another change of pictures is made this week, and success is gained. The list includes The Red Man's Child, Phantom Games, Northern Venice, The Churchill Wedding, The Adventures of Nick Carter, In Old Kentucky, and Suffering Suffragettes. Mr. Harold Berte also appears in illustrated songs.

WIDNES.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Jas. Kiddie.—This week Mr. J. A. Campbell's company is here with The Little Breadwinner. Mr. H. B. Peppin is a good Lord Wm. Dorrington; Mr. Reginald Brown a distinctly good Richard Lawrence; Mr. Alfred Maurice plays with ability as Joseph Prior; Mr. Sidney Lynn gains kudos as Chas. Prior; Mr. Wallace Carey is sound as Doctor Chadwick; Miss May Richardson wins all hearts as Margaret Daventry; Miss Clara Hunt plays with ability as the warm-hearted Bridget; Miss Millie Ford does well as Kate Cherry; Miss Kitty Melville is responsible for the part of Ruth Cherry, which is very ably played; and Little Winnie Crisp is exceedingly well suited with the title-rôle, and plays with much intelligence. Miss Lissa Young is capital as Bobby Trott, a London street gamin. The play is nicely mounted.

WIGAN. — ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Company.—Messrs. G. M. Polini and Austin Melford's powerful company is here, in The Silver King. Mr. F. D. Davies's masterly portrayal of Wilfred Denver meets with hearty approbation; in the rôle of Daniel Jaikes Mr. E. J. George is given a hearty reception; as Nellie Denver Miss Ruth Goodall is conspicuously successful; Mr. A. H. Rooke cleverly interprets Geoffrey Ware; Mr. E. Stanton Sharp gives a capital impersonation of the Spider; and Mr. A. Wright does extremely well as the marine store dealer.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Company.—The Achmed Ibrahim Arabs perform some remarkable tumbling feats with astonishing rapidity; Velanche's dogs have been very cleverly trained, and their football match is quite interesting and amusing; a musical turn is given by the Four Maisanos, who contribute some fine selections; Brull and Hemsley's scena, Fun in a Music Shop, is excellent, and their singing and dancing is very pleasing; Ted Waite causes quite an ovation with his humorous songs; Oakdene is an original comedy ventriloquist; and Selby and Myers are good dancers; Rose Elliott, Mint and Mart, and Bradley, trick cyclist, complete an excellent programme.

EMPIRE PALACE.—District-Manager, Mr. Gerald Hunt; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. C. Woon.—Pictures are again in evidence here this week, and include Days of Nelson, In Time of Rebellion, The Outcast, Never Forgotten Melody, Stop Those Barrels, The Baby Competition, Northern Venice, and Too Busy to Court. Vulcanet, the rope and iron king, gives a capital show.

WOLVERHAMPTON.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles Barnard; Resident-Manager, Mr. Gerald Spencer. — Messrs. Mathew H. Glenville and Fred Osmond's company opened here on Monday in The Still Alarm to a crowded house. Mr. Mathew H. Glenville gives a very creditable performance of Jack Manley; Mr. Fred Osmond scores heavily as Doc Wilber; Mr. Gerald Kennedy is effective as John Bird; and able support is given by Miss Beatrice Shirley as Elinor Fordham, Miss Hettie Zillwood as Carrie Wilber, Miss Mabel Veriton as Mrs. Manley, Mr. Lewis Gordon as Franklyn Fordham, and Mr. Tom Beasley as Willie Manley.

EMPIRE PALACE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frank Weston.—Neil Kenyon had a hearty reception here on Monday from a packed house. His best study was that of "The Village Postman," which gave ample scope for displaying that humour for which he is so justly celebrated. J. E. Finglass is one of the best delineators of coon songs seen here, and his dancing is quite out of the ordinary; Wilkie Bard's company, in "Let me sing" and "Zuyder Zee," catch on; other good turns are Bros. Lawrence, dancers; Charles Ulrich, barrel manipulator; Perceval, comedian pianist; and Lux's dogs.

WORCESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. L. Warde.—The attractive variety programme given twice nightly here includes Princess Pocahuntas, an Indian vocalist of singular charm; Mr. Alfred Wellesley and Miss Beatrice Webb (assisted by Mr. F. Harris), in a dramatic sketch, Uncle's Courtship; and clever illusions are presented by St. George Sylvesta and Miss Vera de Courtney. The Hodginis, smart trick acrobats; Percy Mayne, whose appearance in female attire is droll; Pearce and Ward, highly amusing in their burlesque boxing; Charles Leighton, pianist; Leo Fields, comedian; and Lilian Hales, vocalist, also appear.

WORKINGTON.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Manager, Mr. Falconer Jackes.—A crowded house witnessed the performance on Monday of the Elliott-Savonas, and their musical entertainment and cycling feats caused enthusiasm. Other artists favourably received were Cling and Clancy, Senorita Eloina, the L.V.O. Trio, J. C. Scutter, Miss Florence, and Little Pan.

WORTHING.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Herr C. Adolf Seebold.—A departure is made from the usual routine this week, the whole time being given to animated pictures, illustrated songs, &c. Until further notice, Sunday evening is to be devoted to a similar performance.

WREXHAM.—EMPIRE MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Jno. J. Scott.—This week the attractions have been the Levans, illustrated song demonstrators; the Reays, equilibrists and silver chain acrobats; and Fred Doran and Geo. Russell, comedians.

YORK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. J. Dacre.—Happy Hooligan provides W. W. Evans,

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

THE ADELPHI.

On Monday, Oct. 26, Revival of
"THE ONLY WAY."

The fascinating drama fashioned by Freeman Wills out of Dickens's "Tale of Two Cities," is one of Mr. Martin Harvey's most reliable attractions, and the full houses that have welcomed its revival this week would seem to justify its retention in the bill at the Adelphi for any length of time. The influence exercised by Mr. Harvey in the rôle of Sydney Carton, which he has made so essentially his own, is a powerful one, and playgoers in all parts of the auditorium have surrendered themselves wholly to its spell. His Sydney Carton remains the same finished exposition, and those who are easily moved to mirth by the grim comedy of its earlier phases, are as readily thrilled by the vigorous declamation of the tribunal scene or touched by the exquisite pathos of the later moments. Curtains innumerable have testified to the effect of Mr. Harvey's performance, which seems to have been refined to the most artistic degree. Miss N. De Silva, who has a cordial reception, repeats her admirable conception of Mimi. Her devotion to Sidney Carton is pathetically depicted, and the tender sentiment of the closing scene is delicately expressed. Miss Maud Rivers comes newly to the part of Lucie Manette, and is the personification of sweetness and innocence, her comely appearance and sympathetic delivery exercising equal charm. The veteran Mr. Fred Wright, sen., invests his old part of Dr. Manette with all his wonted impressiveness, his striving to forget the memory of a fearful past being wonderfully well conveyed. The rôle of Charles Darnay is fortunate in having an impersonator closely resembling his double in Mr. Leonard Craske, who acts with care and intelligence; and the bumptious Stryver is spiritedly played by Mr Philip Hewland. Miss Mary Rorke is a strikingly picturesque exponent of the Vengeance, and her vehement delivery adds to the effect of her lines. Mr. Charles Glenney invests with much intensity and well-varied action the rôle of Ernest Defarge, whom he makes a most terrifying personage. The Mr. Lorry of Mr. Percy Foster reflects some of the most amiable qualities of a Dickens conception The Public Prosecutor of Mr. Paul Barry is a fine performance; and Miss Bessie Elder gives a grim study of the old citizeress. The Marquis and Vicomte St. Evremond of the prologue are well embodied by Mr. Albert E. Raynor and Mr. Leslie Palmer; and among the French aristocrats the Comte De Fanchet of Mr. W. Abbey is conspicuous. Credit is also due to Mr. Alfred Mansfield, Mr. Denholm Muir, Mr. J. E. Fraser, Mr. H. Blake, Mr. Geo. Cooke, and others of a long cast. The atmosphere of the play is effectively preserved in the realistic stage effects secured by Mr. H. J. Loveday, and the mounting is in every way perfect.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Oct 26, the Play, by Mr. A. W. Pinero, entitled
"THE THUNDERBOLT."

The visit of Mrs. Patrick Campbell to the King's this week has proved highly successful. Assisted by a company which is really composed of West-end artists it is not to be wondered at that the audiences have been large and highly enthusiastic. Mrs. Campbell, seen in the part of Phyllis Mortimore, has not been fitted to the same extent as in some of her famous impersonations, but she has invested the character with such sincerity and power that the conscience-stricken woman becomes an absolute heroine, and it is needless to say that she obtains recall after recall. As the self-asserting builder, James Mortimore, Mr. Murray Carson has hardly ever been seen to so much advantage; he succeeds admirably and scores all along the line. Mr. Edgar Kent renders Stephen Mortimore incisively; while Colonel Ponting is capitally undertaken by Mr. Nigel Playfair. A very even, but rather restrained, representation of Thaddeus Mortimore is given by Mr. Julian Royce, an actor of no mean ability. Mr. J. D. Beveridge as the solicitor, Mr. Elkin, elevates the part into vast importance by his masterly style, and it is really one of the choice tit-bits of the piece. Mr. Vallance is well played by Mr. E. H. Brooke; and Mr. Charles A. Doran as the Rev. George Trist acts most effectively. Mr. Thos. N. Weguelin is good as Mr. Denyer; and Mr. E. Wensley Dale makes a capable Heath. Helen Thornhill serves to introduce Miss Stella Patrick Campbell to the London stage. Of attractive appearance, and with clear and distinct enunciation, Miss Campbell is likely to attain a foremost position on the stage, and her future career will be watched with interest. The Ann Mortimore of Miss Florence Farr is a clever one; and Miss Florence Kahn is an amusing Louisa Mortimore. Miss Florence Wells is a smart Rose Ponting. The two children of Thaddeus Mortimore, Cyril and Joyce, are very entertainingly played by Master Cyril Bruce and Miss Mignon Clifford. During the latter half of the week The Second Mrs. Tanqueray, with Mrs. Patrick Campbell to repeat her early triumph, has resulted in huge and delighted audiences.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, Oct. 26,
THE D'OYLY CARTE PRINCIPAL REPERTOIRE OPERA CO.

The D'Oyly Carte Company is appearing here this week, and on Monday night immediately secured an enthusiastic reception with The Mikado. The company, one and all, principals and chorus alike, are exceedingly capable, and their fine interpretation of this charming opera met with most cordial recognition. Mr. Leicester Tunks as the Mikado gave one of those admirable representations with which he has made us familiar in the past. His vocal numbers were finely rendered, his perfect enunciation being a particularly noteworthy feature; as Nanki-Poo Mr. Strafford Moss makes a decided success, his songs and concerted numbers, in spite of an apparent cold, being well rendered; as Pooh-Bah Mr. Fred Billington is really excellent, the Gilbertian satire being made the most of; Pish-Tush finds a capable exponent in Mr. Sidney Granville, his vocal efforts being much enjoyed, and Mr. Fred Drawater creditably portrays the part of Go-To; Mr. Charles R. Walenn is intensely funny as Ko-Ko. "They never would be missed" and "Tit-Willow" are his two great vocal successes, for which repeated encores are demanded. The charming vocalist and actress, Miss Mabel Graham, fills the rôle of Yum-Yum with grace and fascination, her numbers being sung with delightful ease and finish; the Misses Beatrice Meredith and Tessa Snelson, the other Little Maids, are effective; Miss Ethel Morrison as the elderly Katisha is the possessor of a clear voice, which she uses most artistically. Mr. T. Silver's name is a guarantee for the excellence of the orchestral work. The Mikado was repeated on Thursday, and on Tuesday and Thursday matinées The Gondoliers was successfully performed; and on Wednesday The Yeomen of the Guard was submitted, Patience being given on Friday night.

THE CORONET.

On Monday, Oct. 26, the Farce, entitled
"WHEN KNIGHTS WERE BOLD."

The hilarious progress of "Charles Marlowe's" merry conceit, When Knights Were Bold, with Mr. James Welch in the cast, is being continued at Notting Hill this week, and packed houses have given evidence of delight unlimited at the whimsicalities of the farce. Many among the audience must have enjoyed the play during its long run at Wyndham's, and every jape and jest was welcomed with a zest born of former pleasing recollections. Mr. Welch has broadened the fun of his part of Sir Guy De Vere, and is perhaps more alert and more resourceful; while piquancy is added to his dialogue by references to events of topical interest. The clever comedian steers clear of any tendency towards clowning, and his odd antics, his eccentricities, and his bright humour are kept artistically within the bounds of moderation. Incessant peals of laughter on Monday proved the power of the comedian, who works throughout with marvellous energy. The members of the Wyndham's Theatre company are all associated with the representation on tour. Miss Audrey Ford again plays Lady Rowena Eggington with stately elegance. Her delivery is marked by elocutionary grace, and her acting is a clever travesty of melodramatic fervour. The braggart Sir Brian Ballymote is invested with the requisite sinister attributes by Mr. Cecil Kinnaird; and Mr. Guy Lane's Dean Pottlebury is a suitably pompous creation, cleverly indicative of the little weaknesses of the "cloth." As the Hon. Charles Widdicombe, Mr. George Esmond acts the fop and the fool with equal ability, each rôle being diverting in its way, his jester song and dance obtaining much applause. A clever contrast of the modern Jew with the ancient is supplied by Mr. Arthur Grenville, who makes a study of make-up and accent as the wily stockbroker; and Miss Daisy Cordell gives beauty of face and power of expression to his daughter Sarah. The Hon. Mrs. Waldegrave is embodied by Miss Helen Palgrave agreeably with the requirements of the part, which are chiefly to look benign and gracious; and comely representatives of Lady Millicent, Lady Marjorie, and Kate are found in Misses Maer O'Hea, Gwendoline Rayne, and Annie Furrell. As the valet Wittle, Mr. George F. Tully supports Mr. Welch skilfully in many of his most effective scenes; and Mr. Gordon Tomkins represents the butler Barker in an exceedingly droll light. Miss Annie Chippendale makes a vivacious maid-servant; and the duties of the Herald are adequately undertaken by Mr. Leopold Profeit.

The performance on Monday was marked by the production, for the first time, of a comedy, in one act, by Matthias Alexander and Evelyn Glover, entitled

"A QUESTION OF TIME."

Jacob Rimmer ..... Mr. Harold Carson
Mary Rimmer ..... Miss Helen Palgrave
Esther ..... Miss Daisy Cordell
James Hassall ..... Mr. George Tully

Farce rather than comedy is the description that would be more applicable to the above new playlet, which has been suggested by an Old English recitation, but its production was justified by the abundant laughter it aroused. The humour of the situation is brought about by the visit of James Hassall, a young Lancashire workman, to his sweetheart, Esther, the daughter of old Farmer Rimmer. Between Esther's father and Jim's father a feud exists over the superiority of their pigs, and consequently the young man's suit is discouraged. His visit has to be made at night after the old folks have retired to rest, when Jim enters by the window. Scarcely has he made himself comfortable by the fire than the old man's footstep is heard, and Jim takes refuge in the old "grandfather's" clock which stands in the corner. Jacob had fallen asleep in his chair, and, thinking he heard voices, has returned to see that all was well. To Esther's dismay he closes the window-shutters and takes up his position by the fire, intending to enjoy a smoke. In vain Esther tries to induce him to retire, and at length Jim, cooped up in the clock, begins to play tricks with the works, striking the hours, and making the hands move rapidly round the dial. Jacob's fondness for his pigs is only exceeded by his superstition, and he views the eccentricities of the clock with terror, his daughter barely succeeding in preventing him from making an attack on the timepiece. The disturbance arouses Mrs. Rimmer, who comes down in her robe de nuit, with embellishments. Jim redoubles his exertions, and the clock chases the old couple round the room, until they flee upstairs in terror, thus enabling Jim to make good his escape. The playlet was taken in the true spirit of farce. Mr. George Tully is to be highly commended on his impersonation of the cheery young lover, Jim, employing the North Country accent with much success; and a clever character study of old Jacob Rimmer is furnished by Mr. Harold Carson. Miss Daisy Cordell displays very prettily Esther's affection for her sweetheart and perturbation at his embarrassments; and Miss Helen Palgrave causes a few moments of mirth by her appearance as the old lady. The little piece received a remarkable demonstration of approval, and the authors were loudly called, without, however, any response being made.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, Oct. 26, the Drama, entitled
"ALONE IN LONDON."

Melodrama still continues to win immense favour with Shakespeare audiences, and the management is to be congratulated upon the engagement of Mr. J. F. Elliston's company in the popular drama Alone in London. At the opening performance on Monday the house was filled with an enthusiastic audience, who followed the piece with keen interest, and bestowed liberal applause on their favourites. The scenery, too, was of a very high standard, the setting of the Sluice Gate in the third act being worthy of special praise. Mr. Harry McClelland assumes with success the genial and benevolent style of the rich banker, Mr. Burnaby, and acts throughout with dignity; Mr. Blundell Fenton is well suited to the rôle of Walter Burnaby; and Mr. Lennox Meadows hits off exactly the character of Charley Johnson. Mr. Percy Rhodes gives an admirable interpretation of the swell mobsman Richard Redcliffe, and his vigorous acting is well in keeping with the rôle. His accomplice Spriggins has an excellent representative in Mr. Frank Sutherland; and Mr. Percy Bell contributes a well-thought-out character-study of the arrant rogue Jenkinson. Mr. W. S. Hartford is naturally well gifted for the embodiment of John Bibblecombe, and is the honest and resolute farmer to the life. In the arduous rôle of Nan Miss Theresa Osborne acquits herself with decided success, and the force and pathos of the acting appeals strongly to the sympathy of the audience. Miss Gertie Douglas is a pert Liz Jenkinson, and invests the part with comic significance; a sterling delineation of the Irishwoman Mrs. Malony is contributed by Miss Nellie Lauraine; and Miss Rose Grey is a charming Ruth Clifton. A marked success is achieved by Miss Mary Stafford Smith, whose impersonation of the crippled waif Tom Chickweed stamps her as an actress of considerable ability. Miss Elsie Clarke does well as Little Paul; and all the minor parts have capable representatives.

THEATRE ROYAL, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Oct. 26, the Play entitled
"THE IDOL OF PARIS."

The united efforts of Mr. James Bell's company are securing a responsive welcome at the hands of the patrons of this house. Written by Mr. Charles Darrell, the story of The Idol of Paris is interestingly told and adequately portrayed by a well-selected cast. The play is drawing excellent audiences nightly. Miss Annie Bell in the title-rôle as Flare-Flare, a variety star, has a part which suits her to a nicety, adapting herself successfully to the needs of the moment, whether it be gaiety or the more emotional parts. Mr. Gordon Robey essays the difficult character of Prince Sergius Zoresky in a capable manner, and assumes the necessary dignity; Mr. Wilson Howard displays much ability as Philippe d'Esterre, and maintains a strong hold; Victor Cashelle is ably undertaken by Mr. Leonard Aardale, who puts heart into his work; Mr. Frank H. Dale is amusing as Tatave, and affords much pleasure; Gustave is in the capable hands of Mr. Pringle Roberts, who makes a natural notary; Mr. Chris Roberts does justice to Theo Decline; Miss Phena Powell supplies a good study in the character of Mme. Sancterre; Olympe Sosage is aptly portrayed by Miss Grace Noble; Miss Annie Megson as Ann is the source of much merriment; and Miss Pharo Anderson also offers an acceptable characterisation as Rachael Bernhardt.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

On Monday, Oct. 26, Shakespeare's Tragedy
"MACBETH."

Lovers of the immortal Bard of Avon, and they are many in the Peckham district, are having a rare treat in the enjoyment of a visit from Mr. William Mollison and company in their répertoire of Shakespearean and other plays. On Monday the piece selected was Macbeth. Mr. Mollison, with his sonorous voice and commanding presence, makes an ideal Macbeth. He shows us most artistically the brave, rugged warrior and loving husband, who, misled by his wife's evil counsel and his own ambition, commits one crime after another, and at last, fate-haunted and crushed, falls in a delirium of despair beneath Macduff's sword. Mr. Mollison was warmly cheered throughout by a very large and enthusiastic audience. Miss Evelyn McNay plays very finely as Lady Macbeth, indicating, with rare art, throughout all her wickedness, her intense love for her husband. Her sleep-walking scene was particularly admirable. Mr. William Calvert makes a first-class Macduff, his grief at the news of the murder of his wife and family being most realistically portrayed. Mr. W. A. Mackersay is a King Duncan full of "the milk of human kindness"; Mr. Henry Deas is good as Malcolm; Mr. Harold Neville a dignified Banquo; Mr. Alex Jenner an excellent wounded soldier; and Mr. Whitford Kane an efficient Rossi. Mr. R. B. Drysdale provides the one gleam of comedy in the play as the drunken porter. Miss Edith Blair-Staples, Miss Josephine Woodward, and Miss Gladys Brandon Gower are appropriately impressive as the three witches, though their tones are not sufficiently senile. The scenery and effects are admirable, and the concluding fight most realistically managed. On Tuesday The Merchant of Venice was played; on Wednesday The Bonnie Brier Bush, with a matinée of The Merchant of Venice; on Thursday Othello, and on Friday Hamlet. To-day there will be a matinée of As You Like It, with David Garrick in the evening.

ARTILLERY THEATRE, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Oct. 26, the Comedy entitled
"WHAT THE BUTLER SAW."

It is almost needless to mention that the amusing comedy of What the Butler Saw, as presented by Mr. Lionel Rignold and Miss Ada Blanche and supported by a clever company, is received with every mark of favour, and that the laughter is loud and continuous throughout the three acts. The play is excellently dressed, and the mounting is a noteworthy feature. Mr. Lionel Rignold as Pink, the butler, is in his most merrymaking vein, and keeps the house in roars of laughter, and is accorded a hearty reception; Miss Ada Blanche shows her experience and command of comedy, and imbues the part of Mrs. Barrington with characteristic mannerisms and quaint utterances, and is extremely diverting and deserves the applause so freely bestowed upon her; Mr. Charles Fawcett as Jack Barrington is unfailingly humorous, and maintains the part with excellent ability; Sir Charles Foden is made the most of in the hands of Mr. Raymond Dudley; Abraham Weinstein is amusingly characterised by Mr. Harry H. Rignold; General Dunlop is ably undertaken by Mr. George Ascot; Mr. G. Nelson Wallace gives a careful rendering of Professor Shale; Vere de Bagyns is successfully sustained by Mr. Louis Lingard; Miss Christine Jensen stands out prominently in the character of Miss Foden; Miss Julie St. George gives a skilful impersonation of Mrs. Hake; while Miss Gladys Lloyd makes an acceptable Nora. The remaining members of the cast lend effective assistance in their respective rôles.

THE GRAND, FULHAM.

On Monday, Oct. 26, the Musical Play, by Hugh Morton and Gustave Kerker, entitled
"THE BELLE OF NEW YORK."

The Belle of New York still has power to attract, although it has now attained to quite a respectable age, as things go. Possibly the secret of the attraction lies to some extent in its foreign origin and to some extent also to its possession of sundry original characters, which are not in the least of the machine-made order, such as Blinky Bill and the ineffable "polite lunatic." Mr. Musgrove's company gives an excellent representation of the piece, and it is admirably mounted and dressed. Mr. Arthur Ricketts' fine presence gives distinction to the rôle of Ichabod Bronson; Mr. James Watts makes a good representative of the racketty Harry Bronson; Mr. Jos. R. Tate, a delightful "polite lunatic," makes the most of that character; Mr. W. Hartigan is good as Snifkins; and Mr. Alec Godfrey is full of quaint humour as Kenneth Mugg. Of Mr. Frank Lawton one can say no more than that he is as good as ever, and his performance is quite inimitable. He dances as lightly and gracefully as of old, while his whistling has been developed into a fine art. His playing in the scene in the candy store, where he almost makes his whistle talk—so to say—is really delightful. Mr. Hal Kirke and Mr. Ray Cody make an excellent pair as the Portuguese Twins. Miss Hebe Kneller looks and sings well as Violet Gray; Miss Winnie Browne, a fine representative of Cora Angelique, both sings and dances well; Miss Dorothy Doria as Fifi Fricot is deservedly applauded for her excellent rendering of the song "When we are married," into which, hackneyed as it now is, she puts a considerable amount of freshness and charm. Miss Florence Hersee throws wonderful energy into her representation of Mamie Clancy, and dances excellently. The music is under the capable direction of Mr. B. G. Paterson, and Mr. Wilfred Esmond is business-manager for Mr. Bannister Howard, who "presents" the piece.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, Oct. 26, the Musical Comedy, by Seymour Hicks, entitled
"THE GAY GORDONS."

Mr. Peter Davey, the enterprising manager of the Kingston playhouse, was again fortunate in the bill of fare he placed before his patrons on Monday evening, when The Gay Gordons made their first appearance in the riverside town and quite captivated all those who were fortunate enough to make their acquaintance. There were bumper houses at each performance. Mr. Frank Lincoln made a hit in the part of Angus Graeme; Miss Maie Ash (Miss Ellaline Terris's understudy at the Aldwych) was equally successful as Peggy Quainton, her singing being especially appreciated, and her "Humpty and Dumpty" song always evoking an encore. The part of Nervy Nat, the showman, found a most capable exponent in Mr. Tom Graves, who was ably assisted by Mr. Edward Namby as Edmund and Miss Ida Laurie as Charlotte Siddons. The singing of Miss Gladys Deane was particularly noticeable. A word of commendation is also deserved by Miss Ida Mann as Janet Macleod, by Miss Kittie Lonnen as Victoria Siddons, by Mr. Norman Forrest as Corporal Smith, and Mr. Miss Nora d'Esterre and Messrs. G. Paulton, R. H. Vallis, A. Stowell, W. Terriss, and A. Bravo in other parts. It is needless to say that the costumes and the mounting of the play were all that could be desired.

NEW LYRIC, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Oct. 26, the Drama by G. Carlton Wallace, entitled
"THE VILLAGE BLACKSMITH."

This drama has an attractiveness that time does not wither, and at this house it is again doing exceedingly well. Mr. Sam Livesey still plays the title-rôle and is as good as ever. The part fits him like a glove, and he gets every particle of effect out of it. Mr. Livesey's performance is an excellent piece of acting. Miss Maggie Edwards, who plays Kate Strong, acts with much charm; Miss Lily Leicester, a clever little girl, fills the part of Harry; Mr. Albert Sinclair is particularly good as Capt. Leo, and Mr. Edwin Maydew does well as Lucas Marler; Mr. T. E. Marshall and Mrs. T. C. Livesey give highly commendable performances of Jeremiah Parkins and Sal Parkins, his wife, respectively, and both their "make-ups" are excellent; Miss Cassie le Grand in the pathetic character of Ruth Parkins is entirely satisfactory; a quaint and laughable country boy is the Billy Twigg of Mr. Fred Haming, and Miss Edith Giddens as Martha Mopps helps largely in the fun of the piece. The wrestling match between Capt. Leo and John Strong is most realistically worked and earns enthusiastic applause. The staging is really well done.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Oct. 26, the Play, entitled
"THE PRODIGAL SON."

The homely story detailed in the play of The Prodigal Son is evidently well suited to the taste of a Dalston audience judging by the applause which is greeting the representations of that popular play this week at the house named. Two principal characters are played by Mr. Gordon Mackintosh as Oscar Stephensson and Mr. Hugh Montgomery as Magnus Stephensson. The latter, the conscientious, long-suffering brother, has a truly excellent representative in Mr. Montgomery; Oscar, the wanderer, is equally well portrayed by Mr. Mackintosh, who, when occasion requires, imparts an amount of sympathetic feeling to the rendition of the part which impresses the audience. Mr. Charles Cooper plays Stephen Magnusson, Governor of Iceland; and Miss Barbara Gott succeeds very cleverly as Anna. Miss Valerie Crespin, who undertakes the dual rôle of Thora Neilson and Elin, acts with convincing power in certain scenes in the play; Mr. Philip Renouf is Oscar Neilson, the factor; and Miss Mildred Cottell as Helga, his daughter, makes a hit in the part allotted to her. Miss Marie Harcourt is also decidedly good as Margaret Neilson, the factor's sister. Mr. E. Christopher is a business-like Sheriff; and Mr. Ernest Rivarz is a pleasant Dr. Olsen. Mr. George W. Hewetson's pastor is a neat study; Miss Nellie Gilbert's Lady Slingstone is effective; and other characters find admirable exponents in Messrs. C. A. Maynard, G. Dickson-Kenwin, A. Hall, H. Dobson, F. Manners, F. Ritchen, and L. West; and Misses Gertrude Rose, Edith Delaney, and Una Gilbert.

BRITANNIA THEATRE.

On Monday, Oct. 26, the Drama, by Emma Litchfield, entitled
"THE GUIDING STAR."

The production this week here of The Guiding Star has attracted crowded houses to this popular house. The play, which teems with thrilling incidents, allows the artists unlimited scope to show their abilities, and gives the scene-painter and costumier opportunities to produce effective pictures and charming dresses. Mr. H. Ryeland Leigh again scores as Harold Hagar, a character which suits him completely; his powerful build and voice make the part stand out prominently. Mr. Harry Tresham plays the devoted lover, Jack Hilton, in his accustomed earnest, manly fashion. Farmer Dean is well represented by Mr. Conrad E. Clerke; Mr. C. Allen Hineson is quite at home in the rôle of Martin Hardcliffe; Mr. Herbert Young scores as the "dude," Alan Allenby; Mr. Ivan P. Gore plays with marked ability the village know-all, Joe Slater, in the earlier scenes, and later appears with success as a French gendarme. The lighter portions of the play are in the capable hands of Mr. H. G. Brandon, who represents Bob Bowser humorously. He is ably assisted by Miss Florence Barnes as Dolly Dean, a pert little serving-maid. Congratulations must be bestowed upon Miss Lalla Stanhope for her most winsome and dainty portrayal of the dual character of the twin sisters, Madge and Gladys Goodwin. She wins the sympathy of her audience. Miss Etheyle Gordon Murray as Mother Hagar has a part that requires skilful handling, but is equal to all demands made upon her, and is rewarded with applause. Miss Edna Lester plays successfully as Patty Brown and Mrs. Slater. Mr. Fred A. Fowler is kept busy in his capacity of manager in attending to his numerous patrons, and is becoming exceedingly popular in the district.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Oct. 26, the Drama, entitled
"THE PRINCE AND THE BEGGAR MAID."

This popular success of Mr. Walter Howard's was presented here on Monday evening, and met with a gratifying reception. Mr. Ivan Cleveland is capitally cast in the part of the cruel Hildred, Prince of Sylvania; Mr. Græme Campbell presents a clever impersonation of the deformed Prince Michael; Mr. Herbert Ford admirably sustains the rôle of the brave and handsome Prince Olaf; Mr. Edmund Lee gives a striking portrait of the brusque Colonel Wellenberg; and Mr. Francis Hawley is to be commended for his Bishop of Illyria. Mr. Lewin D. Mannering is very good as Capt. Hector; Mr. Kendal Chalmers is successful in providing amusement as Lieut. Karl Stronberg; Colonel Schwartz is well played by Mr. Ivan Ewart; and Mr N. Christie deserves praise for his Capt. Karaberg. That clever actress, Miss Annie Saker, again delights playgoers by her admirable acting as Monica, Princess of Illyria; Miss Dido Drake is very pretty as Viola; and Miss Isla Garnett-Vayne deserves to be highly praised for her impersonation of the beggar maid, Camiola. The play is nicely mounted and dressed, and the military uniforms are particularly fine.

TRINITY COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

At the Students' Concert given at the Trinity College on Monday afternoon Mr. Ernest Palser gave a neatly-executed organ solo of Mendelssohn's Sonata in F Minor, No. 1. In Goring Thomas's charming song "A Summer Night" Miss Geraldine Anness displayed artistic feeling in her singing, but the introduction of a violoncello obbligato proved somewhat superfluous, although capitally played by Mr. Walter Britton. A very youthful pupil of Miss Maude Agnes Winter, Miss Eugenie Lenaerts, was much applauded in her piano solo "Grace," Op. 149 No. 5, by Charles Mayer; and Miss Mabel Staley, who possesses an excellent contralto voice, sang Handel's recitative "Frondi tenere" and aria "Ombra mai fu" with great intelligence, though a little more breadth of style would have been welcome, but that will no doubt come with greater experience. Miss Staley had a most hearty recall. Miss Bertha Tomlin played Chopin's "Berceuse" with care and expression; and Miss Florence McCarthy distinguished herself in "The gleaner's slumber song" of R. H. Walthew. Miss Dorothy R. P. Murray's pianoforte solo "Hexentanz," by McDowell, proved entirely successful; while Miss Gertrude Wallis greatly pleased the audience in her singing of "The Wren" and "The Yellowhammer," two songs of Liza Lehmann's.

MATINEE AT THE KENNINGTON.

The cause of the little ones has been warmly taken up by the Mayor of Southwark, and in aid of his worship's fund for supplying meals to underfed children a concert was given on Tuesday afternoon at the Kennington Theatre, kindly lent for the occasion by Mr. Robert Arthur. The matinée, which was under the patronage of the Prince and Princess of Wales, was liberally supported, the handsome theatre being quite filled in stalls, pit, balcony, and gallery alike. The audience included the Mayor of Southwark (Alderman A. G. Grantham, J.P.), and other aldermen and councillors, who attended in state. Mr. H. B. Brandreth, the popular manager, and the whole staff of the theatre gave their services free, the entire proceeds of the performance being thus available for the fund. Mr. E. T. Steyne, of the Apollo Theatre, had the direction of the stage for the occasion, and Mr. C. F. Parsley acted as chief of staff.

The entertainment differed in few respects from those presented under similar circumstances at the West-End, and many leading artists figured in the programme. A notable contribution to the concert was that of the orchestra of 110 instrumentalists, consisting of members of the Musicians' Union, who gave magnificent renderings of the overture from William Tell of Rossini, and of Tschaikowsky's "1812" overture, the immense volume of sound produced being quite thrilling. The orchestra was conducted by Mr. Jullien H. Wilson, who had repeatedly to bow his acknowledgments. An early appearance was made by Mr. Lionel Brough, who was warmly welcomed, and caused unlimited mirth by a number of stories told in his most effective style. Similar results were obtained by Mr. Malcolm Scott, who dilated on the subject of geography and kept his hearers in constant laughter. Mr. Rutland Barrington was in his drollest vein, and gave the story of a cannibal with irresistible humour, and the house roared continuously at Mr. J. J. Dallas' quaint rendering of his clever song, "In my mind."

A popular favourite was also found in Miss Ada Reeve, who had to respond to an encore for her archly-rendered song of a servant, and gave her piquantly pointed "Nursery Tales." A much-appreciated item of the bill was the sketch Find the Lady First, presented by Levey and Lilliput, in which Miss Adele Lévey submits some graceful sword play and joins a diminutive comedian in a mock melodrama. The Meister Singers' two unaccompanied glees were tastefully rendered and warmly applauded; Mr. W. Douthitt won much admiration for his cultivated singing; Mr. Reginald Leyland caused laughter by his travesty at the piano of grand opera; Miss Winsome Mayde danced picturesquely in an episode called The Dagger Dance of Peshawar; and Little Gladys Francis won protracted applause for her imitations, and responded with a dainty dance. Contributions to the programme were also made by Doroswami, an expert violinist; Miss Schwartz, a refined ballad singer; Mr. Hugh E. Wright, comic; and Master R. J. Heney, soprano. An appropriate item of the bill was found in a one-act piece specially written for the occasion by Frank Dix, entitled

"THE WAIF."

Auriol Raynor ..... Miss Elsie Evelyn Hill
Jasper White ..... Mr. Frank Dix
Mark Ellerton ..... Mr. George W. Cockburn
Jimmy Collins ..... Master Bobbie Andrews

It is a simple tale of a crossing-sweeper, who is given food and shelter during a snowstorm by a kindly clergyman. The charitable act is witnessed by a celebrated actress, who gives the minister money for the poor lad. She learns through the mouth of a blind pedlar that the boy is no other than her own son, whom years before her heartless husband had informed her was dead. The boy is brought out from the church in a fainting condition, and dies in his mother's arms. The little piece was well acted, the services of Master Bobbie Andrews being secured for the title-rôle, which he presented very naturally. Mr. George W. Cockburn gave a good study of Blind Mark; Mr. Frank Dix was a benign clergyman; and Miss Elsie Evelyn Hill played sympathetically as the young mother.

Towards the end of the performance the Mayor went on to the stage and thanked the audience for their kindness in coming there in spite of the inclement weather. He would thus be able to add approximately 165gs. to his fund for underfed children. His thanks were also given to Mr. Robert Arthur for placing his beautiful theatre at his disposal, which, coupled with the generosity of the artists and the fact that there had been no working expenses, would enable him to say that the gross takings for that most enjoyable entertainment would be handed over to the fund. He also tendered his thanks to the artists for their generosity in sacrificing their well-earned rest that afternoon to come down and give of their best. He added his most hearty thanks to Mr. Jullien Wilson, who, backed up by his splendid orchestra of talented musicians, had given such grand performances of beautiful overtures. He also thanked Mr. Steyne, who for the past week or two had been busily engaged in organising the group of artists who had done him such credit. Finally his worship thanked Mr. Brandreth, the manager of the theatre, and the working staff for their endeavours towards the success attained.

DEATH OF HERBERT FLEMMING.

A power in the theatrical world of the Antipodes has been removed by the death at Melbourne on the 23rd inst. of Mr. Herbert Flemming, the well-known Australian manager and actor. The deceased entrepreneur was sole director of the Herbert Flemming Comedy Company, and in that capacity controlled a good deal of the dramatic entertainments of the Australian stage. Mr. Flemming, who was fifty-two years of age, had a considerable amount of his early experiences in Australia. He came to London in 1892, and appeared as Krogstad in Ibsen's Doll's House, at the Avenue Theatre, in The Primrose Path at the Vaudeville, in Strathlogan at the Princess's, in The Queen of Manoa at the Haymarket, and in Alexandra and Clever Alice at the Royalty. As jeune premier at the Adelphi he supported the late Mr. Terriss and Miss Jessie Milward, appearing in A Woman's Revenge in 1893, and The Cotton King and Shall We Forgive Her? in 1894. After touring for some time in South Africa, Mr. Flemming four years ago entered into partnership with the late Mr. Robert Brough in Australia, and on his partner's death carried on the business with undiminished success.

Among Mr. Flemming's enterprises was that of conducting a two and a half years' tour of the Brough-Flemming company, from Western Australia to farthest north Queensland, and the length and breadth of New Zealand. The Brough-Flemming productions have included Beauty and the Barge, The Walls of Jericho, Little Mary, Quality Street, Dr. Wake's Patient, Mrs. Gorringe's Necklace, Peter's Mother, What Would a Gentleman Do? Village Priest, Niobe, Sowing the Wind, and Olivia. It is a noteworthy fact that three of the productions were staged and ran concurrently with the London productions.

Mr Flemming's death was due to a chill contracted during a journey from Sydney to Adelaide.

Mr. Editor.—Sir,—In your issue of last week your correspondent, in his notice of The Flower Girl, at His Majesty's Theatre, Aberdeen, says the company is mine. This is an error. It is Mr. Charles M. Bestic's company, and I am simply playing for him in the part of Joe Wheeler.—Yours faithfully, Martin Adeson, Her Majesty's Theatre, Dundee, Oct. 27, 1908.

ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

Minutes of the meeting of the Council held at 353, Strand, on Tuesday, Oct. 27. Present: Mr. Fred Grove (in the chair), Mr. H. W. Mote (hon. solicitor), Messrs. Cecil Raleigh, Clarence Derwent, J. Sebastian Smith, Franklin Walford, Misses Marion Lind, and Lucy Sibley, and Mr. Hubert Blount (secretary)

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

The following letter from the V.A.F. to the secretary of the Association was read:—"Dear Sir,—I am in receipt of your favour of Oct. 22, and on behalf of the Variety Artists' Federation in general, and of the Executive Committee in particular, I beg to thank the Council for the unanimous vote of sympathy with this organisation during the present crisis. We trust the time is near at hand when all sections of performers, both theatrical and variety, will be so organised that the grievances under which the performers have so long suffered will be redressed, and that they who are instrumental in drawing the public to the various houses of entertainment will have their just demands fully and absolutely recognised, and not be treated as humanised dividend-earning machines as heretofore.—Believe me, dear sir, yours faithfully, M. BAYLY, general secretary."

The hon. solicitors submitted the copy of a letter received from a member in reply to a letter from the solicitor. They reported that they had written to another member, and to a railway company again as to a claim made.

The chairman read a letter from various members, and the secretary was instructed to reply.

Miss Dorothy White was elected a member, and two ladies were nominated.

Mr. Raleigh read a letter from Mr. Leveaux suggesting that Mr. Sydney C. A. Bent, of Ravenslearond, Wandsworth Common, be made hon. medical officer to the A.A., and the secretary was instructed to write to Mr. Bent asking him whether he would be willing to serve.

The secretary reported the following engagements, namely: Henry Atwater with H. B. Irving, Henry Le Grand with Charles Stewart, Edwin Millind with Lawrence Gwen, Herbert Dickeson with Langford Reede, and Gertrude Le Sage with Langford Reede.

The Council discussed the question of the socials.

The following ladies are the committee for the Cinderella dance: Misses Georgina Hamilton, Marion F. Lind, and Joan Pereira.

ACTORS' UNION.

The usual committee meeting of the Actors' Union took place on the 22nd inst., when the following members were present: Messrs. A. Maitland Stapley (chairman), F. Rawson Buckley, Robert M. Taylor, Orlando Barnett, Gerald Mirrielees, Edward Y. Rae, Leslie Arthur, and Kenneth Blackmore (secretary).

Letters were received during the week from Messrs. Geo. H. Child, Oswald Marshall, Jerrold Heather, Fred F. Loyd, Arthur Bawtree, George P. Lester, James English, Royce Milton, J. Hastings Batson, Edward Chester, Owen Roughwood, Frank Gerald, and H. Tripp-Edgar.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

The following were appointed to constitute the Finance Committee, a quorum to consist of three, and all cheques to be signed by any two of the Finance Committee and the general secretary: Messrs. Harry Paulton, jun. (hon. treasurer), Leslie Arthur, Gerald Mirrielees, Robert M. Taylor, and A. Maitland Stapley.

A vote of thanks to the president of the Actors' National Protective Union of America for his letter was passed, and the secretary was instructed to ask for a book of their rules and for a copy of their contract.

The secretary was instructed to appoint Mr. F. Halliday, Stanley Arms Hotel, Preston, and Mr. Tom Hazelhurst, De Silva's Hotel, St. John's-lane, Liverpool, agents of the A.U. in their respective towns.

A proposition that no more new agents be appointed until the new year was carried.

Owing to the fact that his time is so fully occupied, Mr. Owen Roughwood sent in his resignation from the committee, which the executive accepted with regret.

It was resolved that those members who have not bought a stamp on their last year's card be written to to the effect that unless an answer is received by Nov. 5 (first post) they will be struck off the books of the Union without further notice.

It was decided that the Finance Committee should form the sub-committee to enquire into the state of the Union, and make a written report to be laid before the Executive Committee.

Three new members were elected.

AN ACTRESS'S ACTION.

At Lambeth County Court on Wednesday Miss Dorothy Carlton, an actress, residing at Fairfax-road, Bedford Park, brought an action against Mr. Charles M. Bestic, theatrical manager, of Sidney-road, Stockwell, to recover one week's salary, the railway fare from Oldham to London, and £3 damages for wrongful dismissal.

The plaintiff informed his Honour Judge Cluer that in April she was engaged to go on tour with a company in The Flower Girl, a musical play. During a rehearsal at Birkenhead the stage-manager accused her of smiling, and ordered her off the stage. She was not allowed to perform again, and no salary was paid in lieu of notice. Her reappearance in the play was made conditional, but she refused to apologise to the stage-manager, not having anything to apologise for, and the result was that she was stranded at Oldham.

Cross-examined by Mr. Arthur Bolden, who defended, plaintiff said she was willing to perform, but was not allowed to. She was not dismissed, but simply ordered from the stage.

Miss Gladwys Smith and Miss Gertie Jackson, members of the company, denied that plaintiff's conduct at rehearsal gave cause for complaint. She was, in fact, one of the quietest members of the company.

Mr. Gliddon, musical-director of the piece, said plaintiff behaved frivolously in a solemn scene—the scene wherein an orphan girl was leaving home. He had noticed her laughing and chattering several times, and she was seldom ready to take up her lines, "Farewell to this dear girl." At the rehearsal in question she tittered, and turned her back when requested not to laugh, saying she would do as she liked. When requested to leave the stage plaintiff said, "With pleasure." She received her salary for that week, and was told she might resume her part if she would apologise.

In answer to Mr. H. W. Mote, solicitor for plaintiff, witness said that he did not know that the stage-manager had been very unpopular among the whole company: he had simply been very strict.

The Judge awarded the plaintiff one week's salary, the railway fare from Oldham to London, and the £3 claimed as damages.

IN response to numerous applications the committee of the Grenfell Club, 23, Bedford-street, Strand, have decided to admit a limited number of gentlemen connected with the various professions as associate members. The Thursday evening "At Homes" have become quite a recognised function, and a new drawing-room exclusively for lady members is being added.

THE KENNINGTON.

On Monday, Oct. 26, for the first time in London, the Play, in One Act, translated and adapted by Mr. P. G. Duchesne from La Gouvernante of M. Provins, and entitled

"THE NURSERY GOVERNESS."

Captain Trent .....MR. HARCOURT WILLIAMS
Mrs. Trent .....MISS JEAN STERLING MACKINLAY
Simpson Brigge .....MR. ASHTON PEARSE
Wilson .....MISS BARBARA HANNAY

Surely no region of the vast metropolis is better served in the matter of amusement than the south, and certainly no more beautiful theatre is to be discovered in any London district than the house that is so prettily situated near Kennington Park. Here Mr. Robert Arthur presents to his patrons all the greatest theatrical attractions from the West, and week after week Londoners across the bridges are treated to the best of fare. This week Mr. George Alexander and Miss Irene Vanbrugh are to be seen in that clever piece of dramatic work The Thief, which was recently drawing large houses to the St. James's. The attractions of the chief piece have been strengthened by the addition of a curtain-raiser, The Nursery Governess, which does not suffer from its French origin. This is due to the skill of the adaptor, Mr. P. G. Duchesne, who has added a really funny piece with droll situations to the limited number of first pieces that have the precious quality of making one laugh. Captain Trent, for some flimsy cause, has been divorced from his wife—at the suit of the lady; and when the curtain rises on the piece Mrs. Trent has virtually become engaged again, and has adopted her maiden name of Hester Lorimer. The ex-husband and the prospective husband meet, the latter being an old-womanish, elderly prig named Simpson Brigge. On his departure Trent has an interview with his wife, who, though divorced, is still the bonne camarade, and it is evident that Brigge is not at all the sort of man that such an impulsive and unconventional woman is likely to put up with for long. Trent becomes quite friendly with Brigge—for his own purposes bien entendu; and artfully insinuates that Hester (Mrs. Trent) has had some love passages with a cousin, and is not altogether blameless in the matter of the divorce. There is a stormy scene between the wife and her suitor, while Trent goes to play with his children, and the quarrel becomes more acute when Brigge tells taradiddles concerning his youthful days and makes himself out to be quite a "dog." A question of the colour of the upholstery in the ménage that is to be brings matters to a climax, and with the departure of Simpson Brigge it is easy to see that the separated pair will never allow the decree nisi to become absolute. Miss Jean Sterling Mackinlay, who allies charm to comedy power, gives a delightful portrait of Mrs. Trent; and Mr. Harcourt Williams has quite an agreeable rattle as Captain Trent, keeping the audience in hilarious mood whenever he is on the stage. Mr. Ashton Pearse as Simpson Brigge portrays a typical old prig very cleverly; and the cast is completed by Miss Barbara Hannay as Wilson. The piece is received nightly with roars of laughter.

Mr. George Alexander as Richard Chelford and Miss Irene Vanbrugh as Marise Chelford hold the house in thrall during the second act in the most powerful and painful scene of The Thief, and the absorbed attention of packed houses has been the most eloquent testimony to the intensity of the acting of both these admirable players. Mr. Reginald Owen, a young actor of considerable ability, handles the character of Harry with rare tact and discretion; Mr. E. Vivian Reynolds makes an excellent Mr. Protheroe; Mr. Dawson Milward does effective work as Raymond Leyton; and Miss Nina Sevening's winsomeness is a great factor in her unquestioned success in the part of Isabel Leyton. Mr. Montague Wigan is irreproachable as the servant. Mr. Brandreth, the acting-manager for Mr. Robert Arthur, is a courteous and genial gentleman, whom it is a pleasure to meet.

"PIERRE OF THE PLAINS."

Dramatisation, in Four Acts, of Sir Gilbert Parker's Novel, "Pierre and His People," by Edgar Selwyn.

Mr. Selwyn scored a double success at the Hudson Theatre on the 12th inst., as his dramatic version of Sir Gilbert Parker's story was received with marked approval, and for his impersonation of Pierre he has been credited with a remarkably fine performance. Pierre is a half-breed and a gambler, and everybody mistrusts him, but he has the redeeming virtue of never forgetting a kindness. This brings him to old Galbraith's road house to give warning that the Canadian mounted police are on the trail of Val Galbraith for killing an Indian. He schemes with Val's father to get the fugitive over the Canadian border into Montana. Sergeant Tom Redding, of the mounted police, comes to the elder Galbraith's house, expecting to capture Val, but is put out of action by a few drops of laudanum. Val's sister Jen, the masterful little heroine, is in love with the brave but luckless Tom, and being ignorant of the fact that he is pursuing her own brother, she rides to the headquarters of the mounted police and delivers the orders that she finds in his pocket. This act of hers leads to the capture of her brother, and by the time Sergeant Tom has shaken off the effects of the drug Val has been taken prisoner and led back to the house. The girl is almost distracted when she learns what has happened. The police ride away with the prisoner to place him in a cell, and Pierre and Jen put their heads together, intending to set him free. Jen has struck him and called him an ugly name on learning that her lover has been drugged and taken, but now she has faith in Pierre and will go with him to take care of the horses. It is the first time anyone has trusted the half-breed, and he is duly grateful; but he forgets himself for a moment and starts to make love to her Then the gambler remembers. "It is not in the cards," he says, and besides, he is losing valuable time. They manage to release Val whilst his captors are asleep and escort him to a spot where it is an easy run to safety across the frontier. But the police are after Pierre, and Jap Durkin, a guide who has a grudge against the half-breed, has sworn to get him. The pursuers arrive, but Pierre has disappeared. The others ride on, but Durkin lingers. He catches sight of Pierre through the brushwood, and there ensues a realistic and exciting struggle, strongly suggestive of the fierce fight that occurs in The Wolf, another Canadian play that was recently described. The struggle becomes a hand-to-hand fight with knives. Durkin finds he is getting the worst of it and tries to run. Pierre follows him up a steep incline, and they grapple with each other at the summit. Finally Pierre puts all his strength into a mighty effort. His knife reaches his enemy's heart, and the guide falls backward down the rocks. This is a thrilling scene, and it evokes a storm of applause. To oblige his sweetheart Sergeant Tom allows Pierre to slip through his fingers. The pursuit goes on, however, and as the curtain falls Pierre shuffles his cards to find out from them whether the police will catch him before he gets over the border.

SEVERAL places of amusement in Liverpool have this week shown outside notices containing the following intimation:—"Children under fourteen years of age are not admitted unless accompanied by a parent or guardian." This action is the result of the hint thrown out last week by the Licensing Bench. Whether the new rule will prove of any effect is generally doubted, for it will be an easy matter for youngsters to pass the pay-box in the care of a sympathetic elder.

AMERICAN AMUSEMENTS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

NEW YORK, OCT. 14.—Miss Maxine Elliott began an engagement at Daly's Theatre on the 5th inst., appearing in a three-act play entitled Myself—Bettina, by Miss Rachel Crothers, author of The Three of Us. Bettina Dean, the character assumed by Miss Elliott, has been in Paris for four years, studying singing, and when she returns to the straitlaced New England household she creates a stir. Bettina has had a girlish inclination towards John Marshall, the minister, but is not sure that she is really in love with him. Her sister Mamie, who lives as a member of the minister's family, is betrothed to the clergyman's brother, Lennox Marshall, who has wronged her. Bettina arranges to appear as Salome at a church entertainment. Her selection of this character angers the minister, and he lectures her severely. Highly indignant, Bettina decides to go to a village dance which she has previously promised not to attend, such things being regarded as sinful in the community. She is accompanied by Lennox Marshall, who, at the first opportunity, makes violent love to her. Bettina's sister overhears, and being discovered weeping, confesses her fault. Sympathy grows between Bettina and the minister through his ready forgiveness of the younger girl. He insists that his brother shall marry Mamie, but Bettina argues that such a union would mean unhappiness for both of them, having no genuine moral foundation, and the clergyman finally agrees with her. So Bettina sends her sister to Paris to study music in her stead, and stays at home to become the wife of the minister. The scene showing the rehearsal of Salome proved most diverting, although the dance was too brief to cause much excitement. Miss Elliott played Bettina with her accustomed ease and naturalness, and looked most charming. Mr. Julian L'Estrange was excellent in the rôle of the clergyman; Mr. Eric Maturin contributed a clever character sketch of the boyish scamp Lennox Marshall; and Messrs. Grant Mitchell and Thomas J. Kelly did well in important rôles.

"THE AMERICAN IDEA," a musical comedy in three acts, produced last week at the New York Theatre, is George M. Cohan's "latest." It satirises the doings of certain wealthy Americans in Paris, just as The Yankee Prince dealt with the adventures of the same sort of folk in London. What semblance of a plot there is refers to the troubles of a Dutch brewer and an Irish politician who live in Brooklyn, and decide to go to Paris to catch a French Count as a son-in-law. There are plenty of lively dances and catchy songs, the finale of the second act, "American Ragtime," being particularly good. Frankly frivolous, the piece is calculated to drive away dull care, and is therefore immensely popular with the great army of theatregoers who are not severely critical.

MR. JAMES K. HACKETT is appearing at his own theatre in a very successful revival of The Prisoner of Zenda, in which play Mr. Hackett distinguished himself during the days of the old Lyceum Theatre in Fourth-avenue. His fine presence and graceful bearing are personal advantages that go a long way in plays of this kind, and his expert swordsmanship gives those who witness it some most enjoyable thrills. Mr. Hackett has also revived The Crisis, one of the most popular plays in his répertoire. His company includes Miss Mabel Roebuck, Miss Alison Skipworth, Messrs. Arthur Hoops, Brigham Royce, Carl Ahrendt, John Dugan, and several other well-known players.

MISS MARY MANNERING is rehearsing a new emotional drama by E. B. Tilton called Memory and To-Morrow, in which she will play the part of a young girl who falls into the hands of an unscrupulous artist in London. He deserts her, and she emigrates to America, where she marries and endeavours to begin life anew. Eight years afterwards the artist crosses her path and threatens to expose her past life, and the play depicts the heroic fight of the woman for the happiness of herself and her family.

NEW YORK, OCT. 21.—The Golden Butterfly, a comic opera in three acts, has made a decided hit at the Broadway Theatre. The piece was written and composed by Harry B. Smith and Reginald de Koven respectively, and it deals with musical plagiarism, the jealousies of leading artists, and the vagaries and vanities of the green room. The central figure of the story is Ilma Walden, a chorus girl of the Buda Pesth opera, whose lover, Franz, goes to Paris to become a famous musician. Having spent his last sou and failed to win renown, he returns with a band of street musicians to find Ilma still waiting for her "chance" at the opera. In the meantime she has to eke out her income by teaching. His inadvertent confession that during their separation he has amused himself with other sweethearts excites his lady love to anger. She scorns him, and immediately after he learns that she is to replace the prima donna of the opera, who has fallen ill on the eve of the production of the opera written by the Baron von Affenkoff, one of the directors. Surprising them at rehearsal, Franz recognises in the supposed work of the Baron his own lost masterpiece. Meanwhile, the prima donna, scenting a rival, suddenly recovers, and Ilma's return to the chorus is inevitable when Franz, impersonating a Russian prince, persuades the prima donna to elope with him, and enables his sweetheart to win her triumph. In her despair at Franz's apparent perfidy, however, Ilma promises her hand to the Baron, but in the last act she escapes an undesirable marriage, and the lovers are brought together, while Franz wins recognition as a great composer. "Great Musicians," a humorous number with musical effects that illustrate the singer's story of the theft of his "original" compositions, made an immediate hit. His listeners are entirely wrong in crediting certain familiar strains to Verdi or Sullivan. They really belong to an opera composed by the Baron. Mr. Louis Harrison made the most of his opportunities as the Baron, and was particularly good in the song just mentioned. Miss Grace Van Studdiford, in the rôle of Ilma, easily upheld her position as a reigning favourite of light opera, and sang several pleasing numbers in a most delightful manner.

MR. DENMAN THOMPSON, who is appearing once more as Joshua Whitcomb in The Old Homestead, has just celebrated his seventy-fifth birthday. He has been playing this part for thirty-three years.

MR. LOUIS MANN is appearing at the Circle Theatre, under the management of Mr. W. A. Brady, in a four-act play called The Man Who Stood Still, by Jules Eckert Goodman. Johann Krauss, a kindly, old-fashioned man, who sells clocks and watches and cheap jewellery at his little shop in the Bowery, is the individual referred to in the title. When the story begins old Krauss is content. When he left the old country with his wife twenty years ago he found happiness in America. His wife is dead, but he has a daughter on the verge of womanhood; he has made friends, and he loves his business. But with the flight of time certain things happen which force the old man to realise that he is out of touch with the progressive spirit of the age. Cheap workmanship and cheap prices are in demand nowadays. The old Swiss movements, that to his mind represent the highest excellence in the art of watchmaking, are out of date, "a good watch for a dollar" having taken their place. Then the Russian immigrant he has employed from the day he landed in America goes over to his rival, and his rival's son disgraces his daughter Marie, and finally runs away with her. The old man is heartbroken. He has lived for his daughter, his clocks, and his old friends. Marie was to have married Fred Spiegel, the son of a neighbour whom Krauss has known for many years, and who plays pinochle with him every evening, but it was not to be. During their usual game one evening it comes out that Marie has borne a child and is not married. This is the hardest blow of all. Spiegel has sheltered the mother and child, but when he learns there has been no marriage his harshness severs the friendship that exists between him and the old watchmaker. In the final scene Krauss is moving away from the old shop. Only a few empty show cases remain and the pasteboard sign that tells of "a good watch for a dollar"—the article that has made such inroads into his business. Alone, Krauss comes to take a last look round. A little girl is playing with a cuckoo clock. She proves to be his daughter's child, and when she puts her arms around his neck the old man's heart is softened and Marie is forgiven. Fred Spiegel has already offered to marry the girl, and the Russian lad who used to work for Krauss puts the old man in charge of the jewellery department of his new store, so the fortunes of the man who "stood still" seem to be on the mend when the curtain falls. Mr. Mann has never done anything better than his representation of the old-fashioned watchmaker. Remembering the ludicrous dialect parts that he has chiefly played for a number of years, his delineation of the father's rage and grief in the second act when he learns that his daughter is gone was a remarkable exhibition of versatility and power. Mr. Robert A. Fischer was splendid as the irascible Spiegel, and, with Mr. Mann, was repeatedly recalled, their respective impersonations evoking frequent and hearty applause.

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

SYDNEY, SEPT. 14.—Mr. Frank Thornton is now playing what is to be his farewell season in Australia, and past and present generations of playgoers declare, in large nightly crowds at the Palace Theatre, that his Private Secretary is as funny and clever as ever. He has strong support in Mr. Harry Ashford, who acts Old Cattermole with rare judgment. The term "veteran" sits ill on Mr. Thornton's shoulders, for never was he livelier or more eager to make points as the self-effacing curate than now. The house is full to overflowing, and kept in a whirlwind of delighted laughter. Mr. Edwin Geach promises a revival of all Mr. Thornton's popular farces before he goes away, to our intense regret.

"MRS. WIGGS OF THE CABBAGE PATCH" has caught popular fancy with its consistent characteristics of the innocent life of up-country Americans. Recent Transatlantic fiction has schooled us in the idioms and slow-moving methods of these people, with their transparent hearts, so that we enjoy the philosophy of Mrs. Wiggs, as impersonated by Miss Ada Dwyer, with a wholesome heartiness. The rustic drama will run until the 25th, and next night Her Majesty's will see the Sydney première of The Merry Widow.

THE Tivoli has Mr. Harry Rickards's biggest bill for years. Wild enthusiasm greets the most marvellous and captivating performance of Abdullah's Moorish Arabs. Nothing like it has ever been seen here, and the performers fairly revel in the reception accorded to their efforts. Miss Nellie Wilson, now paying us her third visit, is a sterling favourite with every part of the house. She is always welcome. The Rigoletto Brothers, the Miles-Stavordale Quintette, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Meymott (capital sketchists), Bella Perman, Fanny Powers, Austin Rudd, Ted Kalman ("the boss laugh-maker"), Nita Leete, the rich-voiced contralto), Maud Florence, and Eileen Lyons are among Mr. Rickards' many-sided attractions.

SYDNEY, SEPT. 22.—Peter Pan, at the Theatre Royal, will be succeeded by a revival of Dorothy Vernon, in which Miss Tittell Brune and Mr. Thomas Kingston will occupy prominent places. Meanwhile, the revels of the Thespian juveniles continue to amuse their contemporaries.

MR. WILLIAMSON'S next venture is the Ada Crossley series of concerts, beginning on Oct. 1. The Australian contralto will be assisted by Percy Grainger, another Victorian, Mr. John Harrison, Mr. Hamilton Earle, and Mr. Leon Sametini.

THE Tivoli is crowded at every performance to see the wonderful troupe of Arabs, headed by Abdullah. This turn is the most attractive and talked-about of all the Harry Rickards importations. Last Saturday the fine programme was enlarged by the addition of Mr. Burt Shepard, from the Palace Theatre, London, and the Barnard Family, in Dolls Alike, an amusing sketch. Miss Nellie Wilson, on her third visit, is heartily welcomed every night; and Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Meymott play capital sketches.

THE National Amphitheatre has added Florrie and Stella Ranger, two sterling favourites, and Denis Carney, a Yorkshire character actor. Tod Callaway, the clever Australian comedian; McKisson and Kearns, and a lot more clever artists, entertain at low prices.

AMUSEMENTS IN BRUSSELS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BRUSSELS, OCT. 27.—Guillaume Tell has been the attraction at the Opera House here. Moreille, Faust, Carmen, and Siegfried have also been successfully revived. The only novelty has been a one-act ballet by Ambrosiny entitled Quand les Chats sont Partis ("When the cats are away . .").

AT the Parc, La Duse has been seen in Gioconda, Hedda Gabler, Rosmersholm, and Adrienne Lecouvreur by crowded and enthusiastic audiences.

THE Mollière is at present our only operetta house. Audran's Cigale is on the bill, and has been favourably received, pending the promised novelties. Mlles. Delormes and de Brazy are the pretty cousins, and MM. La Banny and Georges and as Franz, the Duke, and Guillaume are fully appreciated.

LAVENDAN'S modern comedy Viveurs has had a good reception at the Alçazar. At the Galeries, Huguenet triumphs every night in Le Roi. Le Palais d'Eté is still offering a good entertainment. This week's programme includes Lesonia, a fantaisiste; Leo and Harry, comic bar performers; Franklin and Eros in their acrobatic act; Lamelet's trained monkeys; Giletta, a Parisian singer; Lily Flexmore, American eccentric dancer; the Verona Cycle Troupe; and two big stars—Carl Hertz, the illusionist, and La Belle Guerrero in a musical dumb play entitled The Poniard and the Rose.

AT the recent champagne luncheon given by Bass and Co., at the Brewers' Exhibition, Agricultural Hall, several amusing speeches were made. Mr. Thomas Ross, chairman of the luncheon and managing-director at Burton, stated that the pyramids of Egypt resembled the familiar triangle trademark of Bass's, and that the glummy look of the Sphinx was due to the fact of her not being able to obtain a bottle of the thirst-quenching Bass on a scorching hot day. Mr. W. George, of the firm of Strong and Co., made some humorous references to the triangle and its resemblance to the danger sign for motors. He explained that one sign warned the people of the danger of rushing a dangerous hill while the other warned people of rushing imitations of Bass down their throats.

MR. HENRY COUTTS, the well-known protean artist, stated that he was an Australian from Australia, and, besides representing the vaudeville stage on this occasion, he said he would like to be the representative of the whole of the Bass drinkers of the islands or states of Australasia. If his hearers were not already aware of it, he would like to tell them that Bass ale had reached the shores of Australia, but he was afraid that this news was on a par with the oft-quoted fact that the Dutch had taken Holland.

BERLIN, THURSDAY, OCT. 22.—The latest production of these ever-popular and most prolific collaborators was attended with considerable success. The audience was in excellent humour all the evening, laughed heartily at all the jokes—good, bad, and indifferent—and called the authors after each act to receive a goodly measure of applause. Unfortunately, the well-known playwright and humorist, Herr Robert Misch, declares MM. Blumenthal and Kahlenburg guilty of plagiarism, and has gone to law on that score. The issue of the case is being anticipated with much interest. It is true that the main idea is rather more original than are the plots of most of the collaborators' farces. In a little provincial town it suddenly transpires that all the marriage-knots tied by a former burgomaster are null and void. As there are some dozen couples tied up in this manner, "the door to liberty"—as the title has it—is unexpectedly opened, and out they go, reluctantly or merrily, as the case may be. Of course this affords scope for comic scenes innumerable, and all types of character are depicted: the wives take up their quarters in hotels, the men do the housekeeping or enjoy their liberty to the full. That all the pairs ultimately repair to the register office to be united over again, and more effectually, is equally a matter of course; in fact, the reconciliations become monotonous after a time. The acting was capital throughout, or the piece would not have made anything like such a hit as it did.

SIGNORA MIMI AGUGLIA is continuing her season, with her Sicilian company, at the Neues. She is a marvellous actress, of the hot-blooded Southern type, and understands how to curdle the blood of her attentive, though not very large, audiences, as perhaps nobody else does. In Luigi Capuana's horribly realistic play, Malia, the lady had full opportunity for the display of her great talents in this direction. She gives the rôle of Jana, a village girl who is betrothed to Ninu, but has fallen madly in love with Cola, who has just married her sister. Jana struggles against her infatuation, which borders on insanity, so that she is considered bewitched by the neighbours; her hysterical frenzies have, it is said, been studied by Signora Aguglia in clinics, where they are certainly more in place than on the stage. After Jana has thrown herself into Cola's embrace, she is overwhelmed with remorse, and confesses everything to Ninu, who, in a revolting scene, cuts Cola's throat. The Sicilian actress was once upon a time, by the way, in the same company as Signor Grasso (whose season at the Gastspiel has just terminated), but the two stars not assimilating they parted, and started each a separate company.

PUCCINI'S lyrical drama, Manon Lescaut, has been produced, for the first time in Berlin, at the Komische Oper. It met with a cordial reception, which, however, cooled somewhat towards the end. The interpretation was not so good as is usual at this theatre; the title-rôle was inadequately rendered, and the orchestra left much to be desired.

AT the Hebbel Theatre a five-act drama, by Friedrich Freksa, was favourably received at its first production on Wednesday last. It is entitled Ninon de l'Enclos, and deals in rather a drawn-out manner with the life and loves of that famous beauty. Fräulein Fehdmer was not quite satisfactory in the name-part, but the remaining rôles were well sustained.

CARUSO commenced his very brief season at the Opera House on Tuesday in Bajazzi. The house was crowded, and customary ovations greeted the famous tenor.

BARON VON MALTZAHN has just signed a contract with Mme. Meta Illing for her "English Theatre Company," to play four weeks every year in August at the Royal Theatre in Homburg. Thus another important step is taken towards the realisation of the eagerly-anticipated project.

THE BINGHAM HALL, CIRENCESTER.

This handsome building, which has been erected, equipped, and endowed, and presented to his native town by Mr. D. G. Bingham, of Utrecht, is the latest addition to our provincial places of amusement. Established by Mr. Bingham primarily for the use of the two local Boys' Brigades, and having a rifle gallery 100ft. long adjoining, which will be the headquarters of the Cotswold Rifle Club, the large hall will be available for all kinds of entertainments, and should especially appeal to theatrical caterers, for it has a permanent stage, with elegant proscenium, fireproof curtain, and every modern requirement, together with ample dressing accommodation in the rear. The Hall was formally opened on the 14th inst. by Mrs. D. G. Bingham (wife of the donor), but the initial performance on the stage took place on Wednesday evening, when a company of local amateurs gave an excellent representation of The Runaway Girl. Slight professional assistance was secured, this including the services of Mr. Philip D. Williams, who was responsible for the production, and also gave a most amusing rendition of the character of Brother Tamarind. Others whose efforts were entirely successful were Misses Winifred Ball (Winifred Grey), Christine Roy (Alice), Ethel Wynne (Carmenita), Messrs. E. Walford (Guy Stanley), Sydney Boulton (Flipper), Frank Stradling (Lord Coodle), Maurice Kingscote (Mr. Creel), J. S. Lawson, W. T. C. Paternoster, Edward R. Howard, and Clement Matthews (wandering musicians). Well supported by a capital little orchestra, conducted by Mr. Alfred Stradling, the songs and choruses were well rendered, encores being very prevalent. Messrs. Drury, of Brighton, provided the scenery.

There was a large and representative audience, which included the Earl and Countess Bathurst, Mr. D. G. Bingham, and Mr. Frederick Bingham (nephew of the donor), well known in theatrical circles as the author of Counsel's Opinion, The Gipsy Princess, and several other plays.

A PLEASING function took place on Monday at the Franco-British Exhibition when Mr. John Donald, the acting manager for Mr. Patrick Kirwan's entertainment there, was presented by the artists engaged with a handsome kit bag and an illuminated address, inscribed: "Franco-British Exhibition, 1908. This testimonial from the artists of the Irish National Theatre, Ballymacllinton, to their esteemed manager and friend, Mr. John Donald, on the anniversary of his birth Oct. 25, 1908. Greeting! For he is a man who wins the hearts of all and makes business a pleasure. Caed Mille Failthe." The address, which was signed by the entire company and orchestra, was presented by Mr. Louis Tussaud on behalf of the artists. Mr. Donald suitably responded.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

Sir Charles Wyndham greatly diverted the proceedings at Bow-street on Thursday, when Mr. J. W. Lethbridge, the manager of the New Theatre, was summoned for employing a child named Rita Leggiero after 10.50 at night. On behalf of the London County Council, it was stated that the child was in the cast of Bellamy the Magnificent, which was produced at the New Theatre on Oct. 6, a licence for her appearance having been granted at Bow-street on condition that she left the theatre not later than 10.30. Afterwards, on the application of Sir Charles Wyndham, the magistrate extended the time limit to 10.50 o'clock. On two occasions since then, it was alleged, the Council's inspector, visiting the theatre, found that the child did not leave the stage until six or seven minutes past eleven.

Summoned for aiding and abetting, Sir Charles Wyndham, who occupied a seat at the solicitor's bench, said he had been rather ignorant of the precise amount of latitude that would be allowed to him. When he made the application for an extension of the time he suggested that the child might be kept ten minutes longer, and in that case he was curious to know whether he would be decapitated. The magistrate replied that that was an affair which concerned himself. He did not dream for a moment that he was expected to get the child out punctually to the very minute, any more than one expected a train to arrive to time.

Sir Charles added that his audiences had taken the strongest objection to his being killed in the last act, and in order to save their feelings matters had been so arranged that he was now allowed to live, which accounted for his being there that afternoon. The result of this was that the child was out at eleven o'clock on Wednesday night, and these conditions would be always existent during the remainder of the run of the play.

Sir Albert De Rutzen said the only wonder was that he was not joined in this summons, because he yielded, with rather bad grace, to the application that was made to him for an extension of the time. Physically, what had taken place was no great hardship on the child. Without recording a conviction he ordered each of the defendants to pay 23s. costs. On an application being made by Sir Charles Wyndham that the child should be allowed to perform up to eleven o'clock at night, the magistrate said that he had better consult the Council's representatives.

Mr. George Alexander, who concluded his provincial tour at the Prince's Theatre, Bristol, on Saturday, was enthusiastically applauded at the close of each act of The Thief. On the conclusion of the performance there were requests for a speech, and Mr. Alexander, coming before the footlights, said: I am very grateful to you for the charming welcome you have given me on my return to your city after so long an absence—fourteen years, if my memory serves me well—and then my friend Miss Irene Vanbrugh was with me. Since then she has charmed many audiences in England and America by the spell of her beautiful art. Another member of my company, too, has been associated with Bristol in the past, Mr. Milward, for he tells me one of his ancestors, in order to escape the gallows, paddled his own canoe from Ireland to this port, and as he was a man of over 7ft. high I think Mr. Milward must be grateful to Bristol for finding room for so big a man in the churchyard.

"It is," continued Mr. Alexander, "a great joy to an artist when he finds his work is appreciated, and when his old friends rally round him. This, I feel, has been my good fortune during the past week. And I am hoping, too, that I have made some new friends, and that when they come to London they will find their way to the St. James's Theatre. I cannot conclude without offering my congratulations to Mr. Chute on his charming theatre. We, in our profession, are very proud of him, because he is not only a link with a glorious theatrical past, but fills his rôle of theatrical manager with success, and brings nothing but dignity to bear upon all his undertakings."

Miss Lena Ashwell is elaborating the scheme of music which has proved one of the most successful features of her management at the Kingsway, and from this evening onwards the curtain will rise on The Sway Boat at 8.45 p.m., instead of nine o'clock as formerly, and the present first piece will give way to a new and attractive series of orchestral selections. From 8.30 p.m. it is proposed to play either new MS. chamber music or works of great merit by British composers, whilst immediately preceding each rising of the curtain will be rendered new incidental music expressly composed by Mr. Stanley Hawley, Miss Ashwell's musical director, and intended intimately to suggest the atmosphere of the act which follows it. Thus the first programme will include an effective and rarely-heard piano quartette in E flat by Sir A. C. Mackenzie, German's delightful "Valse Gracieuse," Coleridge Taylor's Noveletten (Op. 52, No. 3), Elgar's Serenade (Op. 20), and the same composer's dignified "Chanson de Nuit" (Op. 15.).

Mr. Brandon Thomas, who is keenly interested in the advancement of "Actors' Day" Fund, may be congratulated on the fact that all the members of both his companies playing Charley's Aunt (with one exception) subscribed a full night's salary. In addition to this, Mr. Thomas added a substantial cheque for his royalties, and the resident-managers of the Opera House, Coventry, Messrs. William and H. G. Dudley Bennett, sent a cheque for a similar amount.

The programme for the matinée at the New Theatre (kindly lent by Sir Charles Wyndham and Miss Mary Moore) on Tuesday, Nov. 17, in aid of Miss Olive Christian Malvery's shelter for homeless and destitute women, promises to be attractive and novel. Miss Ada Reeve and Miss Marie George have generously promised songs and Mr. Henry Ainley a recitation. Miss Jean Alywin will appear as a comedienne in an historical one-act play, and some playlets founded on old Scripture stories are in active rehearsal.

A matinée is being jointly organised by Mr George Alexander and Mr. Forbes Robertson at the St. James's for Thursday, Dec. 3, on behalf of the Orthopædic Hospital. Among those who have already offered their services are Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Maude, Sir Charles Santley, Miss Marie Tempest, Mr. G. P. Huntley, Miss Ada Reeve, Miss Ethel Irving, and Miss Lydia Kyasht. Oscar Wilde's Happy Prince is to be read by Miss Gertrude Elliott, Miss Liza Lehmann, who has composed the incidental music, officiating at the piano.

A new play from the pen of Mr. Henry Arthur Jones and the appearance of a clever actress in a rôle distinct from that in which she has achieved such recent celebrity render the production at the Haymarket on Tuesday next of transcending importance. Dolly Reforming Herself reveals the lighter side of Mr. Jones's art, and gives Miss Ethel Irving an opportunity of displaying her comedy gifts anew. She will have the support of the talented artists who have been appearing in Lady Frederick, the cast including Mr. Robert Loraine, Mr. C. M. Lowne, Mr. Charles R. Maude, Miss Ada Webster, Mr. Gilbert Porteous, Mr. Herbert Bunston, Mr. E. Lyall Swete, and Miss Margaret Halstan. The action of the play passes in the drawing-room of a house at Crookbury Green, Surrey, in the afternoon of Jan. 1, 1907, and extends to the anniversary of that date.

Sir John Hare was quick to resent the slander on the stage which was reported to have been uttered by Mr. Justice Bargrave Deane in the trial of the action Witty v. Witty and Davidson in the Divorce Court last week. In a communication to the Daily Telegraph on Saturday Sir John writes:—"As a member of the dramatic profession I desire to protest against the reflections of Mr. Justice Bargrave Deane upon that profession in the course of the trial of Witty v. Witty and Davidson, an action for divorce. The arguments of counsel in such a case may be disregarded, but the utterances of a judge are of serious public importance. In your issue of the 24th inst. his lordship is reported to have asked Mr. Powell: 'Is it your suggestion that every theatrical manager should dismiss every person who is supposed to be of immoral character? I don't know what would happen to our stage if that was the case.'

"The self-confessed ignorance of judges is proverbial; but it is a lamentable instance of such ignorance that a judge, whose knowledge of life is coloured by the unhappy domestic differences in all classes of society that come within his jurisdiction, should, on what he considers the strength of that knowledge, attribute a deplorable laxity of morals and manners to the whole body of an honourable profession. Were not the matter a grave one, it would be amusing to reflect that Mr. Justice Bargrave Deane's sweeping censure was prompted on this particular occasion by allegations of misbehaviour on the part of a member of an obscure seaside concert party."

With a view no doubt of making reparation for a remark which it is charitably to be hoped was uttered without consideration, his lordship, in his summing-up on Monday, said the theatrical profession needed no defence, and he did not suppose it ever stood in a higher position than to-day. Its members were people whose reputations were deservedly high. They were men and women like the rest of us, they had their passions and feelings, and their proper ideas of right and wrong, and they themselves would not ask to be judged from a different standpoint from other people. It was all very well to say they might call each other by their Christian names, or give a chaste kiss to one another, but that was not what was told of in that case, of people sitting on each others' knees and kissing in private. Assuming that was true, his lordship was quite sure that no member of the theatrical profession, if questioned in the witness-box, would say that that sort of thing could be endured as the custom of the profession.

The funeral of the late Mr. Joseph Potter, coproprietor of the Royal Court Theatre, Warrington, took place on the 22nd inst. Among the intimate friends of the deceased present were Mr. W. Johnson (his partner), Mr. Dudley Hart (solicitor, Manchester), Mr. John Lee (Lion Hotel, Manchester), Mr. Fred J. Reece (acting-manager, Royal Court), Mr. Jack Waters (acting-manager, Royal Theatre of Varieties), and the staff from the two theatres named. There were many floral tributes, whilst along the route to the cemetery manifestations of sympathy were numerous.

Distinguished artists have already kindly promised to appear at the forthcoming Actors' Church Union matinée, under the direction of the Rev. J. Stephen Barrass and Mr. J. Maundy-Gregory. Among those contributing to the programme will be Mr. Beerbohm Tree, Mr. George Alexander, Mr. Cyril Maude (who has also kindly lent the Playhouse for the afternoon), Miss Cissie Loftus, and Mr. Joe Elvin.

Mr. Oscar Asche and Miss Lily Brayton, who are concluding a successful provincial tour, begin their round of the suburban theatres at the Borough Theatre, Stratford, on Monday. They will present The Taming of the Shrew and Othello, supported by their fine company, which has never been disbanded since they commenced their partnership with Mr. Otho Stuart at the Adelphi Theatre. The management of the different suburban theatres offer special facilities to parties of scholars on certain days at reduced prices.

Mme. Kate Flinn gave a very interesting musical afternoon at her artistically-appointed home, 11, Henrietta-street, Cavendish-square, on the 22nd inst. Amongst her pupils who won success by their charming singing were Miss Mabel Hope, Miss Millicent Le Hay, who bids fair to be a second Margaret Cooper, and Miss May Hamilton, a very sympathetic soprano, who should do remarkably well under Mme. Flinn's tuition. Mme. Flinn is giving a musical at-home at the Hotel Metropole, Brighton, on Nov. 7, at which her Brighton and London pupils will appear.

The tribute by the British Stage to Adelaide Ristori, to which we referred in a recent issue, is taking practical shape, and a performance will be given at His Majesty's Theatre on the afternoon of Monday, Nov. 30. It is intended to honour the famous Italian actress by erecting a memorial at her birthplace, the village of Cividale. The Prince and Princess of Wales, and most of the foreign Amabassadors, are patrons of the performance, and the leading managers, actors, and actresses, with many famous artists, musicians, and authors, are members of the committee. The programme is being arranged by Mr. H. Beerbohm Tree, with the support of Sir Squire Bancroft, Sir W. S. Gilbert, Sir John Hare, and Sir Charles Wyndham, and will be contributed to by many of the greatest English-speaking dramatic and lyric artists.

Mr. W. Clarkson, the premier perruquier, was again in the van of the prize-winners at the fancy dress ball at Covent Garden on the 23rd inst. He was successful in gaining first prize for a dress entitled "Love me and the world is mine," a costume covered with coloured lights, and bearing on pink satin paintings of a Duke kneeling to an American heiress and two costers in a love scene. A bower of shaded roses and passion flowers with cupids either side holding up a string of pearls, to which arrows, diamonds, and gold were attached, formed the head-dress.

Second prize also fell to Mr. Clarkson for a dress entitled "Queen of the Dairy," which was of pale blue satin with paintings of Dutch scenes. The white satin cloak showed the interior of a Dutch dairy, on the shoulders were small cows and tiny windmills, and the headdress was a small Dutch lace cap surmounted by an illuminated windmill. Several other designs of Mr. Clarkson's included "Amasis" and "The Merry Widow." Among the prizes were a silver-mounted dressing bag and several entrée dishes. The music was supplied by Dan Godfrey's Band.

The members of the Gaiety Rowing Club, which consists of the company and staff of the Gaiety Theatre, and is affiliated to the National Amateur Rowing Association, decided the last race of the present season at Barnes on Sunday. The event was a four-oared race, and was rowed from Chiswick Ferry to Barnes Bridge. Mr. G. Applebee was starter and Mr. W. Cox judge. The result was as follows:—Blue—W. Robson (bow), C. H. Cannon, S. Fanning, W. Jenkins (stroke), W. Johnson (cox), 1st; red—R. Roberts (bow), G. Fanning, E. Willetts, R. Jenkins (stroke), A. Hogg (cox), 2nd; white—C. Douglass (bow), F. Turnbull, M. Collins, J. May (stroke), C. Dutton (cox), 3rd; yellow—J. Macleay (bow), A. Pickett, A. Nash, C. Rogers (stroke), 4th. It was a well-rowed race all the way. W. Jenkins' crew led well off the mark, and eventually won by a length, R. Jenkins' just beating May's crew by a foot.

The eleventh annual ordinary general meeting of the Theatre Royal, Drury Lane (Limited), was held on Monday at the theatre, Mr. T. H. Birch presiding. In moving the adoption of the report, which recommended a dividend of 10 per cent., the chairman said the accounts disclosed a very satisfactory state of affairs, notwithstanding the fact that the theatre, except the auditorium, was practically destroyed by fire in the early part of the year. There was no reason to suppose that there would be a large loss over the fire, but the directors considered it a wise and prudent course to set aside £10,000 to a reserve account, out of which any loss could be met.

They had succeeded in making a profit during the year of £20,651, which with the £2,097 brought forward from last year's account made a total available profit from all sources of £22,748. There was one very agreeable point in this year's balance-sheet to which he called their attention. On June 30, 1907, when their accounts were made up, they owed their bankers £16,000, but on June 30 of this year they had paid off every penny they owed to the bank, and in addition had a substantial balance, including £7,000 on deposit. He took the opportunity of denying most emphatically and without the slightest reservation the report that any member of the board had ever received one penny beyond the remuneration to which he was entitled.

Mr. Arthur Collins administered a rebuke marked by much clever satire to several gentlemen who had embodied some complaints in a circular issued by a recently-formed Shareholders' Association. For months, he said, they had been bombarded by circulars signed by Messrs. Paul, Beadle, Emanuel, and Lewis. These gentlemen did not formulate any demands, and the only conclusion to be drawn was that they desired to become directors in place of the gentlemen now holding such positions. If the shareholders thought these gentlemen could produce their dramas and pantomimes in a better manner than men who have spent their whole lives in the business, they should vote for them and turn the directors out.

When he read these circulars he began to wonder whether it was not he (Mr. Collins) who was responsible for the death of poor Dan Leno, whether it was not he who killed the everlamented Sir Henry Irving, whether it was not he who urged the London County Council to enforce an expenditure upon them of £30,000, and who, lastly, set fire to the theatre; and whether it was not Messrs. Beadle, Emanuel, Lewis, and Paul who produced the pantomimes and dramas, and earned the dividends for the company. He had worked day and night, week in and week out, with always one set purpose before him—the success of Old Drury. A loan at the bank of £16,000 transformed into a deposit of £7,000; £111,000 paid in dividends in eleven years—that was his answer to these gentlemen and their circular, and that was his vindication.

Mr. Paul stated that he was prepared to support every sentence contained in his circular, and although the chairman had in categorical terms denied the truth of the paragraph in the circular with regard to extra remuneration paid to the directors, he (the speaker) was quite prepared to join issue with him on the matter. He moved an amendment expressing the opinion of the shareholders that in any future agreement the salary of the managing-director should not exceed £2,500 per annum, to which sum a bonus might be added in the event of an exceptionally prosperous year. The amendment was negatived by a large majority, and subsequently, a poll being demanded, was rejected by 56,000 votes to 16,000.

The annual dinner of the Actors' Benevolent Fund will take place at the Whitehall Rooms of the Hotel Metropole on Sunday, Dec. 13. Mr. Cyril Maude will occupy the chair. It will be remembered that last year's dinner was twice postponed, first in November and again in March. It is hoped that by fixing upon Sunday for the dinner actors will be enabled more readily to be present at a function that is deserving of their unanimous support.

Mr. W. Wilson Blake has been released by Mr. Wm. Giffard, with whom he has been playing Arthur Brinthorpe and doing acting management in Sunday, to take over similar duties with Mr. Peter Davey at the County Theatre, Kingston, and to stage-manage his Cinderella pantomime next Christmas. Mr. Blake thus reaches his tenth engagement with Mr. Davey.

Mr. Douglas Gordon, who had the misfortune to contract a severe attack of fever while acting with the Bandmann Comedy Company in Cairo, is now convalescent. He sailed for England on Monday, and is due to arrive to-morrow (Sunday).

Mr. Geoffrey Berwick, who is playing Mr. William Gibson in Messrs. Dudley Bennett and T. C. Wray's company in The Catch of the Season this week at Huddersfield, was called to town on Sunday last by wire with the news that his wife (Miss Poppy Wilkinson) had presented him with a daughter. Mr. Berwick travelled to town on Sunday night, and finding his wife and child both doing well returned to Huddersfield the following morning in time to take up his part at the Theatre Royal, where he met with hearty congratulations from his fellow artists.

At the St. James's Theatre, on the 23rd inst., a copyright performance was given of The Wreathed Dagger, a drama in three acts by Margaret Young.

Miss Cicely Hamilton, author of Diana of Dobson's, will dwell upon "The Rights and Wrongs of the Critic," before the members of the O.P. Club, at the Criterion, on Sunday, Nov. 1, at 8 p.m. Mr. Carl Hentschel will preside.

Miss Lillah McCarthy will give two matinées of The Bacchæ of Euripides translated into rhyming verse by Gilbert Murray, on Tuesday, Nov. 10, and the following Tuesday, at the Court Theatre. The production will be under the direction of Mr. William Poel, and the net profits will be devoted to the Græco-Roman Branch of the Egypt Exploration Fund.

Miss Louie Adair, who has received offers to play principal boy, will be unable to accept pantomime engagement this year, owing to the fact that the new play, The Heathen and the Christian, will be produced early in January. Miss Adair, who will play the heroine, is having some delightful dresses and hats made for the new production.

Mr. J. W. Nightingale, proprietor of the Royal Aquarium and Theatre Royal at Great Yarmouth, has for the third time been elected a member of the Town Council for the Regent ward of that borough. This year Mr. Nightingale has been returned unopposed.

The popularity of Mr. William Coutts, the manager of the Star and Palace, Swansea, was well evidenced on the 22nd inst., when he took his annual benefit. The programme had been augmented, and there was a packed house. Mr. Andrew Melville having expressed his congratulations, Mr. Fixott, on behalf of the staffs, presented Mr. Coutts with a massive silver loving cup and silver-mounted flagon. Mr. Coutts feelingly replied.

The Princess of Wales and Suite honoured Miss Lena Ashwell by visiting the Kingsway Theatre on Thursday evening to witness the twentieth performance of The Sway Boat.

"Butterflies" fluttered gaily for the 200th time at the Apollo on Thursday, and in celebration of the occasion every member of the audience was presented with a copy of the full vocal score, handsomely bound. The house was crowded, and great enthusiasm prevailed. Miss Ada Reeve acted and sang with all her customary buoyancy and charm as the dainty Rhodanthe, winning many tokens of admiration. Mr. Lauri De Frece's drollery as Yorker was irresistible as ever, and similar distinction is to be given to the Christopher Podmore of Mr. George Giddens. The success of the performance was also maintained by, among others, Mr. Louis Bradfield, Miss Iris Hoey, and Miss Phyllis Monkman.

"Lady Frederick" attained the first year of a celebrated life on Monday, when a crowded house extended a hearty greeting to Miss Ethel Irving, to whose artistic performance of the title-rôle so much of the success of the piece is due. The play has served as the pioneer of the dramatic prosperity of Mr. Somerset Maugham, who is now represented at three London theatres, while his comedies are also winning triumphs in the provinces.

The occasion was marked by the presentation of a souvenir, which consisted of an illustrated programme, bearing a charming portrait of Miss Irving in character. The performance was keenly enjoyed, Mr. C. M. Lowne's highly-finished portrait of Paradine Foulde again winning general admiration. Miss Florence Wood, Mr. Gilbert Porteous, Mr. J. L. Mackay, and Miss Agnes Hewitt shared in the honours achieved. At the fall of the curtain Miss Irving, who, with the other members of the company, was almost hidden behind a bank of flowers, was called on for a speech, and after some hesitation she approached the footlights and said, "Thank you very much."

Sir Charles Santley has generously consented to sing at the performance in aid of the Veterans' Club Employment Bureau, at the Court Theatre, on Monday evening. The famous baritone will sing "Hearts of Oak" during one of the intervals between the one-act plays.

The Court Theatre, Warrington, which Mr. Joseph Beecham purchased last September, will be booked and worked in conjunction with the St. Helens Theatre and Opera House, of which Mr. Beecham is a director. The two theatres will be controlled by Mr. A. M. Loader from Monday next.

The King, attended by his suite, visited Drury Lane Theatre on Monday, and witnessed the performance of The Marriages of Mayfair. On the Yeoman Warder delivering the line: "God preserve King Edward," the entire audience rose and cheered, momentarily stopping the progress of the play. Royalty also honoured Mr. H. B. Irving on Tuesday, when Princess Louise Augusta of Schleswig-Holstein witnessed The Lyons Mail at the Shaftesbury Theatre.

"Toddles," the funny farcical comedy, which has had such a fine run in London, scoring over 350 consecutive performances, will start on a long tour at Christmas. The provincial rights have been secured from Charles Frohman by Murray King and Clark, whose Blue Bell in Fairyland and Sweet and Twenty companies were so successful in the country. Murray King will himself play Toddles, and everything will be done to make the production as complete as possible.

The Moody-Manners Opera Company paid a "flying matinée" visit to Ealing, on Wednesday, with Madame Butterfly, with a capable band of twenty-five and a chorus of thirty-five. The rendition of Puccini's exquisite little chrysanthemum tragedy was in every way excellent, and recalls were loud and frequent.

Mr. Martin Adeson is engaged by Mr. John Tiller for the part of Widow Twankey, in his forthcoming pantomime of Aladdin at the Theatre Royal, Leeds.

Mr. George D. Day's Prodigal Son company drew full houses each night on their return visit to Broughton. In spite of the all-round depression in the district 7,280 people paid for admission during the week.

Mr. Arthur Jefferson, of the Metropole, Glasgow, gave a matinée performance of Claudian on Wednesday, the 28th inst., for the benefit of the Lord Provost's Unemployed Fund. Mr. and Mrs. William Maclaren and their able company gave their services free in aid of the good cause, and the performance was under the patronage of Lord Provost Sir William Bilsland, Bart., and the city magistrates.

Miss Louise Moodie has rejoined Sir John Hare to play her old part of Lady Owbridge in The Gay Lord Quex throughout his present farewell tour. This clever and artistic lady, it may be remembered, sustained the rôle during an eight months' tour in the States.

Mrs. Bandmann-Palmer is reorganising her company for her forthcoming Indian tour, which, through the kindness of Mr. John Hart in releasing her, she is enabled to start earlier than at first anticipated. She will open at her son's (Mr. Maurice E. Bandmann) new theatre in Bombay in January, proceeding thence to Calcutta, where she will appear at his new Empire Theatre in a series of Shakespearean revivals. Elaborate new costumes, scenery, and effects are in active preparation for this tour.

The company from the Theatre Des Arts, Paris, will take possession of Terry's Theatre on Monday for a short season, and will present during the week Le Grand Soir, a play which has been given for 225 nights in the French capital. The subject of this piece is the Red Riot in Russia, and on account of its political significance was banned for a time by the Parisian authorities.

The Musicians Company, of which the Lord Mayor-Elect is Master, is proposing to organise another competition among British composers for a piece of music for military band. Prizes to the value of nearly £100 will be offered.

The programme of Father Bernard Vaughan's charity concert in aid of poor children, to be held at the Albert Hall on Wednesday next, promises to be of an unusually attractive character. In addition to Mme. Patti, who will not be heard again in London for the next two years, there will be Miss Cecilia Loftus, Miss Carmen Hill, Miss Marie Wadia, Miss Margaret Cooper, Mr. Walter Hyde, Mr. Robert Radford, Mr. Herbert Brown, Miss Irene Scharrer, and Mr. Zacharewitsch. Mr. Wilhelm Ganz, Mr. Samuel Liddle, and Mr. Adolph Mann are to share the duties of accompanist. Father Vaughan will deliver a short address, taking for his subject "The Cry of the Starving Children."

In the match Fulham v. Wolverhampton, Division II., at Wolverhampton to-day, the Fulham team will be the same as that of last week. This afternoon also the Fulham Reserves meet Queen's Park Reserves at Fulham, the home team being represented by Fryer, Harper, Leigh, Prout, Waterson, Goldie, Carter, Barton, Freeman, Bradshaw, and Mouncher.

The Kennington Theatre will next week welcome Dorothy, the evergreen comic opera, with Mr. Hayden Coffin, Mr. John Coates, Mr. Arthur Williams, and Miss Ruth Davenport in the cast.

Mr. H. R. Smith, who reopens the Waldorf, redecorated and re-upholstered, on or about Saturday, Nov. 21, has decided slightly to modify the existing prices of admission, the pit being reduced to 2s., and other parts of the house, the gallery alone excepted, proportionately. A certain number of stalls will be available at 7s. 6d. The cast of The Antelope, with which Mr. Smith starts operations, will include Mr. Fred Wright, jun., who has resigned his position as leading comedian at the Paris Moulin Rouge, Mr. J. Farren Soutar, Mr. Fred Emney, Mr. Aubrey FitzGerald, Miss Kitty Gordon, in the principal female character, and Miss Maudie Thornton, who has won honours in Australia.

The fiftieth performance of The Marriages of Mayfair at Drury Lane was reached on Thursday. The evidences of popularity of the fine melodrama are as great as ever.

Miss Lily Iris wishes to thank, through our columns, numerous friends for their floral tributes, telegrams, and letters of congratulation received on Saturday last, the occasion of her début in musical comedy. Miss Iris's success as the engaging Mlle. Denise in The Belle of Brittany at the Queen's Theatre was unmistakable.

Mme. Melba was entertained to dinner on Monday in the Aberdeen Hall of the Gresham Hotel by the Dublin Corinthian Club. The president of the club, Sir Charles Cameron, C.B., occupied the chair, and proposed the toast of Mme. Melba in a highly eulogistic speech, which was enthusiastically cheered.

The son of the late Herr Meyer Lutz, the famous composer and musical-director of the Gaiety, is a member of the Catholic priesthood, and has recently been appointed rector of the Church of the English Martyrs, Rodney-road, Walworth. Father Lutz inherits in a considerable degree his sire's musical talent, being an accomplished organist, and has just established a fund to provide his church with a new organ.

Mr. Sam Livesey, who is appearing with his company at the Lyric Opera House, Hammersmith, in The Village Blacksmith, was the recipient of a very handsome solid silver tantalus, suitably inscribed, the occasion being his birthday. Mr. Geo. E. Carleton, who made the presentation on behalf of the members of the company, spoke of the affectionate regard and esteem in which Mr. Livesey was held, and hoped he might live to enjoy many happy birthdays. Mr. Livesey, in a neat little speech, expressed his appreciation of the kindness which prompted the testimonial.

Master Reginald Leyland, the boy soprano with a register of over two octaves, was among the artists who gave their services at the Kennington Theatre on Tuesday afternoon in aid of the Mayor of Southwark's Fund for supplying meals to underfed school children. He was in capital voice, and delighted the large audience present by his artistic rendering of "The Chorister," and receiving an enthusiastic recall gave "Mamma's Baby Boy."

Mr. Patrick Kirwan's company from Ballymaclinton, Franco-British Exhibition, are giving an entertainment at the Bycullah Athenæum, Enfield, on Tuesday evening next, under the auspices of Father Atkins, in aid of the building fund of the R.C. Church at Enfield. An attractive programme has been arranged, and Mr. Patrick Kirwan himself is appearing in scenes from old English comedies.

Mrs. Brown Potter, who is making a tour round the provinces under the management of Miss Emma and Mr. Percy Hutchison, will make her only appearance round London at flying matinées on Tuesday at the Hippodrome, Willesden, and on Wednesday at the Hippodrome, Ealing, when she will be seen in the title-rôle of Lady Frederick.

Mr. William Lockhart, who has played the Dean in When Knights Were Bold since the commencement of its first provincial tour, is suffering great inconvenience through letters constantly being directed to the wrong company (of which there are three on the road), and wishes once more to call attention to the fact that his address can always be found by referring to his private advertisement in The Era.

Miss Kitty Cavendish, who is playing Nina in His House in Order, received a graceful compliment last week in Wakefield. At the conclusion of the third act a very handsome bouquet was handed up, with a card attached bearing the words: "With kindest wishes from Mrs. Sherwood, who admires your charming performance."

Miss Mouillot begins her courageous campaign at the Court on Monday, and will make a commendable start by assisting the Veterans' Club Employment Bureau, to which the receipts of the special programme of the first evening and following afternoon are to be devoted. On Monday three one-act pieces will be presented: the first, Pride of Regiment, by Mr. F. D. Bone; the second, A King's Hard Bargain, by Major W. P. Drury; and the third, Private Nobody, also by Mr. F. D. Bone. On Tuesday Pride of Regiment will be replaced by The Top-side Dog, by the same author.

The Messrs. Maundy-Gregory announce that their forthcoming big production will be ready by February.

Sir Frank Burnand still carries on his mission of mirth by conducting in various parts of the country what he describes as his "Conference," consisting of personal recollections of Mr. Punch and his staff, literary and artistic, from early days almost up to the present. On Monday Blundellsands, near Liverpool, will be favoured with a visit, and it may be hoped that ere long the metropolis itself will be similarly honoured.

A finished representation is ensured for Miss Nora Keith's new three-act play The Builders, which is to be produced at the Criterion on Tuesday, Nov. 10. Included in the cast will be Miss Evelyn D'Alroy, Miss Maude Millett, Miss Vane Featherston, Mrs. H. Nye Chart, Miss Ierne FitzGerald, Mr. C. Aubrey Smith, and Mr. A. E. George.

Miss Ellaline Terriss and Mr. Seymour Hicks will be back in London next week, during which they will appear at the Coronet in The Gay Gordons. The popular artists may rely upon a cordial greeting.

A proposal for the formation of a Drama Society in Oxford is made by a number of professors and fellows of the University, who state in a circular that "there is lying about us unacted a considerable wealth of interesting and sometimes brilliant plays. Yet, owing to financial reasons, chiefly the 'long-run' system and the immense costliness of the London theatres, it is very difficult even in London to see many plays that can be placed at all on the same intellecutal standard as the best novels."

The suggestion is to form in the city a society of some 500 or 600 persons who will pay a subscription beforehand for their tickets, and get some good repertory company, such as Miss Horniman's, to visit Oxford for separate weeks in the year and give a series of three or four interesting plays. The approval of the Vice-Chancellor has been obtained for the scheme, which, it is said, would also be agreeable to the management of the New Theatre.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Miss St. Denis's Births.

Miss Ruth St. Denis, the new Oriental dancer, has been giving M.A.P. some facts about her career. She had two births—a temporal and a spiritual one. The former took place in the State of New Jersey, in America, on an old-fashioned country farm. A Western pony, an old swing in the barn, and the tops of pine trees—these suggest with sufficient plainness some of the ways in which she spent her hours on this old farm. In those days she had very long legs, a shock of tawny hair, and plenty of freckles. She made her first public appearance at a benefit given by some amateur actors in the neighbourhood to raise funds for the local school. The piece was The Old Homestead, and she played Whistling Joe in the play, and gave between the acts some movements which were called on the programme "Exercises in Delsarte."

Her Second Birth.

Her spiritual birth took place when she was playing in Du Barry with Mr. Belasco out West. In a little chemist shop in the city of Buffalo she saw a picture—a cigarette poster, the figure of an Egyptian Deity. This picture was the magic wand that touched the hidden strings of her art life and made them vibrate. She was so excited and exalted over the revelation this picture gave her that her friend had almost to feed her, and for several days they sat together in the gloom of their little bedroom looking at it as the plan unfolded itself to Miss St. Denis of expressing by movement the religion and customs of the Orient. "In a flash," she says, "a whole life was changed, a career opened from a hidden state of a struggling actress, singer, and dancer to the privilege of being able to give an entirely new development of art in movement."

Her Inspirations.

Her work, she considers, is both more and less than dancing, since dancing generally means movement to rhythm, whereas in expressing ideas by movement one need not always confine the gesture to the bounds of music. She remembers once hearing the death wail of a Jewish woman, and that wail, unmusical and unrhythmic, contained to her the whole Jewish nation. And once at a street corner she saw an Italian girl thrust out a clenched fist at another one a few feet ahead of her, who had evidently meddled with her love affairs. In that gesture was the passion and power of a whole tragedy. Miss St. Denis ventures to believe that when things like that appeal to the soul in that way it is the soul's business to express. It cannot be denied that, like Little Buttercup in H.M.S. Pinafore, Miss St. Denis "conveys her meaning" remarkably well.

Old Touring Days.

"During my engagement with the Kent and South Coast Company," writes Mr. Butler Stanhope, "we had a regular 'circuit,' and visited six towns annually, staying a month in each place, playing a selection of stock dramas, &c. It was on our visit to Hastings that the following little incident took place. We were located at the Market Hall (there was no theatre then in the town). Every Friday the corn merchants held their market there, and every Thursday night after the performance the fit-up, scenery, in fact, everything, had to be removed into an adjoining room. The market concluded at four o'clock in the afternoon, and we all had to assemble and lend a hand to put things right again; no easy task, but we lent ready hands and worked with a will, and only three hours to do it in—we began the performance at seven o'clock. On this particular night we were playing the melodrama The Idiot Witness, in which I sustained the heavy leading part, that of a most desperate villain who kills and slays right and left without the slightest compunction, and at the end receives his quietus. He is stabbed, and dies; but before shuffling off his mortal coil he has a long speech, and sees demons and all sorts of imaginary goblins coming to clutch him by the throat and drag him down to perdition. This was followed by the gorgeous pantomime of Fair Rosamund; or, Harlequin and the Fairies, in which I played the comedy part of Queen Elinor in the opening and changed for Harlequin in the harlequinade. On this night the fit-up had not been put up as securely as usual, for in the course of the pantomime the supports gave way, and the whole structure, scenery and all, came tumbling headlong into the auditorium, to the consternation of all concerned. A portion of the company dressed in the wings for want of sufficient dressing-room accommodation, and were discovered in all sorts of costumes clinging to the poles, struts, and ropes of the wreckage. The poor pianist was completely covered up by the scenery, and had to be extricated; but, fortunately, barring a few bruises, there were no injuries, and we merely had to postpone our performance for that night. On this tour 25s. a week was considered a fair salary and 30s. 'great'; but then living was much cheaper. Lodgings never exceeded 4s. per week, and everything else was in proportion. During our stay in each town the artists became favourites, and each had his or her admirers. Parcels were nightly left at the stage-door containing gloves, ties, ribbons, cigars, pipes, and other articles, and the principals had a benefit every year, which generally turned out a financial success."

Near but Far.

Mr. Rutland Barrington, in his most amusing book of experiences, says: "I was frequently asked 'Are you not at the Savoy?' for some year or two after I had severed the connection. I heard of an actor who met George Edwardes in the street one day, stopped and spoke to him, and George said, 'Come and see me, my dear boy; I think I can find you a part,' and he was much astonished when the actor replied, 'Why, Mr. Edwardes, I've been with you at the Gaiety for the last six years!'"

Stars and Smells.

"On arriving at my dressing-room in Glasgow one Monday," says the same humorous raconteur, "I found to my alarm and annoyance that it reeked with some overwhelming odour—(this is many years ago, and the theatre has since been thoroughly overhauled)—and naturally demanded to be moved; but it was the 'star' room, and there was nowhere to move me to. I foraged around, and discovered the possibility of screening off a portion of the very large property-room. This was done, and I was feeling happier, when the dresser who looked after the tenor of the company appeared with a polite request that he might join me, having been put into the room I had vacated. Of course, I consented, but as his presence cramped me I cast about for some means to be rid of him. On consulting Herbert Ross, he came to the conclusion that the best plan to gain my object would be to secure a supply of some even worse odour than the one we had fled from, and with the assistance of the property master this was done. On arriving the next night I was greeted with a smell that you could absolutely have hung a hat on. What it had been done with I never knew, but it was innocuous, and cost half a crown, and I am certain no one ever bought so much smell so cheaply. When the tenor arrived his face was a sight to watch (there were several of us doing it). He yelled out, 'My God, I shall die!' seized his clothes, and made a dash for the room he had previously declared unfit for a dog, but in which he gladly remained for the rest of the week, and consoled himself by prophesying all kinds of complaints for me."

"THE BELLE OF BRITTANY."

Comic Opera, in Two Acts, Written by Leedham Bantock and P. J. Barrow, Lyrics by Percy Greenbank, Music by Howard Talbot and Marie Horne, Produced at the Queen's Theatre, on Saturday, Oct. 24.

It would be "breaking a butterfly on the wheel" to criticise an entertainment like The Belle of Brittany with all the strict and severe analysis which is devoted to entertainments of a more serious nature. The only question which can be put concerning an entertainment of this sort is, "Does it fulfil its functions?" Does it delight the eye and the ear, make one laugh, and generally exhilarate? These three queries can be answered in this particular case in the affirmative. In the first place—and it is a matter of very great importance—the dressing and mounting of the play are exquisitely artistic. The plot is sufficient for the purpose, the dialogue is to the point, and the music is light, lively, and refined.

The scene of the first act is a daffodil farm in Brittany, near a mill belonging to an old fellow named Poquelin. In the distance, on an eminence, is the château of the Marquis de St. Gautier, an elderly and dissipated noble, who is in monetary difficulties. Hard-pressed for funds, he has mortgaged the château to Poquelin, who is about to foreclose on the day on which the action commences. The Marquis's only chance is a rich marriage between his son Raymond and the Marquis's ward, Mlle. Denise de la Vire. As the lady and Raymond are antipathetic, and as she much admires a fantastic dandy, the Comte Victorine de Casserole, the Marquis's scheme meets many obstacles. Worse still, Raymond sees and loves at first sight Poquelin's daughter, the pretty Babette, who is betrothed by her parents to Baptiste Boubillon, a famous Parisian chef. The first act is chiefly occupied with the comedy development of this situation, which is quietly and delicately treated. Jacques, an ancient clarionet player, who is an old friend of Babette's, gets possession of the agreement betwen the Marquis and her father respecting the property. This happens by accident, Poquelin, in a moment of confusion, putting the document by mistake into the pocket of Jacques's coat instead of into his own. The old man thus obviously holds the key to the situation. The climax of the first act is the announcement of the loss of the agreement and the refusal of Babette to be married to Baptiste. The act ends rather oddly and unexpectedly without the usual conventional culminating chorus, for which there seems good excuse.

In the second act we are at the château, to which the Marquis has invited the villagers for a harvest festival He flirts absurdly with Mme. Poquelin, and Raymond learns of Babette's love for him from Baptiste, who is finally refused by the girl. They come to an understanding, and as the trump card is in the possession of old Jacques, who wishes for the union of the young people, matters are easily and happily arranged.

The success of The Belle of Brittany is greatly attributable to the cast. Mr. George Graves is the "strong card" of the management, and well justifies his place at the head of the bill. As the Marquis de St. Gautier he is plentiful in "gag" and intensely humorous in method, and his dance with Miss Maud Boyd in the second act is excruciatingly funny. The fussy predominance of the Marquis, and his aristocratic self-importance, contrast irresistibly with the constant flow of quaint quip and up-to-date allusion which comes from Mr. Graves's lips. The success of his performance is absolute and complete. Mr. Walter Passmore, a humorous artist of oft-proved ability, is handicapped by the difficult and unthankful part of Baptiste Boubillon, though he works very hard in his attempts to make it amusing to an English audience. The glorified chef has long been a stock figure of French comedy, but the character is not appreciated here, where cooks are not "understood" as "artists." The cast is rich in female charm and beauty. Miss Ruth Vincent is very sweet and winsome as Babette, and her songs, "Daffodil time," "My wedding morning," and "The dawn of love" are treated in the most delicate and artistic style. She looks bewitchingly pretty in the Breton costume, and sings with her accustomed skill and clearness. Miss Maudi Darrell's delightful vivacity and bright alertness are employed with excellent results in the rôle of Toinette, which Miss Darrell plays with constant activity and gay and piquant spirit. She has a merry ditty, "I'm not that sort of picture," out of which she extracts every ounce of point and fun, and her share in the acting is taken in a very alluring and amusing manner. A handsome and aristocratic representative of the rôle of Mlle. Denise de la Vire is Miss Lily Iris, who wears Directoire dresses with grace and ease, acts with elegant repose and gentle dignity, and sings her song, "Country mice," capitally. Miss Maud Boyd plays the miller's wife with a quiet, refined humour which is very effective; and the daffodil gatherers speak their lines well and smartly, Miss Alice Hatton, Miss Blanche Carlow, Miss Minnie Baker, and Miss Gladys Saqui being specially commendable. Mr. Lawrence Rea is a manly and earnest lover, and sings the songs allotted to Raymond de St. Gautier in excellent voice and with good and just expression. He scores in different ways, but in each instance decidedly, in "A lot of little girls" in the first act, and in "The kingdom of a woman's heart" in the second. Mr. M. R. Morand plays the avaricious old miller in true low comedy vein; and Mr. E. W. Royce, sen., gives a flawless representation of the kind old clarionet player, Jacques. Mr. Frank Melville makes an effective appearance as the post-chaise driver; and Mr. Vere Mathews, Mr. John Montague, Mr. Harry Leslie, and Mr. Hamlyn Hamling do their work well as Raymond's friends, the artists. Mr. Percy Greenbank's lyrics are always neat, and his verses have a pleasant "lilt" and smoothness; and Mr. Howard Talbot and Miss Marie Horne's music, if not ambitious in orchestration or operatic effect, is always clever, lively, and agreeable. We have already alluded to the pictorial merit of the production, and for this Mr. Percy Anderson, the designer of the very pretty and artistic dresses; Mr. Julian Hicks, the painter of the sunlit set for the first act; and Mr. J. Harker, who has supplied a splendidly golden interior for the second, must all be heartily and warmly praised. The orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Howard Talbot, is excellent; and Mr. Tom B. Davis has certainly left nothing undone to make The Belle of Brittany a success.

"MRS. BAILEY'S DEBTS."

Comedy, in Three Acts, founded by Charles Eddy on his Novel of the same name; produced at a Matinée at the Garrick Theatre on Tuesday, Oct. 27.

Peter Browser	Mr. Edward Sass
Sir John Basing	Mr. Sydney Paxton
Dick Currie	Mr. P. H. Clayton Greene
Mr. Chattock	Mr. W. R. Staveley
Bone	Mr. E. H. Wynne
Wilkins	Mr. Charles Cecil
Kitty Bailey	Miss Hilda Antony
Mrs. Hammersley	Miss Edith Cruickshanks
Julia Hammersley	Miss Esmé Hubbard
Laura Vansittart	Miss Florence Lloyd
Mrs. Ellis	Miss May Holford
Dawson	Miss Dorothy Edwards

For the benefit of Pearson's Fresh Air Fund, a matinée was given at the Garrick Theatre on Tuesday by kind permission of Miss Evelyn Millard, of a new piece by Mr. Charles Eddy, founded on his novel "Mrs. Bailey's Debts." Though neither the characters nor the story are new, both are treated with freshness, spirit, and zest which prevent the play from being tedious; and as it had the advantage of being perfectly well played the entertainment offered to the audience was an enjoyable one. The heroine is a feather-headed but attractive young widow, who has "outrun the constable" to the extent of many thousands of pounds, and has, by betting and other extravagances, got deeply into debt. She is beloved by and loves Dick Currie, a young barrister with a moderate income, and also by a wealthy stockbroker, Peter Browser, a typical "bounder" with much force of character and little refinement, whom she, of course, despises. Dick takes a situation in Browser's office in order to make money on 'Change, and so get Kitty out of her difficulties, but Browser buys up all her debts privately in order to earn her gratitude and get her into his power. Scandal is busy with Mrs. Bailey's name in consequence, and her relatives assure her that the only thing for her to do to save her reputation is to marry Browser. At first she refuses, and tears up the receipts of her ex-creditors; but later on she goes to him and offers to become his wife, though only in name. Browser draws back from the prospect of such a union; but Kitty presses him to carry out his proposals, under penalty of an action for breach of promise. Things seem at a deadlock, when the fortunate success of a racehorse on which Dick has put his whole private fortune, enables him to relieve Kitty from her liabilities and marry her, Browser putting a good face on his disappointment and wishing them joy.

The performance was excellent all round, even the smaller parts being played with striking care and cleverness. That able actor Mr. Edward Sass gave a very fine and forcible depiction of an overdressed, audacious, and vulgar stockbroker, and his comical lovemaking, his brutal directness, and his outburst of anger at the end of the second act were admirable. Mr. Sass had dressed the part with great care; and his sleek, well-groomed "flashiness" contributed greatly to the effect of his embodiment, which made a strong impression on the audience. Mr. Sydney Paxton was exactly suited to the rôle of the elderly High Court Judge, Sir John Basing. He looked it thoroughly, and his professional manner was admirably assumed. Mr. P. H. Clayton Greene suggested the suppressed indignation and angry anxiety of Dick Currie very cleverly; and Mr. W. R. Staveley drew a vivid picture of an old, deliberate lawyer, with arched back, slow and solemn utterance, and a profusion of "Dear me's!" A particularly neat and sharp performance was contributed by Mr. E. H. Wynne as the stableman Bone. His facial play when cross-questioned by Browser was very expressive; and he hit off the type exactly. Mr. Charles Cecil was comically pathetic as the sorrowful milkman Wilkins. Miss Hilda Antony, sweetly pretty and "more than common tall," made a bewitching widow, whose charm and vivacity won entire indulgence for her follies and extravagances, and quite accounted for the earnestness of her admirers. She played the part with a delicacy and grace which were very agreeable; and her style was essentially well bred and refined. A smooth, natural, and effective interpretation of the rôle of Mrs. Hammersley was given by Miss Edith Cruickshanks; and Miss Esmé Hubbard's originality and simple, straightforward method were utilised with excellent results in her rendering of the kind-hearted Julia Hammersley. Miss Florence Lloyd made a decided hit as a vulgar, mercenary, and bluntly aggressive young "woman of the people," over-dressed, and absurdly self-important and impulsive. Miss Lloyd's accent and manner were appropriate, and she was decidedly successful in a part which quite suited her. How much a skilled artist can make of an apparently unimportant part was proved by the roars of laughter evoked by Miss May Holford as a melancholy and affected cook. Her solemn demeanour, her absurd drawl, and her droll facial expression were irresistibly comical. Miss Dorothy Edwards hit off neatly all the little points in the personality of the parlourmaid Dawson. The play, produced by Mr. Hubert Druce, went very pleasantly, and laughter was frequent and hearty during the performance. Mr. Victor Leslie was the stage-manager for the matinée, which was quite well attended.

THE MATINEE HAT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—In deciding to try the experiment of prohibiting the wearing of hats by lady visitors to the Queen's Theatre during morning performances of The Belle of Brittany, I have been guided by the enormous publicity given to the question recently by the Press. I consider the act of purchasing a theatre ticket carries with it the right to an uninterrupted view of the stage. The question of ladies wearing hats in theatres has always been a burning one, but hats have reached such alarming proportions of late that the wearers of them in a place of amusement must of necessity prove a nuisance to many sitting behind these creations.

I sincerely hope my lady patrons will not think I am starting a crusade against the present form of millinery in its proper place. No one admires a well and fashionably dressed woman more than myself; but in my managerial capacity I must consider the comfort of the majority of my patrons, and I feel that most ladies object to the wearing of hats in theatres as strenuously as do men.

I have had mirrors placed in the auditorium and passages of the Queen's Theatre for the convenience of ladies, and, of course, there are the usual cloak-rooms for those who prefer them.

The great success of The Belle of Brittany makes it possible to prove conclusively whether the innovation meets with the approval of my patrons or not. All the stalls and two-thirds of the dress-circle seats have been secured by the libraries at evening performances for some weeks to come, so, should the matinées not be proportionately patronised, I shall know the fair sex have declared against the experiment.—Yours faithfully,

TOM B. DAVIS.

"THE BURGLAR WHO FAILED."

A New and Original Comedy, in One Act, by Mr. St. John Hankin, produced at the Criterion Theatre on Tuesday, Oct. 27.

Mrs. Maxwell	Miss Kate Wingfield
Dolly	Miss Elfrida Clement
Bill Bludgeon	Mr. Ferdinand Gottschalk

Mr. St. John Hankin, who adds much to the gaiety of British households by his contributions to Punch, proved some years ago by his "Dramatic Sequels" appearing in that journal that he had an entertaining pen. In the broader aspects of his work for the stage he has shown, especially in The Return of the Prodigal, a vein of humour that may be best qualified by the adjective Gilbertian. In his latest piece, The Burglar Who Failed, produced in front of Lady Epping's Lawsuit at the Criterion, he gracefully acknowledges that the idea for the little play emanated from the brain of a brother dramatist, Mr. H. M. Harwood, but it is in the treatment of the theme that the real originality lies. Bill Bludgeon, burglar, has entered the open window of the residence of the Maxwells, and is hiding under the bed of Dolly Maxwell, while that athletic and healthy young lady, dressed in her nighty and dressing gown, is having a quiet chat with her mother before retiring to rest. Scarcely has the elder lady said "good-night" when Dolly hears a noise under the bed, and then an ominous sneeze. Switching on the light, she jumps out of bed and discovers Bill the burglar. Arming herself with her hockey stick, she soon makes him drop his revolver, which she immediately seizes. Bill, who realises that the game is up, in a tone of whining timidity implores Dolly to be careful in handling the weapon as it is loaded. Emerging from his hiding-place, Bill, who leaves his jemmy behind, enters into a discussion with his captor concerning his profession. Removing a manifest red wig and whiskers, he owns to the name of William Simpkins, and confesses that he has only been a burglar for six weeks. It is a profession for which he has no liking, and for which he is quite unsuited. Originally a footman, Bill had lost his berth through his drinking propensities, but the horrid uncertainty of his present mode of getting a living is ruining his constitution. The game literally is not worth the candle; for during his experience of it he has only secured as loot one gold watch—a poor timekeeper, and he shudders as he thinks of the bite in his leg from a bulldog, which he had to shoot. He complains, too, of the comfortless nature of the occupation of the cracksman, and of his liability to catch cold—from which he is suffering severely—in draughty houses. Altogether burgling is a nerve-shattering business, and he is quite ready to give it up and return to his original occupation. Dolly promises to get Bill a character from her mother, who interrupts the conversation by a hurried re-entry necessitating Bill's concealment in a handy wardrobe. Dolly with little difficulty allays her mother's fears as to burglars, and obtains her promise that she will do her best for the ex-footman in whom the girl is interested. The intrepid and kind-hearted Dolly, it is to be hoped, will not be disappointed in her quixotic effort to reform so unpromising a character as "the burglar who failed." The piece is a pleasant and amusing trifle, and has many droll lines. Miss Elfrida Clement as Dolly Maxwell is just the bright, plucky, and interesting girl that the author intended, and Mr. Ferdinand Gottschalk brings out all the timidity and funk of the cracksman with whimsical results. Miss Kate Wingfield is an exemplar of matronly sweetness and dignity as Mrs. Maxwell. Lady Epping's Lawsuit is drawing crowded houses nightly to enjoy the excellence of the acting of Miss Mary Moore and her companions in a comedy that provides most diverting entertainment.

"SAMSON."

Drama, in Four Acts, by Henri Bernstein. Produced at the Criterion Theatre, New York, on Oct. 19.

(FROM OUR NEW YORK CORRESPONDENT.)

This is a very stirring play, and the interest attaching to anything that the author of The Thief might write was considerably increased by the reappearance on the metropolitan stage of Mr. William Gillette after an absence of two years. In the title-rôle of M. Bernstein's new drama he gave a powerful and impressive portrayal of a copper "king" who sacrifices his fortune of eighty million francs in order to ruin the man who has compromised his wife. Samson is Maurice Brachard, who has risen from a dock labourer through his iron determination to be the copper magnate of Paris. He has married the woman he loved, Anne-Marie, daughter of the effete Marquis and Marquise d'Andeline, not because she reciprocated his affection, for she could hardly bear his mere presence, but for the sake of her parents, who are as poor as their name is noble.

She turns in desperation for amusement, nothing more, to Jerome Le Govain, a social favourite, whom Brachard has regarded as his closest friend, and whom he has enriched through wise advice on copper. Govain, however, is a contemptible libertine, and seeks to deprive his uncouth friend of the only thing in the world he really prizes—his unresponsive wife. He succeeds in enticing her to a notorious café, and this fact is revealed to the copper king by a woman to whom Govain has been affianced, but whom he has cast aside after acquiring great wealth. Samson turns back from a business trip to London, the announcement of which has given his wife and his "friend" the opportunity they have been awaiting, breaks down the door of milady's boudoir, and finds that she is absent from home at one o'clock in the morning. Before he can follow her she arrives, pale, dishevelled, and horror-stricken at a disgusting brawl into which she has been thrust at the café and at her discovery of the baseness of Govain. After dragging from her a confession of her indiscretion, Samson locks his wife in his chamber and longs like a wild beast for the man who has sought to ruin his home. He lures him to the Hotel Ritz, after planning their mutual financial death, and with his hands choking the breath out of the villain gloats over his writhings at the news of his loss.

While his self-pauperisation turns from Brachard his every friend, including the parents of his wife, Anne-Marie, strangely enough, sees him then for the first time in his true light, realises that he has done all for her, and finds it in her heart to love him, thus making him far happier than could the restoration of all his wealth.

Miss Constance Collier, who made her American début in the rôle of Anne-Marie, the wife of the financier, created a very favourable impression by her unaffected and natural manner. Miss Pauline Frederick was conspicuously successful as Elise Vernette; Mr. Arthur Byron distinguished himself as Govain; Mr. Frederic de Belleville gave an excellent impersonation of the Marquis; and Miss Marie Wainwright as the Marquise was charming. At the close of the third act there were no less than twenty curtain calls accompanied by cries of "Speech!" Mr. Gillette bowed his acknowledgment again and again, but declined to speak. The newspaper notices of the play are by no means unanimous, but there seems to be a general impression that Samson will not prove as big a success as The Thief.

A DRAMATIC NOVEL.

Mr. Frank Harris's novel "The Bomb," which has just been published by John Long, is wonderful. One can understand Mr. Harris writing "Elder Conklin," "Montes the Matador," and Mr. and Mrs. Daventry. These are within the scope of the experience with which one, perhaps too carelessly, credits the editor of Vanity Fair and the ex-editor of the Saturday Review and the Fortnightly. But "The Bomb" bursts upon us astoundingly. By what exercise of imagination has the author—a man about town and a bon vivant—been able to jump into the skin of the teller of the tale, a young German-American, whom the wrongs and sufferings of the proletariat drive to become an Anarchist? The story is told in the first person; the sufferings are described with the ease and confidence of personal experience. The method followed is that of Zola, with the addition of a warm sympathy which is wanting in the somewhat "self-detached" French novelist. Thus, in the earlier part of the book we have a vivid description of the painful labours of a party of wretched workmen in a caisson of compressed air while excavating for the foundations of Brooklyn Bridge. It is impossible to read without burning indignation of the tortures which these wage-slaves endured, simply to save expenses for the contractors; for Mr. Harris tells us in a footnote that the illness of the men working in caissons has dropped from 80 per cent. every three months to 8 per cent. since the fresh air supplied to them has been increased from 1,500 cubic feet an hour to 10,000. This experience of the hero, Rudolph Schnaubelt's, is endured in New York. Then he goes to Chicago, where he falls in love with a girl of his own class. And now his conversion to Anarchism runs parallel with a passionate and tormenting amour. At the same time that Schnaubelt is falling under the influence of the Anarchist leader, Lingg, he is struggling with the temptation to seduce his sweetheart. His feelings in each case are elaborately depicted, in the latter with a reality which might put many a modern French novelist to the blush. We now approach the part of the book which may be called "historical." It deals with the incidents which preceded and followed the arrest of the celebrated Chicago Anarchists. A strike among the pig-packers is followed by a meeting, which is dispersed by the police with brutal violence. Schnaubelt asks Lingg to be allowed to throw the first bomb that is to revenge the wrongs of the people. The result is thus described:—

I saw the white clubs falling, saw the police striking down the men running along the sidewalk. At once my mind was made up. I put my left hand on the outside of my trousers to hold the bomb tight, and my right hand into the pocket, and drew the tape. I heard a little rasp. I began to count slowly, "One, two, three, four, five, six, seven"; as I got to seven the police were quite close to me, bludgeoning every one furiously. Two or three of the foremost had drawn their revolvers. The crowd were flying in all directions. Suddenly there was a shot, and then a dozen shots, all, it seemed to me, fired by the police. Rage blazed in me.

I took the bomb out of my pocket, careless whether I was seen or not, and looked for the right place to throw it; then I hurled it over my shoulder high in the air, towards the middle of the police, and at the same moment I stumbled forward, just as if I had fallen, throwing myself on my hands and face, for I had seen the spark. It seemed as if I had been on my hands for an eternity, when I was crushed to the ground, and my ears split with the roar. I scrambled to my feet again, gasping. Men were thrown down in front of me, and were getting up on their hands. I heard groans and cries, and shrieks behind me. . . . The street was one shambles; in the very centre of it a great pit yawned, and round it men lying, or pieces of men, in every direction, and close to me, near the side-walk as I passed, a leg and foot torn off, and near by two huge pieces of bleeding red meat, skewered together with a thighbone.

The rest of the book deals with Schnaubelt's escape to Bavaria, and with the awful suicide of Lingg in prison. Schnaubelt dies of consumption, happy in the belief that "in this world no unselfish deed is lost, or any aspiration, or even hope, die away without effect."

Our readers may judge from this account of the book of its originality, its poetry, and its power. It is inspired with the keenest sympathy for the sufferings of the poor and the oppressed, and with the most intense faith in the future of the great social democratic movement. It is dedicated to the Princess of Monaco, an old friend of Mr. Harris's, who was the first person to induce him to write, and who is the grand-niece of Heine. "The Bomb" will certainly create a sensation.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

The college concert of Thursday evening, Oct. 22, commenced with Brahms' Quartet for Strings in C minor. Miss Marjorie Beer, Mr. Philip Levine, Mr. Frank Bridge, and Mr. Felix Salmond were the executants, and a very creditable performance was given, particularly of the second movement, Romanze. Mr. Felix Salmond, who played Boccherini's Sonata for Violoncello No. 6 in A major, may be warmly praised for his excellent tone and fluent execution in the two movements, and hearty applause followed his admirable rendering of the quaint and difficult Allegro. Beethoven's "Kreutzer" Sonata for Piano and Violin in A major was a somewhat ambitious attempt for the two scholars Miss Giulietta Motto and Miss Marjorie Adam, but they acquitted themselves ably in a difficult task, and although the violinists' tone was rather thin, her playing of the Finale showed considerable facility and command of her instrument. Miss Irene Robinson sang G. Henschel's "Morning Hymn" with fine expression and purity of voice, and after giving "Attente" (Wagner) received a hearty recall. Equally successful was Miss Viola Tree, a talented daughter of the distinguished actor, who had a most enthusiastic reception for her singing of Brahms' "Klage" and "Ständchen." Another clever vocalist was Miss Florence Taylor, heard in "Il mio bel foco" (Marcello) and Paisiello's "Nel cor più non mi sento." Th. Bubeck's organ solo, Fantasia and Fugue in F sharp, played by Miss Alice M. Ibbetson, was the last item in the concert of Thursday. The accompanists were Miss Joan Powell, Mr. Herbert A. Smith, and Miss Ellen Tuckfield.

ALEXANDRA PALACE.

Another successful promenade concert was given in the Central Hall on Saturday, the new and attractive bandstand being utilised by the band of H.M. 1st Batt. the Gordon Highlanders, with Mr. E. R. Pallant as conductor. Miss Maud Santley, who is no stranger to the Palace, has a pleasing voice, and her selections are always listened to with rapt attention. Her first number, Meyerbeer's recitative and aria, "Nobil Signor," in English, was excellently rendered, as were also the songs "Good night, dear heart" and "The first spring day," and by way of encore she gave Gerald M. Lane's catchy refrain "When the lights are low." Miss Ruby Helder, described as "the phenomenal girl tenor," rendered Gounod's Invocation song from Faust, "Loving smile of sister kind," exceedingly well; but her opportunity arrived when, as an encore to Blumenthal's song "The Message," she gave "Come into the garden, Maud," and so great was the applause that again she had to respond. Five times in the course of the evening did Miss Ruby Helder hold the attention of the audience. The concert was a most satisfactory one.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE BEDFORD.

Mr. B. P. Lucas is putting forward a very attractive programme this week, and, in addition, a beauty competition was announced for last night (Friday), when handsome prizes were to be awarded to the three prettiest young ladies, and this was sure to be a big attraction. The Eight Olympians are a big feature in the bill, and present a clever and interesting display of the Japanese methods of Ju-jitsu. There are three ladies who prove themselves to be veritable experts at the art, and the male members receive fairly severe handling. An exhibition of Ju-jitsu wrestling is also given, and one of the exponents offers to receive challenges. On the night of our visit he succeeded in throwing his challenger in six and a quarter minutes, after a very smart encounter, and he also conquered him in catch-as-catch-can style.

Mr. Fred S. Howard, styled "the Press Caricaturist," does some clever lightning charcoal drawings, his sketch of the London shop girl being particularly happy. He does several others, all of which prove his ability as a draftsman, and he is warmly applauded. Miss May Clarke, a charming comedienne, sings "Iris" prettily, and afterwards gives a fine rendering of "The Children's Home," evoking the utmost enthusiasm. The Players company present a bright comedy act, Where's My Kilt? Ferguson and Mack, an eccentric duo, utter jests that are funny, and their burlesque act of two young serios is extremely mirth-provoking. Dorothy Vernon, a clever character comedienne, raises many laughs with her song, "If I hadn't the dinner on the hob."

Phœbe Mercer and company appear in a bright little farce, Mistakes Will Happen, which relates the experiences of a lady who inadvertently finds herself in a matrimonial agent's office instead of a dog dealer's, with disastrous results, as may be imagined. The smart dialogue creates much diversion. Miss Mercer is particularly good as the lady, while the matrimonial agent is capitally played by an actor whose name does not figure on the programme. The Court Jesters, five in number, present a pleasing interlude. Their costumes are quite pretty, and their songs well chosen. Several concerted numbers are given, all of which are very melodious, the topical song being notably good and catchy. The whole turn is most entertaining, and gives the utmost pleasure. Jock Campbell has a lively chorus song, and some lively patter, which goes well; and Miss Frankie Manners uses a most tuneful voice to the best advantage, her song "Come back to Killarney" being charmingly rendered.

Binks's Blunder, a laughable comedy sketch, as played by the Harry Russell Trio, is a most successful item. It is one long laugh, and is capitally played. Charles Cardow, a light comedian with methods that meet with appreciation, has a song on the old topic, "Girls," which goes with a rare swing, and makes the singer a big favourite. Charles Santon, the double-voiced vocalist, displays his powers with skill, and sings "Sally in our Alley" delightfully. Captain Ellis and Son are a talented musical couple, Captain Ellis playing the cornet well and his son being an adept on the trombone. Esme Gallia, comedienne, is also on the bill, and the Bioscope completes it. Mr. Donald Brown, the acting-manager, is, as ever, at hand to see to the comfort of all comers, whom he welcomes with his accustomed courtesy.

QUEEN'S, POPLAR.

Novelty might be said to be the one all-searching quest of the management of the popular house in Poplar, and certainly they have of late been singularly well rewarded. In securing Miss Henriquette Maude for this week's programme they made a "hit" of unusual excellence. Miss Maude introduced herself as a wanderer about the world, and in graphic style depicted her journeyings with the aid of interesting slides. As an elocutionist this young lady would alone make a visit to the Queen's a pleasure; for she possesses a capacity for combining the interesting with the instructive, and is able to blend humour and pathos in such a manner as to bring her in immediate touch with her eager responsive listeners, and she is acclaimed with a warmth that is seldom associated with artists even of the strictly sentimental type.

Sentiment and remorse, the twin emotions, were the salient characteristics of The Leading Lady, played by Ashley Page and Marion Denvil. In presenting this sketch ample opportunity was given for a fine display of emotional acting of the subdued order, which is rapidly displacing the old nerve-racking type, and both Mr. Page and Miss Denvil were practically more at home in their parts than in anything they have been seen in for some time past. The theme may be somewhat well worn—that of the repentant divorced wife and the forgiving husband—the usual trend of events and sequences, the short-lived romance, the conquests, the amours, the return of the old lover and reconciliation. But reconciliation in this case took a surprising turn. Stricken with remorse, the erring wife turns to the drug and seeks her "lone paradise" in the other world, just as the husband she bewails presses home his forgiveness. Throughout a depth of feeling characterised the sketch, and it bristled with the sentimental aphorisms which weigh heavily in the appreciation of a metropolitan audience; and in consequence the efforts of Mr. Page and Miss Denvil were at this house exceedingly encouraged.

Fyne and Hurley gave an amusing skit on the dude and the coster; Elsie Roby was exceedingly entertaining at the piano; Max Gruber and Miss Adelina, with their trained and wonderfully docile and intelligent elephant, horse, and pony, gave an item which was both amusing and instructive; Frank Boyce sang a couple of sentimental songs with a singularly keen touch of feeling; Gladys Mavius, Dan Thomas, and Geo. Rapley also figured in the programme, and their respective items went a long way towards making up an entertainment of well-judged merit.

CHELSEA PALACE.

Mr. J. Norman Berlin, the popular manager of the Chelsea Palace, is presiding this week over a programme of sound attractions. The prettiest act in the programme is undoubtedly that of Miss Agnes Molteno, who appears in a song-scena, with living tableaux, entitled An Old-time Story. In this Miss Molteno, charmingly gowned in early eighteenth-century costume, enchants her hearers with her singing, to her own piano accompaniment, of "Don't cry, daddy." A man and his daughter are shown on a miniature stage, the former, with his head resting on his hand, apparently in a fit of depression owing to the loss of his wife, and the little girl trying to comfort him. She, too, sings to him in the words of the song already mentioned. The curtains are drawn together, and the lady at the piano continues with her song. Then they are drawn aside again, and we see another tableau in which the father is bending over the child in the roadway, she having seemingly been run over by a coach. In the third scene we see the father in his loneliness mourning the absence of his loved ones, and the small daughter appearing before him, as in a vision, singing "Don't cry, daddy." Miss Molteno's song-scena, which is beautifully mounted, is highly appreciated.

Mr. W. H. Clemart, the well-known ventriloquist, causes great amusement with his mechanical figures and the clever manner in which he brings about his vocal illusions. His imitation of the crying of a baby is exceedingly natural. The Albert and Edmunds Comedy Company offer some extremely laughable knockabout comedy in the sketch Neighbours; and Mr. Paul Vandy, the magical juggler, certainly arouses one's astonished curiosity as to how he performs some of his feats, the movements of his watch being most mysterious.

Mr. Leonard Teel is quaint and entertaining with his stories and his advice to the ladies in his character of "the suffering dame"; Miss Kathleen Gray, in a comely pantomime boy's costume, wins the good opinions of the audience with her delivery of the ditty "I shall lose the sunlight when I lose you." Mr. J. J. James, in pierrot costume, proves an immense favourite with the house. He is a wonderful whistler and imitator, and his mimicry of various persons—to wit, a Piccadilly Johnnie, a costermonger, a Scotsman, and a sifflleuse—under certain circumstances is capitally done. Wilman, the Australian instrumentalist, furnishes ample evidence of sound musical talents; and the Carlyles present some smart whirlwind dances. Mr. Mark Melford and company create merriment with the sketch Nonsuited, and Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope displays an interesting series of pictures.

THE FORESTERS.

The genial resident-manager, Mr. Craig, and our old friend Mr. Faithfull extend a hearty welcome to friends and patrons at this cosy East End hall, so popular amongst the many toilers, who, for a small sum, are able to obtain a capital evening's amusement. Drama is still a great attraction, though it is of higher order than in days gone by, for we were given a sensational and thrilling one-act play by the versatile Geo. R. Sims, entitled The White Hand of a Woman, which is capitally acted by a first-class company. The plot centres around a certain Belle Bellingham, an assumed name, who is "wanted" for the murder of her husband in America, her real name being Fay Faringdon. The adventuress is now in England, at Riverview, Maidenhead, where her many attractions have fascinated Lord Farnleigh, who becomes attached to her. Captain Scarsdale, a guest, and also a friend of the murdered husband, has declared his intentions of tracking the culprit, which he does in a novel way, namely, by marrying her. By that move he would have the opportunity of recognising her by a certain scar on her chest. He is aware that he is doing a great injustice to Lord Farnleigh, also a great friend; but thoughts of revenge are uppermost with him. The finale is reached by the lady stabbing herself after having been denounced by her husband. Mr. Bernard Mervyn as Captain Scarsdale played perfectly throughout, being ably assisted by Miss B. Doyle, who, as Belle Bellingham, brings the scene to a close by a capital piece of acting. Miss Mamie Rendle as Lady Dunbar and Mr. Sydney C. Kearns as Lord Farnleigh win favour; and the minor characters are well portrayed by Mr. W. G. Blunt and Miss Lorraine.

Carter's Ten San-Tan Girls are talented young ladies who display their charming figures to advantage. They are all exceedingly good dancers and singers, the blending of voices in their numerous items being worthy of high praise. The item is well received. Edward and Dacre in a comedy duo provide much fun, the male partner impersonating the lady's ma-in-law and she in return masquerading as a male suitor in love with the wife. The many complications cause great amusement, and the pair are rewarded with a good share of applause. The Sisters Brenton sing a tuneful number, "Wait for me, Fritzy dear," their second item being an exceptionally well-executed skipping-rope dance in top-boots. The Melbournes supply an interesting and refined act, the business of the gentleman being truly funny. Singing, dancing, and smart repartee are included in the entertainment, and the audience receive in royal fashion this clever turn. The lady is most charming, and plays up well to her partner.

Alice Hughes and company in a musical comedietta entitled Star of the Bazaar provide an enjoyable turn full of rich comedy and a little drama. The lady plays the character of an actress who is officiating at the bazaar for the sake of charity, but in reality we find she is there with intent to steal, her efforts being frustrated by James, a part that is played by an exceedingly good comedian, Mr. Charles Dillon. Mr. F. R. Lurin was also successful. Miss Hughes made a charming actress.

Miss Madge Allen sang in good style "I'm in love with a London girl" and "In my Chateau," concluding with a smart quick-step dance which was greatly appreciated. The Forsyths in A Tramp in a Nursery are enjoyable, the speciality being the lady's able representation of a doll, while the gentleman's humour is very diverting. Irene and Morton, "the hobo and the maid," provide good singing, smart talk, and extraordinary dancing; Miss Hilda Mascot sings tunefully "Colon Town," concluding with a neat dance; and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux are interesting.

HACKNEY EMPIRE.

At the top of a capital bill this week is Leonard Mortimer and No. 1 company in the "sensational laughing success" The Little Captain. The play turns round a characteristic adventure of the immortal mariner, and certainly proves to be an entirely acceptable production. Mr. Mortimer in the title-rôle admirably depicts the part, and is supported by a very capable and hard-working company. The production is on a most complete scale, the second scene particularly, representing the cabin of a steam yacht, reflecting great credit on Mr. Francis H. Bull. It is almost needless to add that the show was received with the greatest enthusiasm. Boden and Belle, juvenile vocal and dancing artists, are very smart, and received a good reception.

Lydia Yeamans, the baby impersonator, scored an immense success, the fidelity of her imitations being remarkable, very valuable assistance also being rendered by Mr. Frederick J. Titus at the piano. John Warren presents a new magical mystery in the shape of a play which is very smart and bewildering. He was well supported by Miss Mollie Wynter and Messrs. Frank Morton and F. G. Fenn, a well-deserved call being accorded at the close. Lottie Lennox, who is sharing the honour of the bottom of the bill, gave two songs, "Put on your old green bonnet" and "There'll be no war," both of which took the fancy of the audience, who were lavish in their applause.

Dutch Daly, who is also at the bottom, gives some capital solos on his concertina and tells some funny stories, his reception being as good as ever; Frank Leon, described as a character-comedian, submits some wonderful examples of clog dancing, and fully deserves the flattering reception accorded him. Others in the bill are Pat Rafferty, Alf Holt, and Walter Wade. The Bioscope is good with films of Wilbur Wright's flying machine. Mr. Greco's orchestra is, as usual, excellent, and Mr. Arthur Trussell is very courteous in the front of the house.

TOTTENHAM PALACE.

A capital audience filled this establishment twice on the night of our visit, and throughout the week full houses have been recorded. The many items of the programme have yielded obvious satisfaction to the patrons. The most popular turn here this week is Harry Tate "himself" in his side-splitting skit Motoring. When his number goes up loud applause testifies to the popularity of this prince among variety artists, and at the conclusion of his performance he is warmly applauded, and called before the curtain. Wal Robbins causes some amusement with his musical entertainment, and Dennis and Morris have been scoring successfully as patter artists, singers, and dancers, deputising for the Bollingers, the rag-pickers. Mr. Arthur Croxon, a mimic out of the ordinary rut, contributes funny stories, following on with a clever imitation of a village quartette. His mimicry of a little nervous girl singing "Won't you buy my pretty flowers," and a country lad reciting are excellently done. He fairly brings down the house with his concluding item, a stout young lady suffering from shortness of breath singing "Whisper and I shall hear."

Mr. Harry Thurston as a dame contributes an amusing song "For a dance," but his second item, an imitation of Mr. Harry Lauder singing "The saftest o' the family" is much more appreciated. Miss Dorothy L. Clark, apparently suffering a little from nervousness, proves by her rendering of "The Bubble and the Sunbeam" and "A tiny seed of Love" that she has ability. Her voice is rich and mellow, and she sings her songs with commendable expression. The Sisters Edwards, vocalists, dancers, and drummers, are specially clever in their manipulations of the drum, which they introduce in their first duet "The Sunday-morning Band." Their second item, "My Irish Rosie," is well rendered, a cleverly-executed dance following.

Dainty Daisy Dormer, comedienne, sings her striking melodies "Anywhere will do" and "Mr. Knight" with much charm, and she is a most attractive turn in an exceptionally strong programme. She is a hard-working artist, and thoroughly deserves the hearty applause which is accorded her. The Selbinis, in their bicycle performance, are wonderfully adroit in the manipulation of their machines, the lady artist being an especially charming and graceful performer. The troupe includes a very smart boy, who is the recipient of much praise, and who seems to be utterly fearless when engaged in the most hazardous of tricks. Not the least important item on the programme is that provided by Ruffell's Bioscope, with a series of animated pictures quite up to date and exciting withal. Mr. T. S. Mayne, manager, is to be congratulated on his excellent programmes, and the duties falling to the lot of the acting-manager are very capably performed by Mr. Harold Nuttall.

RICHMOND HIPPODROME.

There is a decidedly attractive bill here this week, and Mr. H. J. Brett, who looks after the front of the house so attentively, has had his hands full, and bumper houses have been the rule. The Society Quartette succeed beyond expectations, not that their show is one whit less meritorious, but that the members of the party excel in all they do. The step-dancing is neat and the harmonising true to a note; the unanimity of the verdict was unmistakable. The Society Four are a genuinely good turn. Surely there was something in Darwin's "Origin of Species" after all. The remark is evoked by the wonderful performance of Bostock's Baboons. There is an absence of timidity about these well-trained animals that speaks much for their humane training; as to their show, there appears to be little they cannot do. The balancing, bar sprinting, and general antics are not only amusing but clever; and a bout of fisticuffs between the leader and another of his race must be seen to be appreciated. That good music is keenly appreciated by the patrons of the halls we have frequently pointed out in the columns of this journal. Webb and Branstone are an example in point. Their first contribution, "Whisper and I shall hear," proved a veritable gem, and met with musicianly treatment at the hands of these very capable artists, who were greeted with a triple "call." The house laughed itself to tears at a Bioscope slide entitled A Troublesome Theft. It proved all that to the wretched snapper-up of unconsidered trifles. Substantial fare is provided by Mr. Walter Reynolds's company in a dramalette entitled Sweet Innisfail. There are all the ingredients of the popular drama here—love, hatred, jealousy, and despair. The piece was cleverly interpreted by a capable company, whose merits we should recognise here had their names been on the bill. As it is, we offer our congratulations to the entire company. Eccentric comedy finds a perfect exponent in Sam Mayo, whose merit lies largely in his unique method. "A Terrible Tale" was one of the funniest things of the evening. The Havanna Troupe demonstrated the amount of knockabout business it is possible to put up with ere the coroner is called. Their efforts generally were a success. Other interesting items included Aimée de Leska, brightest of comediennes; and Clarke and Hayden, droll gentlemen, and welcome.

Miss Maggie Bowman and Mr. Tom J. Morton have been engaged for pantomime at the Theatre Royal, Bolton. Miss Bowman is having a special part written for her, and will work original numbers with Mr. Morton, who will appear as Abanazar. This talented duo are fully booked until November, 1909, and will, in the spring, produce a novelty vaudeville act, entitled Mixed Pickles.

What might have been a serious accident was avoided, in Broadgate, Coventry, on Monday afternoon, by Police-constable Smith (62) and Mr. Harry Lord, a comedian appearing at the Empire, Coventry, this week. A horse and trap, belonging to Mr. Reuben Fywham, of Gilbert Street, was being driven up Broadgate towards Hertford-street by him, when the horse slipped and fell down at the top of Smithford-street. The occupants, including the driver and a two-years-old boy, were thrown out, the boy getting under the horse's legs. When the horse regained his feet he made a plunge; but Police-constable Smith caught his head, and Lord, at great personal risk, snatched the boy away, thus avoiding serious injuries to him. No one was hurt, but the occupants suffered from severe shock.

The management of the Alhambra, Brighton, announces a special matinée of Mr. Cyril Maude and company, in Toddles, for Tuesday, Nov. 17. We understand from the manager, Mr. Ernest Lepard, that flying visits from other West End companies will follow.

Mr. Ronald Bayne and Miss Evelyn Hope are producing at the Bedford, Camden Town, next week, a pathetic domestic sketch, entitled The Little Peacemaker, written by Ivan Gore and Ronald Bayne, in which they well be assisted by a very clever child actress.

The many friends of Mr. Charley Chapman will be interested to learn that he has just completed twenty-two years of service as representative of the well-known firm of Richard Warner and Co.

The latest quotations for music-hall shares are as follow:—Alhambra, 1½; Canterbury, ½; Empire (15s. paid), 1½; ditto (10s. paid), 1; London Pavilion Ordinary, 3½; ditto, Preference, 4½; Metropolitan, 14s.; Moss Empire, 5; ditto, 5 per cent. Preference, 3½; Oxford, 6½; Palace, 18s. 6d.; Tivoli, 5½; Var. Cons. Theas., 10s.

The Furniture Trades' Musical Society have again entrusted the musical arrangements to Mr. Alfred H. Botwright for the ninth year in succession. The society exists in the interests of benevolence and sociability, and the concerts, which are of a bohemian character, are held at the Holborn Restaurant.

Indispensable! Rayne's "Pocket Date Book." Contents: Map (19in. by 10in.), showing the distance betwixt the various music halls at a glance. Will tell if one hall is within the barring radius of the other, thus saving fears, worry, and anxiety. All about artists' luggage, list of clubs, information about stamping contracts, foreign money table, London music halls and theatres, their telephone numbers, list of brougham proprietors, list and address of photographers, size of theatrical printing paper, names and addresses of theatrical railway managers, &c. Price 1s., post free. The proceeds from the sale will be divided equally amongst the two great charities of the dramatic and musical professions, the Actors' Benevolent Fund and the Music Hall Home Fund. STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

A well-attended meeting of theatre and music-hall employees was held on Sunday, in the Victoria Inn, John Bright-street, Birmingham, for the purpose of forming a branch of the National Association of Theatrical Employees. Mr. F. G. Lees, secretary of the local branch of the Musicians' Union, presided. Mr. Wm. Johnson, general secretary of the N.A.T.E., addressed the meeting at length. A resolution was submitted approving of the formation of a branch, which was supported by Mr. J. V. Stevens, and carried unanimously. A provisional committee was appointed, which will meet next week at the Victoria Inn to proceed with the work of organisation. Mr. F. J. Lees has kindly consented to act as Secretary until the usual officers and the committee have been appointed.

A general meeting of the Middlesbrough branch of the N.A.T.E. will be held on Sunday evening, when the president of the branch, Mr. H. Andrews, will, on behalf of the National Executive Committee, present a gold badge to the branch secretary, Mr. A. E. Wright, for special services in helping to organise a branch of the society in Stockton-on-Tees.

Mr. Philip Sheridan, who was for many years electrician in charge at the Crown Theatre, has been appointed electrician in charge at the Waldorf Theatre, and will commence his duties on Monday week. Mr. P. Sheridan's late brother, Mr. T. Sheridan, was formerly in charge at this theatre.

A special meeting of the committee of the cinematograph operators' branch will be held on Tuesday next, at 2.30, at 29, Wellington-street, when all members in London are asked to attend.

The Employees' Concert Committee have been informed that Miss Dorothea Baird will give a recitation at the concert. Mr. Matheson Lang, who wrote to say he regrets he is engaged on that evening, sent a cheque for £1 1s. as a donation to the fund; Miss Lena Ashwell sent £1 1s. for a box; Mr. Alfred de Rothschild sent a cheque for £5 5s.; Mr. James Carew sent £1 1s.; and Mr. Arthur Cludleigh £1. Miss Ada Colley, who wrote expressing her regret that she would not be in town on Nov. 29, sent her best wishes for the success of the concert and a cheque for £2 2s. Mr. Charles Hawtrey, Mr. Frank Glenister, Mr. Cyril Maude, and Mr. Forbes Robertson also give consent to add their names to the list of patrons.

BREACH OF CONTRACT.

On Wednesday, at Clerkenwell County Court, Charles Rezine, variety artist, of King Edward-street, Islington, sued C. A. Gardiner, theatre proprietor, of Aigburth Mansions, Chapel-street, Brixton, for £5 5s., as damages for breach of contract.

Mr. Lewis, solicitor, appeared for plaintiff, who said that he was engaged by defendant for thirteen performances at the Queen's, Poplar, in a piece known as The Airship. He attended the rehearsals, and appeared in two performances on Monday, Aug. 24. On the Tuesday he presented himself at the hall, but was told that The Airship sketch had been withdrawn. On returning home he found a telegram from the defendant, saying, "Contract cancelled. No performance."

Defendant: Did you strike one of the performers, knocking him against the telephone bell, by which he could not work for two and a half days?—No, he did it himself.

Did you do the anchor trick?—No one breathing could do it in the way you put it.

Did you do the propeller trick?—Yes, I went round two or three times at both houses.

Harold Brough, a fellow performer with plaintiff, called for the defence, said plaintiff struck him quite unintentionally. It was in the "gag," but the force of the blow knocked witness against the telephone and injured him.

Defendant said that he had to cancel the contract, as Brough, being injured by plaintiff, was unable to appear. He had paid into Court an amount to cover the two performances.

His Honour: But you cancelled the contract, and you had no right to, it seems to me.

Defendant: How could I go on when he had battered a performer so that he was unable to appear?

His Honour: Because one performer drops out I don't see that you are entitled to cancel the contract.

Judgment was entered in plaintiff's favour for £3 3s. and costs.

PROPRIETOR AND ARTIST.

Thomas St. Clair, one of a trio of trick cyclists, entered on October 17th, 1907, through a Liverpool agent, into an arrangement with Mr. T. Allan Edwardes, proprietor of theatres at Sheffield, Derby, and elsewhere, to perform on three consecutive weeks in August of this year at the Palace, Attercliffe, Derby, and Stoke. He had previously contracted with Mr. Stoll to appear at the Sheffield Empire in May of next year, and by a condition of that contract he could not accept an engagement within ten miles of that hall during a period of fifteen months preceding.

On this point being raised, the Liverpool agent, it was stated, declared that it did not matter, and that Mr. Edwardes said it would be all right. On the Saturday prior to the Monday on which the first performance was to be given at Attercliffe, Mr. St. Clair was threatened with an injunction by Mr. Stoll, in consequence of which he wired to Mr. Edwardes that he could not open on Monday, and Mr. Edwardes replied that he must open and risk the injunction, adding that he would indemnify him against all legal expenses, otherwise he should cancel all engagements and sue him for breach of contract.

Acting on that Mr. St. Clair presented himself at Attercliffe, but although he had a rehearsal he was not allowed to perform. It was for this alleged breach of contract that he now sued Mr. Edwardes, the amount claimed being £20, while Mr. Edwardes counterclaimed for £10, also for breach of contract.

Mr. Doughty appeared for the plaintiff and Mr. R. S. Clifford for the defendant, whose case was that in consequence of St. Clair saying he could not perform at Attercliffe he had to make other arrangements. Plaintiff only agreed to perform at Attercliffe after these arrangements had been made, his offer then being too late.

Judgment was given for Mr. Edwardes on both issues.

The London Society of East Anglians, of whom there are many in the profession, have again entrusted the programmes of the bohemian concerts to Mr. Alfred H. Botwright, a member of the society, whose native town is Bungay. The committee have decided to hold the concerts this season at the Holborn Restaurant, the room at the Great Eastern Hotel not being large enough comfortably to seat all those who attended last season. The first will be held on Dec. 7.

The Awards. The three interim Awards and the final Award, corrected and revised by George Ranken Askwith, Esq., the official arbitrator appointed in the Music Hall Dispute, may be had in pamphlet form at "The Era" Offices. Copy, including postage, three-half-pence. Address: The Publisher, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

During a performance of Her Country's Enemy, that wonderful little Crimean War sketch of Mr. G. P. Trevor's, which he and his company were playing at the Palace, Leicester, last week, a lady in the dress circle became so worked up, during a big scene in which the crafty Russian has the young Englishman's life in his hands, having stealthily procured the latter's pistol whilst his attention is attracted elsewhere, that she rose to her feet, and in a loud voice broke the stillness of the auditorium by calling out, "Oh, take care!—he's got it!" Mr. Trevor brings this sketch to London once more next week, when it will be seen at the Standard, Pimlico, at 10.20 nightly.

The Incorporated Stage Society will open their tenth season with the production of The Last of the De Mullins, a "tragedy of gentility," in three acts, by St. John Hankin.

The Actor is in much the same position as Royalty.

He has always to be at his best. Likewise the Actress.

Every night a houseful of critics hangs upon his every word, compares his every note. Everyday colds and indispositions, recognised in all other vocations, are not allowed to him. Whatever his real feelings may be, neither brain, nor voice, nor body must betray his indisposition, his hold on popular approval.

You yourself know how often the very knowledge of this is nearly your undoing.

Something more than mere food is essential from time to time; something to animate, invigorate, staminate, without any depressing or reactionary after-effect; one thing—Hall's Wine the marvellous restorative.

You might do far worse than take Hall's Wine this very day—you could not do better. It is not a tonic of the "here to-day, gone to-morrow" order. For long years it has been the reliable support of many of the leading men and women on stage and platform. And so you will find it.

Blood food, brain food, nerve food—that is what Hall's Wine really is. Its benefits are almost instant, yet permanent. Slackness is replaced by energy, care by confidence, weakness by strength. Your words come with ease, your voice does not fail you, and you are able to sustain the most exacting part.

And just as Hall's Wine supports so it protects—creates a vigorous circulation that safeguards against the many chills to which the "Profession" is exposed.

Hall's Wine
The Marvellous Restorative

The 3/6 size bottle for 3/- is now larger than ever. Try just one large bottle. It will do you more good than three bottles of any other tonic wine.

3/6 size for 3/-

Hall's Wine is sold by grocers and chemists with wine licences and by wine merchants everywhere, or direct from Hall's Wine, 901, Bow, London.

"THE ERA" LETTER-BOX.

The management of the Hippodrome, Colchester, also announces a flying matinée. On the afternoon of Nov. 12 Mr. Herbert Sleath's company will present A White Man.

Mr. Fred Eustace, at the Palace, Camberwell, will play next week his new sketch, The Family Name, written for him by Walter Macnamara and Harry Pleon.

Miss Mabel Mavis, the eminent glassophone soloist and piano expert, has returned from the Continent, where she has demonstrated by her pronounced success that British talent can more than hold its own even in foreign lands. She has added to her répertoire the achievement of playing the mandoline at the back of the head while accompanying herself on the piano with her feet.

For the first time in its history there is to be a "Winter Session" at Earl's Court Exhibition. Hundreds of workmen have been engaged during the past month in reconstructing the Empress Theatre, and when the public is admitted on Thursday next it will be found that the most beautiful and the largest ball-room and skating surface has been built. Lit by fifty arc lamps and 3,000 small lights, on one side visitors can view the dancing and skating (which takes place simultaneously) from an auditorium furnished with tip-up seats on the one side, or from the Empress Club and smoking alcoves on the other. The tea rooms and refreshment bars also afford good views of whatever may be in progress. Dancing will take place every evening at 7.30 in a specially enclosed oval area, around which skaters will, at the same time, incessantly glide. All taking part must remove their hats. Dancers must have proper dancing shoes.

Many novelties will be introduced by the management from time to time, embracing skating Gymkhanas, the largest fancy dress balls and confetti carnivals ever held in London, sports on wheels, push ball, hockey, and polo. Novel competitions will be inaugurated. One of the first will be "Beauties on Skates," in which each lady will be required to let down her hair. The lady adjudged to have the finest head of hair will be presented with a pony and trap. The floor will cover an area of 22,000 square feet, and is unquestionably the finest in the world. Fifty of London's prettiest actresses will take part in the ceremony.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT
FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER.
By ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (Lond.).

Copyright confusion is, like the poor, always with us, and as it seems likely to remain so until at least the crack of doom, it were well for all concerned, or likely to be concerned, to take immediate steps to secure a copy of Mr. Albert A. Strong's new work, entitled "The Law of Copyright." Mr. Strong is already favourably known to the profession for his textbook on "Dramatic and Musical Law," which, like his latest production, is published at "The Era" Office. "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" essays to make clear to the non-legal mind what is—or, in some cases what probably is—the law as to musical and dramatic copyright. The chapters on the Berne Convention and on the Chase Act, passed by the United States Congress last March, are full of interest.—Referee.

THE RISTORI MEMORIAL.

The announcement that an influential committee, at the head of which are Sir CHARLES WYNDHAM, Mr. BEERBOHM TREE, Sir SQUIRE BANCROFT, Sir W. S. GILBERT, and Sir JOHN HARE, has been organised to pay tribute to the memory of RISTORI, and that Mr. TREE has given the use of His Majesty's Theatre for a matinée in the autumn for the same object, reminds us of a great actress, who is still remembered by many of the present generation. ADELAIDE RISTORI, the Marquise Capranica del Grillo, was born at Civitale de Friuli, a small town in the Lambardo-Venetian territory, in the year 1822. When only four years old she played children's parts with success, and subsequently attempted ingénues and soubrettes. When only fourteen years of age she was entrusted with the rôle of Francesca da Rimini in the tragedy of that name; and the impression she made in the character decided her future. At the age of twenty-four she married the Marquis Capranica del Grillo, and on their union left the stage. But she still yearned after public triumphs; and when she heard that a theatrical manager whom she knew was in prison for debt, she gave three representations for his benefit. The enthusiasm they created was so intense that she was induced by it to return to the boards, from which she had been absent two years.

RISTORI justified the public demand by the tremendous success of her tragic performances. As Myrrha, as Mary Queen of Scots in the Italian version of SCHILLER'S tragedy of Marie Stuart, as Antigone in the play on that theme by ALFIERI, as Fair Rosamond, and as Octavia she especially excelled; but her Medea was the part in which she won her greatest fame. The version of Medea was written by ERNEST LEGOUVÉ for Mlle. RACHEL and for the Théâtre Français. RACHEL refused to play the part, asserting that it did not suit her; and LEGOUVÉ brought an action against her, and received 5,000 francs damages. RISTORI accepted the tragedy, and triumphed in it. The actress's great effect was made at the end of the play, when, in answer to Jason's enquiry who has killed his children, Medea replies, in a terrible voice, "Tu!"

RISTORI made her first appearance in Paris at the Théâtre des Italiens in 1855 in Francesca da Rimini. She also played Mirandolina in La Locandiera. "One should understand," says RISTORI in her Memoirs, "the coquettish (sic) of that school as it is very different from the present. The colouring must absolutely bend towards conversational naturalness. . . . I should like to have the actress who performs it now take notice of my remarks." After RISTORI'S performance as Myrrha, at the end of the fourth act, the foyer of the Italiens was invaded by celebrities of all sorts, ALEXANDRE DUMAS "kissing her mantle and her hands," and LEGOUVÉ, SCRIBE, and THEOPHILE GAUTIER showing enthusiasm which "reached almost a paroxysm." With regard to RACHEL'S rivalry with the Italian actress, the story went at the time that on a visit to the Italiens RACHEL, keeping at the back of her box, and unable to restrain her rage at her rival's triumph, tore into pieces the book of the play which she held in her hands, exclaiming, "This woman hurts me. I cannot stand her any longer!" and then left the house in a rage. However that may have been, RACHEL sent RISTORI a box for the Français, and the Italian actress duly witnessed and enjoyed RACHEL'S fine performance in Phèdre.

RISTORI came to London in 1856, and appeared at the Lyceum in the June of that year as Medea. On her return to London the year after she played in an Italian version of Macbeth at Covent Garden. "So thoroughly," she says, "did I enter into the nature of Lady Macbeth, that, during the entire sleep-walking scene, my pupils were motionless in their orbits, causing me to shed tears." Next came a visit to Warsaw, followed by a trip to Naples, where she fell right over the footlights when representing the delirium of Phèdre in a version of RACINE'S drama, deeply wounding her right arm with the broken glass of one of the globes around the oil lamps which were used by order of the Neapolitan Government.

While acting at the Larzuela Theatre, Madrid, RISTORI heard that a soldier had been sentenced to death for drawing his sword on his sergeant, who had struck him. The President of the Ministry happened to be at the theatre, and he advised RISTORI to beg the man's life of Queen ISABELLA. The interview took place in the royal box; and the Queen ultimately yielded to the actress's impassioned entreaties. The man was sentenced only to a term of imprisonment, which RISTORI managed to get greatly reduced. Her success was world-wide, and she endeared herself to her fellow-countrymen by her patriotism. As TOMMASSO SALVINI remarked in his "Discours en Commémoration," pronounced at the Theatre Argentina in Rome in the presence of the KING and QUEEN of ITALY, "The merit of RISTORI did not only consist in superior declamation, a dignified presence, gesture of the rarest refinement, and flashes of artistic genius; she was also endowed with a Raphaelesque beauty, a superb voice, the grand manner, a cultivated mind and an exquisite gift of conversation, an iron will, steady perseverance, and nerves of steel. Always strong and full of energy, she played successively and without a rest the parts of Medea, Judith, and Elizabeth, receiving visits between the acts from innumerable admirers of her genius; and she conversed with everybody in the same admirable and amiable way. She was an excellent mother, a good companion, and a Queen in her art. Her good works were many, she relieved hundreds of poor people, and she helped the cause of Italian freedom by winning the sympathy and friendship of foreign nations." We may add that she wrote clearly and pleasantly, and her "Memoirs and Artistic Studies" were translated into English and published in London last year. In 1902, at the age of eighty, she recited, through the telephone between Turin and Paris, a verse of LEGOUVÉ'S Medea into the ear of the venerable author, who was then ninety-five. She died at Rome in the October of 1906 without distress or pain. Truly a wonderful woman, and well worthy of a memorial.

"THE FLAG-STATION."

One-Act Drama, by Eugene Walter, produced at the Aldwych Theatre on Oct. 29.

Dick Anderson.....MR. J. W. DEAN
Charlie.....MR. J. COOK BERESFORD
Mary Anderson.....MISS FANNIE WARD

Miss Fannie Ward has put on, in front of Fanny and the Servant Problem at the Aldwych Theatre, one of the most thrilling and sensational one-act plays that have been seen on the stage for a long time. It has already had great success in America, and it was received by the audience at the Aldwych on Thursday with a tense interest which became almost painful at the conclusion, when the house was hushed into awed and anxious expectation. Dick Anderson, a telegraph operator at a station on a lonely mountain line in America, has been working continuously for three days without rest or sleep; for a snowstorm has prevented the usual "relief" reaching him. Unnerved by the strain and by the recollection of the suspicion which fell on him on a former occasion of having wrecked a train by an error, he is ready to collapse with fatigue, and does make a mistake in signalling by which a collision is rendered almost inevitable. He determines to die; but there is just one chance. One of the trains is late, and it is barely possible that the accident may thus be avoided. It is five minutes to eleven; at eleven o'clock he will know his fate, and that of his wife, Mary, who has consented to die with him. With revolver in hand, Anderson waits, listening for the whistle which will announce that the train has escaped. The clock ticks audibly, the hands move slowly round. Then the husband raises his pistol, and points it at his wife. But before he can fire the distant whistle is heard, and they throw themselves on the floor overcome by their emotion, while the light of the passing train shines on the embankment outside.

Assisted by the fine acting of Mr. J. W. Dean and Miss Fannie Ward and by some of the most realistic imitations of railroad noises ever heard in a theatre, The Flag-Station achieved great success. Mr. Dean depicted the harassed, agonised struggles of the overworked operator very broadly and powerfully; and Miss Fannie Ward acted with great sweetness and earnestness as the wife, her appeal to her husband to refrain from suicide being delivered with a deep and tender seriousness which touched the hearts of all. Mr. J. Cook-Beresford contributed a neat little character-sketch of a rough and kindly conductor.

MR. EILE NORWOOD has dedicated his pretty melody in G, which is played in the third act of Peter's Mother, to the authoress of that play, Mrs. Henry de la Pasture. The piece is receiving an excellent interpretation from Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company. Joseph Williams, Ltd., of 32, Great Portland-street, London, W., publish the melody at the price of 6d.

MANAGERS AND WATER RATES.

Several leading London managers took part in the meeting held at the Mansion House on Wednesday to protest against the excessive charges of the Metropolitan Water Board under the Act which came into force on April 1 last. Sir John Bell was in the chair, and amongst those present were Sir Charles Wyndham, Mr. Beerbohm Tree, Mr. J. B. Mulholland, president of the Theatres Alliance, and a vice-president of the Theatre Managers' Association, Mr. Hedderwick, solicitor to the T.M.A., and Mr. Moverley Sharp, hon. secretary of the Alliance.

Sir ALBERT SPICER, M.P., moved the following resolution:—"That this meeting of ratepayers in the City of London deprecates the action of the Water Board in enforcing at the outset its maximum statutory powers, and protests against the largely increased charges for water in business premises on the basis of rateable value, having regard to the relatively small consumption of water on such premises when supplied otherwise than by meter, and that copies of this resolution be sent to the President of the Local Government Board, the Metropolitan Water Board, the Corporation of the City of London, the London County Council, and the Metropolitan Borough Councils."

Sir CHARLES WYNDHAM, in supporting the resolution on behalf of those interested in West-End theatres, said they felt very strongly that the tax which had been put upon them was a most unfair one. All places of entertainment in London were affected much in the same way. It was quite true that in certain respects music halls were better off than theatres, because the former could keep their doors open all the year round, whereas theatres were not in that happy position. He thought that no one would deny that the valuation of theatres for rating purposes was to a great extent upon a fictitious basis. A theatre was rated at a much higher figure than a corresponding piece of land with buildings erected upon it which were used for ordinary domestic purposes, but while the rating was very much higher, the consumption of water was very much lower. The average rating of a West-End theatre was not less than £5,000 per annum, and the Water Board had not met the theatre managers by giving them the benefit of the extreme abatement which they were able to give. The result was that the average amount which a London theatre had to pay for water was no less than £200 a year. How much water did they consume for this sum? The average consumption per year of a theatre was not more than 700,000 gallons, which worked out at no less than 5s. 6d. per 1,000 gallons, whereas the maximum price which the Board had a statutory right to charge by meter was 11d. Was that fair? He did not think that Parliament intended that by an accident of rating a consumer should be forced to pay such an excessive figure. When the Water Board was first considering this matter he (Sir Charles) approached them on behalf of his confrères, and begged them to charge them by meter. This was declined. Under the Act theatres were stated to be non-domestic, but the authorities apparently had them both ways. When a manager started to put his house in order, and asked the local authorities to remove the rubbish and refuse which collected in a theatre, he was at once told, "No, you are not a domestic concern; you must pay for removing this rubbish." On the other hand, the moment he turned on his water-tap to do his cleaning, he was told, "You are a domestic concern, and are not entitled to receive your water by meter." (Laughter.) There was not a theatrical manager who would not be quite prepared to pay a fair and proper charge for the water consumed, but he was asked to pay six times the amount of the maximum charge authorised by the Act. It was a hardship of which they were justified in complaining.

The resolution was carried.

Sir F. DIXON-HARTLAND moved:—"This meeting further urges upon the Corporation of the City of London, the London County Council, and the Metropolitan Borough Councils the importance of instructing their representatives on the Water Board to support a reduction of the present charges, or an increase in the rebate allowable under Section 9 of the Charges Act of 1907, thus affording some measure of relief to water consumers."

Sir FREDERICK BANBURY, M.P., the vice-president of the Theatrical Managers' Association and Theatrical Alliance, and vice-chairman of the Machinery Users' Association, supported the resolution.

Mr. J. B. MULHOLLAND, in also supporting the resolution, said: "I have the honour to attend on behalf of the Theatrical Managers' Association and the Theatres Alliance, two bodies which represent an invested capital of from fourteen to sixteen millions sterling in theatres—fortunately not all situated within the Water Board's area of control. And there is a special fitness in joining up our interests with those of the City in this matter of the Water Board's exorbitant charges, because the case of City banks, office blocks, &c., is analogous with that of the theatres, inasmuch as the rateable values on which the charges are based are out of all proportion to the quantity of water used.

"It is a notable fact in this connection that while the object and aim of the Act was the attainment of uniformity in water charges, its administration has resulted in the most glaring anomalies. There is no uniformity in the rating of theatres—not even in the systems under which they are rated in the several boroughs. Yet upon this foundation of anomaly the Water Board pretends to establish that uniformity which is the basic principle of the Act."

Referring to a list he had had prepared, Mr. Mulholland said: "The charges at my own theatre are doubled, at several they are trebled, and at some four and a half times what they were before the Act came into operation. I will not trouble you with detailed figures, but here is one theatre where at the beginning of the year the charges amounted approximately to £50 per annum, they are now over £230. The Water Board has the power under Section 24 to redress these wrongs, but seemingly it has not the will; and so the administration of the Act defeats the object of the Act.

"But, in addition to the maximum charge of 5 per cent. on the rateable value with the minimum allowance of 20 per cent., an exorbitant charge is sought to be made for the supply of water to hydrants, which is in effect not a 'supply,' inasmuch as the hydrants are sealed, and only usable in the event of a fire outbreak. The London County Council make it compulsory that a large—in many cases an excessive—number of hydrants shall be installed. Then the Water Authority arbitrarily says: 'You shall pay our charge in respect of each hydrant.' This, notwithstanding that the Board's mains are only tapped once for the alleged supply, and not in the case of each hydrant. Mr. Barnard, the chairman of the Water Board, has been boasting that water is supplied free for fire extinction, but he forgot to point out that, as every fire is small at first, it will probably be extinguished by the private hydrants, whereas, if it is not so extinguished and becomes a serious fire, then an enormous expenditure of 'free' water—that is to say, water from the street mains—will take place. In other words, the Board's water is saved at the manager's expense. But instead of the Board appreciating this, the manager is penalised by excessive hydrant charges.

"It seems to me that the policy of the Water Board as affecting our interests is based not upon Right, but on Revenue—and its motto might well be 'Raise revenue—honestly if you can; but no matter how you raise it, raise revenue.' I have much pleasure in supporting the resolution."

The resolution was carried, and a vote of thanks to the Lord Mayor concluded the proceedings.

UNLICENSED MUSIC.

The case of the Camden Town Theatre came on on Monday at the Clerkenwell Sessions before Mr. Wallace, K.C. It will be remembered that some months ago Mr. Robert Arthur (theatre proprietor), Mr. Walter Gibbons (who is connected with a number of music halls), and Mr. W. H. Terrell (a manager) were bound over at the Clerkenwell Sessions, a jury having found them guilty of having carried on a music hall entertainment at the Camden Theatre without having a licence from the London County Council. It was now alleged that the terms of the recognisances of the parties had been broken, and therefore notice had been served upon them to attend the court to show why they should not be forfeited.

Mr. George Elliott and Mr. Basil Watson represented Mr. Gibbons and Mr. Terrell; Mr. R. D. Muir was counsel for Mr. Robert Arthur; and Mr. Horace Avory, K.C., and Mr. W. H. M. Knight appeared to support the contention that the recognisances had been broken.

Mr. Horace Avory said the defendants were convicted of June 19 last for having kept the Camden Theatre of Varieties for public music and dancing without any licence from the London County Council. The prosecution then stated that they only desired to establish the law, and the Court adopted that view, and bound them over in £10 to come up for judgment if called upon, and to be of good behaviour in the meantime. The house was closed after the conviction until Monday, Sept. 14, when, without any licence having been obtained from the London County Council, the theatre was opened for public entertainment, the licence of the Lord Chamberlain (since surrendered by Mr. Robert Arthur) then being in existence. It was reopened with an entertainment called the bioscope, or animated picture, entertainment, accompanied by music. According to bills displayed, it was "a combination of the latest developments in animated pictures, combined with music and effects." The entertainment, in fact, consisted of the ordinary display of the bioscope on the screen, with music, consisting of a selection during the interval, and an overture and music during the performance.

The music, counsel argued, was not incidental to or subsidiary to the entertainment, but was independent and substantial. This was shown by the fact that so soon as the selections ceased the gallery became noisy, and quietened down again when it restarted. These performances, said Mr. Avory, had been carried on ever since in breach of the Act of Parliament and of the recognisances of the defendants, and in defiance of the law, apparently. There was also this further aggravation of it. On the back of the programme was advertised "Sacred performances every Sunday at 2.30 and 7.30." In point of fact, the house had been open on Sunday for public entertainment—the same performance exactly as given on week-days. Some of the pictures were comic, others tragic, and popular airs from comic operas and other light music was given. The Sunday performance was a serious matter, because that was a fresh offence, as if they (the defendants) had held a licence under the London County Council that would not have allowed them to open the house on Sunday. The Statute which forbids that was 21 George III., Chapter 49.

Mr. Muir said his client, Mr. Robert Arthur, had had absolutely nothing to do with the place at all since the early days of the former proceedings.

Mr. Elliott did not dispute the facts stated by Mr. Avory, but disputed that what was done was an infringement of the Act.

Mr. Wallace: You boldly put it in this way. Assuming every fact stated to be true, you could not be convicted on this question if this was a fresh trial?

Mr. Elliott: Absolutely a police-inspector said when the music stopped the gallery cried out, "Wake up!" "Are you going to sleep?" &c.

Mr. Barnes, the solicitor for the prosecution, said the music was supplied by an electrical orchestral piano. The entertainment would have been a dull one with no music, because the intervals were very long. People joined in the choruses and sang.

It was stated that Mr. Arthur surrendered the Lord Chamberlain's licence on Sept. 17, and Mr. Muir, arguing that these proceedings were to punish contumacious persons, asked that, as Mr. Arthur had no desire to offend, he might be allowed to go.

Mr. Wallace: Certainly.

Witnesses were called by Mr. Elliott to prove that the music was a subsidiary part of the entertainment only. One said he thought it would be better without the piano.

Mr. Walter Gibbons, called on his own behalf, said he opened with this entertainment after consultation with his solicitors. He was not conscious at any time of having violated his recognisance. The public came to see the bioscope. The electrical piano never played more than half the evening, and was not part of the performance. The witness said arrangements had been made to give appropriate pictures on Sunday.

Answering Mr. Avory, witness said he had not a Sunday programme.

Mr. Avory: I have.

Mr. Wallace read the items as follows:

The Pneumatic Policeman. (Laughter.)
Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves.
The Sign of the Cross.
The Reluctant Dog.
Yachting on the Solent.

Is that a Sunday programme?

Witness: Yes; and they are all pictures which no one can object to on a Sunday.

Mr. Elliott said he complained of the action of the prosecution, which was part of a system of persecution done to prejudice his client's application to the London County Council for a licence for music and dancing.

In reply, Mr. Avory said music which accompanied an entertainment or exhibition of this kind must be public music within the statute. His answer to the suggestion that the proceedings were instituted to prejudice an application which might be made was that the prosecution were in duty bound to bring to the notice of the Court what they considered a flagrant breach of the recognisances.

Mr. Wallace (to Mr. Elliott): Is it intended to keep this place open if the decision of the Court is against you?

Mr. Elliott: Of course, we should stop the music at once.

Mr. Wallace: That is what I mean. I am of opinion that you have violated the law. I think the defendants Gibbons and Terrell have broken the law in connection with the matter and the terms of their recognisances, and I think they are liable to the penalty imposed in the particular case. I do not think they deliberately intended to violate their obligation, and I should not propose to impose a heavy penalty. The Sunday performances must cease. It is a burlesque of words to say "sacred performances."

Mr. Elliott stated that his clients would undertake to stop the music at the week-day performances and to give up the Sunday entertainments.

Mr. Wallace observed that on these undertakings he would fine the defendants 40s. each. He thought the defendants should pay something towards the costs of the other side.

Mr. Elliott replied that they were being sued for penalties of £400.

Mr. Wallace: The matter will be left where it was.

Mr. Wallace pointed out, in answer to Mr. Elliott, that it was open to the defendants to appeal to the Court of Criminal Appeal for their decision in the matter.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, Oct. 22.—M. Lucien Népoty's four-act comedy L'Oreille fendue, produced at the Théâtre Antoine, was received with genuine enthusiasm. The public took to the piece immediately, and it will be surprising if subsequent audiences do not show a similar disposition. At curtain-rise we are in Algiers, at the house of General Desarçone de Lantoille, where we make the acquaintance of the principal personages in the piece—the General, on the eve of being placed on the retired list; his pretty daughter Lucile, his son Marc, a lieutenant; and his wife and mother-in-law. Gilbert Béraud, the son of a wealthy manufacturer, has lost his heart to Lucile, and asks here to become his wife. Lucile, who likes the handsome youth, is quite willing to become Mme. Béraud. But when she confides her secret to her grandmother that lady grows indignant, and tells the girl that a General's daughter would lose caste were she to marry a man engaged in "trade." The aristocracy of the sword does not allow such a mésalliance. Lucile knows that these ideas predominate in her set, and that her little love-idyll, therefore, has come to an end. In the second act things have undergone a change. The General, on half-pay, is living with his family in a modest apartment in Paris. Time weighs heavily on the hands of the old gentleman. His life in the various garrison towns—similar to that of most officers of the old school—has not developed his intellectual faculties. Like his comrade-in-arms Colonel Gavotte, also on the retired list, he seeks distraction in trifling occupations. Poor Lucile sees her marriage prospects dwindling away; and it is a hard blow to her when young Comte de Malbot, whom she secretly admires, declares his love, but with no honourable intentions. Where, however, Lucile's indignation boils over is when her brother Marc, to the delight of his scheming mother, engages himself to Mme. Charmillon, a divorced lady with a shady past and an immense fortune. In a spirit of revolt Lucile slights Mme. Charmillon, and having upbraided her mother and Marc for their greed and inconsistency, she leaves the house to throw herself into the arms of the fascinating De Malbot. In the final tableau a years is supposed to have elapsed. We are in Lucile's luxurious drawing-room, and, to her surprise, her father is announced. The old gentleman has been pining after his little Lucile, and having accidentally discovered her address, has gone straight to her house. The fact of her leading an immoral life has been mercifully concealed from him; and, sick of his entourage—especially of his new daughter-in-law—he seeks refuge with his beloved child. His son, however, has dogged his steps. He comes to take his father away, and on the latter refusing to accompany him he tells him, blandly, the truth by calling his sister a prostitute. The General's enfeebled mind is not proof against this blow. Seized with an apoplectic fit, he dies in Lucile's arms. M. Gémier's portrait of the General, gentle and kind to all, was admirable, especially in the death scene, wherein he thrilled the audience. M. Janvier furnishes an amusing sketch of the philosophical Colonel Gavotte. Mlle. Madeleine-Lély was a delightful Lucile; not a woman to be held up as a pattern, but one from whom we cannot withhold our sympathy. MM. Rouyer, Flateau, and Clasis, and Mmes. Marcilly, Even, and Lavigne also played very effectively.

"L'AGENCE LEGRIS,"

Drama, in Six Acts, by M. Jacques Roullet, Produced at the Ambigu on Oct. 16.

M. Mathieu, the new manager of the Ambigu, has very sensibly gone back to melodrama of the old-fashioned sort, the kind of entertainment most suited to the taste of the frequenters of that popular house. L'Agence Legris seems to fulfil every requirement of an Ambigu audience. There is plenty of villainy and no virtue to speak of. M. Legris, the head of a swindling agency that bears his name, is a scoundrel of the deepest dye. Germaine Barbaroux, a beautiful woman, has poisoned her husband. The crime remained undetected, but Legris holds the proofs of her guilt, and he terrorises her until she becomes his slave. Henri Delange, Germaine's lover, is also one of Legris's agents, and helps him in his dark schemes, until Legris orders him to steal some documents concerning the French Navy, which documents are to be sold to Germany. Unwilling to become a traitor to his country, Henri commits suicide. But a gang of burglars enter Legris's office and carry off some valuable papers, among them the documents referring to Germaine's case. Legris is anxious to recover these at any price, and he traces Anatole, the head of the gang, to a low wineshop in Toulon, where we witness a blood-curdling scene. Assisted by the proprietor of the wineshop, Legris tortures Anatole by applying lighted torches to the soles of his feet, whereupon the burglar, unable to support the pain, confesses where the papers are hidden. After a series of exciting scenes Legris is killed by Germaine, and with the villain's death the play comes to an end. The drama is entertaining, but the author committed the mistake of not introducing a single character representing virtue in some shape or other. The only more or less respectable personage is Henri, and he departs this life at the end of the second tableau. As to Germaine, we are, of course, glad to see her escape from Legris's clutches, but it cannot be said that she is sympathetic, and we are almost sorry that she does not pay the penalty of the law for the crime she committed. We hear more "thieves' slang" than in any play that has come our way for a long time, and this strange lingo proved very welcome to the occupants of the gallery, who would have enjoyed the dialogue less had it been written in the language of Molière. The melodrama was well acted. M. Séverin-Mars made a most unmitigated villain; Mlle. Andral was a picturesque Germaine; M. Ranté was a sympathetic burglar; and MM. Morgan and Bélières and Mmes. de Mérengo, Stéla Daly, and Jeanne Clado also deserve favourable mention.

MR. HAROLD COPPING is holding an exhibition at the Art Gallery, 14, Brook-street, New Bond-street, W., from Nov. 3 to Nov. 11 of his original drawings for Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch, a new edition of which is shortly to be published. Members of the profession can obtain admission on presentation of their visiting cards.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

The executive committee of the V.A.F. has sent an ultimatum to Mr. Walter De Frece in respect of the insertion of the deduction clause in his contracts. His reply will be considered by an adjourned executive meeting to be held to-morrow (Sunday) afternoon.

Mr. Oswald Stoll, in his reply to the letter of Mr. O'Gorman, to be found in another column, holds Mr. Walter De Frece guiltless of bad faith in respect of the marginal clause, which has caused the trouble. He thinks Mr. De Frece's offer to exactly adopt the form used by other circuits in the future is reasonable and sufficient, and recommends a reference to Mr. Askwith.

The L.C.C. Licensing Committee will sit on Friday and Saturday next at the Sessions House, Clerkenwell, at 10 a.m. on each day, for the purpose of hearing applications for licences, in order that a report may be made thereon to the Council, sitting as the Licensing Authority, at the County Hall, Spring Gardens, on Friday, Nov. 27, and the following day, if necessary, at 10 a.m. on each day.

Among the new applications is one by Arthur Algernon Wellesley Grist for a licence for the Lewisham Hippodrome, situate at Rushey Green. The district of Lewisham at present is very well served in the way of variety by the New Cross Empire, which has quite a middle-class constituency.

Miss Marie Lloyd has had a thrilling experience as a motorist. Leaving Edinburgh last Sunday, at twelve o'clock mid-day, she made for Dunbar, intending to visit friends on her way to Newcastle. Half-way along the road, her car broke down, which necessitated a wait of some four hours by the side of a desolate moor, with night approaching. After repairs by some friendly gentlemen of the road, she made a fresh start, but had not gone twenty miles before the powerful gasoline lamps gave out, and for many miles the car proceeded in the dark at a walking pace. This was continued all night over dangerous mountain passes. Newcastle was reached eventually at six o'clock Monday morning.

Mr. Herbert Shelley, who was the first to interview Miss Lloyd, writes that he could fill two columns with the stirring incidents experienced by "Our Marie." She came through her ordeal with characteristic pluck, and appeared with exceptional success that night.

Miss Vesta Victoria writes:—"You have all heard of the wonderful American contracts; well, mine is the most wonderful of all. I open in America on Nov. 30. My salary for the first few weeks will be £700 per week. During the remainder of the engagement I get £1,000 per week, and at the end of my engagement they present me with the theatre." As Artemus Ward used to say, "This is sarkassum."

The statement to the effect that Miss Vesta Victoria intends, after her present London engagements have expired, to spend her future life in America, is officially contradicted by Messrs. Beecham and Wheeler, her agents, who have pleasure in stating that Miss Victoria's return to the States is due to the tremendous success she made there, and though she has accepted a sensational salary for a brief engagement across the pond, she will return to London early next year to recommence her London engagements.

Miss Jessie Preston, happily recovered from her recent severe indisposition, is appearing this week with the greatest success at the Oxford and Crouch End. Her "Salome" song is greeted with shouts of laughter from start to finish, and Crouch End admirers are not satisfied with less than a twenty-five minutes' show.

Meier and Mora received a special invitation from the Government while playing at the Deutsches Theater, Munich, requesting them to bring their contract with them. They did so, and were surprised to find that the authorities needed 10 per cent. of their salary. They saw the American Consul about the matter, and he advised them to pay up and look pleasant. A tip for all artists visiting Munich, as they are all treated alike.

A warm welcome was given to Harry Fragson on Monday at the Tivoli, when the Anglo-French comedian made his reappearance. For a full half an hour he held the attention of a packed audience. His "Licensing Bill" song, which came late down the programme, was one of the choicest morsels of the evening, and "Is it you?" met with instant success. He also gave "The Employment Agency," "Billy Brown of London," and "Ah! qu'on est bien, mam'zelle," being loudly recalled.

The name of Mr. Joe Elvin is among those announced to appear at the Playhouse at the forthcoming matinée given on behalf of the funds of the Actors' Church Union. Mr. Elvin's appearances on the theatrical stage are exceedingly rare, though he is the son of an actor who did very useful work at the now defunct City of London Theatre.

So successful have been the efforts of Sydney Lee to entertain Palace habitués during the past four weeks that Mr. Butt has asked him to prolong the engagement, and Mr. Oswald Stoll has kindly consented to alter his dates. Mr. Lee was billed for Newcastle next week.

Mr. Hymack, whose amazing quick-change act will be at once recalled, has elaborated his performance to such an extent as to make it almost a new exhibition in protean wonders. He comes on Monday to the Empire, where A Day in Paris is beating all records, the sensational dance of the Apaches being received each night with the most extraordinary demonstration of enthusiasm.

In the action Cochran v. The London Pavilion, which was decided on Thursday, Mr. Hugh Astley gave evidence concerning a wrestling scene at the London Pavilion, which resulted in the tabooing of that form of entertainment at that house. He said that one gentleman thought it necessary to unhinge the electric lights and fling them among the audience. Another gentleman went to the orchestra, tore up the music, and flung it on the stage.

Mr. Charles Sydney Gover, a director, in giving evidence said that he thought that unless the "scene" was nipped in the bud it would have been a very serious matter. Twenty extra police constables were called in, four sergeants, and two inspectors. The audience had come to see a match. He thought they regarded what took place as a "take in." Judgment was entered for defendants.

Mr. Alfred Butt will make several important changes in the Palace programme on Monday, when he will present Bernardi in his unique quick-changing entertainment. Bernardi has taken the music hall for the subject of his burlesque, in which he impersonates about thirty characters. In the first scene we see the waiting-room of a music hall manager and the various performers waiting for interviews: a distinct novelty in quick-change work lies in the fact that the public will be able to see "how it is done," as Bernardi changes behind a transparent set of scenery. No fewer than ten tons of properties will be used.

"The Pride o' the Heather," the Scottish romantic sketch, opened at the Empire, Greenock, for the first time on Monday, and was an instantaneous success. It has a beautiful setting, and is full of good singing.

The Palace, Exeter (late Victoria Hall), opens on Monday under the management of George Gilbert and George Zalva. The company engaged for the opening week includes Harry Rochez's ponies and dogs, Harry Friskey, Brothers Webb, and Marlow and Manton in Other People's Babies. The house will be run on the one performance nightly plan.

Mr. John R. Huddlestone, who is a popular figure in the Lancashire amusement world, has just completed twenty-five years' service at the Blackpool Winter Gardens. For fifteen years he was secretary, and during the last ten years he has held the position of general-manager. He succeeded the late Mr. C. R. Brighten, who was the first manager of the present Oxford Music Hall.

Considerable interest was taken at Littlehampton on Tuesday in a local theatrical action at the Arundel County Court between Mr. Harry Joseph, a manager, and one of his former artists, Mr. Bruce Green. A sum of £30 was awarded the former as damages for breach of contract.

Mr. George Gilbert, the proprietor of the Hippodrome at Great Yarmouth has been returned, unopposed as a member of the Town Council for St. Peter's Ward of that borough. This is the first time Mr. Gilbert has sought municipal honours, and it is a testimony to his popularity in Bloaterland that he was allowed a "walk-over."

Meetings of creditors and shareholders were held on Thursday before Mr. H. E. Burgess, Assistant Receiver, in the Bankruptcy Court, under the winding-up order made against the Brighton Alhambra (Ltd.). The company was registered in 1893 under the name of the General Purposes Syndicate (Ltd.), to carry on a general financial business, and, in particular, to acquire the Brighton Alhambra. That property was purchased in October, 1893, for £28,000, of which £20,000 remained on mortgage. The failure was attributed to the action of the mortgagees. A liquidator will be appointed by the Court.

At several election meetings the opinion has been expressed that though the ratepayers favour the Brighton Palace scheme generally, they feel that persons whose property is likely to be prejudicially affected shall be given the right to place their cases before Parliament. In order to obtain a decisive vote in the Council, Mr. Councillor Yates moved on Thursday "That a clause be inserted in the agreement with the promoters of the proposed summer and winter palaces binding the promoters not to object to the locus standi of any ratepayers who may consider themselves prejudicially affected by the scheme, and who desire to appear before the Parliamentary Committee and urge the case."

It was contended that not only the proprietors of hotels and boarding-houses opposite the proposed site should have the right in question, but also the boatmen and those who own bathing machines. These people, it was said, would be ruined by the palace, and it would be un-English to deny them the right to state their case.

On the other hand, it was pointed out that the condition on which the promoters agreed to proceed with the scheme was that it should have the wholehearted support of the council. If the council proposed inserting any such clause in the agreement as was now suggested the promoters would retire. Having almost unanimously approved of the scheme it was maintained the council could not go back on its word. The motion was defeated by twenty-two votes to nineteen.

Monday evening saw the last of the Hartlepool Empress under the proprietorship of Councillor Everton, when a complimentary benefit was given to him. He was also presented with a handsome framed portrait of himself, a fully-equipped dressing-bag, and a purse of gold. Alderman Hunter made the presentation, and eulogistically referred to Mr. Everton's nine years' proprietorship of the theatre.

The programme was contributed to by the Imperial Lads' Brigade in an exhibition of bayonet and naval physical drill; Miss Vesta Dawson, a clever little mite, in song and dance; the Deva Quartette in selections; T. S. Edwards, a popular tenor vocalist; M. Spouse, bass; Miss May Thorne, a sparkling comedienne; the Morris Dancers; Master Harold Hutson, a clever pianist and vocalist; Miss Ada Laws, soprano vocalist; and Harold Mitschke, a favourite elocutionist.

Messrs. Fred Karno and A. H. Edwards have purchased the Royal Public Rooms, Exeter, and have nearly finished reconstructing the same in a fashion that will make the new building one of the most up-to-date vaudeville houses in the provinces. The Royal Public Rooms occupied an ideal site, being practically in the centre of the town, and although the alterations have been of an extensive character the new management have hustled to such good purpose that the New Hippodrome will be ready for opening on Monday next.

The original intention of Messrs. Karno and Edwards was to pull down the existing structure altogether, but as this would naturally have meant deferring the opening until the present season had very considerably advanced, it was thought better to be content—for the present, at any rate—with less drastic changes. The necessary plans were prepared by Messrs. Commin and Sons, architects, and the elaborate furnishings are supplied by Messrs. Wolfe and Hollander, of London. There will be accommodation for some 950 people, popular prices of admission being charged. It is intended to run the new Hippodrome on the two-house system.

The fact that Mr. Fred Karno is a native of Exeter should add not a little to the popularity of the project, and his long and well-known connection with the variety stage is sufficient guarantee of the excellence of the fare to be provided. Mr. Karno is already associated with Mr. Edwards in connection with similar houses at Peterborough and Maidstone. Exeter, therefore, forms the third link in a circuit which it is intended to eventually run through the provinces. An excellent programme arranged for the opening night includes: The Dandies, Rabbit, Ivy Proudfoot, Bert Terrill, Archie Royes, Lenton and Lane, Rhudart, and Jack Pleasants.

Before Mr. Justice Channell, in Chambers, on Wednesday, motions were heard on behalf of Messrs. Richards and Burney (of the London, Collins's, and Cambridge), to injunct Arthur Rigby, Jordan and Harvey, John Lawson, Ernest Shand, Gus Harris, and Devon and Earle. Mr. Strong represented Messrs. Richards and Burney, who sought to restrain the artists from appearing at the Holborn Empire; Mr. Walter Gibbons was represented by Mr. Turner, instructed by Messrs. Amery Parkes; and Mr. C. Doughty held a watching brief on behalf of the V.A.F., Messrs. W. H. Clemart, Wal Pink, and Monte Bayly being also present. Mr. Justice Channell said he refused to be a party to interfering with the employment of the artists, and he dismissed the motions. Messrs. Richards and Burney he said must claim damages, if they sought a remedy; and, if they did this, the costs of the application would go with the costs of the action.

Mr. Harry Bawn, with his accomplished wife, has just returned from the States, on the Mauretania.

The help of Miss Cecilia Loftus has been secured by Father Bernard Vaughan for his concert in aid of poor children at the Royal Albert Hall on Wednesday evening next, when Mme. Adelina Patti and other eminent artists will also appear.

Mr. Auguste Van Biene, the famous 'cellist, and M. Henri de Vries, the Dutch quick-change actor, have accepted sketches written by Miss Ina Leon Cassilis, authoress of The Red Beacon and other pieces.

Miss Madge Temple's famous "Marathon" hat (made by Rita, New Oxford-street, London) will be sold by auction during the second house this (Saturday) night, at Barrasford's Hippodrome, Brighton. The entire proceeds will be devoted to local charities.

We are sorry to hear that Miss Marie Empress is lying ill with rheumatic fever, coupled with complete nervous breakdown. She has been obliged to give up her work on the Moss and Stoll tour, and is now at her home at St. Leonards-on-Sea. We wish this lady a speedy recovery.

We regret to announce the serious illness of Mr. Frank Heath, who succeeded Mr. William Bailey as hon. treasurer of the Music Hall Sick Fund. Mr. Pat Carey, the ex-president of the fund, has been appointed to act as hon. treasurer pro tem., as Mr. Heath is too ill to attend to any business matters.

When two such ingenious and resourceful producers as Mr. Bolossy Kiralfy and Mr. Frank Parker get together something wonderful may be expected, and although it is rather too soon to give an outline of the plot of To-morrow, the Christmas production at the Hippodrome, it may be said that it will be eminently adapted for children, and sure of great success.

We regret to announce the death of Mr. Tom Wade, of Wade and Waller, negro boxing act, who passed away on Sunday, the 25th, at his residence in Kennington. He will be buried to-day at Tooting Cemetery.

Mr. William Ward, formerly provincial Press manager of the Moss and Stoll combine, now controls the Press bureau of that firm in London, a position recently vacated by Mr. W. A. Bennett, who has now opened an office at 22, Denmark-street, Charing Cross-road.

Mr. Fred Bowyer, who wrote "A little bit of sugar for the bird," a popular number in The New Barmaid, has just completed some capital lyrics, which will be set to music by Hermann E. Darewski, jun. A song so smart and diverting is not likely to be overlooked by comedians and principals boys.

Miss Maidie Scott, who is to play Jill in pantomime at the Marlborough, has just had a song specially written for her, and published by a well-known music firm. The song tells a story of a certain "Maidie," and Miss Scott intends to feature it in an original way. We also learn that the wide-awake Mr. Will Collins has secured all Miss Scott's vacant dates for the next five years.

Mr. George Fuller has been ordered away to the seaside by his medical man, and Mrs. Fuller (Miss Katie Lawrence) is taking him away at once to Eastbourne. The favourite comedienne is devoting her whole time to the invalid, and is, therefore, unable to fulfil engagements. Her future address is 10, Willowfield-square, Eastbourne.

Mr. Robert Sivado, a well-known music hall performer, died quite suddenly on Sunday. He had visited the Crown and Dove Hotel, Bristol, for refreshments, when he was seized with illness, and although medical assistance was procured as quickly as possible, he expired. The verdict at the inquest was "Death by the bursting of a blood vessel, brought about by phthisis."

Mr. Paul Murray's marriage to Miss Hardie Hood took place on Saturday. Mr. Will Bennett played the part of best man, and formed one of a merry party which subsequently assembled at the Villa-Villa Hotel, W. Mr. Murray is the young London representative of William Morris, the prominent American entrepreneur, of New York.

Mr. B. P. Lucas held an amateur carnival at the Bedford last week, when there was a large list of entries. The finals were decided at a late hour on Friday night, when the first prize was awarded to Miss Elsie Ward, comedienne, the second prize went to the Rose Trio, athletes; and the third to a couple of clever dancers, Buston and Phillips. In addition to the prizes, engagements were also promised. A number of consolation prizes were also presented.

Mr. Will Evans, from whom one never knows what to expect, has always a novelty to spring on his numerous admirers. His latest "gag" is in the form of a very catchy chorus song. He informs the audience that he has wagered £5 that he would make them sing a chorus the very first time they heard it. To ensure winning the bet he has concocted the most simple chorus ever written. It consists of the alphabet from A to Z. The melody being delightfully simple, everyone in the theatre feels compelled to help Mr. Evans to win his bet. Finally he sings the chorus backwards from Z to A with comical effect. Pantomime comedians should not miss this novelty. The Star Music Co. are the publishers.

The adjourned application of Mr. Arthur Edward Green, of the Royal Albert Music-hall, Canning Town, for a licence for music, dancing, and stage plays was further deliberated upon in camera at an adjourned special meeting of the West Ham Town Council, held at the Town Hall, Stratford, on Wednesday. Mr. Bodkin, who represented the Royal Albert Music-hall, was interviewed by the council. When the meeting was opened to the public, the mayor announced that the licence would be granted with certain conditions, among which were decisions that no bars be within the auditorium, that the rebuilding of the house be started within a month of the borough licensing justices sanctioning the plans, and that the work be completed before the end of May next.

On behalf of the committee of the Music Hall Home, Secretary Ben Woodger desires to thank the following ladies and gentlemen:—The Bros. Obo, parcel of clothes; W. Holloway, Royal Hippodrome, Eastbourne, 12s.; H. B. Raymond, Regent Theatre, Salford, £2 4s. 3d.; R. W. Duce, Granville, Walham Green, 10s.; Pan E. Draco, Palace of Varieties, Reading, 10s.; P. D. Elbourne, Hippodrome, Sheffield, £2 10s.; Rex Dooley, Lyric Theatre, Liverpool, £1 5s. 8d.; to H. G. Hibbert for donation of £2 2s.; and the M.H.A.R.A., donation of £50. Ted E. Box visited the Home on Sunday, and gave each inmate some tobacco. Thanks to Mrs. Egerton, Liverpool (per Wal Grace), for promise of help. Mr. Douglas Stuart and Miss M. May, secretary Ladies' Guild, visited the Music Hall Home, cheering the old boys up by presenting them with tobacco and kind words on Tuesday. The next Home committee meeting will be held at the Palace, Camberwell, on Thursday next, at 12 noon.

"Chums Till Death" is the alluring title of a dramatic sketch that is to be produced at the Canterbury on Monday, Nov. 23. It will be carefully acted and well mounted.

Miss Gwennie Hasto (Mrs. Walter Emerson), the famous dancer, has presented her husband with a son and heir. The interesting event has brought many congratulations.

Just now every proprietor in the country wants to book Charcot, and last week at Southport, where he played to great business, he was inundated with offers of dates by post and wire. He desires us to state that it will save a lot of time and trouble if all such communications are sent direct to Mr. George Barclay, his sole representative, who transacts all Charcot's business.

Miss Madge Temple is now booked solid until the end of 1912. The Syndicate halls, the Gibbons and Barrasford circuits, the Pavilion, Glasgow, the Bostock circuit, owing to the tremendous sensation this lady caused during her recent engagement at the London Coliseum, immediately filled in Miss Temple's open dates after her third Stoll tour, which she is now fulfilling. Next week, at Richmond, Miss Temple will sing a new number, "Wouldn't you like to be the bridegroom?"

Some nights back the genial Mr. Nelson Francis was chatting with Mr. Arthur Day, the husband of Miss Lottie Lennox, when the twain were approached by the chartered libertine in the jesting line who "walks the halls" for a big music-publishing firm, and gravely informed them that although their joint names panned out as "Francis and Day," it was useless for them to think of starting as publishers under that style and title, as they must not interfere with vested inerests. They would have to call themselves Day and Francis.

Dr. Walford Bodie finishes on Saturday a record three months' run in Scotland. Despite the great trade depression and the general bad business all over Scotland, he has been performing to record houses, and has proved over and over again that he is one of the biggest draws in the vaudeville world. His new and up-to-date act, with his gorgeous and costly printing, combined with his unrivalled showmanship, has carried everything before him. He opens on Monday at the Hippodrome, Coventry.

Miss Claire Romaine opened at Percy Williams' popular New York Colonial Theatre last week, when she received a very cordial greeting. She sang four songs with her accustomed heartiness, and very quickly renewed the friendly relations established during her previous visit a year ago. "When a fellow's in love with a girl" proved to be one of those characteristic ditties in which Miss Romaine excels, and "I only want to whisper in your ear" was full of pointed humour.

Miss Romaine had to sing the song that made such a hit the last time she was here, "I haven't told my mother up to now." The American gallery boys are a loyal lot, and they are not likely to grow tired of that song yet awhile if their present partiality for it is anything to go by.

Miss Daisy Lloyd began her New York engagements at the Lincoln-square Theatre, which was lately converted into a vaudeville house, and made an immediate hit. She pleases her audiences, and the papers speak well of her. At the Fulton Theatre, Brooklyn, last week she had to sing no less than six songs before the audience would allow her to retire. Her demure, girlish style is decidedly refreshing, and Miss Daisy may certainly be trusted to sustain the international reputation of the Lloyd family.

At a meeting of the members of the Islington branch of the Lifeboat Saturday Fund, held on Wednesday night at the Islington Town Hall, the Entertainment Committee reported that a deputation had interviewed the manager of the Islington Hippodrome (late Collins's) with a view to making arrangements for a matinée to be held there on behalf of the fund. It was suggested that the matinée should take place some time in December.

It was also announced that at a fancy dress ball and whist drive to be held on Nov. 5 on behalf of the fund the medals won by the attendants at the Holloway Empire on the occasion of the recent special performances given there will be distributed by Mrs. G. S. Elliott, the Mayoress of Islington.

Mr. Gus Elen, who has during the week been going great guns at Nottingham, has dropped some new and sage aphorisms into each of the choruses of the song which is the chief item of his amusing trifle The Wrong 'Un's Bedroom. The delighted audiences have been gravely informed nightly that "If you've got some comprehension you can 'sub' your Old Age Pension, And wait till the work comes round"; also "You can earn a night's enjoyment by a hard day's unemployment"; and likewise "While a pub is left to go to, or a landlord you can owe to" one can still await the alarming chance of work turning up with complacency.

On behalf of the committee of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild, 61, New Oxford-street, W.C., Miss Melinda May, secretary, wishes to thank the following for donations:—The Duke of Norfolk, £1 (through Miss Freda Sharlotte); Miss Ida Morgan, Empire, Shepherd's Bush, kindly collecting 7s. 6d.; Mr. Wal Pink (roulette 9), 10s.; Miss Maggie Bowman (collection), 2s. 6d.; and Mrs. Vernon Cowper for useful parcel of clothing. Miss May would be grateful for gentlemen's as well as ladies' wearing apparel. Through helping so many the Guild is greatly in need of it. Friends of the charity are heartily invited and are sure of a welcome to the tea and receptions held every Wednesday, three to five o'clock.

The Balaclava matinée held last Saturday afternoon at the Alhambra, by kind permission and with the aid of the directors of that establishment, proved highly successful from every point of view. There was, of course, a very full programme, one of the principal items in which was furnished by Mr. Hubert Carter and company in Punchinello, Mr. Carter giving a most praiseworthy rendering of the title-rôle and Mrs. Calhaem delighting the house with her study of Nanon, others assisting being Messrs. Reade and W. Luff, and Misses Russell and Edith Carter. Mrs. Clement Scott, surrounded by survivors of the famous charge, recited Tennyson's poem on the subject, and Mr. Eric Williams aroused the enthusiasm of the audience with his "Ballad of Splendid Silence."

Mr. Lauri de Frece amused his hearers with Miss Ada Reeve's "And he'd never been upon a farm before." Miss Marie Dainton, Mr. Louis Bradfield, Miss Ada Reeve, and Miss Ida Rene also submitted excellent contributions to the programme. Other items were submitted by Mr. Arthur Royd, Mr. Nelson Hardy, the Imperial Glee singers—whose harmonious contributions were greatly enjoyed—Miss Violet Ludlow, Moran and Wiser, Miss Alice Ellison, Mr. George Giddens, Mr. John Bardsley, Mr. Leonard Barry, Mr. Arthur Strugnell, the Bonhair Troupe, Coram, and Mr. H. V. Surrey. Mr. T. H. Roberts, as is usual at what is now an annual function, was the organiser, and Mr. G. Highland and Mr. C. Hunt acted as stage-managers. Mr. H. Woodford was the business-manager and secretary.

Among Mr. George Dance's humorous sketches there is none more lively or diverting than A Burglars' Ball, a concoction that has a wealth of topsey-turveydom and fun. It causes shouts of laughter wherever it is presented.

At Colwyn Bay offers are invited for the season 1909 from al fresco entertainers for pitches at this famous North Wales seaside resort. Intending applicants should send in before Nov. 26 to Mr. James Amphlett, Clerk to the Urban Council, Colwyn Bay.

Signorina de Polo, of the Italian ladies' quartette, thanks Mr. Meuchen for giving her four months' engagement at "Pharaoh's Daughter," "Scenic Railway," and "Johnstown Flood Company" at the Franco-British Exhibition.

Miss Frances Letty, the "chorus queen," has published "Does anyone want a girl?" and "Have your ears been burning, Mr. Jackson?" with Francis, Day, and Hunter. Pantomime producers should hear these two numbers, which have proved such a success in London and the provinces.

Miss Rose Hamilton, who made such a big success at the Empire, Camberwell, last week, is topping the bill at the Palace, Dover, and her numerous songs and new costumes are the talk of the town. Monday next she returns to a scene of former triumphs at the Alhambra, Brighton.

Laddie Cliff made a big hit at the New York Colonial last week. His singing and dancing are decidedly out of the ordinary, and his bright, lively doings have made him a great favourite on this side. He was recalled again and again, and finally expressed his appreciation of the kindly way in which he had been received during his stay in America.

Not least important of the changes in the Palace Theatre programme on next Monday night will be the presentation for the first time of a striking new series of Urbanora scenes vividly illustrating a fight between a Lycosidaen spider (a veritable wolf in the ferocity of its nature) and an Egyptian scorpion, photographed at Smyrna. The subject teems with incident, for barely has the scorpion vanquished the spider than it is itself attacked and dispossessed of its prey by a larger member of its own species.

At the 582nd meeting of the Executive Committee of the M.H.A.R.A., held on Wednesday afternoon, at the offices of the Association, Mr. Fred Herbert occupied the chair. There were also present:—Lieutenant Albini, Messrs. Marriott Edgar, Jack Collinson, Jack Crawley, and F. O'Malley. Mr. C. Douglas Stuart, the secretary, was instructed to invite nominations for the positions of chairman and vice-chairman of the Committee, and the weekly financial statement, showing twenty-nine new members and a cash total of £64 13s. 6d., was passed.

Aiston's White Stars have been undergoing the exhilarating and novel experience of working the two seaside towns, Great Yarmouth and Lowestoft, on the same evening, the feat being accomplished by a fast motor. They have been appearing in Bloater Town at 8.30, and have got to the Hippodrome, Lowestoft, in time for their turn at 9.40. At both places they have made striking successes. They have now discarded their Follies costume for an original one.

Carlton is producing at the Oxford on Monday an entertainment called The Showman; or, A Hankey Homey Operatic Convulsion, with full chorus of twenty people. The scene is a fair-ground in the days of Micawber, and in it will appear Carlton as the showman. Jock Walker, Scotch comedian, will help him to inveigle the country lads and lasses to enter the various sights of the fair. The production is entirely new, and is produced at considerable cost.

Consul, the educated chimpanzee, brought over from the United States early in the year for the Jungle at the Exhibition, Earl's Court, by Mr. Frank C. Bostock, has achieved a success little short of wonderful during the entire summer season, and it was with the greatest difficulty that one could approach sufficiently near to his three-roomed "flat" in order to obtain a proper view of his interesting and remarkable accomplishments. He is a living verification of the Darwinian theory, and Mr. Bostock is certainly to be congratulated upon possessing such a unique feature.

Entertained by the President of the United States, fêted by America's "Four Hundred," honoured by an appearance before His Majesty King Edward, presented to the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, and received within the past three weeks by the Mayors and Mayoresses of the towns of Bournemouth, Harrogate, and Southampton respectively, is certainly a record hard to beat.

Houdini comes to the Oxford on Monday next, Nov. 2. He has freed himself from every conceivable handcuff ever put on him, both single and in combination, even the famous shackles of Jack Sheppard. At the Oxford he will be placed in a galvanised iron can, nude, covered with water right up to the lid, and enclosed inside, the lid will be sealed, and members of the audience will be invited on the stage to witness the whole process, and, in addition, place padlocks, which will effectually lock the occupant in. In no time Houdini will be free before the eyes of the audience.

At the meeting of the London County Council on Tuesday the Finance Committee recommended that an application from the Stoke Newington Borough Council for sanction to the borrowing of £500 for the erection of an additional feeder booster at their electricity-transformer station be acceded to. The plant is required to remedy the present fluctuations of pressure in the neighbourhood of Stoke Newington Palace, and the consequent unsteadiness of the light in that district during performances at the theatre. The work has been put in hand as a matter of urgency. The recommendation was approved.

Fashions come and go, and we are threatened with a new style of feminine garb and deportment manufactured in America. Manchester is called upon to bear the first attack, for on Monday night next Miss Millie Hylton will introduce at the Hippodrome in that city a new creation from the States which is known as the "Brinkley Girl" gown. Miss Hylton maintains a reticence as to what she will exactly say and do in the character of a Brinkley Girl, but finds it necessary to stay in style at the Midland Grand, in Manchester, to give thoroughness to an impersonation which we are assured is the especial idol of the "Four Hundred" to-day.

Messrs. March, Billiter, and Fisher, of Clerkenwell, are organising concerts on Nov. 12, 19, 26, and Dec. 3, at the Northampton Institute, Clerkenwell, with a view of feeding about 3,000 little hungry children, dwelling in the districts of St. Luke's, Islington, and Clerkenwell. There is great poverty existing, and the organisers are appealing to the well-known and oft-tried generosity of the members of the variety profession to offer their services on either of the four nights mentioned. Artists who are willing to help the cause of the hungry kiddies should address the Secretary, the S.L.I.C. Concerts, 18, St. James's-walk, Clerkenwell.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

Many a harassed theatrical musical conductor, whose rest of nights has already been disturbed by the thoughts of Christmas Eve or Boxing Night, and that bugbear the pantomime overture—the airs for which he is expected to select and possibly to arrange—will hail with supreme satisfaction the news of the imminent advent of the grand selection of popular melodies which Messrs. Francis and Day are, as usual at this time of year, issuing, and which this year is named "The Goldmine," for in it the multitudinous musicians now know they will have ready to their hand not only a seasonable pot pourri of the very latest and most favourite airs, but one that has been selected, welded together, and arranged for orchestra by that past master of his art Warwick Williams.

The selection, which will be greeted with equally pleasurable feelings by the noble army of variety orchestral chiefs, comprises the melodies of the following leading favourite songs of the day:—"Jolly good luck to the girl who loves a soldier," "Sue, Sue, Sue," "Let me but hope," "Bombardier," "Sweetheart days," "Mandy's Wedding," "The Gay Gordons," "I'm afraid to come home in the dark," "Rum-tiddly-um-tum-tay," "Who says he don't like girls?" "All Day," "Won't you come to me in Canada?" and "Oh! Oh! Antonio."

A quaint song, by Fred Murray and Charles Collins, entitled "Money in the bank; or, it ain't a-coming out for you," has just been acquired by Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter.

Among new songs just about to be issued from the establishment of Messrs. Francis and Day are "There's an old-fashioned ferry" (sung by Miss Marie Kendall), by J. P. Long and Charles Hilbury; "Come down, Miranda," by Mellor, Gifford, and Lawrance; "A woman in the house" (Joe Archer), by Mellor, Gifford, and Lawrance; and "Mayflower," by A. Bagley and Donovan Meher.

Miss Vesta Tilley, who opens at the Hippodrome, Portsmouth, on Monday, and will introduce to the public her new number by Archie Mills (of Nottingham) and Maurice Scott, entitled "That's the time a fellow wants his ma," which was issued in sheet music form by Messrs. Francis and Day on Thursday, has just published with the same firm a notable song entitled "I'm obliging brother Bertie," by Worton David and Henry E. Pether. The latter well-known composer has just completed for the fair artist a polka song named "I really couldn't think of it for pa."

Miss Lottie Lennox on Wednesday evening sprang a new song on the audience of the Hackney Empire, and instantly found she was the lucky possessor of possibly the greatest chorus number the popular artist has yet essayed. It is by Pelham and Rule, and is called "It is the old love that is the gold love." Her second and last contribution, "There'll be no war while we've got a King like good King Edward," is also going very big indeed. It is from the same pens as the newer song, and is published by Messrs. Francis and Day, who have, we understand, secured "It is the old love."

That prince amongst swell comedians Mr. George Lashwood has just accepted a song, written and composed by Fred W. Leigh, entitled "I was the only gentleman there," and another from the pens of Dan Lipton and C. W. Murphy called "All hands on deck." Both are being issued by Mr. David Day's firm.

Mr. G. H. Elliott will on Monday open at the Tivoli, when his numerous admirers will again have an opportunity of renewing acquaintance with that tuneful song "Sue, Sue, Sue, I'm very much in love with you." This decided acquisition to Messrs. Francis and Day's catalogue has been secured for practically every pantomime in Great Britain.

Mr. John Hart has secured for the series of pantomimes to be produced by him the humorous domestic duet, "'Do you remember?'—'How can I forget!'" The name of Wallis Arthur on the item stamps it as free from the slightest vulgarity or coarseness, and the melody by Henry F. Greenfield is pleasing in the extreme, and therefore the publishers, Messrs. Francis and Day, are booking it to nearly all the foremost artists for Christmas.

Miss Daisy Dormer will feature immediately on the music halls Messrs. Francis and Day's splendid new number, "In the Land of the Kangaroo," a number by Fred Godfrey, Percy Edgar, and T. W. Thurban which will be greatly in evidence on Boxing Night.

Miss Vesta Victoria during the week, both at the Holborn Empire and the Empress, Brixton, has been receiving nightly that welcome which is only accorded to great and established favourites, and on Tuesday, at the latter hall, the clamouring multitude exacted no fewer than four songs from the fair singer, "Man! Man! Man!" "Is anybody looking for a widow? or, There's nothing like dealing with an old-established firm," "He used to come and court his little Mary Ann (now I have to call him father)," and her gigantic American success, "Poor John!"

A song that is likely to cause a stir this Christmas will be the "Cottage" song written and composed by Fred E. D'Albert. It is "claimed" for twelve pantomimes already.

The National Music Publishing Company, of 132, Charing Cross-road, W.C., are having no end of applications for the great chorus song "My Little Eva," and the 100-guinea song, "When the leaves are tinged with gold," sung nightly with tremendous success by Mr. Fred Elton. This is also being rapidly placed for pantomime.

They are also granting permission for Miss Victoria Monks' two chorus songs, entitled "I wish I had a pal like you" and "Call round any old time"; also Mr. George Lashwood's latest hits, "If it's a lady" and "Nicolo, Nicolo, play on your piccolo."

The National Music Publishing Company have just received a cable from Shapiro, music publisher, of New York City, informing them that Miss Claire Romaine has made a tremendous success with the song "Call round any old time." This is America's greatest success since "Waiting at the church."

The Star Music Company wish to apologise for the unavoidable delay in forwarding their pantomime book, but such an extraordinary demand was hardly expected, and the first edition was swallowed up two days after the announcement of issue. A fresh supply has been rapidly printed, and all bonâ-fide pantomime artists may now be sure of receiving this splendid collection of winners without further delay (postage 6d.).

Charles Whittle, who is at the Ardwick Empire this week, continues his phenomenal success with "I don't care if there's a girl there." It is not often that an artist is associated in consecutive seasons with two such hits as "Put me amongst the girls" and "I don't care if there's a girl there." Whether it is good luck or good judgment, Mr. Whittle is to be heartily congratulated.

V.A.F. AND THE AGENTS.

Mr. Joe O'Gorman presided at a meeting of the Variety Artists' Federation, held on Sunday evening at the Bedford Head Hotel. The meeting was held subsequent to that of the M.H.A.R.A., and was well attended.

The Chairman, in his opening statement, said that the meeting had been called for the specific purpose of revoking the rule which prohibited members of the V.A.F. from acting as agents. That was practically the outcome of Mr. Doughty's advice at a private meeting held at his (the Chairman's) house a month ago. The only possible way for the artists to win in the fight with the agents was to create opposition by running counter agencies against the established agents of the day. With that idea, the executive committee thought that it would be most desirable to repeal the rule referred to, and allow a number of their members to carry a book and make engagements for brother and sister artists around the country, where they had the power and influence to do so, it always being understood that the agent, whoever it might be, must charge a maximum of 5 per cent.—no re-engagement clause and no splitting of commission with managers. Any of the new agents breaking this rule would be debarred from acting in the capacity, and would be also expelled from the Federation. The Water Rats had taken Mr. Doughty's advice, and had established an agency on V.A.F. lines. It was suggested that he (Mr. O'Gorman) should take up the management of the agency, and he had allowed himself to do this spade work, but had decided, for the time being at least, not to accept any remuneration. He had succeeded in bringing away a number of handsome contracts for some artists. Immediately the agents heard that he had had an interview with a manager, they sent a deputation to wait upon that gentleman. The latter, when next Mr. O'Gorman called upon him, stated that he wanted to book with the artists direct, and Mr. O'Gorman could make any arrangement with the artists for the payment of commission. Subsequently, Mr. O'Gorman met the manager's superior, who only confirmed what his subordinate had said. From experience he (the Chairman) had come to the conclusion that the least which had been deducted by the managers during the past few years was 5 per cent. and not 2½. The managers had realised that the agents had been getting an exorbitant sum out of the contracts. Proceeding, Mr. O'Gorman complained bitterly of the attitude of Messrs. Harry and Walter de Frece in the dispute. Mr. Walter de Frece had a clause in his contracts which ran as follows: "This engagement having been made through the agency of ——, it is hereby agreed that the management shall deduct and retain 10 per cent. from such salary, and pay the same to the said agent, less such proportion for this service as the management and agency may agree." That was a distinct contravention of the agreement arrived at with Mr. Askwith, of the Board of Trade, and Mr. de Frece would have to consent to the abandonment of the clause. Mr. O'Gorman had seen Mr. Tozer on this subject, and the latter gentleman had recommended him to write to Mr. Stoll. He did so, and pointed out the calamity which a strike would bring about. His letter to Mr. Stoll was as follows:—

"October 22nd, 1908.

"Oswald Stoll, Esq.,
"Cranbourn-mansions,
"Cranbourn-street, W.C.

"Dear Mr. Stoll,—In a conversation last night with Mr. Tozer I pointed out to him that Mr. Walter De Frece was now printing on the margin of his contract the following endorsement:—

> "'This engagement, having been made through the agency of —— it is hereby agreed that the management shall deduct and retain ten per cent. from said salary, and pay the same to the said agency less such proportion for this service as the management and agency may agree.'

"This is a distinct contravention of the agreement arrived at before Mr. Askwith at the Board of Trade, where we allowed ourselves to be persuaded to provisionally permit such clause to be inserted, always providing that the amount of commission was to be left blank for the artist himself to fill in, whether ten per cent., five per cent., two and a half per cent., or even to cross it out altogether, never imagining the unfair use to which this clause might be put.

"The printing of this clause by Mr. De Frece is a distinct violation of the concession we made, and our members are up in arms over it, and are determined at whatever cost not to tolerate it.

"Much as I abhor strikes, I feel I shall be unable to prevent our members taking the law into their own hands unless Mr. De Frece immediately agrees to the abandonment of this clause both in contracts already issued and in all further contracts.

"I mentioned this fact to Mr. Tozer last evening, and he advised me to write to you and ask you to use all the influence you possess to avoid bringing about such a calamity as another strike would be sure to prove.

"Yours faithfully,
"Joe O'Gorman."

Proceeding, the Chairman said:—Now, that is a moderately-toned letter; and I think Mr. Stoll will appreciate its moderation and its intention. The meetings round the country at which we took a plébiscite vote on this subject, numbering seventy meetings, were with us in the matter. I attended one in Leeds and Mr. Clemart attended one in Manchester. Why I went to Leeds was that a certain member, so I was told, was endeavouring to create dissension in our ranks. I arrived at the meeting and spoke to them, and they voted after I had left, because I had to get back to London. They voted absolutely unanimously. And I found that all this man, who had been, as I was told, creating this disaffection, wanted was information. He had been out of town for a long time, and was out of touch; and he felt that his interests and the interests of his comrades were not being looked after. He was perfectly honest. When I had explained the situation to him, and had answered several questions, he was sincere in his avowal of renewed confidence, not only in the Executive Committee, but in the whole working of the organisation. At first he said: "What good will it be? You are telling us not to go near the agents; yet we have all signed re-engagement clauses, and whether we book through the Water Rats' agency or the V.A.F. agency, or any other friendly agency, we shall have to pay the 10 per cent. on the re-engagement. Therefore, where is the utility of all this trouble?" The answer was quite simple. I said: "For thirty years you have been paying on re-engagements; you have got to pay once more, and then you have finished for ever." He said: "I never saw it in that light before." We all agree that the re-engagement clause has gone once and for all. As I said before, a plébiscite vote was taken of those seventy meetings; they were very fully attended, and out of all those seventy meetings there were only eight dissentients. Probably, had some member of our Executive Committee journeyed to those other five meetings, the vote would have been absolutely unanimous there also. It has been humorously stated, and, as usual, mendaciously stated, that this resolution has been placed on the agenda to meet the position that I find myself forced into. You don't want any assurance to the contrary. This was decided weeks before, and notice had appeared in the papers calling this meeting before the idea of my controlling the Water Rats' Agency had been mooted; and I am quite prepared at all times to look forward to this type of criticism. I am not allowing myself to be baited by anybody so unscrupulous as its author. Again, I find the Referee informs us that there is a split between the V.A.F. and the trade unions. That is only another "Refereeism." We are at the present moment on more friendly terms than we ever have been before with the trade union movement. We were invited only last Thursday to send a representative to a conference in Manchester on the subject of the cotton lock-out. Mr. O'Gorman went on to defend the variety profession against what he considered were the aspersions cast upon it by Mr. Justice Bargrave Deane. That gentleman should look a little nearer home. He (Mr. O'Gorman) did not claim that they were perfection, but he did claim that in all their faults they stood as high from a virtuous and honest standard as even the profession from which Mr. Justice Bargrave Deane emanated. Some of them might be very wicked; some lawyers might be very pure. Put all of them into the scale and he did not think the music-hall profession had anything to fear as to the result. Their profession was as honourable as the profession from which His Majesty's judges had sprung, and they were not going to tolerate such criticism. Seventy meetings had been held in the provinces. These had been well attended, and confirmation of the action of the executive had not been wanting.

Mr. W. H. Clemart proposed an amendment to paragraph 1 of Rule 4, which had hitherto read as follows:

"QUALIFICATION FOR MEMBERSHIP.

"Every self-dependent performer (or his business representative, not being a bonâ-fide agent), who has been a bonâ-fide performer for at least six months, and does not act in the capacity of manager, sub-manager, agent, manager's or agent's clerk or assistant, is eligible for membership. The term 'bonâ-fide' performer is to be interpreted to mean anyone actually engaged in entertaining music-hall, theatre, or circus audiences in individual acts. The term 'self-dependent' performer is to be interpreted to include every performer who accepts contracts for engagements over his own signature, or is a business partner of one so accepting contracts for engagements, and it shall also include principal members acting in individual rôles in troupes or sketches. No applicant who does not come within the above-named stipulations is eligible for membership, but exceptions may be made at the discretion of the Executive Committee."

Mr. Clemart's amendment was: Delete the words "not being a bonâ-fide agent," "agent," or "agent's" with the following addition after the words, "at the discretion of the Executive Committee." "That no existing member of the Federation shall transact agency business except by permission in writing of the Executive Committee."

In putting the motion, the speaker said that the question of amending the rule had not been considered with the object of benefiting Mr. O'Gorman, as had been alleged. The amendment meant that any member could, by consent of the committee, become an agent without losing any of his qualifications for being a good V.A.F. Referring to the dispute with Mr. de Frece, Mr. Clemart went on to say that the Federation would strike the De Frece circuit if it were necessary. He had been to Manchester and had informed a meeting there that the artists might have to strike certain halls. He expected that the committee would cause a letter to be sent to Mr. de Frece, giving him a few days to consider his position. If they failed to get a satisfactory reply, then they would send that gentleman an ultimatum. If a strike came about, the committee would make it their duty to pay the salaries of the artists thrown out of employment. Every week while the strike was on they would add up the amount of the salaries paid by the Federation and would present Mr. de Frece with the bill, and until it was paid they would continue the struggle. Every minute was now helping their cause. He was of opinion that the dispute would culminate in the extermination of the present-day agent.

Mr. "Dutch" Daly seconded the resolution, and after Mr. Charles Coborn and Mr. William Lee had spoken in support of it,

The Chairman put the motion to the vote of the meeting, when it was carried with one dissentient.

The Chairman, in moving a resolution confirming the emergency levy of 2s. 6d., said: It is necessary to be quite in order to confirm the 2s. 6d. levy. At a previous meeting a resolution was passed "that a levy of 2s. 6d. be made on each member of the V.A.F. to assist members who may be victimised during the present agency dispute." The agents are telling you that this affair is not affecting them at all, that they are doing more business than they ever did in their lives, said Mr. O'Gorman. Still, my old and esteemed friend, Bill Oliver, told us the other night that he was going to sue the Federation for ruining his business. During the two days preceding Friday I had seven applications for jobs from agents' clerks who have been suspended until the strike is over. The agents are trying to breed distrust in our ranks by saying that the artists are signing contracts galore. I have had artists come to me with contracts that certain agents had sent on to them. They would not go to the agent's office; they have written to the managers telling them that the concern I represent had the exclusive booking of the act, and, if the managers wanted it, would they kindly send me the contract at once. In every case I have had the contract. So you see that the agents are not the all-powerful people that they wish you to believe. It is necessary that this resolution be confirmed by a general meeting.

Mr. Neil Kenyon proposed, and Mr. Percy Delevine seconded, the resolution, and it was carried unanimously.

The Chairman stated that the following resolution had been placed in his hands:—

"That this general meeting hereby endorses the action of the Executive Committee in sending the letter to Walter De Frece, and pledges itself to assist by every means in its power any action the Committee deem necessary, and should a strike be inevitable, hereby authorises a five per cent. levy on the salaries of members during the continuance of the dispute with Mr. De Frece."

As it was not on the agenda, however, he would rule it out of order.

There is a serious dispute between the Variety Artists' Federation and the De Frece Circuit. In the margin of the De Frece contracts the following clause is inserted:—"This engagement having been made through the agency of ——, it is hereby agreed that the management shall deduct and retain ten per cent. from the said salary, and pay the same to the said agency, less such proportion for this service as the management and agency may agree." Mr. G. R. Askwith did not treat of commission in his Award; but the artists expressed their willingness to accept a managerial deduction clause in the contracts if the amount to be deducted was left open. The clause above quoted does not fulfil this condition.

The following letter in reference to the matter was sent by the V.A.F. on Saturday to Mr. Walter de Frece:—

"To Walter De Frece, Esq.

"Sir,—The action you have taken in printing on the margin of your contracts in red ink a clause binding the artists to pay ten per cent. commission, and refusing to confirm any contracts unless this clause is accepted, is an interference on your part in the dispute now existing between the artists and the agents, and is nothing more or less than an act of war.

"You have no power under the Award to insert such a clause, and we give you notice that we do not intend to await Mr. Askwith's return from Berlin. We have had enough procrastination, and we are now satisfied that the only way to deal with such tactics is to teach you a lesson which you will not be likely to forget. Unless you give instructions to immediately delete the clause referred to we intend to take drastic action without any delay whatsoever.

"Yours truly,
"Monte Bayly,
"General Secretary."

On Monday Mr. Jack De Frece sent the following letter to the V.A.F.:—

"Monte Bayly, Esq.

"Dear Sir,—In reference to the question which has arisen between the Federation and myself, in relation to the form of commission clause inserted in our contracts, I have had an opportunity of making inquiries into the Agreement as to the form of the clause come to before Mr. Askwith.

"I was unaware that a form of clause had been agreed upon, leaving the amount of commission to be stated or not in each case, and I only learned this morning that such Agreement, although not published in the Award, was arrived at at a subsequent sitting, and was never brought to my notice, but I am quite prepared for the sake of the uniformity which is desirable in contracts between artists and managers to follow in future, the form already approved by the Arbitrator, and to which you refer in your letter.

"Yours faithfully,
"Jack De Frece,
"General Manager.

"178, Charing Cross-road, W.C."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—May I claim your indulgence for space for a few remarks upon matters in dispute between the variety artists and agents?

There can be little doubt that the action of the agents in refusing to meet the artists, after agreeing to do so, has primarily had much to do with the acrimony which seems to pervade a matter, to my thinking, capable of adjustment in the course of an hour's discussion by a few level-headed men of business capability from both sides.

The agents, having promised to meet the Federation executive—good, bad, or indifferent—should have fulfilled that undertaking, and I am satisfied the better among them must deplore that error of judgment just as the better of the artists must the torrent of vituperation which has been indiscriminately poured upon the heads of the agents collectively.

Having decided to eliminate the re-engagement clause from my contracts, I have been characterised, in the columns of a contemporary—The Encore—as one of a number having "bent the knee to Joseph." I know nothing of, and care as little for, "Joseph," and arrived at my decision on three considerations: First, I considered the majority of the artists upon my books were above stooping to take any unfair advantage of the absence of the clause, and such as were, to quote Falstaff, "indifferent honest" would speedily be discovered and relegated to their proper sphere—the waste-paper basket; secondly, I had absolute confidence that the managements with whom I do regular business would give artists no encouragement to treat me otherwise than equitably; finally, I did not, from my own standpoint, attach the great importance to the re-engagement clause with which many among the agents seem to invest it.

While, however, I have still no reason to alter my view on these points, there can be no two opinions, where the power of reasoning exists, as to the conduct of operations by the Federation, and no condemnation too strong with regard to the methods adopted.

Take my own case, which I have reason to know is not an isolated one. Commissions due to me were detained by artists, Sept. 19, on the ground that I had failed to accept the Federation form of office copy. Sept. 24 (12.30 noon) I received the first intimation, dated Sept. 23, from the Federation that any change in my contracts was desired, so that, in effect, my commissions were detained on the ground that I had not complied with something five days before that something was placed before me for consideration. Then, observe! I am given twenty-three and a half hours to consider, decide upon, and advise the Executive of my decision, upon a question which even the most bigoted Federationist must allow merits considerable deliberation.

I wired, strongly protesting against the methods, but accepting the conditions, believing good faith would be observed as to those printed in the contract, and implied in a further letter received following my acceptance—namely, that the amounts detained would be forthwith paid, and no objection would be made to stoppage of my commissions where I deemed such stoppage advisable.

Up to this moment the commissions detained remain, with two exceptions, still unpaid, although my name appeared in two issues of the Performer as one of the consenting agents, and in one of which issues artists were advised that they were "permitted" to pay me (incidentally, they had been "ordered" not to), and all along the line stoppage has been strenuously resisted, I believe, without any exception.

Mr. Bayly was duly advised in two separate letters of the non-compliance of the artists with the agreed conditions, to which letters I have, so far, not received even the courtesy of an acknowledgment.

Mr. Clemart (Oct. 16) referred to my secession, and, to borrow from his speech, added, "I don't think this will be a great loss."

He may possibly be correct, and, it may be that this opinion prevailing with the Executive will be deemed an excuse for the absence of good faith, common courtesy, and business method in their relations with me; but Mr. Clemart, to fill with due dignity the mantle he has taken upon his shoulders, has much—indeed, everything—to learn, and I would advise, should he deem further public reference to me necessary, that he confine himself to matters of fact, without impertinent comment which he is not in a position to justify.

My conversations with many artists have confirmed me in the opinion that very few of them hear more than one side of the question, and have not the remotest idea of the methods adopted by the Executive—methods calculated only to widen and prolong the breach between two bodies who have everything to gain and nothing to lose by a mutual good understanding, to bring about which needs but the introduction of a very little tact, and about as much business acumen as might be expected in a well-advanced schoolboy.—Faithfully yours,

J. TYSOE-SMITH.

33, Shakespeare-street, Manchester, Oct. 28.

It is gratifying to notice the large amount of support the new management of the Albert, Brighouse, is receiving in their enterprise of running this newly-erected and excellently-appointed theatre on variety lines. First place in this week's programme must be given to the Royal Quintette of Scottish dancers, whose efforts are pleasing in the extreme. The Bros. Obo indulge in some humorous patter; whilst as a character comedian Sam Shipley is all that can be desired. Elmo and Rego are versatile comedy acrobats; and Fred Horsfall is a Tyrolean vocalist of the first grade. The Sisters Clare execute some spirited and graceful dancing; and the Lauri Bros. supply acrobatic and balancing feats that are simply marvellous; Gus Hindell is well supported by local children in his song-scena Boys Will Be Boys. A good show of animated pictures is given.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

Miss Evelyn Taylor, at the Empire, Bolton, and Miss Marie San Toi, at the Empire, Stratford, are both making successes with that melodious number "Ayesha, my sweet Egyptian," which is rapidly winning its way to popularity, and will be featured by many principal girls and boys in forthcoming pantomimes. A limited number of permits will be granted for music halls on application to the Star Music Co.

"Hurrah for the old-age pension" is a new song, treating the subject of old-age pensions in a serious yet joyful and merry manner. The music is very exhilarating and catchy. Messrs. Sheard have made this a free song, so anyone who wishes to sing it may do so. Records of the song for the phonograph, gramophone, and all disc machines are made by the Edison Bell Phonograph Co., Ltd., and coloured illustrated slides for it are supplied by J. Banforth.

Mr. Stanley Gordon's success as a composer of real bass and baritone songs is so remarkable and sustained that vocalists vote him to be the best present-day writer of songs of the "Foli" type.

Among his best-known songs may be mentioned the celebrated "When the ebbtide flows," "The last voyage," "Out of the night," and "Till I die," which are now being sung by all the principal bass and baritone vocalists.

The above songs are published by Messrs. Charles Sheard and Co., the publishers of "Asleep in the deep" and other well-known songs, who we understand have secured all Mr. Gordon's compositions for a term of years.

Ladies who are impersonating fairy queens during the approaching pantomime season cannot do better than write to Messrs. Sheard and Co. for a copy of Trotère's charming song, "Roses, roses everywhere," as it is a universal favourite, and goes well with all kinds of audiences.

Miss Winifred Hare has made arrangements with Messrs. Sheard for the pantomime rights for Dublin of Mr. Frank Stanley Smith's charming coon song, "My Limelight Lou." No doubt many principal boys will now hasten to follow the lead of this experienced and finished artist.

Songs with simple and ear-haunting melodies that readly lend themselves to staging effects, and to almost any situation, are undoubtedly the best kind of songs to secure for pantomime purposes. Messrs. Sheard and Co. are recommending two such songs in "Little silver moonbeam" and "Sweet bells of home." They have beautifully harmonised refrains, which can be sung with the most pleasing results, either on the stage or by an invisible chorus or quartet.

"Love the Cuckoo" is a vocal duet for boy and girl. It is of a light and gay character, and will be heartily welcomed by principals on the look out for a bright and melodious duet. Messrs. C. Sheard and Co. are the publishers.

Mr. Tom Dunville will shortly produce a Hamlet song-skit, written by Alf Ellerton—and Shakespeare. The last-mentioned gentleman is not concerned in Mr. Ellerton's novelty dame number that has lately been placed with Mr. Harry Randall. His collaborator in that song is A. Ellerton, jun., who is responsible for the melody of that catchy number, "Let's have a song about the boys," published by the Von Tilzer Music Co.

Among the many excellent pantomime songs that the Von Tilzer Music Co. are publishing this season, one may prophesy the following as certain successes for principal boys, "Let's have a song about the boys" (Miss Maude Mortimer's great success), "Put me a girl inside" (Arthur Lennard's big chorus hit), and "Saturday Afternoon" (George Lashwood's winner). These songs have particularly bright, catchy choruses, and all principal boys will do well to secure them at once. They have already been snapped up by Mr. J. F. Elliston and other prominent pantomime producers.

Mr. Dan Rolyat has secured the West-End (London) pantomime rights of the Von Tilzer Co.'s topical song success "What a terrible thing that would be." This capital number is being eagerly sought by comedians. Whit Cunliffe's comedy chorus song "I w-i-l-l, I w-o-n'-t" is also in great demand, and will be used in all Mr. John Hart's pantomimes.

The dame song of the year is "I'm wait-wait-waiting" ("All I want is the man"), which is also suitable for principal girls, possessing a very quaint swinging chorus. The publishers are the Von Tilzer Music Co., who are also exploiting a charming song for principal girls entitled "In a little wooden house in Norway."

Artists on the qui vive for descriptive and applause-gaining numbers should write at once to Feldman and Co. for Charles Collins and E. W. Rogers's successful song "What you've got look after."

Messrs. Mellor, Lawrence, and Gifford have just placed with Messrs. B. Feldman and Co. their latest compositions, "An old French bonnet" and "Come round on Sunday," about which we are going to hear great things in the near future.

One of the most instantaneous and sensational successes of recent time is being created by Miss Maude Mortimer on tour with the new song "A tiny seed of love," the Press in each town Miss Mortimer has so far reached with this item devoting long and eulogistic notices of the song and Miss Mortimer's superb rendition. Messrs. Feldman, who hope to have copies ready for the public in a few days, are being bombarded for large supplies.

Mr. George Lashwood, back again in the provinces, is repeating his great success with his topical item "A white man," which has already been secured from Messrs. Feldman by almost every principal boy of note for pantomime.

"Good-bye to Maudie," just introduced into the West End by Miss May Mars, should prove one of the successes of the year, and is being eagerly secured for Christmas productions. It is issued by B. Feldman and Co.

Charles H. Whittle, in a recent letter to Bert Feldman, writes:—"I open at the Oxford on Nov. 2, and unless something falls from the clouds I don't know how your song 'I want you to see my girl' can be beaten for pantomime." Artists and managers would be well advised to hear this number without delay.

Mr. Sidney James' Strolling Players, in their novel entertainment, are earning hearty applause, at the Hammersmith Palace. Their various numbers comprise the singing of many nursery tales to the tunes of recent popular songs, and another humorous concerted number on well-known quack remedies. One member also sings "Long ago in Alcala" excellently, and another, with "Jimmy Law, lend me your saw," as it would be sung in oratorio, makes a hit. Altogether they are a really good turn, and work their items cleverly, fully deserving the reception they get nightly.

THE OLYMPIA SKATING RINK.

Thousands of Londoners will be pleased to learn that a skating rink is to be opened at Olympia early in December. A company, bearing the title of the London Olympia Skating Rink Company, Limited, has been formed for the purpose of equipping and operating a roller skating rink in Olympia for the Christmas season of 1908-9. Olympia is so well known that it is unnecessary to describe it, except to say that when properly equipped it will provide the finest roller skating surface in the world, sufficiently large to accommodate 5,000 skaters with comfort. The principal adjuncts of the rink, namely, the maple wood flooring and the Winslow skates, will be purchased in America, and the floor will be surfaced by the American floor surfacing machine, which is the most efficient machine in the market. For some years roller skating completely disappeared in the United Kingdom until November, 1907, when Mr. Chester Park Crawford, who is a representative in England of the Samuel Winslow Skate Manufacturing Co., of U.S.A., and who has had a large and successful experience in equipping and operating rinks in America, opened as an experiment in November last the large hall known as the Tournament Hall, Edge-lane, Liverpool. The result was a phenomenal success, and from a pecuniary point of view has been eminently satisfactory to the proprietors. Since that time rinks have been successfully opened by Mr. Crawford and his partner Mr. Wilkins, in Llandudno, Newcastle-on-Tyne, Sunderland, Edinburgh and Dublin, and others will be opened very shortly in Belfast, Birmingham, Leeds, Bradford, and Glasgow. The takings from the rinks now open give promise of large profits.

It is believed that a great number of people will be attracted by roller skating at Olympia, and though the season is a short one such a number of skaters can be accommodated that the promoters believe a large profit can be made. A lease of Olympia has been taken by Messrs. Crawford and Wilkins for a period of thirteen weeks, from Dec. 1, 1908, to March 1, 1909, at a rental of £2,600, and this lease will be transferred to the company.

As we stated last week, the Samuel Winslow Skate Manufacturing Co., Ltd., of Worcester, U.S.A., is the largest and oldest firm in this line of manufacture in the world, and their skates have enjoyed an unrivalled popularity for more than half a century. Their present speciality, the invention of Colonel Winslow, of the United States Army, is the ball-bearing roller skate. It might be well to explain a little as to the different kinds of "rolls" used in the manufacture of the skates.

In the ball-bearing skates the "web" steel rolls are the most durable ever manufactured. On account of the "web" form of construction and special steel used in their manufacture they will neither break nor fall apart. Fibre rolls have most excellent wearing qualities, and are being used with very great success in rinks in all parts of the world. These are lighter than steel, have more resiliency, no grain, will not crack nor chip, and will give long continued service. To supply the demand for boxwood rolls—which has been continuous since 1873—the firm has constantly on hand a supply of seasoned Asiatic Turkey boxwood. Fibre-covered rolls are constructed with Asiatic boxwood centres, pressed into rims of Winslow's "Special Fibre," which are pinned to the centres with wooden dowels. Rolls made of aluminium are both light and strong. Many experts think they "hold the floor" better than those made of any other material. For plain-bearing rolls black maple, Oriental hard wood, and homogeneous steel are the various substances employed.

There are not too many opportunities for healthy recreation in the winter months in this great city of ours, and the Olympia rink should be well patronised, and no doubt it will be. For the joys of roller skating on a large scale we have to thank our American cousins, whose enterprise in respect of this undertaking at least will surely not go unrewarded. It has been sufficiently well demonstrated that, operated on certain lines, roller skating rinks can be made not merely places of enjoyment for all classes, but first-rate profit-earning concerns. A band of musicians will be one of the special features at Olympia, and the programmes will include fancy dress carnivals. We wish the promoters of the enterprise every success.

MISS ELLA RETFORD'S CONTRACTS.

To the Editor of The Era.

Sir,—I notice in your last week's issue one or two paragraphs relative to Miss Ella Retford. The remarks therein mentioned are scarcely correct, and I am desired by my directors to ask you to be good enough to insert in your next issue the following letter, which I received on Oct. 20, 1907, from Miss Retford:—

Dear Mr. Lloyd,—Yours to hand. I had no intention of returning your contract unsigned, and was not aware that I had done so. If you are still agreeable, return it to me and I will sign it. You can have the option of my services for 1909 and 1910, as my Glasgow dates with Mr. Stoll do not commence until 1911.

(Signed) Ella Retford.

You will notice that Miss Retford herself admits not having any dates with the opposition house, and on Feb. 19, 1908, we booked her for one date in 1909 and one date in 1910. On the strength of her remarks we therefore felt justified in interdicting her from appearing in Glasgow until she had performed with us, as per the Award contract. To our utter surprise, when we arrived in Edinburgh we saw a contract signed by this lady with Mr. Stoll, made in 1904, for her to appear in Glasgow on Oct. 12 and in Edinburgh on the 19th.

I am quite sure that when these facts are made known to you, you will agree with me that it is time some steps were taken to make the artists themselves fulfil honourably all contracts, and not allow them to deceive managers in the above-mentioned fashion.—Yours faithfully,

SAMUEL LLOYD.

"SHE SELLS SEA SHELLS."

To the Editor of The Era.

Sir,—Allow me to correct an error in your issue of Oct. 24. You state in the "Song-writers' column" that Mr. Wilkie Bard's song, "She sells sea shells," is by Mellor, Lawrance, and Gifford. Mr. Gifford, of "the clever trinity," is the composer, but the author is—Yours truly,

TERRY SULLIVAN.

Stylo, the clever hoop manipulator, has just returned from a successful tour on the Continent.

The Le Pages appear in an elaborately set scene at the Empire on Monday, and give a wonderful exhibition of jumping.

Among many important schemes on foot for providing a thoroughly attractive winter season at the Crystal Palace, a most welcome one is the provision of an entirely new asphalt rink. Skating at the Palace has every year been growing more popular, and the fancy dress skating carnivals and dances held from time to time have ranked amongst the biggest attractions in London. The Palace rink is the largest in the world, and, with the new floor, it should become the most popular. The Palace is the headquarters of the Amateur Rink Hockey Association, whose games, together with the extremely exciting Rugby matches on skates, always draw great audiences to Sydenham. Mr. Albert Bridge, the well-known professional skater, has been appointed rink superintendent. The season will open on Saturday, Nov. 28.

MR. WALTER REYNOLDS.

RESIGNATION FROM L.C.C. THEATRES AND MUSIC HALLS COMMITTEE.

Mr. Walter Reynolds, L.C.C., who made himself very prominent amongst the Theatres and Music Halls Commitee of the London County Council, has now retired from that committee. That does not, of course, mean that he has given up his seat on the Council itself, for he intends to retain that. But, in conversation with our interviewer one day this week, Mr. Reynolds stated, in explanation of the step he had taken in dissociating himself from serving on the Theatres and Music Halls Committee, that he had found County Council life expensive, to say nothing of its arduous character. There had been weeks when he had had to put in the whole seven days at the work. Now he has found it convenient to be able to earn a little money again, being offered the opportunity of placing some sketches which he had written on the music hall stage.

"In accepting that money," says Mr. Reynolds, "I became, of course, once again financially interested in theatres and music halls in London and elsewhere, and in order that there should be no possibility of any stone being thrown at me from the opposition, I considered it wise to sever my connection with the Theatres and Music Halls Committee, which deals, of course, directly with the interests of places of amusement. This, however, will in no way interfere with my being able to help in both branches of the profession as before.

"My first sketch, which was produced by my own company on Monday evening at the Richmond Hippodrome, is a tabloid form of my old drama Sweet Innisfail, which was written in 1877, and which was produced at the Queen's Theatre, Sydney, New South Wales, in 1878. The play has been running ever since, and it is thirty years old this month. It set the Sydney theatre on its feet, running there for two months. It was revived in Sydney seven years ago by Miss Maggie Moore, the charming wife of Mr. T. C. Williamson. The piece has been seen wherever the English tongue is spoken, and has paid ten, eleven, and in some cases twenty visits to a town. I myself played the principal part of Denny Doon for eleven consecutive years."

MR. WALTER REYNOLDS.

In its condensed form as presented at the Richmond Hippodrome this week, Sweet Innisfail has proved most attractive. It is beautifully mounted, and in this direction Mr. Reynolds has introduced realism by copying from actual Irish scenes. The playlet was booked up on the night of production for four months ahead. Its success has been so pronounced as to encourage Mr. Reynolds to place more sketches on the halls at once, and everyone will wish him success in his new enterprise. Mr. Reynolds, by the way, is the author of no fewer than twenty-two plays and three pantomimes.

Mr. Reynolds' resignation from the Theatres and Music Halls Committee will no doubt be regarded with a feeling of considerable regret among managers of theatrical and variety establishments, and among those who have long realised the necessity of retaining on that committee the services of men with special knowledge and experience of stage affairs, such as Mr. Walter Reynolds undoubtedly possesses. However, he is not lost to the Council altogether, for he will still continue to speak in and to represent Hampstead on it.

PLAYLETS.

To the Editor of The Era.

Sir,—Variety theatres have undoubtedly come to stay. A mixed programme is that which the public seems most to desire, and as sketches form an important item in such programmes there is every reason that playlets—or so-called sketches—should be as well written, carefully acted, mounted, and prepared in variety houses as in first-class theatres. An interesting playlet—whether drama, melodrama, comedy, or farce—will always attract if well done. The plot can be a possible one, the story interesting, and the humour part and parcel of the scheme just as well in miniature as in a full-length play. Follow these lines, have the playlet well mounted and interpreted by capable artists, and it will be an innovation welcomed by all frequenters of variety theatres.

The public is keener than ever in its demand for the best, and managers are eager to gratify their patrons when they can find the necessary material. The difficulty up to the present has been the large number of variety theatres and the inadequate number of sketches that fulfil the requirements enumerated above. Let the drawing power rest with the play, the production, and the company, and not upon the exploitation of a name. To this end I have arranged—commencing November next—for the production of a series of interesting playlets, embracing drama, comedy, musical comedy, and farce.—Yours faithfully,

ALBERT MARSH.

St. Margaret's, Birchanger-road, South Norwood.

Many will be sorry to hear of the death of Mr. Ashley Richard's clever little terrier "Sprat," whose knowledge of music was wonderful. She accompanied her master into the orchestra at every performance, and would sleep under the conductor's chair until the first notes of the finale of each act, when she would get up, shake herself, and make for the door of the orchestra. Even after a lapse of two years she recognised the music which had once been used as the finale of a pantomime. She was well known and a great favourite with the orchestras of the majority of provincial theatres which she visited with H. C. Beryl's Lady Slavey company and Tom B. Davis's Florodora company, &c.

THE PALACE.

Had any doubt existed as to the drawing power of Miss Maud Allan, it would have been settled by the aspect of the Palace auditorium on Monday, not only in the stalls, but in other parts of the house. Yet Mr. Butt has an excellent list of attractions, and his introduction of a troupe of Spanish dancers in the characteristic peasant dances of the Iberian peninsula supplies a much appreciated novelty. The company numbers twelve, and a special feature is the picturesque national costumes of men and women, and the guitar accompaniments. The three dancers whose work on Monday evoked considerable applause are Señors Antonio de Bilbabo and Mogigongo, and Señorita Clavelita. The show is presented in the form of a sketch, entitled El Amor en España, with just a dramatic thread running through it. The Señorita Flamenca has two lovers, and the pair would extinguish the rivalry by the use of the knife, which each of them draws. The lady suggests in pantomime that she will give her hand to the best dancer. The competition is followed throughout by a clapping of hands, and it is evident that the comrades of the dancers are severe critics of the various steps. Indeed, it is step-dancing of a very remarkable character, first on the stage and then on a table. Neither of the competitors adopts the sinuous and gliding movements that are associated in our minds with the national dances that are of Mauresque origin, such as the seguidilla. Señorita Clavelita certainly does treat us to a bolero with the rhythmic beat of the castanets, and in the final quartet, in which the trio already spoken of are joined by another lady, we assist at a "figure" that is quite Castilian in character. The rhythmic footwork of the smaller male dancer is wonderful, and it occasionally reminds one of Lancashire clog-dancing. The dancers are accompanied by a couple of guitar players, who "thrum" with much vim and spirit.

Mr. Bert Levy, the Australian cartoonist, stipples out clever caricatures as well as portraits on a small disc, the whole modus operandi of the picture being shown up on a large white screen. On the night of our visit Mr. Levy commenced his entertainment by sketching an excellent portrait of Lewis Waller. The profound apathy of the audience towards the picture of so popular a stage figure evidently touched the artist to the quick, for he wrote on his disc the sarcastic comment, "Thanks for your loud applause," and he also put the question, "Was the drawing so rotten?" But he had nothing to complain of later on, and as an encore he sketched His Majesty the King. A most original and clever artist is Mr. Bert Levy. Another very original performance of its kind is that presented by Moran and Wiser, the wonderful hat-throwers. From the skilful hands of this couple Panamas float gracefully towards the flies, and then return, boomerang-like, to settle on the head of the thrower. This elaborate way of putting on one's hat is scarcely to be recommended to the man in the street, but its cleverness and the fun evolved in its accomplishment are very fresh and amusing. Indeed, so unique a turn is rare, and we should be glad to see more performers like Moran and Wiser.

Miss Margaret Cooper has some droll new songs. One of the best is "Janie," the story of a superior, but floppy, young lady. Another excellent number is "Hello, Martha." Messrs. Carlisle and Baker, two gentlemen of colour, are new to this country. They have the reputation of being popular vocalists and pianists, and also write and compose their own songs and duets, many of which have a great vogue in the States. With their backs to each other they play simultaneously on two pianos, and altogether are responsible for a clever performance.

The early portion of the entertainment is brightened by the songs of Miss Josie Delaine, who sings of "the land of the rising star"—not music hall land, but Japan, and is also particularly dainty as the cigarette-smoking Carmencita, a Spanish senorita whose heart is full of "the man who fights the bull." Miss Delaine dances delightfully, and her pirouettes are on the best Taglionic principles. Mr. Sydney Lee is one of the smartest card manipulators we have seen during a long experience, and his methods are particularly neat and unobtrusive. He is a favourite at the house in Shaftesbury-avenue, where his engagement, we are given to understand, has been lengthened. Miss Muriel Harding is concerned with facial impressions; and Malcolm Scott's patter is welcome. So is the dancing of the Palace Girls. Miss Lucette de Verby is also popular.

KING'S, KILMARNOCK, REOPENED.

The above theatre was reopened on Monday by Mr. J. Cummings, who for the past three years has run the Palace in the same town. A packed house on Monday highly appreciated the enterprise of the young amusement caterer, who placed before his patrons a strong programme of variety artists. Before noticing the entertainment we may say a word or two concerning the house, which is a well-planned and substantial stone building situated in the main thoroughfare. It has a seating capacity for over 2,000, with a commodious pit, comfortable orchestra stalls, a very fine circle, and a spacious gallery. The comfort of the audience is considered in its convenient ante-rooms. The stage is fully equipped, and, being very large, any production can be staged with all the elaboration required. There are nine spacious dressing-rooms, comfortable and well lighted, and the house is lighted by both gas and electricity.

There was a crowded house to acclaim and approve the enterprise of Mr. Cummings, who, during the course of the evening, came to the footlights and briefly addressed his enthusiastic patrons. He assured them that he had booked some of the best attractions for the King's Theatre, and they could always rely on having a first-class programme. He also informed them that he intended to still keep the Palace open, with a constant change of the latest and best animated pictures.

He was fortunate in securing for the opening week the services of Vonetta, a lady illusionist and marvellous protean actress, who has proved a sensational success. Vonetta is assisted by several smartly-attired attendants of both sexes, whose rapid transitions from one part of the stage to another in the various illusions cause great surprise. The Royal Scots, a quartette of lady vocalists and instrumentalists, fairly caught the favour of the audience with their part songs interspersed with light comedy and instrumental numbers. Another excellent item was that of Marguerita Ismay and her peerless White Coons, who gave well varied selections of songs and dances with pretty effects. Cosgrove and Burns, in a new refined drawing-room sketch, At the Piano, fairly convulsed the house with their witticisms; Jack Neil, Scotch comedian and patterer, kept the house in roars of laughter; and Miss Lina Leslie, a dainty comedienne, got hold of the gallery boys with her catchy choruses. Cumming's animated pictures brought the programme to a conclusion. An interesting programme of music was rendered by an efficient orchestra under the direction of Mr. Hayden Parker.

MUSIC HALL ARTISTS' RAILWAY ASSOCIATION.

GENERAL MEETING.

Mr. W. H. CLEMART, the president of the M.H.A.R.A., occupied the chair at the twelfth annual meeting of that body, held at the Bedford Head Hotel on Sunday evening. Amongst those present were Mr. Fred Herbert, Mr. Joe O'Gorman, Mr. Marriott Edgar, Mr. W. H. Atlas, Mr. and Mrs. W. Permane, Mr. Charles Coborn, Mr. J. O'Connor (Jack and Evelyn), Mr. C. C. Bartram, Mr. Wm. Brown, Mr. E. V. Lucas, Mr. Maurice Hoffman, Mr. Andy Kerr, Mr. Andie Caine, Mr. Harry Herald, Mr. James Foreman, Mr. H. E. High, Mr. Percy Stanhope, Mr. Vernon Cowper, Mr. Charles McConnell, and Mr. Charles D. Stuart (secretary).

After the secretary had read the notice convening the meeting,

The CHAIRMAN, in a brief address, said that he thought that the small meeting was a good compliment to the Association, as when affairs were in a satisfactory condition the members were content to stay away. The very full report left him (the chairman) nothing to say. He had looked through the balance-sheet, and he was of opinion that it was a very creditable one. The only black spot in it was the matter of refunds. In many cases the committee had had to pay over to the railway companies the monies which the members owed, and the deficit on the balance-sheet was accounted for by the monies that the members owed the Association. The committee had therefore decided that those members who did not behave themselves as they ought to do in this respect would not have their cards renewed until they had cleared their obligations to the Association. They could congratulate themselves on the continued success of the Association, for they had never been in a better position. They had an excellent committee, and there would be no necessity for an election. The existing committee of fifty-three would continue in office, the four new members would now come into power, and the committee would appoint the remaining three, to make up the total of sixty, at one of their own meetings. Mr. Arthur Rigby would stand as treasurer. The chairman concluded by tendering his thanks for the compliment that had been paid to him in allowing him to remain their representative.

The report and balance-sheet were as follow :—

MUSIC HALL ARTISTS' RAILWAY ASSOCIATION.

ELEVENTH ANNUAL REPORT.

The executive committee in presenting this, their eleventh annual report, to the members of the Association have the gratifying announcement to make—as in every previous year—that the membership roll at the end of the financial twelve months has exceeded that of 1907 by 400, the total number of members on Sept. 30 being 6,876. The current account upon the above date at the London and South-Western Bank was £182 7s. 5d., the deposit balance at the Birkbeck Bank was £162 6s. 2d., while the reserve fund, which is invested in Consols, including the interest derived, amounted to £539 2s. 9d., while the petty cash at the head offices and branch offices was £44 6s. 6d., making a total in all of £928 2s. 10d.

The committee have, in addition to the £200 voted at the last annual meeting to be donated to the Railway and Music Hall Charities, given away a further sum of £126, and now recommend to the general meeting that the remaining surplus of receipts over expenditure should be distributed in the following manner:—£150 to be divided amongst the railway charities, £50 to be donated to the Variety Artists' Benevolent Fund, and £50 each to the Music Hall Home and Music Hall Ladies' Guild, also placing a sum of £40 to increase the reserve fund.

During the past year two special general meetings were held, the first at the Empire, Camberwell, in April, which was occasioned by the resignation, through business circumstances, of Mr. Douglas White, who had held the position of hon. treasurer to the Association since its formation, his resignation being received by the committee with deepest regret. At this meeting Mr. Arthur Rigby was elected as hon. treasurer, and it was further decided that the positions of president and treasurer should in future be always held by members of the variety profession. Mr. Joe O'Gorman also brought forward a suggestion that 1s. should be charged as an additional amount on all subscriptions, that sum to be handed over to the newly-formed Benevolent Fund. It was decided that this should commence from April 26, and since that date the scheme has resulted in the large amount of £126 19s. within the short period of five months, giving an average per month of over £25, or an estimated annual revenue of more than £300.

The other special meeting was held in May at the Bedford Head Hotel, and was convened to add to Rule 12 an addition that the committee, provided there be no list of candidates for election, should have power to co-opt by ballot any member they may deem fit and capable to serve thereon. This was unanimously carried, and a number of new members have since been thus elected with material benefit to the Association, as many of them have been regular attenders at the weekly meetings, thus enabling the business of the M.H.A.R.A. to be more expeditiously carried out.

The question of removing the London offices has been considered very thoroughly by the committee, in conjunction with that of the Federation, and after careful consideration and visiting a number of premises it was decided that, in view of the increased expenditure created by the new provincial branch offices, and the fact that the present offices are large enough for the working of the Association, no change be for the present entertained.

As desired by the members at the general meeting of 1906, two new branch offices have been opened during the current year, one at Manchester and one more recently at Liverpool, and although the initial expenses in connection with the starting of these—even though the Variety Artists' Federation has kindly contributed one half—have been considerable, yet it is felt by the committee that the cost is a right and justifiable one, as the offices have been much approved of and appreciated by the members as a convenience and benefit.

The annual dinner and dance of the Association was held at the Criterion in February, under the chairmanship of Mr. W. H. Clemart, the president, supported by Mr. Joe Elvin, president of the Variety Artists' Benevolent Fund, in the aid of which institution it was held. The event was a conspicuous success, over 300 being present, and for the first time the dinner was a financial success, over £26 being obtained, in addition to nearly £900 subscribed on behalf of the Fund. It is intended to hold another dinner and dance early next year, when it is sincerely hoped that the entire music hall profession will again vouchsafe their patronage and support for so deserving a cause.

With respect to the railway concession, in spite of any rumours to the contrary, the committee has pleasure in authoritatively stating that, although the railway companies are undergoing a period of considerable depression, there is at the present time no thought of taking away the 25 per cent. reduction for members of the Association. There may perhaps, in the near future, be some alterations regarding free trucks and compartment accommodation, but these matters will only affect the music hall profession in a minor degree. Some trouble has arisen during the year between the Association and the Scottish railways, which are now united instead of being in rivalry. This monopoly has decided to abolish the privilege of the 12-mile radius as granted by the English companies for many years, and artists appearing in the neighbourhood of a large city cannot have the concession from that town, but must pay full fare if under the number of five. A deputation of the committee waited on the companies' representatives at Glasgow, who promised due consideration to the arguments advanced in favour of the rescission of the new rule, but subsequently a letter was received stating that it must be adhered to. A lengthy explanatory communication was then sent, signed by all the principal officers of the Association, asking for renewed consideration of the points raised, and to this no definite reply has been received. The matter is therefore still under negotiation.

The committee does not think it can do better than repeat the paragraph from last year's report as to the theatrical representatives and the railway companies, and all those who have worked gratuitously for the members during the past year, only adding that it exceedingly regrets that, in view of the branch office being established at Liverpool, the valuable services of Mrs. Egerton, who had acted as agent there for so many years, had to be dispensed with. "Once again, though no less cordially, does the committee return its thanks to the ever courteous theatrical representatives of the different railway companies, who have rendered such assistance to members of the Association in the way of comfortable travelling, and ever been ready to smooth over any little troubles that may have arisen; also to the hon. medical officers for their generous free advice; to all the honorary officers of the Association; and, lastly, to the provincial agents, whose duties have been considerably increased, but have yet been fulfilled with so much assiduity and attention."

The committee again desires to express its appreciation of the excellent work of the secretary, Mr. C. Douglas Stuart, throughout the past year, and thanks him on behalf of the members for the zealous and conscientious manner in which he has carried out his duties.

Although the refunds have decreased in number, the question, which is a very serious one, is still causing much trouble to the railway companies, and unless members are more careful to conform to the rules and arrangements made for them by the local agents, it is very probable that the valuable privilege of travelling by different trains and on different days (which during the year has been granted by the London, Brighton, and South Coast Railway in addition to every line in England except two) will be taken away. The committee would also remind members that if they do not repay monies owing to the Association in cases where, through their own fault, differences in fare have had to be paid to the railway companies, their cards of membership will not be renewed until this is done. This also applies to members who neglect to explain their conduct or answer letters sent them by the committee.

Lastly, the committee sincerely congratulates the members upon the prosperity, increasing year by year, of their grand Association, an Association which deals solely and wholly with railway and kindred matters, leaving all affairs concerning music hall politics to the sister society, the Federation; an Association that, for a nominal annual fee, ofttimes received back the first week in concessions, secures its members a large number of privileges, benefits, and advantages; an Association that has a steady record of success, solid and substantial, and has during its career of twelve years been instrumental in donating between the railway and music hall charities the magnificent sum of over £3,000, thus, while benefiting those in work, aiding also the less fortunate members of the variety profession. Long may it flourish!

By order of the committee,
C. DOUGLAS STUART,
Secretary.

We have examined the above statement with the books and vouchers of the Association, and certify it to be correct. We have verified the Investment and the Balances at Bank and in hand.

JACKSON, PIXLEY, BROWNING, HUSEY, AND CO., Chartered Accountants, Auditors.
58, Coleman-street, E.C. Oct. 20, 1908.

Mr. ANDIE CAINE and Mr. HARRY HERALD were appointed tellers.

Mr. FRED HERBERT, in moving the adoption of the report, referred to the amount of money which they were giving to their own and various railway charities. In addition to the £200 voted at the annual general meeting, they had distributed £126, and they had also recommended the distribution of £300 equally between the railway and music-hall charities. Mr. O'Gorman had suggested at the last general meeting that the subscription should be raised by one shilling for the benefit of the V.A.F. fund. That would bring in £300, and would enable the fund to do a vast amount of good work. It was very desirable that they should get as much money as they could for the fund, as they had numerous applications for help each week. The speaker paid a compliment to those members of the committee who had been co-opted. Their attendance had been most regular.

Mr. MCCONNELL, who seconded, remarked that the Manchester and Liverpool agencies were conducted in a most businesslike manner.

The resolution was then put to the meeting and declared adopted.

Mr. MARRIOTT EDGAR proposed, and Mr. CHARLES COBORN seconded, the adoption of the balance-sheet. This, too, was carried unanimously.

Mr. W. H. ATLAS proposed, and Mr. PERMANE seconded, "That the words 'Entr'acte' and 'Referee,' in line 8 of Rule 24 be deleted." After some discussion the resolution was passed by the meeting.

Mr. ANDIE CAINE proposed, and Mr. FOREMAN seconded, a resolution to the effect that the rules should stand as they were, with the exception of the alteration referred to.

The election of officers for the ensuing year was then proceeded with, the results being as follow: Hon. president, Mr. W. H. Clemart; hon. vice-presidents, Sir James Bailey, Messrs. Albert Le Fre and Fred W. Mi'lis; additional hon. vice-president, Mr. Douglas White; hon. treasurer, Mr. Arthur Rigby; chartered accountants, Messrs. Jackson, Pixley, Browning, Husey, and Co.

A vote of thanks to the Chairman brought the meeting to a conclusion.

ALLEGED LIBEL ON AN ARTIST.

A motion in an interesting libel suit came before Mr. Justice Boyd on Wednesday in King's Bench Division, Dublin, when an application was made to serve the writ out of jurisdiction. The plaintiff, Ethel Rebecca Thackeray, a music-hall artist, known as "Ethel Ra Leslie," seeks to recover damages from her husband, Francis Henry Thackeray (Frank Travis), Streatham-hill, London, and William Armstrong, solicitor, Renfrew-road, Lambeth, for alleged libel published in a Belfast newspaper.

Plaintiff, in an affidavit, complained of an advertisement, which appeared in the Belfast News Letter on the 10th inst., signed by Mr. Armstrong, on behalf of the other defendant, to the effect that the plaintiff, the lawful wife of Francis Henry Thackeray, was no longer authorised by him to make any purchase or enter into any contract on his behalf, and that he would not be responsible for any of her engagements, or for any debts she might incur, she having left him and being now located in Belfast.

Mrs. Thackeray said that there was no truth in the allegations or innuendoes contained in that statement, and went on to state that she was entitled in her own right to leasehold premises in Sreatham-hill, and that Mr. Armstrong acted as her solicitor and had had possession of the deeds. Before separating from her husband she instructed the former to obtain a loan of £100 on the property. Some time later, while in Belfast, she received from Mr. Armstrong a letter enclosing a power of attorney empowering her husband to sell or mortgage the property. This she returned, as it was unnecessary, warning the solicitor not to let the deeds out of his possession. Some time afterwards her husband forwarded a letter from a firm of London auctioneers, intimating that he had sold the property. Plaintiff alleged malice against the two defendants.

Mr. Justice Boyd decided that as they resided in England, and there was a question as to the plaintiff's domicile, he would make no rule on the motion.

"THE ACTORS."

A Comic Absurdity, produced at the Hastings Hippodrome on Monday, Oct. 26.

Mr. Alwaysout ..... MR. FRED PERCY
Burbohm Jones ..... TOM PEMBERTON
Lady Ambitious ..... MLLE. CLARETTE
Warner Smith ..... JOHNNY ALEXANDER
Policeman ..... HARRY BAXTER

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The scene is a theatrical agent's office, kept by Mr. Alwaysout. The servant announces Lady Ambitious, who is anxious to secure an engagement as a comedienne in a theatrical company. She is followed by Burbohm Jones, who displays his dramatic ability in a couple of recitations. After he has retired Warner Smith enters in a soiled and disreputable costume. He assures the agent that he has appeared in different characters with the great tragedians of the day. The accomplishments of the would-be actors are then put to the test. As Burbohm Jones is robing himself for the part of Macbeth, Warner Smith appears as Macduff, in Highland costume, and a terrible encounter with swords takes place. In the midst of the fray Lady Ambitious rushes up to separate the combatants, but gets slain herself. During the scrimmage the furniture is very roughly handled, and a policeman who comes in to secure order is similarly treated. The sketch is an extravagant burlesque from beginning to end. The acting of Mr. Alexander is capital, and Tom Pemberton as Burbohm Jones gives a truly comic study.

AN ARTISTIC FEAST.

There are few artists on the variety stage who have created more diversified criticism than La Milo, the originator of Breathing Marble. The management of the Portsmouth Hippodrome, with a finger on the pulse of the public, booked her for a week's visit, and those who so readily condemn this style of entertainment should certainly see it for themselves. There is from beginning to end nothing but beautiful and graceful posing, each tableau being a veritable artistic feast. The poses are delightful, but the climax is reached when Miss La Milo appears in her inimitable representation of Lady Godiva, and a picture is presented which absolutely vies with real statuary. The grace, charm, and natural pose of La Milo sent the audience into raptures, the applause continuing long after the curtain had descended. It is a fine classical exhibition, and the place will no doubt be packed all the week. Both houses last evening were crowded to the doors.—Evening News, Oct. 20, 1908.

THE Stoke Newington Palace Football Club played their first game in the Theatrical and Music Hall League competition last Sunday, on their ground at Bailey's-lane, Stamford Hill, before about 1,500 spectators, when they met the Tivoli, the present leaders in the League table. A splendid game resulted in a win for the Palace team by 4 goals to 0, scored by E. Rowe (2), J. Baxter, and R. Wheeler. Next Sunday the victorious team meet Stratford Empire on the same ground.

"G.P.O."

Farcical Sketch, by Fred Karno, Fred Kitchen, and Frank Calvert, in Two Scenes, with music by W. Powell; performed at the Empire Theatre, Bradford, on Monday, Oct. 26.

Perkins ..... MR. FRED KITCHEN
Herbert Realstiff ..... MR. ALBERT BRUNO
Mr. Horton ..... MR. HERBERT SIDNEY
Gustave Achille Dumont .. MR. HERBERT LANDECK
Telegraph Boy ..... MR. TOM MCDONAGH
Adolphus Pycan ..... MR. H. LLOYD KING
Mary Wilson ..... MISS JESSIE CRAMMONDE

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

This, probably the latest of the Karno productions, is like its predecessors, written around the inimitable comedian Mr. Fred Kitchen, who in the part of Perkins is supplied with unlimited scope and endless opportunities for the display of the eccentricities and quaint mannerisms which have made him so popular hitherto; and, needless to say, he makes the most of them in G.P.O., which, by the way, is not all comedy, for there is now and then during its progress just a touch of real pathos which lends a bit of interest to the sketch. The first scene is the exterior of the G.P.O., where Mary Wilson, in a vain attempt to beg assistance from her vile betrayer Realstiff, is seen bemoaning her sad fate. Perkins enters; there are "hands" wanted at the G.P.O., and, after much hesitation and mature deliberation, he decides to apply. We see him duly appointed as a postman in a busy scene of the interior of the G.P.O., and he indulges in a song with a chorus by postmen and telegraph girls. The postmaster enters, and takes quite a fancy to Perkins, to whom he hands the key of the safe, £20 for temporary expenses, gives him entire charge of the office, and then goes on a holiday. Perkins makes his position felt both amongst the staff and with the funny customers who call, and he is tempted by sudden acquisition to wealth to have a bit on a "gee-gee" at long odds. There is an episode in Perkins's past known to the scoundrel Realstiff, by whom he is threatened; the conditions of silence are that Perkins shall hand over the safe key. This he does, and at night Realstiff is admitted. Mary Wilson's child has found a refuge in the office, and when Realstiff enters she is hidden behind the mailbags. As Realstiff is helping himself to the contents of the safe Perkins pushes him in and turns the key just as the postmaster returns. In presence of the staff Perkins is dramatically accused of taking something out of the safe, but he declares that he has put something in. The safe is opened, and Perkins becomes a hero.

The scenic effects are excellent, and the music is bright and sparkling. The initial performance went without a hitch, and the laughter was loud and prolonged. Some of the incidents in the production are very amusing, and it would be difficult to imagine anything funnier than the assumed dignity of Perkins, whose facial expressions and jokes fairly convulsed the audience. Mr. Albert Bruno was intensely dramatic and very vigorous as the scoundrel Realstiff; Mr. Herbert Sidney played the Postmaster well; the excitable Dumont was a good character-sketch by Mr. Herbert Landeck; Mr. Tom McDonagh as the Telegraph Boy and Mr. H. Lloyd King as Pycan made much of their few opportunities; and Miss Jessie Crammonde invested the part of Mary Wilson with pathos.

THE Achmed Ibrahim troupe will start their London season this year, on Nov. 16, at the London Hippodrome, with a tour of twenty-seven weeks to follow.

MR. ARTHUR CARLTON has this week opened the Empire Hall, Worcester, where there is a nightly display of good pictures, and he intends also to provide good-class sacred concerts on Sundays.

HARRY LAUDER IN NEW YORK.

There was another "gathering of the clans" when Harry Lauder commenced his second American tour last week at the Lincoln-square Theatre, and the house was not large enough to hold all the people who wanted to hear him sing the Scottish character songs that have made him famous in the Old World and the New. Hundreds were disappointed on the opening day, and taxicabs were kept running between the American Theatre and the Lincoln-square to carry the disappointed ones free of charge to the other house, which became for the nonce a sort of overflow meeting of Harry Lauderites. The Scottish comedian is engaged for twenty weeks under the exclusive management of William Morris, Incorporated, and after three weeks at the Lincoln-square Theatre he will swing around the entire Morris circuit. A feature of the welcome he received was the presence in the audience of several hundred Scotsmen representing the Caledonian and Canadian Clubs of New York and other Scottish societies, many of them being clad in the tartans of their respective clans. They led the demonstration that greeted Lauder when he first appeared, and it was certainly "Scotch night" at the Lincoln-square Theatre, for the enthusiasm he aroused was spread over the entire evening. The Scotsmen "owned the house," and swarmed all over it, and while their varied tartans caught the eye, the Glesca' accent engaged one ear, Aberdeen the other, and Edinburgh broke in between times. To land here on Saturday and open on Monday hardly gives one time to get the kinks out of his legs and get over the feeling that the sidewalk is about to slant to port or starboard. But Lauder was as "fit as a fiddle" when he came on to sing "When I get back again to Bonnie Scotland," and in less than two minutes the audience was completely under the influence of his jovial personality. The song was new to this city, but it "caught on" immediately. Lauder's masterpiece, "The saftest o' the family," came next, and it had all of its old familiar charm. In another new song, "The wedding bells were ringing," the singer described, in his own inimitable way, the experiences of one McNabb. After the minister had tied the knot everyone dined, and then they wined, and the result of their indulgence was depicted in a highly-diverting manner. Someone objected to the bridegroom having his arm around the neck of the bride; when next seen it was around the neck of a bottle. Then everyone made a speech, and the best man said he knew a lot about the bridegroom, but wouldn't tell, as he believed in always sticking to a pal when he was down.

When Lauder sang "Mary, my Scotch bluebell" he had the house with him to a man. It is the best chorus song in his répertoire, and both the melody and the sentiment are delightful. At the evening performance he sang "We parted on the shore," and had to make two speeches before he was allowed to retire, having occupied the stage for over an hour. The police had considerable difficulty in handling the vast crowd that assembled outside the theatre.

ANOTHER effort to aid the Glasgow unemployed takes place to-day, at the Empire, Glasgow. It has been organised by a Glasgow lady, who has been markedly successful in the past with matinées for many deserving objects, and on this occasion she has secured the patronage of Her Royal Highness Princess Louise (Duchess of Argyll), Duke of Argyll, Duchess of Sutherland, Duchess of Montrose, Countess of Eglinton, Earl Rosebery, and all the best names of Glasgow and the west of Scotland. An attractive programme has been arranged, and all the indications point to a most substantial sum being raised for the fund.

Olympia.

Showmen will be interested to know that Olympia is once more available for their shows. Not quite under the same conditions, but showing greater advantages, in the fact that the crowd will be attracted there. The main building will be devoted to the uses of a skating-rink, under the management of Messrs. Crawford and Wilkins, the well-known pioneers of the skating-rink in this country. The Annexe will be used as a Fun City, to which the public using the skating-rink will be admitted free. The Fun City will be controlled by the New Olympia Co., Ltd., and under the management of Mr C. B. Cochrane, who so successfully managed the Fun City in 1906-7, to whom all communications should be addressed.

Bedford Fair.

News to hand of this fair is to the effect that it was largely supplied by Thurston and Sons, who exhibited many of their well-known concerns. These included the cinematograph theatre and the switchback motor-car set. The other shows and concerns included Biddall's royal bioscope, Sol Elliott's boxing saloon, C. Shaw's galloping horses, and other amusements by Messrs. E. Harris, Welsh, and Shaw.

The Roundabout Proprietors and Showmen's Union.

The Secretary of this important Trade Society requests that our readers' attention be drawn to the next meeting of the society, to be held at Rotherham on Tuesday next. (Duly advertised in our columns this week.) It is desired that a good muster of members may be available for the transaction of important business.

Guild Meetings at Rotherham Statutes.

Since the very early days of the "Van-dwellers' Society," it has been the custom to hold meetings at Rotherham Statutes Fair. This was largely owing to the fact that for some years after the foundation of the Guild the Honorary Chaplain (the Rev. T. Horne) was curate of Whiston, Rotherham. A good deal of local sympathy was evinced, and the cause of the persecuted showmen was well championed in the local press. Of late years, it has been a great pleasure to the Guild Chaplain to visit these scenes of the early strife against George Smith's Movable Dwellings Bill. It is a curious circumstance in the whirligig of time that the Guild Chaplain is once again rallying the public sympathy of Rotherham to the defence of the threatened showmen, who have again to face and to defeat a Movable Dwellings Bill.

The Mayor of Rotherham and members of the Town Council, the Vicar of Rotherham, and the Honorary Local Chaplain to the Guild (the Rev. H. Greenway, Vicar of St. Michael's) have been invited and are expected to attend the afternoon meeting.

Opposition to the Movable Dwellings Bill.

The Parliamentary Agent of the Showmen's Guild and the Organising Chaplain are closely watching the progress of the Bill. It appears on the Orders of the House of Lords as waiting for Committee, but no day is fixed for its appearance. The Executive of the Showmen's Guild are prepared, as soon as the day is fixed, to meet the Bill with immediate, vigorous, and (we confidently anticipate) successful opposition. The showmen's brief against the Movable Dwellings Bill, compiled by the Rev. T. Horne (which appeared in The Era, Oct. 17), has been issued in pamphlet form, and a copy of it (when the time for taking action arrives) will be placed in the hands of every Member of Parliament, both Lords and Commons.

Fortunately for the strengthening of the showmen's cause there is no chance of the Movable Dwellings Bill being rushed through the House. the congestion of public business being such that, in the present session of Parliament, no Bill introduced by a private member has the least chance of getting through. What may happen, however, is that if Lord Chudleigh is successful in getting the Bill through Committee in the House of Lords this session, it will have a better chance of a favourable hearing and acceptance when introduced again next year. The determination of the Guild Executive to oppose the Measure at every stage of its progress will be strenuously carried out, and the showmen are confident that the righteousness of their cause will find many friends in the House of Lords who will oppose, and we trust succeed, in defeating the Bill.

A CHAT WITH HERBERT CROUCH

OF GLASGOW'S "WONDERLAND."

The most successful and the most deservedly popular of Glasgow showmen is Mr. Herbert Crouch, of the well-known "Wonderland" at 137, Argyle-street. He is the oldest waxwork proprietor in Scotland. For over thirty years his waxwork exhibition has been a source of special attention to Glasgow citizens and country visitors. Waxwork exhibitions are the lineal descendants of the old time "geggies," booths, and open-air exhibitions, and museums of the fair and showgrounds. In a day when pantomime did not exist and theatres and actors were frowned upon by the Church, the people's taste for the marvellous was ministered to by the wandering show folk, who went their rounds with freaks and fakes of animal and human nature, and exhibited each his marvel for a penny a head. The booth shows are disappearing rapidly, and in Glasgow, at any rate, the opportunities which the people have of witnessing such under-canvas exhibitions as still exist are few and far between.

But the Glasgow "Wonderland" has captured the declining art of freak exhibiting, and from time to time patrons of Crouch's exhibition have presented to them freaks and oddities as marvellous and alluring as any recorded in the days of old. Mr. Crouch is one of the most interesting men it has ever been an Era representative's lot to converse with.

"Yes, I'm proud—don't look surprised—of being a Cockney. I was born sixty-seven years ago in a house in Burton-crescent, behind old St. Pancras. I am a showman from choice and not of necessity. I was blessed at the start with a good education and business training. In the days of my youth I ran away from the grocery business and enlisted in the 4th Royal Artillery Brigade. When the Fenian Raid broke out in Canada I saw active service there. I remember the Rev. Henry W. Beecher, the American Congregational minister, looked upon the invasion as a religious judgment on the Britishers, but adjured his congregation to heap coals of fire on their enemies' head by arresting the Fenians—the Army of the Irish Republic—and thus return good for evil. After the rising had been quelled I bought my discharge at Montreal, and returned home to Old England. Eighteen months ago I received the Canadian General Medal and Clasp, 1866.

"I made my first acquaintance of show life when I joined the well-known peep-show proprietor, Hewitt, better known as 'Squeaking Betty,' and we travelled the large peep-show together. I came first to Glasgow Fair with this show. After we split partnership at Bury March Fair, outside Manchester, I returned to Glasgow on my own, with a large galvanic battery and ring boards. About this time I exhibited the first tinfoil gramaphone ever exhibited, in a shop in St. Vincent-street, Glasgow. Before Professor Forbes, of the Andersonian University, engaged me to exhibit the machine, he got me to speak into it 'round the rugged rock the ragged rascal ran.' This gramaphone created a great sensation at that time. After my engagement was finished I bought the gramaphone from Professor Forbes for £7 10s., and exhibited it at 137, Argyle-street. I next exhibited in Glasgow, Edinburgh, Aberdeen, and Dublin, the sacred Brahma Bull—an animal with four legs and a human arm on the right side. After leaving the bull with its proprietor at Brighton, I returned again to Glasgow, and opened a shooting gallery in St. Enoch Wynd. Later, I opened a show in the Trongate, where I had a shooting-range and mechanical models. The models I bought from old John Anderson, of the Polytechnic. Anderson had at one time a waxwork and museum in Jamaica-street, in a building that had formerly been occupied by a circus. After four years in the Trongate, I opened a waxwork at 136, Argyle-street, and have remained in the building ever since. My first show consisted of mechanical models, French and German works of art, and the tableaux representing "The Last Supper," after the painting by Leonardo da Vinci. The price for admission was threepence. I have been continually adding to my collection, and my show to-day contains the finest collection of moving figures, French and mechanical models, and bronze statues in this country.

"'The Last Supper' is one of the largest of wax tableaux. It was bought by me for £250. Kings, queens, statesmen, divines, and notables of every degree find a place in my galleries. One interesting figure is that of Old Malabar, the showman juggler, who travelled over all parts of the United Kingdom attending fairs, race meetings, markets, and any public gathering where he had an opportunity of giving an exhibition of juggling. This figure originally belonged to Mr. Macleod, of the Waxwork in the Trongate. At the sale of the contents of this waxwork, a year or two ago, the figure was knocked down to me for £5. Mr. Macleod gave Malabar £20 and a new dress for the sitting to be taken in wax—a figure he showed at his waxworks for years. Yes; the best wax models are supplied from France. A good head, modelled in France, costs from £5 to £10, and sometimes £20; while the heads of English make can be had from 30s. to £2 15s. A good figure, fully dressed, might cost as much as £40.

"I have all along made a speciality of the freak department, and for over thirty years I have afforded the public many opportunities of seeing the strangest human freaks ever exhibited. Krao, the missing link; Frinsco, the three-legged Italian boy and a fourth growing; Castagno, the human skeleton or mummy-like man; Radica and Doodica, the remarkable twin sisters; the Brothers Tocci, the two-headed Italian boy; Stephan Bibzowskie, the boy with the lion's mane; Lin Loo San and Lin Tang San, the Chinese twins; and Mme. Polonawsky, the Russian bearded lady, are commemorated in wax in my show."

INVENTIONS.

Inventors and others who have no business representative are invited to communicate with the Manager of the Inventions Dept. as above.

APPLICATIONS.

21,525.—Frederick James Thomas, of Chertsey. Improvements in the construction of the pole and framework and roof of the game of ring- or hoop-throwing or pitching, known as the May-pole or hoop-la game.

21,787.—James Williamson and Colin Martin Williamson, of Brighton. Improvements in apparatus for imparting a positive intermittent travelling motion to cinematograph films.

21,788.—Samuel Alfred Nelson Deluce, of Manchester. Improvements in and relating to turnstiles and counting apparatus therefor.

21,801.—Arthur Bartram Snell, of Putney. Improved means for displaying or exhibiting dummy figures or other articles.

21,812.—Robert Hodges Bishop and William Danton Sandwell, of London. Improved safety aerial travelling swing.

COMPLETE SPECIFICATION ACCEPTED.

22,354.—Mitchell. Target practice apparatus.

2,038.—Purpura.—Illusory apparatus.

2,241.—Ostrovsky.—Exercising apparatus for use by violinists.

SPECIFICATION OPEN TO INSPECTION.

21,069.—Lungren. Insulated projecting lantern.

ABRIDGMENTS OF SPECIFICATIONS.

12,358.—Finger-exercising apparatus. A. Krizek, of Coburg, Germany.

A finger-exercising apparatus consists of a plate (b) which is fastened to the back of the hand by means of a strap (a) passing round the wrist, and a series of rods (g) sliding in sleeves (d), which are pivoted to the plate, the rods carrying loops (f) which are passed over the ends of fingers

The front edge (h) of the plate is bent up and provided with serrations, between which the sleeves (d) are adapted to engage. The apparatus can be used to spread the fingers laterally and to hold out of action one or more fingers so that the remaining fingers may be exercised.

12,401.—Railways for recreation. H. Wignall, of Manchester.

An aerial tramway or railway consists of a combination of straight and curved lines of rails (b b) fixed at an incline to vertical supports. Rods (e) suspended from the rails by means of rollers (f g) serve for the conveyance of persons along the track by gravitation.

12,800.—Scenic exhibitions. T. Harden, of London.

In moving-picture scenic exhibition apparatus, giving the illusion of travelling in a vehicle, mirrors (15) are arranged at an angle at the side windows of the vehicle (as shown in plan in Fig. 2) to reflect portions of the views thrown on the screen (1) in front of the vehicle. The vehicle rests on air-buffers and on friction wheels driven by a motor. A whistle is blown by air from a compressor, and a supply-cock to the whistle is operated by a lever and cord.

Improved Mandoline.—Particulars are to hand of a new combination of a violin and a mandoline that is being manufactured in Baltimore, U.S.A., which is said to combine the virtues and correct the faults of both. This new instrument takes the shape generally of a mandoline, with frets and fingerboard, but retains a body of violin construction, so that the back is constructed in one piece, side pieces are provided, and the belly is curved. The volume of sound produced is said to greatly exceed that of the ordinary mandoline, embodying all the richness of tone and vigour of a violin, while the jarring metallic sound caused by the celluloid pick is perceptibly diminished.

A WOMBWELL "SENSATION."

How great is the power of a grand old historic name! What wonderful thoughts cling around the names of the great heroes of Britain's past! How we value anything that comes to light in connection with a Wellington or a Nelson, to go no further back in the great roll of Britain's heroes!

Something of the same kind of halo of renown attaches to the great names in showland. What thoughts arise in our minds as we recall the great enterprise of the men who have made British showlife famous—for example, the names of Astley, Richardson, Batty, Wombwell, Sanger! These are names to conjure with, names that never fail to provoke a warm fervour of appreciation, and (should such be necessary) never fail to evoke the warmest sympathy. We have a remarkable instance of this in what we can call nothing less than a "Wombwell boom" in the daily and weekly press. The Sunday papers, closely followed by the Daily Mail, the Morning Leader, the

MR. GEORGE WOMBWELL.

Daily Telegraph, the Evening Standard (with, of course, extracts from these papers in all the provincial Press), have graphic articles headed "Showman in the Workhouse," illustrated interviews, telling the British public that George Wombwell, aged 91 (a nephew of the great George Wombwell), has been forced by poverty to enter a workhouse, there to end the few remaining years of what is said to be a wonderful and adventurous life.

The Skilful Blend of Fact and Fiction.

As the interviewers report their conversations with the old man in the workhouse they read as though only a little while ago the unfortunate old man was travelling the country as proprietor of Wombwell's menagerie, and figured in the public eye as a "Menagerie King" well known at all the popular fairs in Great Britain. But when we come to dissociate fiction from fact and to put the facts in their proper position, we find that "the Wombwell boom" only rests upon this foundation, that the George Wombwell in the Edmonton Workhouse is indeed at the grand old age of 91, the nephew of the great George Wombwell, the originator of travelling menageries. But he has had nothing whatever to do with any of the Wombwell menageries since the time when, owing to the misfortuntes which he details, his own show (left him by his uncle in 1850) was dispersed. For more than fifty years this so-called menagerie king has ceased to be a showman and has earned his living as a bandsman.

It is only just to the proprietor of Bostock's Wombwell's Royal Menagerie to make this quite clear, as the life story of the George Wombwell at Edmonton may possibly cast a reflection upon the triumphant career of Wombwell's menagerie.

The Old Man's Reminiscences.

The Chaplain to the Showmen's Guild, the Rev. T. Horne, visited George Wombwell in the Infirmary at Edmonton, and, considering the burden of ninety years, found the old man wonderfully alert and capable. There were, of course, indications of the failure of the natural powers; he is deaf, and his memory is extremely precarious Without overtaxing the poor old man's powers, the Guild Chaplain was able to recall events of fifty or more years ago (the time when he was actually on the road as a showman) that completely proved the validity of his claim to be the nephew of the great George Wombwell. For example, he remembered and recalled the tragic incident of the death of Ellen Blight, the lion queen. He remembered William Manders, the menagerist, and Gregory and Buckley, the old showmen of those far-away days. He recalled the dramatic incident of how he stood with a naptha lamp in his hand whilst the coffin-maker was fashioning the coffin for his uncle, made from the wood of the wreck of the Royal George. He also remembered the grim joke of his uncle, who when rallied by a friend as he was drinking a glass of hot grog with the remark; "There you go, George, putting another nail in your coffin," replied, "No, I'm not, for there will never be a nail in my coffin; I'll take good care of that," and he did, for the coffin was dove-tailed together and the lid was finally fastened down with pegs made from the same wood as the coffin itself.

It was sadly pathetic to thus let the old man muse on with only a word now and then from the Chaplain in order to make the incident fit into its proper time. It is extremely satisfactory to testify, as the Chaplain does, to the great care and the most kind treatment that the dear old man is now receiving in the infirmary ward.

The Real History of the Matter.

The important points that we wish to emphasise are two. First, that when old George Wombwell died, in 1850, he left three menageries—No. 1 to his widow, No. 2 to his niece, afterwards Mrs. Edmonds, and No. 3, a small menagerie, to the George Wombwell who is the subject of this article. The No. 1 menagerie was dispersed in 1872, the No. 2 menagerie—Mrs. Edmonds'—came into the possession of E. H. Bostock, the present proprietor of Bostock's Wombwell's, the show that has never left the road. Mrs. Bostock, the mother of E. H. Bostock, was a niece of Wombwell the Great and sister to Mrs. Edmonds. Hence the unbroken continuity of the show, and its continual hold upon the affection of the English-speaking race. Our second point is, and we want this to be quite clear, that the small Wombwell's show bequeathed by the great George to his nephew, the old man at Edmonton, was very soon dispersed, and that for over fifty years George Wombwell the younger has been following the honourable but humble profession of a bandsman in military and other bands, mainly in and around London.

The great error of this, the latest newspaper boom, lies in the simple but most telling fact that it all happened over fifty years ago.

GENEROSITY OF MR. E. H. BOSTOCK.

TEN SHILLINGS A WEEK FOR LIFE FOR GEORGE WOMBWELL.

Although the aged nephew of the great George Wombwell has been out of the show business for over fifty years, and has not been in touch with the Bostocks or in any way connected with the Royal Menagerie, Mr. E. H. Bostock has promptly come to the aid of the old man bearing so close a relationship to the founder of the menagerie. Mr. Bostock writes to inform us that only once in his life has he seen the old man in question, and that was thirty years ago. It will be seen at once that no reproach can really be attached to the Bostocks for a state of affairs utterly unknown to them. We are glad to make public the generous offer of Mr. E. H. Bostock.

Under date Sept. 30 he sent the following telegram to "The Era":—"Supplementary to my letter of yesterday's date, if you are able to place George Wombwell in some comfortable home I will allow 10s. weekly for life to defray same."

We were quite sure that the distressed condition of the old man, and, indeed, his very existence, were unknown to Mr. Bostock, and in the face of the sensational and misleading nature of the newspaper accounts it is an additional pleasure to us to be the means of bringing an unavoidably painful incident to so satisfactory a conclusion.

Goole Fair.

This old-time fair was well maintained by the following well-known concerns: Messrs. Tuby and Sons' coliseum, Hobson's cinematograph theatre, and Kent and Wortley's novelty booths. The machines list included Tuby's four-abreast galloping horses, Relph and Pedley's flying porkers and razzle-dazzle, and park swings by Messrs. Pullen and Fisher. The other novelties, including Winchester ranges, bottle smashers, Emmas, cokers, &c., were by Messrs. Shaw, Fisher, Campfield, Farrer, Ling, Doubtfire, Humphries, Holdsworth, Clare, Norman, and Black.

Mr. Charles Cowell has been granted a licence at Carmarthen for his portable theatre, and will open the season at the Corporation fair-ground on Wednesday next, the 4th prox. Mr. Cowell was formerly heavy tragedian with Mr. Horton Hayes' company at the time his theatre was at Carmarthen some few years ago.

Notes from Wales.

Steel Parry's Bioscope opened at Neath for a few days on the fair-field. Some excellent pictures were shown nightly. Included were J. Danter's swings, bottle smashers, &c.

Hednesford Wakes.

There were a goodly number of attractions at this fair, which is on the Staffordshire back-end round, but travellers have been unfortunate in experiencing rather wet weather, which has considerably interfered with the business.

Mrs. S. Shepherd was represented by her racing motor-cars, three-abreast jumpers, park swings, and juvenile horses and motors; Wm. Davies' steam yachts and Messrs. Miller and Glisley's helter-skelter were also on the ground, and Rogers' Star Circus.

The shows present comprised Mrs. Flora Collins' No. 1 Wonderland (under the management of Mr. Walter Kelly), Horace Holloway's Grand Phantascope, Sedgwick's American menagerie, Ingram's Italian circus, and Mr. J. Birch's two shows, the swimming exhibition and the Midgets. Shooters, cokernut sheets, Houp-las, and pannum stalls were provided by Messrs. J. Cordwell, Hampton, J. Hall, F. Rodgers, T. Jerrison, Caddick, and others.

M. Beaute, the celebrated fasting man, concluded his forty-three days' fast at Humber's Waxwork Saloon, Aberdeen, on Monday evening. A vast crowd witnessed the unsealing operations. Since he went into captivity Mr. Beaute has lost 29lb. in weight. On being released he felt very weak, and he allows himself a week's rest before returning to his home in Glasgow.

Bridlington Fair.

For this important fixture Bostock and Wombwell's menagerie, Randall Williams' cinematograph theatre, Lewis's serpent jungle, and Westray's animal museum were the shows.

The machine list included Goldthorpe Marshall's motor cars, Monte Brothers' cake-walk machine, Waddington and Gavan's helter-skelter tower, Shipley's steam horses, and Carvill's swings. There were the usual attendant amusement caterers, with side shows and minor novelties, shooting galleries, and varieties.

Wigan Fair.

Despite the decreased spending power of the people owing to the Cotton Trade Lockout, business at this old fair was fairly good. The principal shows and machine novelties included Colonel Clarke's superb cinematograph theatre, Harry Kemp's similar concern, Gal. Hague's school of boxers, Leonard Harris's freak exhibits, John Green's motor-cars, W. Mitchell's, jun.'s, motor-cars, T. Hurst's racing birds, J. Green's cockerels, a novel bicycle track, and Harrison's Alpine glissade.

There were the usual and ample variety of throwing-games, pea-saloons, pannum and variety stalls, altogether making an extremely well-provided fair. Although this fair is no longer under Corporation management and control, and is held on private ground near the Great Central station, it has proved beyond all doubt that the agitation of a few years ago to abolish the people's fair was not supported by the people, nor in any sense justified by the circumstances of the case.

Cinderford Fair.

The October Fair at Cinderford was attended by W. C. and S. Hancock's superb cinematograph theatre; Marshall Hill's galloping horses, racing birds, park swings, and rifle saloons; Newman's swings and throwing-games; with toy and variety stalls by local caterers.

FILM GOSSIP.

THE POSTMAN'S DAUGHTER.—Here we have a drama full of strong situations, exciting incidents, and scenic loveliness, delightfully produced, excellently enacted, and perfectly photographed. A country postman insists upon his daughter going to school. She sulks and cries, but he is firm. He accompanies her to the door. No sooner has the postman gone than the girl emerges from the gate and plays truant. In a country scene the now happy child collects flowers in the wood, and then, in a secluded corner surrounded by enormous boulders, she begins her frugal lunch. Two ruffians surprise the child, and, after stealing her lunch, adjourn to a public-house for further refreshment. The postman arrives and gossips with the waitress, showing her a registered letter for delivery at some distance away. The villains listen and follow. In a lonely moor the ruffians waylay and rob the postman of his letter, leaving him senseless on the path. His anxious wife sends the girl to look for her father. She finds and restores him, afterwards leading him home. The robbers revisit the child's corner in the woods, and quarrel over the division of booty. There is a thrilling fight in which both sink to the earth unconscious. In his cottage the postman, bandaged and sore, bemoans the loss of his registered letter. The police arrive to make inquiry. The girl relates her experiences of the morning, and leads them to her embowered retreat. The final scene shows the discovery of the villains and recovery by the postman of the contents of the letter.

LOST AT SEA is an original marine picture story of unusual merit, full of picturesque incident, beautifully toned and set amidst delightful surroundings. Apart from the thrilling drama, the scenes themselves form a subject of intense spectacular interest and charm. The drama itself is cleverly enacted, and the situations are full of novelty. The order of the pictures is thus: Unable to pay her debts, the widowed mother of Joel is threatened with eviction. Joel, in despair, hires himself out as fisherman on the banks of Newfoundland. He is readily accepted, and, with the money received as bounty, satisfies the demands of the sheriff's officer. The crew sail for the foggy solitude of the fishing banks. Pathetic scene of separation between the sailors and their families. A wonderfully effective picture. Next we get the open sea. The crew are occupied in hauling the fishing lines when fire breaks out on board the vessel. To escape the flames the men jump overboard. Joel is borne by the current to an isolated rock, and tries to attract the attention of a passing vessel. The tide is rising dangerously high when he is rescued, and the thrilling scene is reproduced in a picture of great ocean beauty. The loss of the ship and all hands is reported at home, and Joel's mother is crushed by this new stroke of fate. The rescued Joel, however, returns to France, and while in search of employment saves from drowning an imprudent tourist, who royally rewards the brave fisherman. Joel returns home to find his old mother praying before the shrine of the Virgin. There is joyful reunion, and a touching scene of thankfulness.

SCENES IN BRITTANY.—In this series Messrs. Urban furnish many delightful scenes of picturesque French country. Typical Breton views of town, coast, and fisher life, and quaint and diversified episodes, refreshingly rendered and photographed with marvellous perfection, are presented to the admiring gaze of the spectator. Amongst the phases of life dealt with are marketing in a Breton town, fishing, harvesting seaweed, and burning the seaweed for fertilising purposes. A curious laundry is formed out of an open-air tank surrounded by a wall, where the women of the town pursue their avocation. The produce market presents scenes of great variety, of peasants and townsfolk, with wares bought and sold. Another interesting picture deals with lace-making in a Breton street. About twenty women, picturesquely garbed, and wearing lace caps of uniform pattern, are busily engaged with needle and tongue. A fine effect is produced in the concluding scene, as tremendous waves spend themselves against the rocks and cliffs, and the spray is dispersed in every direction.

Pathé Frères.

THE VAMPIRES OF THE COAST.—Everybody knows that in days gone by it was the custom along the coast in France, as well as in England, for the wreckers to lure the ships on to the cliffs during the storm in order to appropriate the spoil. This film depicts one of those savage deeds which too often took place in Brittany just on that bit of land where the waves of the Channel beat against those of the Atlantic Ocean, thus forming a very dangerous spot for the ships to venture on. During the storm the wreckers used to attract the vessels by means of a lantern tied to the horns of a limping cow which was taken by the people on board for another ship. It is that now obsolete custom which has been revived for the cinematograph, and the film ends, after showing a picture of the revelry of the wreckers, with the rescue of a young and noble lady by a young peasant and the marriage of the rescuer with the rescued.

A LIVING REFLECTION.—By means of a hitherto unknown process a young scientist can make shadows on a looking glass look like living things which follow and mimic every movement performed before the mirror. Yet if you wipe the looking glass every trace of the shadow disappears. Now the scientist is enjoying himself, for he is playing tricks on his friends and servants, who seem to be on the verge of losing their reason with surprise and amazement. All this is but a dream, however, created in the overtaxed brains of our friend, who has fallen asleep on his ponderous books.

THE AMBULANCE DOGS.—This little drama opens at Tangier. It is the coffee hour, and on one of the terraces at the French club several officers and their relations are engaged in merry conversation. Suddenly the news spreads that a "Mehalla" has been sighted a few miles distant. The officers jump on horseback and ride away hurriedly, while the ambulance dogs belonging to the Society of the Red Cross run to the outposts which are being attacked. We follow them in their mad rush though all sorts of dangers, some with their useful medical chests, others which have been put to the stretchers and will return presently with a wounded soldier to the camp. These poor faithful dogs, so good and reliable, are made to share the dangers of the soldiers and render goodly service to France.

CLOSING TIME TWELVE O'CLOCK.—This is a comical series. Young Toby, who was engaged by the firm yesterday, does not know that the closing time is twelve o'clock on Saturday, and for this reason he is locked up in the shop, where he puts everything upside down in the hopes of finding a means of egress. His numerous misfortunes, ending for him in a cold douche, will possibly make him remember on the following Saturday that the shop closes at twelve o'clock.

IN ZAMBESI (SOUTH AFRICA).—Here is shown a series of magnificent and imposing sceneries and landscapes of South Africa, with rapids and waterfalls, whose large volume of water tumbles down in heavy masses, forming sprays of white foam which descend from the top of the rocks like a deluge, and seem to disappear at the bottom in a whirl of water of snow-white appearance.

The Gaumont Company.

THE comic element is very strong in the current Elgé films, THE PRIZE CAMEL taking a leading place for originality. The beast is first prize in a lottery, and the unfortunate being who wins it, knowing nothing of the ways of camels, finds a great difficulty in mounting his steed, and when he succeeds in that is carried off at an enormous pace, and at last precipitated into the road. His efforts to remount are successful at last, but another accident unseats him, and he gives the beast to a person who, better acquainted with its ways, makes it lie down and then rides away in triumph.

THE CONSIDERATE CABBY is the hero of another Elgé number. This character is intensely devoted to his noble steed, and begins the day by repairing to the latter's stable and grooming it most carefully—concluding by spraying it with scent and holding up a mirror before its eyes. The real humour of the subject begins when cabby looks about for business. His first would-be fare is a big man, and cabby takes him off to a weighing-machine, and after inspecting the figures registered politely declines to accept him. A family then board his cab and decline to move, whereupon the hero takes the horse from the shafts and goes off to lunch with the latter, placing a napkin round its neck, and hiring two musicians to play while it eats. Next a young lady is accepted as a fare, and all goes well until a hill is reached, when cabby insists upon having the cab pushed up the hill by a number of labourers while the horse is behind. An appropriate conclusion shows him at night sharing his bed with the horse.

THE GUARDIAN ANGEL is a pleasing little pathetic story. Two workmen are dismissed by their employer, and in the night make their way to his house intent upon revenge. They enter the room in which his little daughter lies sleeping, and one is about to stab her when the figure of an angel appears at the bedside, and he is struck with remorse and leaves the house. Next day the two men are once more taken on by their old employer.

THE LOVER'S GUIDE.—Having arrived at that time of life when all girls seem a divinity, our friend "Cholly" is a bit doubtful about his ability to woo, so he invests in a so-called "Love Guide." Satisfied with his acquired knowledge, he fixes a date for a picnic, and his selected bunch of beauties give him more to do than the "Guide" has taught. Although paying the piper the girls call the tune, and he has a rough time making fire, carrying water, and washing dishes. He cares not, however, because the girls are enjoying themselves. "After dinner rest awhile," and accepting this as a motto, the girls adjourn to various shady nooks to read; not so "Cholly," for, guide in hand, he tries his ability as a wooer. Each girl receives his attention in turn. Under hayricks, up trees, over bridges, and in the stream, all are the same to this ardent swain, until the girls set him to packing up. Taking so long to do this, the ladies leave him to finish on his own, and by the time he arrives at the station he finds they have unkindly gone off with a handsome stranger. "Cholly" is left a sadder and a wiser man.

A VOICE FROM THE DEAD.—Looking back through history we find find that there always have been labour battles. In this subject is featured a labour war, through which runs a love story, as well as an illustration of the value of the phonograph. Our story opens in the general office of an iron foundry, where, during an era of prosperity, there is unrest among the workers. The superintendent of the works visits his master's home, to give him the state of affairs, and, meeting his employer's daughter, she promises to visit the works. At the time of the visit a committee of the men is received, and the partners hold a meeting. As a result of the position taken up by the junior partner, heated words pass. During the excitement the senior partner has a paralytic seizure, and, believing him to be dead, the junior plots to overthrow the superintendent. He tells the superintendent that the firm's decision is unfavourable to the men, and the superintendent goes to tell the workers the news. In the absence of the junior partner and the superintendent, the senior partner revives, but, his cries being unavailing, he crawls to and dictates a message into a phonograph, then expires. The men having left work, the junior partner and the superintendent come to blows, and the latter, during a period of unconsciousness, is forced by the junior partner into a crucible, and left to his fate in a glowing pit. Nell, the foreman's daughter, whilst cleaning the windows of the superintendent's office, sees his terrible plight, so, taking a desperate leap, she closes the pit doors just in time to save his life. The police now suspect foul play in connection with the senior partner's death, and the junior accuses the superintendent, who is arrested on the strength of a pair of dividers belonging to him being found beside the body. During the trial the evidence is against the superintendent, but Nell, the foreman's daughter, has found new evidence, and the phonographic record is accepted. As a result of this "voice from the dead" justice triumphs.

THE GNOMES.—This gives the story of an old legend. Two gnomes, Didrik and Vidrik, loved the same gnome girl. Quarrels arose often between them, when the girl, who did not want either of them, kept teasing them as they stood at their anvils. At last the old gnome mother meddled in the affair and declared that if the girl would not decide for one of the lovers she would be transformed into a human child and taken to the earth. The gnome girl laughed right in their faces, and one minute later she was transformed into a tiny baby, and Didrik and Vidrik made their way to the earth with her. In the nursery of the castle the nurse was fast asleep with the little baby of the house. The gnomes walked in with the troll child, changed the children, and took the human child away to the troll hill. Sixteen years passed. The troll child showed her real nature, and was a terror to all her surroundings. One fine day Didrik appeared in her chamber in order to take her back to the hill, but she liked to stay where she was too well, and did not want to go back again to the lower regions. One day she went for an excursion with a large, grand company. They passed the fairy-hillock, and a young and melancholy nobleman, Owe, wanted to rest there for a little while, while the rest of the company continued their road laughing and jesting. After a while the hill arose on four pillars, and the most beautiful woman came out, offering the young nobleman a drink from a golden cup. He flung the drink to the ground and drew the young woman to his breast, but the gnomes drew her back, and Hilda—the human child who was once changed and carried away by the gnomes—disappeared into the hill, which sank again. Darkness gathered over the forest, while the nobleman leaned his bewildered head against the hill. Stupefying vapours arose from the hill, fairy girls came out of the mists; they were dancing round him and drew him into the gnomes' world. As he found himself surrounded by all these strange beings he naturally looked to Helga, for whom he felt a strange affection, for protection, and she advised him to show the cross he was wearing round his neck to the gnomes. This he did, and all the gnomes fled with terror away from the holy sign. Only Didrik returned and offered to take the two back to their home. As by magic Didrik and the two young people now stood in the hall of Hilda's parents' castle, where a large party had just gathered. Their appearance created both amazement and anger, but Didrik and Sir Owe soon explained the whole affair, and when Didrik disappeared in a cloud with the changed troll child, who had for such a long time played lady of the house, scales fell from the eyes of everybody. The mother hugged her daughter, who was lost and now found again, in her arms, and the party congratulated the young couple, who had made an alliance for life.

LIVING FURNITURE is the title of a comic film issued by the same company.

NEW AMUSEMENT APPARATUS.

Gravity railways are nowadays a very important item to those who cater for amusements, and any invention in this line is always of interest. One of the chief difficulties in the way of this class of entertainment is the space required by the structure in order to get a good length of run. Mr. Lot Morgan, one of the directors of the Amusements Syndicate, Ltd., has, we learn, overcome this difficulty in a very ingenious manner. At three different parts of the track he has placed see-saws, on which, when the car runs its weight, causes the see-saw to tip immediately the car passes the centre, thus producing a direct slope down on to the rails. Immediately the car has left the see-saw, the latter, on account of a weight fixed beneath it, resumes its old position. On account of the impetus given to the car by the see-saw, its speed is maintained by a far smaller incline. Thus it is possible, it is claimed, to construct a railway nearly a mile and a half long in a space measuring 180 feet by 90 feet. Another feature of this railway is that by means of an arrangement of the rails the force of gravity is counteracted, and there is none of that uncomfortable leaning on one side when negotiating curves. A clever device, too, makes it possible for all the cars to be stopped by automatic brakes by the person in charge simply pulling a lever, so that all risks of accident are brought to a minimum.

Wantage Fair.

THE principal show at this fair was Buckley's trained animals and birds. The other novelties included steam roundabouts, big boats, rifle saloons, bottle batteries, and throwing games, and were provided by Messrs. Thomas, Saunders, Sperrett, Young, Smith, Traylen, and Mrs. Matthews.

Warminster Fair.

THE shows and other novelties at this fair were: J. Dooner and Son's electric coliseum and theatre of varieties, Professor Ruby with two shows—the X-ray novelty and freak show—Professor Wright and school of boxers, and W. Le Neve and Norah Sullivan, the Sandow experts of the ground booth. The machine novelties were: W. Symond's switchback and galloping horses, and Harris's steam roundabouts. The shooting concerns, bottle batteries, throwing games, and hoop-las were provided by Messrs. Gratton, Haynes, Harris, Nail, Stevens, and other caterers.

THE annual fair was held at Ilkeston on the 22nd, 23rd, and 24th, the following being the chief attractions:—President Kemp, and Messrs. Holland and Crichton with picture shows, Pat Collins's roundabouts, &c.

THE FRANK AYLMER CASE.

We append a letter from Mr. W. H. Wallis (of Tennyson and Wallis), who makes an appeal on behalf of Mr. Frank Aylmer (of the Two Sports). We are pleased to open the list, as Mr. Wallis desires.

"Olympia, Liverpool.
"Oct. 29, 1908.

"Dear Sir,—By publishing this letter you will assist an urgent and very deserving case. Frank Aylmer, of the Two Sports, is now lying for the fourteenth week in Mercer's Hospital, Dublin, having undergone two operations to his foot. It will be several weeks before he can be out and about again, and his wife, his only comfort, is in lodgings in Dublin with strangers, waiting till he is able to be out and working again. He was always a good boy whenever the hat went round for anybody else, and therefore if you will only open a list for him I am sure a lot of us together can do him a little bit of good. I enclose you P.O.O. for £5 9s., with names of donors. I shall be sending some more by Saturday.

"Thanking you in anticipation, yours faithfully,
"W. H. Wallis."

LIONS FIGHT IN BOSTOCK'S JUNGLE.

A terrific fight between lions took place at Messrs. Bostock's well-known menagerie, which is located at the National Eisteddfod pavilion at Mountain Ash, where they are to remain during the winter months, the pavilion having been extensively fitted up for the purpose.

The show is the same as that which appeared at Earl's Court when it was brought over from America.

One of our representatives was courteously shown over the show on Tuesday by Mr. Miller, who readily volunteered information regarding the terrible encounter which terminated in a South African lion named Emperor, valued at £250, being killed.

Herbert Brooks, the night watchman, was on duty at the time, when, apparently owing to the chains holding the division bars between the compartments getting unhooked, nine big lions gained access to the cage of a big black-maned African lion, which was kept in another compartment, and no sooner had they got face to face than with a terrific roar they commenced their fearful operations.

The huge African beast stood his ground, and fought fearlessly. The night watchman, realising the hopelessness of trying to separate them, summoned Mr. Miller.

In the meantime, a regular battle royal was being waged, the lions gashing and tearing each other madly. In about four minutes one of the lions got his jaws firmly fixed in the throat of the African lion, and held on like grim death until the latter succumbed. The conquerors, however, did not escape unscathed, for they bore traces of the severity of the struggle.

When Mr. Miller arrived on the scene the fight had almost finished, and he experienced little difficulty in restoring order once more and getting the animals to their respective cages.

"He fought gamely against the nine other lions," said Mr. Miller, "and held his own for some time. It was a terrific encounter, and a fight between lions rarely ends until one has killed the other."

Just to prove the docility of the animals Mr. Miller then walked round the yard, petting and patting the beasts and playing with them through the bars of the cage, when they appeared as calm and dignified as if nothing untoward had happened.

There are altogether about two dozen lions, in addition to a large number of Polar bears, leopards, elephants, &c.

Amongst one of the most curious sights of the show is a lion which submitted to the ordeal of having a glass eye fixed in as a substitute for one he had lost, probably in a battle. The operation was performed in London.—Western Mail.

Lord John Sanger and Sons', Ltd., Royal Hippodrome and Menagerie, whose present tour will shortly close, visited Leicester on Saturday and Monday last, being located on their usual place in a large field at the junction of Aylestone and Welford Roads. The capital entertainment provided drew large crowds to the four performances given. The Maro Troupe of lady and gentlemen acrobatic equestrians give a marvellous display of agility and equipoise on horses and carriage whilst careering round the ring; the Austins, a couple of gentleman jockey-act equestrians, also give another really fine display of horsemanship, their various feats being well performed; the Airlees are aptly styled the "human flying machines," their feats at the top of the circus being of a most sensational nature, which are carried out with great coolness; Mr. Coleman's elephants show the acme of training, their various contributions to the programme evoking the admiration of all parts; Pimpo's canine wonders, including Snowflake, a marvellous leaping dog, are another clever feature; Miss Lina introduces her school horse Hawcombe, and puts it through various feats in a charming style; a great and special feature is the performance of Cyclo, who allows a fully-laden motor-car to drive over his body; Cordelia's twelve-horse manœuvre is another pretty and noteworthy act; Zampo and Clown, the elastic bounders, Hoffman's thought-reading pony, and La Belle Fondants in a new up-to-date wire act are among other clever features.

Harry Ford and Harry Boden's company will appear in a new comedy sketch, The Cert, at the Queen's, Poplar, on Monday.

Miss May Audrey's success in South Africa, where she is just concluding her third visit, has been such that she has been detained for another two special weeks. She has had, therefore, to postpone her return until Saturday, Nov. 14, when she gets back to the old country, voyaging in the Armadale Castle. She opens on the following Monday at the Hippodrome, Coventry, and then goes to the Coliseum and other London houses.

Miss Florence Smithson, now playing the part of Sophia in the comic opera Tom Jones, gave a sacred concert with great success at the Barnsley Empire on Sunday (11th inst.), and the result enabled her father, Mr. Will Smithson, the managing-director of that house, to hand over to the Beckett Hospital the sum of 40 guineas. When residing at Merthyr the Smithson element was always predominant in every effort to get funds for charitable purposes, and many hundreds of pounds were raised by the charming vocalist. Wales's loss is Yorkshire's gain.

PALACE THEATRE, GRIMSBY.
To all whom it may concern.
WANTED, Known.—There is an idea throughout the Variety Profession that, since the closing of the Tivoli Theatre, Grimsby, Mr. J. H. Curry has become interested in the management of the Palace. We wish it to be distinctly understood that Mr. Curry does not represent the management of the Palace Theatre in any capacity whatever, neither is he a director nor a shareholder. On the closing of the Tivoli, Mr. Curry asked if we would take over the Artists booked for the Tivoli, and we promised to do so whenever it was possible. We are, however, in no way bound to do so. The arrangement was quite an unofficial one, suggested by Mr. Curry with the sole object of avoiding, if possible, any Artist being thrown out through the unavoidable closing of the theatre under his management.
Signed,
The Grimsby Palace Theatre and Buffet, Ltd.,
F. Vernon Walford,
Secretary.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office.

Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns.

Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through, each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not re-booked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follow:

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT.
MR. S. GETHING,
Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT.
MR. T. GERALD MORTON,
Empire Palace, Leeds.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. HATTON WHARTON,
Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

LIVERPOOL, MANCHESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. ALBERT BULMER,
The Empire, Liverpool.

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.
MR. ALBERT MITCHELL,
Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

LONDON DISTRICT.
MR. J. CHRISTIE,
Empire Theatre, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously.

THIS WEEK'S NOVELTIES.

CLOSING TIME 12 O'CLOCK.

Code Word, "FEERIQUE."

Young Toby, who was engaged by the firm yesterday, does not know that the closing time is 12 o'clock on Saturday, and for this reason he is locked up in the shop, where he turns everything upside down in the hope of finding a means of egress. His numerous misfortunes, ending for him in a cold douche, will certainly cause him to remember next Saturday that the shop closes at twelve o'clock.

495ft. The Subject, £8 5s. 0d.

THE VAMPIRES OF THE COAST.

Code Word, "FERME."

In the days gone by it was a custom along the coast for the wreckers to attract the vessels to the shore during the storm, and for so doing they tied a lantern to the horns of a limping cow, which was taken by the people on board for another ship. It is that now obsolete custom which has been revived by the cinematograph; and the film ends, after showing a picture of the revelry of the wreckers, with the rescue of a young and noble lady by a young peasant lad, and the marriage of the rescuer with the rescued.

577ft. The Subject, £9 12s. 4d. Colouring and Toning, £2 0s. 0d.

A DRUNKARD'S DREAM.

Code Word, "FAUCHEUR."

This film shows the weird and strange ideas which come into the head of a man whose brain is excited by the spirit he has just drunk.

412ft. The Subject, £6 17s. 4d. Colouring £4 5s. 0d.

HATE BETWEEN THE CLASSES.

Code Word, "FEE."

Peasants do not like gipsies. One of the latter having stopped his van at the end of a field is ordered to go at once; but as the wanderer is a stubborn man he will not give in, and the farmer is obliged to ask the keeper to make him go. During the quarrel the peasant's son has seen the gipsy girl, and their case being that of love at first sight, they make an appointment for the evening. Her father seeing her with a man of the accursed race, is made more furious still at the recollection of the outrage of the afternoon, and he rushes upon the younger man with his knife in his hand. Yet his daughter, maddened at the idea of danger for her lover, snatches the knife from her father's hand, and plunges it into his heart.

264ft. The Subject, £4 8s. 0d.

THE AMBULANCE DOGS.

Code Word, "FANTAISIE."

At Tanger. The coffee hour on one of the terrace at the French Club. Several officers and their relations, a young couple, all engaged in a merry talk. Suddenly the news spreads that a "Mehalla" has been sighted a few miles distant. The officers jump n horseback and ride away hurriedly, while the ambulance dogs belonging to the Red Cross Society run to the outposts which are being attacked. We follow them in their run through all sorts of danger, some with their useful medicine chests, others with the stretchers they have been put to, and which will return presently with a wounded soldier to the camp.

725ft. The Subject, £12 1s. 8d.

A LIVING REFLECTION.

Code Word, "FABRIQUE."

By means of a hitherto unknown process a young scientist can make shadows on a looking-glass look like living things, which follow and mimic every movement performed before the mirror. Yet, if you wipe the looking-glass every trace of the shadow disappears. The scientist is enjoying himself, for he is playing tricks on his friends and servants, who seem to be on the verge of going out of their minds, with surprise and amazement. All this is but a dream, however, created in the overtaxed brains of our friend, who has fallen asleep on his ponderous books.

510ft. The Subject, £8 10s. 0d. Toning, 6s. 0d.

IN ZAMBESI.

Code Word, "FAICRE."

Here is shown a series of magnificent and imposing sceneries and landscapes of South Africa, with rapids and waterfalls, whose large volume of water tumbles down in heavy masses, forming sprays of white foam which descend from the top of the rocks like a deluge, and seem to disappear at the bottom in a whirl of water of snow-white appearance.

314ft. The Subject, £5 4s. 8d. Toning, 15s. 0d.

LET US HURRY UP.

Code Word, "FEDERAL."

"Let us hurry up!" says Mr. Bunn, for an important business he has on hand will succeed if he arrives in London before three o'clock. Mr. Bunn does everything in order to be in town in time, but he is having a run of bad luck. All and every means of conveyance have disappointment in store for him, and he is at last stranded, and his whole family with him, in a sand quarry where he is engulfed, and his endeavours to free himself are very comical.

LAST WEEK'S NOVELTIES.

MY MA-IN-LAW BEATS THE RECORD.

Code Word, "FARINE."

A grocer has just been quarrelling with his mother-in-law, when a chauffeur stops at the door for a new supply of petroleum. Ma-in-law is very much interested in motor-cars. As she is sitting on the box to have a closer look at the machine, her son-in-law starts it, and the frightened women is in deadly fear of meeting with an accident. Well may she be afraid, for she runs at full speed and goes right through a picture, which two daubers have put up in the road, the better to look at it, then the automobile pulls down a wall and upsets a family party at dinner, &c., until finally ma-in-law stops at the goal of the Paris-New-York race, and the crowd gives her loud cheers.

280ft. The Subject, £4 13s. 4d.

THE MOHAWK'S REVENGE.

Code Word, "FASTE."

Two cowboys think it is real sport to kill with the butts of their rifles a poor little Mohawk who, out of sheer greediness, has taken a draught out of their spirit bottle. Before dying the poor little boy has had time to warn his tribe, and all the men set out to avenge him. Thanks to their marvellous patience and power of tracking they find the murderers, make them their prisoners, and smoke them out in a cave in the rocks. This is a horrible punishment, no more cruel, however, than the groundless murder of the poor child.

445ft. The Subject, £7 8s. 4d. Toning 15s. 0d.

JERUSALEM.

Code Word, "DEMENT."

Jerusalem is built on four mountains, thus forming four different quarters. One of them possesses St. Sepulchre's Church, around which numerous shopkeepers deal in all sorts of eatables, beads, and weapons, all to be found pell-mell in their more or less picturesque houses. Zion mountain is adorned with the "Tower of David," and forms the most desolate and deserted part of the town. Cactus plants and all kinds of undergrowth block the way; miserable-looking huts are scattered about, sheltering a population of lepers, which afford us a few vivid pictures. On another mountain are seen the remnants of the "Gate of Damascus" leading to Nazareth; the Grotto of Jeremiah, with its Wall of Lament, now used as a burying-ground. The film ends with a bird's-eye view of Jerusalem, showing the town surrounded by high walls formed of immense blocks of stones, which used to support the terraces of the Temple of Solomon, and flanked with embattled towers rising from the walls every hundred yards from one another. With her high-arched porticos, her minarets, and the terraces in front of the houses, Jerusalem looks like a glorious apparition of the City of Jehovah seemingly full of her own people, but on closer inspection one realises that it is only a magnificent sepulchre.

314ft. The Subject, £5 4s. 8d.

TWO NEW AND EFFECTIVE SONGS FOR PANTOMIMES.

"WHILE I SERVE THE KING."

Words and Music by Frank H. Crimp.
Two Verses.

1st Verse.

There was once a little boy, his mother's sweetest joy,
And his curly little head was crowned with gold;
He had eyes of deepest blue that would look you thro' and thro',
The dearest little lamb within the fold.
He had every kind of toy e'er invented for a boy,
And with his merry shouts the welkin rang;
But the greatest cause of fun was his soldier's cap and gun,
And as he marched around he sang:

I'm off to join the Army, Redcoats do not alarm me,
No one would ever harm me as this song I sing;
When I'm a little older no man shall e'er be bolder,
I'll be the flag's upholder, while I serve the King.

"BOTH ARMS."

A SOLDIER-SAILOR'S MARCHING SONG.
Words by Harold Begbie.
Music by Herbert E. Crimp.
Three Verses.

1st Verse.

Tramp! tramp! list to my song,
Soldier and sailor marching along,
One from the barrack and one from the ship,
Marching along with a swing from the hip;
Over the mountains and on thro' the plains,
Hark to the jingle of weapons and chains;
Storming the trenches and breaking the square,
Both Arms together—a thundering pair.

Refrain.

O the left you hold for hitting and the right you keep for guard,
And the left can leap out lusty and can slog almighty hard!
But there comes a time, my hearties, and the sailor isn't loth,
When you've got to sling two fists in, when you've got to slam with both.

Keys for high and low voices. 1s. 4d. each net.
Permission for performance at Theatres and Music Halls must be obtained from the Publishers.

THERE can be little doubt that the whole profession should have this Edition of the great dramatist's works, arranged as it has been by the greatest Shakespearean actor of modern times, in conjunction with Mr. Frank A. Marshall; with extensive Notes and Introductions by Joseph Knight, O. F. Adams, H. A. Evans, P. L. Round, Dr. Richard Garnett, A. Symons, W. J. Rolfe, A. Wilson Verity, Canon Beeching, P. A. Daniel, and Prof. Edward Dowden.

The Edition has many features to recommend it, which here can merely be touched upon: "Shakespeare as a Playwright" by Sir H. Irving, "An Appreciation of Sir Henry Irving" from the pen of Bram Stoker, "Shakespeare's Country" contributed by Jerome Harrison, being, perhaps, the most important. Whilst the text is given unmutilated, un-Bowdlerized, Sir Henry has specially marked those portions which can, in his judgment, best be omitted in dramatic presentation.

The books have been specially illustrated by celebrated artists and each has a coloured frontispiece.

Send 6/- to-day, and complete edition in 14 volumes will be despatched, carriage paid; nine monthly payments of a similar sum and one payment of 3/- will complete the purchase.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERDARE.—New Theatre.—Proprietors, the Aberdare, Public Hall, Theatre, and Billposting Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews; Acting-Manager, Mr. B. Richards.—Miss Inez Howard's company is here this week, with Her Love Against the World. Mr. Leonard Yorke gave an earnest and manly portrayal as Eric; Miss Margaret Savill adorns the part of Princess Iris, acting with grace and emotion; Mr. Henry C. Cooper well sustained the rôle of Prince Ulric; and Miss Josie Beltram depicts Nello with much ability. Mr. Chas. A. Baker is successful as Prince Maurice; while Mr. H. Gordon Ingram as Prince Othmar is convincing; and other parts are well sustained by the various members of the company.

ABERDEEN.—His Majesty's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Adair Nelson.—Messrs. Thompson and Courtneidge's adaptation of Tom Jones is the play this week. Miss Florence Smithson makes a sweet and charming Sophia; Miss Isabelle Dillon is a sprightly French maid; and Miss Alice Oppitz gives a strikingly effective portraiture of Lady Bellaston. Mr. Harry Welchman is an admirable Tom Jones, and Mr. Ambrose Manning's Squire is quite a triumph each evening. Mr. J. T. Macmillan is most amusing as Gregory; and Mr. John Morley is successful in the small part of the Squire. Much regret was caused by the fact that on Monday Mr. Dan Rolyat, who was suffering from a bad cold, which severely affected his throat, was obliged to retire at the end of the first act. His part of Blifil was capably taken by Mr. Walter T. Rignold.

Palace Theatre.—Lessees, The United County Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—Mr. Harry Roxbury and company present a delightful musical comedy, The Prince of Monte Carlo. The piece is magnificently staged, and it is acted with conspicuous skill. Miss Jean Macduff, the noted Scotch comedienne, is warmly encored; Cruikshank keeps the house genuinely amused all the time he is on the stage; Barney Vox is an entertaining and versatile ventriloquist; the Brothers Lang contribute a funny knockabout turn; Mr. H. O. Wills, comedian, earns applause; and the Cheers appear in a popular scena, Dick Whittington, which introduces a remarkably well-trained troupe of performing cats.

Alhambra Music Hall.—Proprietor, Mr John Sinclair; General-Manager, Mr. George B. Lee.—The programme this week is exceptionally bright and attractive. Among the best of the turns are those of Mr. Edward Stevens, a smart comedian and dancer; Miss Etta O'Hanlon, a vivacious comedienne and dancer; Mr. James Lamb, a fine tenor; and Gilroy and Gross, a pair of most resourceful and amusing burlesque artists; Mr. Lamb is also the soloist to the illustrated songs. Mr. Kennedy's display of cinematograms is well worth the seeing.

Empire Music Hall.—Managers, Messrs. R. Calder and L. Montague.—There is an exceptionally strong company here this week, including Scotch Criss, the well-known Scotch comedian; the Raymond Musical Quartet; Miss Marie Rose, the popular comedienne and dancer; Mr. Arthur Bright, topical vocalist; Mr. Archie Murray, coloured comedian; and Mr. James Montague, conjurer; Mr. Alexander Calder's cinematograph display is one of the most interesting features of the show.

ABERTILLERY.—Metropole Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. J. Seaborn.—The return visit of Mr. Harry Benet's talented company in the popular musical comedy Sergeant Brue was marked by success. Mr. Harry Benet maintains his high reputation by the masterly manner in which he sustained the part of Crookie Scrubbs; Miss Ray Anderson gave an artistic portrayal of Lady Bickenhall; the title-rôle found a clever exponent in Mr. Denis Lyndon; and Mr. Crank was acted by Mr. T. G. Warren in a pleasing and natural manner. The minor parts were excellently sustained by clever artists. The remainder of the week is taken up with the production of the new version of The Christian by Mr. Wentworth Croke's powerful company.

Pavilion.—Lessees, Messrs. E. and H. Tilney; Manager, Mr. E. Pryce.—The Piccolinis, the Lilliputian wonders, are an extraordinarily clever troupe of cyclists, acrobats, and wire walkers; Miss Beattie Benson is a dainty comedienne and dancer; Gala and Norris provide a pleasing musical sketch entitled Down South; the Three Langfords are a troupe of tricky dancers with songs and receive much appreciation; and Slippere, the blind entertainer, performs some clever feats on the piano. A pathetic sketch entitled The Spy is produced by Messrs. Ford and Webb's company, the artists showing great dramatic power; Mabella May is successful as a vocalist and dancer, and several excellent pictures are shown on the Bioscope

ACCRINGTON.—Prince's Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—Messrs. Alfred Northway and W. V. Garrod's company in A Country Girl in London was well received here on Monday. Mr. W. V. Garrod deserves high praise for his clever rendering of Frank Gordon; Godfrey Clinton is played by Mr. G. Moreton Williams with vigour and power; Mr. John S. Sheridan acts with earnestness as John Hamilton; Mr. E. W. Avery is genuinely humorous as Heinrich Oppenheim; and Mr. Seymour Perry as Wilberforce Puddyphat and Miss Lesley Adair as Adelaide both work hard to amuse; Marjorie Hamilton is a pleasing and accomplished effort by Miss Bertha Kingston; Miss Josephine Colona is a conspicuous success as the wayward Gwendoline.

ALDERSHOT. — Royal and Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Jack Gladwin.—Mr. Macdonald's company, in The Dairymaids, is on a return visit, but since the previous appearance some alterations have been made which have had the effect of adding, in no small measure, to the attractiveness of the performance, the clever introduction of specialities in dancing, vocal, and comic business further ensuring success. Mr. Dan Agar is one of the most versatile artists we have had the pleasure of seeing, and he again scores heavily as Joe; Mr. Richard Telford as Lieut. Sam Brudenell causes almost endless fun whilst on the stage with his quaint sayings and doings; Mr. Bernard Vaughan is capital as the Irish doctor, and he lends to the part an acceptable jovial personality; Miss Empsie Bowman's is a vivacious portrayal of Peggy, plenty of go and nimble dancing placing her rôle among the successes of the performance; Miss Nellie Bowman's Eliza is another well-played rôle, and with Mr. Telford she is encored again and again in the musical numbers; Miss Carrie Lacey gives a capable impersonation of Lady Brudenell; and Miss Lucy Edwin as the austere Penelope Prychace is excellent. Miss Vera Crichton as Winifred sings several numbers with ability. Mr. J. Scott Melville (Meredith), J. R. Mennill (Tim), Hugh Glendon (Brereton), and W. W. Westworth (Todgers) do well.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill, jun.—Mr. Wilson Benge's company is presenting here this week what is described as a picturesque domestic drama, called The Eve of Her Wedding. Mr. Benge as George Tremain is a prominent figure in the action; Miss Sadie Smith as Mavis Leverton invests the part with grace and sweetness; Misses E. Bartlett, Daisy Cook, and Amy Milstred win favour for their depiction of many feminine characteristics, especially forceful and able being the impersonation of Rene de Telle, an adventuress, by Miss Bartlett.

Empire Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H Broadhead and Son; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech.—Heading the bill is Edie Veno, described as an eccentric comedienne; Doyle and Massey are good cross-talkers; Ted Evans exhibits comicality; the Deuchars, duettists and dancers, are a good turn; and a unique electric cycle act, called Cyclumina, is a prime feature of the programme; the Musical Palmers are expert in a refined military and society entertainment; the Cameos win unbounded applause for clever feats; Douglas and Gordon, a Scottish comedy couple, are refreshing and entertaining; Beau and Belle present a new scena entitled Past and Present; Geo. Prince, crazy comedian, also wins favour; and "Western Justice" is shown in a series of pictures on the Bioscope.

Picturedrome.—Lessees, Messrs. Weisker Bros.—There is another attractive programme at the Picturedrome. Of the humorous cinematograph films submitted to good audiences we have this week The Economical Dinner, Mary is Dismissed, Tommy in the Country, and The Policeman's Dream.

ATTERCLIFFE.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manageress, Miss Ethel J. Hope.—Picture entertainments are still drawing crowded houses here. This week's series include Grandfather's Birthday, Catch Me if You Can, When Other Lips, An Expensive Duck, Our Village Marathon Race, The Wild Goose Chase, and The Showman's Daughter. Mr. Glanmore Jones is retained as vocalist.

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Bert Dent; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Harry Sanders.—The principal attraction of this week's programme here is furnished by Mephisto, who presents, with elaborate accessories, a number of original and surprising illusions, all of which are cleverly and smartly performed; adequate assistance is rendered by Miss Winifred Attondue. The Stowe Brothers are excellent in the head and hand balancing act; the Royal Temples are here again with their delightful vocalism; a pleasing comedy act is given by Mint and Mart, the lady member doing some clever paper tearing; plenty of fun is furnished by the sketch Uncle Obadiah, by Mr. Charles Dixton and his company; and good items of the bill are Mr. Fred Casburn, comedian; Miss Phyllis Seymour, pleasing vocalist and dancer; Mr. Dick Bradley, trick cyclist; and the Attergraph pictures.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS. — Royalty Theatre and Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. Stone.—Mr. Stephen Pritt's company is presenting his domestic drama His Wife No Longer here this week. Mr. D. McFarlane gives an excellent presentation of the Rev. Frank Willacy, a man of broad sympathies; the character of Anthony Merivale is a very strong one, and is played with much power and ability by Mr. Clavering Craig; Miss Rosa Mervin as Mrs. Merivale is very sympathetic, and played the emotional parts to perfection; Mr. Ernest Percival's Tommy Oglethorp is a dude of the first water. The remainder of the cast is in excellent hands.

His Majesty's Theatre.—Under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge Mr. Percy Hutchison's company is paying a very welcome return here with Peter's Mother. In the title-rôle Miss Violet Ley proves herself a talented actress, and achieves a great success. Mr. Townsend Whitting is thoroughly capable in the part of Sir Timothy Crewys, Bart.; Mr. Vivian Gilbert's Peter is a capital presentation; Mr. Eille Norwood displays considerable ability as John Crewys, Q.C.; and the remainder of the cast leaves nothing to be desired.

Tivoli.—Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edgar G. Laban.—Carter's Ten Dixie Girls are the top of the bill here this week in a capital scena entitled The Silver Coon, and they had a capital reception, Miss May Carter being loudly applauded; J. W. Churchill is an exceedingly clever comedian, and convulsed his audience with his quaint sayings; Lilly Black is a very pleasing vocalist; Renot's impersonations of well-known comedians are capital; Leslie Talmage is a clever comedy juggler; and De Ora gives an exceptional trapeze act.

New Hippodrome. — Owners and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—Some capital pictures are to be been here this week, and good houses are the rule.

BARRY DOCK.—New Theatre and Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Brogden.—Messrs. Travis Green and Arthur Hinton's company in Home, Sweet Home played to a capital house here on Monday. Mr. Arthur Hinton acted with telling effect the part of Stephen Armitage; Miss Lydia André as Joan is all that can be desired; Mr. David Beattie does well as Lucas Lyle; as David Armytage Mr. Fred G. Kay acts with telling effect; and real fun is caused by the light comedy acting of Mr. Victor G. Millard as the Hon. Percy; Miss Laura Wright as Sybil Fay is well received; Mr. Frank Brunell ably portrays the part of Dick Redmayne; Mr. Charles Clifford is a typical Duke of Ancaster; Miss Kitty Collinson works hard in the double parts of Gaffer and Lady Summerton; and Miss Hilda Vokes deserves special notice as Dora.

BATH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—The Moody-Manners B company are fulfilling their annual autumn season here this week, commencing on Monday with Madame Butterfly, which, not having previously been staged locally, aroused a good deal of interest. The leading principals were Miss Enriqueta Crichton, Mr. Charles Carter, and Mr. Marshall Vincent, each of whom added materially to their reputations as excellent vocalists of operatic music. On Tuesday The Daughter of the Regiment was put on, in which Miss Rosina Beynon, Miss Jessie Browning, Mr. John Child, and Mr. William Anderson sustained the chief rôles. The Bohemian Girl, Carmen, Tannhäuser, and Faust, with matinées of Il Trovatore and Madame Butterfly have also been given. A feature of this company is the splendid chorus and orchestra, numbering over seventy, and their share in the various operas has been greatly appreciated. The conductor of the present tour is Mr. Cuthbert Hawley, who keeps the forces under him in splendid control.

Palace Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Charles Schuberth.—A capital bill is submitted this week, in which Ross and Grayson, in the comedy act, "Piano Playing Extraordinary," score a conspicuous success; Elroy, the armless wonder, comes in for a great reception for his really wonderful doings with his feet; Charles Tupper, the champion horn blower, deserves all the compliments that are showered upon his playing; Burns and Bentley, styled the premier dancing team, prove their title; an attractive turn is that of the Five Broadway Girls, singers and dancers; Marion Fletcher returns to charm her hearers with some excellent ballad singing; Raymond's Bio-Tableaux, as usual, are worth witnessing, and always give a good deal of amusement to old and young alike. Wright's orchestra maintains its position for a couple of well-rendered selections.

BATLEY.—Theatre.—Proprietors, Mr. and Mrs. J. Edward Whitty; Manager, Mr. Alfred A. Taylor.—A capital house on Monday gave a hearty reception to Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levy and J. E. Cardwell's company in the musical comedy in two acts, A Merry Maid. Mr. Vivian Wakeman as Larry O'Hooligan, Mr. Neil Hardy as the Hon. Cecil Toft, Master Wee George Wood as Bertie Vere de Vere, and Miss May Gibson as Peggy O'Hooligan are all capable, the singing of the latter winning well-deserved applause.

BEDFORD.—Royal County Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—A number of Bedford's talented amateurs are this week occupying the stage at the above, and on the opening night a large and fashionable audience witnessed with evident satisfaction the trial scene from The Merchant of Venice and Cecil Clay's comedy, A Pantomime Rehearsal, the proceeds to be devoted to the relief of the poor in Bedford.

BELFAST.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—On Monday Mr. Terry and company commenced a six nights' engagement here in Fiander's Widow. Mr. Terry gained an instantaneous success as Isaac Sharpe. No finer conception, in fact, of the shrewd farmer could be imagined. Miss Edith Coleman deserves to be congratulated on her treatment of the rôle of Mrs. Fiander; Miss Sophie Lingwood's assumption of the village charwoman, Mrs. Belbin, was good; and Mr. Edmund Hollick was certainly convincing as Richard Marshall. Mr. Kenneth Brampton was all that could be desired as Sam Belbin; and winsome impersonations of the two dairymaids, Susan and Betty, were furnished by Miss Evelyn Ormonde and Miss Ella Dixon. The Telephone, a comedietta in one act, was a most attractive curtain-raiser. On Tuesday Sweet Lavender was presented; and during the week Liberty Hall, Kerry, and The Magistrate have been given.

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. A. Salmond.—Garland and Douglas provide the leading turn here with their exceedingly smart musical mélange, A Trip to Coontown. Creo Brothers appear in their acrobatic scena, The Gypsies, which has scored a big success; and Miss Maidie Scott, a refined comedienne, is the happy possessor of some good songs which she knows how to sing; Mr. C. is paying a return visit; and a pleasing return visit is being paid by Miss Maud Courtney, the American girl. Also appearing are the Brothers Durant, with their burlesque aeroplane; Vandinoff, lightning painter; Mr. Charles Ulrick, the barrel king; and the Palace pictures.

Royal Hippodrome.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Fred Willmott and Will Sley; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—The chief attraction here is provided by Mr. James Callahan and Miss Jennie St. George, who appear with the greatest success in their Irish character sketch The Old Neighbourhood. Leslie Brothers return with their clever eccentric musical act; and Mr. Leo Dryden fully upholds his reputation as a vocal character-actor. The Two Lillies appear to advantage in their novel mirror dance; and roars of laughter greet Sandy McNab and company, who produce their novel and funny sketch The Egyptian Mummy. Also appearing are Miss Anna Kenwick, comedienne and dancer; Mr. Frank Dunlop, comedian; Charters and Clare, comedians; and the Hipposcope.

Empire Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John A. Walker.—The top of the bill here is occupied by Billy Howard and Kathryn Harris in The Adventures of a Happy Tramp; Mr. Bert Williams is one of the best ventriloquists that has been seen here for some time; and a good reception has been accorded Happy Tom Parker, eccentric comedian. Excellence is shown by the Cumberlands in their acrobatic cycling act; and the fine voice of Miss Lilian Lowe has been heard to advantage. Miss Connie Mascot, a charming comedienne and dancer, pleases all; Mr. Arthur Royce, although billed, does not appear; but, by kind permission of Messrs. Warden, Ltd., Miss Maud Courtney came over on Monday from the Palace, and at once installed herself a firm favourite with some capital stories. The Bioscope, under the direction of Mr. McGibney, exhibits a fine series of pictures entitled A Trip to Rome.

New Alhambra Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Will White.—Another fine programme has been submitted by the popular manager, Mr. Will White, the series of pictures presented including the great Irish drama Shamus O'Brien, The Incendiary Foreman (a great picture), An Attractive Catch, Cat's Revenge, A Sinner, &c. In addition, Edwards and Ward, duettists and dancers, appear with success; also Mr. Leo King, who in song and story made a big hit on Monday.

St. George's Hall.—General-Manager, Mr. Robert Wilson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred L. Arthur.—The series of pictures presented here under the direction of Mr. Hugh Beckett is really beautiful. This week's programme includes Mr. Hayseed's Bargain, The Tempter, Doctor's Experiment, The Perjurer, Angelo, &c. In addition, Miss Edith Moore, a fine vocalist, appears with much success; also the famous Irvings in their wonderful mental telepathy. With characteristic enterprise Mr. Fred L. Arthur, the popular manager, intends introducing on Monday next a comic singing competition, which is certain to be a pronounced success.

BILSTON.—New Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. John M. Dawson.—On Monday Mr. Allan Wilkie and company appeared in Othello, and the excellent reputation which this talented actor has won for himself on previous visits here received fresh lustre on this occasion. His interpretation of the character of the Moor was very fine indeed. The Iago of Mr. Alexander Marsh was really excellent; Miss Haidee Gun was very successful as Desdemona, and her efforts were highly appreciated. Others who contributed largely to the general success were Mr. Frank Royde (Cassio), Mr. Ina Fleming (Roderigo), Miss Kily O'Dempsey (Bianca), and Miss Mildred Surrey (Emilia). Other pieces presented during the week were Romeo and Juliet, Hamlet, Julius Cæsar, The Sleigh Bells, David Garrick, and Macbeth.

BIRKENHEAD.—New Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant; Secretary, Miss Isabel Grant.—Messrs. Dudley Bennett and T. C. Wray's company is here in the musical comedy, The Catch of the Season. Miss Gladys Guy is a charming Angela; Mr. Charles Hanbury both histrionically and vocally acquits himself admirably as the Duke of St. Jermyn's; Mr. H. C. Barry plays Isaac Isaacstein with much humour and acceptance; Master Peter Grata scores heavily in the rôle of Bucket; Mr. William Gibson is admirably played by Mr. Geoffrey Berwick; the important part of Lady Caterham is splendidly enacted by Miss Grace Hampton; Miss Alice Hamilton as Lady Crystal, Miss Barry Eldon and Miss Kate Robertson as her daughters appear to decided advantage; Miss Claire De Vere is well suited as the Duchess. Other characters are likewise well sustained, and the comedy is lavishly produced. The full chorus and orchestra are under the direction of Mr. Ed. Petersen.

Argyle Theatre of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—An enjoyable programme is supported by Mr. Fred Karno's troupe of comedians in Mumming Birds, a sketch which always goes well here; the Waldrons, in The Silly Burglar, are repeating previous successes, as also is Miss Dora Lyric, whose vocal effusions are well received; Miss Winifred Ward, a male impersonator of exceptional ability, has made an unmistakable hit, and Crome and Hamilton in an act entitled Artful Aladdin are general favourites. Brady and Johnson, the comedy team, Miss Rosie Reval, comedienne and dancer, Mr. Fred Curran, a capital comedian, Mr. Fred Barnes, light comedian, and Brown's Royal Bioscope complete the company.

BIRMINGHAM.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—A White Man is drawing very well here, with Mr. Herbert Sleath and Miss Ellis Jeffreys and company. Mr. Sleath's portrayal of Captain Jim, the White Man, is very acceptable, especially in the third act, when he quite

"fetches" the house; Mr. Harold Weston plays well as the Earl; Mr. George Fawcett is in great favour as Big Bill; Mr. Menifee Johnstone is ready and clever as the truculent Cash Hawkins; Miss Dorothy Dix as Nat-u-rich acts with natural charm, and endears herself much to the audience; Mr. A. S. Aspland acts with the natural dignity of the Indian Chief; Mr. Jack Ellis displays an appropriately bluff spirit as the Sheriff; Miss Emma Gwynne enacts the part of the Dowager Lady Therhill capably; and Miss Ellis Jeffreys as the Countess shows real feeling and a sympathy that wins great applause.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—Man and Superman, performed by the Vedrenne-Barker company, commenced the week's fare on Monday, since when, The Convict on the Hearth and Arms and the Man have been played. On Monday Mr. Granville Barker's admirable study of John Tanner kept the audience laughing and applauding alternately all the night; Miss Francis Dillon acted the part of Ann with a full sense of its possibilities, coming out in the last scene with a fine piece of acting; Mr. Michael Sherbrooke makes much of the rôle of Roebuck Ramsden; Mr. Richard Haigh as Straker acts in a clever vein of humour; Miss Auriol Lee portrays the worldly-wise Violet Robinson admirably; and Messrs. Fredk. Lloyd, Jas. Hearn, and the Misses Wetherall and Rous are very excellent.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. T. Guest.—Two Little Sailor Boys is passing a welcome stay here, with Mr. W. H. Hallatt's company. Miss Blanche Steele in her character of Lola Grey shows what good acting can do to win an audience over; Mr. H. E. Herbert gets a good reception as Noel Tregarthen; Mr. Horace Booth scores well as Richard Redstone; Mr. H. M. Clifford creates great interest as Capt. Tom Yorke; Miss Muriel Deane has a pleasing, sympathetic style as Mildred Grey; and the Misses Effie D. Crawford and Ivy Millais act the parts of Cyril Grey and Tom Yorke (the two little sailor boys) with remarkable aptitude. Mr. Fred Acton proves an admirable humorist as Jack Jolly, and the Misses Lily Nicholls and Lizzie Chambers support well.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—Hands Across the Sea has made a most successful appearance here, with Mr. Cecil A. Collins and company. Mr. Collins is seen in the rôle of Jack Dudley, his manly way of acting the part being much admired; Mr. Adam Alexander acts with quiet force as Joseph Stillwood; and the son, Robert, is ably impersonated by Mr. C. Clifton Boyne; Mr. Forrester Harvey does every justice to the rôle of Tom Bassett; Mr. Frank Woodville is decidedly good as Dick Melford; Miss Beatrice Whitney devotes much care and study, obviously, to the part of Lillian Melford; Miss Lilla Nordon is successful as Lucy Nettleford; and the other parts are equally well played.

CARLTON THEATRE, SALTLEY.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—Miss Florence Glossop-Harris, daughter of the late Sir Augustus Harris, is starring here in a round of Shakespearean characters. The performances are under the patronage of the Hon. and Rev. James Adderley, vicar of Saltley, and the audiences have been large as well as fashionable. Romeo and Juliet on Monday furnished Miss Harris as the latter with some good opportunities, of which she availed herself well. Mr. Arthur Goodsell played Romeo in an approved fashion, and Mr. Frank Cellier made a notable Mercutio; Mr. Francis Roberts, Mr. Laurence Toole, Mr. J. Cassells Cobb, Mr. Horace Sinclair, Miss Madge Courtney, and Miss Janet Warden afforded some excellent support. The Merchant of Venice, Hamlet, As You Like It, Twelfth Night, and the Drury Lane success, The Royal Oak, have been included in the répertoire.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Lake.—The Sailor's Wedding has proved an all-powerful attraction here, and Messrs. Hardie and Von Leer's company are received with extreme favour. Mr. C. W. Standing makes a brave-looking and chivalrous Gordon Drake; Mr. Cecil Klein acts in an easy and yet ready style as his friend, Sir Victor; Mr. Cole Aspinall is an able representative of the Count; Mr. Hodgson Taylor enacts the villain's rôle, Giovanni Ferici, with full effect; and Mr. Finch Smiles plays his part as Giacomo well. Miss Laura Hansen's acting as the Countess is marked with both dignity and feeling; Miss Dulcie Greetwich acts the daughter, Mary, in a very charming manner; Miss Winifred Pearson has all the air of the adventuress, Lenore de Gresac; and the comedy of Mr. Walter Pemberton as Jack Hawkins and Miss M. Sadie as Polly Clarke is very good and funny.

PALACE THEATRE, BORDESLEY.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Goodwin Woodward.—The Girl Who Wrecked His Home is making its attractions felt here this week, big "houses" having applauded Mr. Walter Melville's production and company throughout the week. Miss Louise Hampton has established herself well with her poignant portrayal of Bertha Marshall; Mr. Fred Goddard's impersonation of Jack Marshall has many fine qualities, all of which go straight home to the audience; Mr. Paul Barry Lewers plays the rôle of the deceiver, Leonard Kenyon, in a powerful manner; Mr. Will L. Clement as the disreputable Crockett shines as heretofore; Miss Georgie De Lara endows the part of Val Raymond with much distinction; Mr. Francis Hope creates good diversion as Tommy Biffin; and the others do very well.

BISHOP AUCKLAND. — EDEN THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. Huntley.—This week Mr. Frank Lindo and company (including Miss Marion Wakeford) are here in Home, Sweet Home. Mr. Lindo is very successful as Stephen Armitage; Mr. Helsby Wright gives a good account of himself as Lucas Lyle; Mr. D. Lawrance Doyle (David Armitage), Mr. Archer Brown (Duke of Ancaster), Mr. Norton Shields (the Hon. Percy), and Mr. Richard Walsh (Dick Redmayne) display ability. Miss Wakeford is really charming, and gives a fine rendering of the part of Joan; little Miss Hilda Jackaway is excellent in the part of Dora, and as Sybil Fay Miss Maud Leslie-Cudd is capital. Mr. Tom Lewis is well received in his "Bones" speciality.

BLACKPOOL.—HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—The Adventure of a Lady Typist is the title of the work submitted here this week by Mr. H. F. Maltby and company. Mr. Maltby assumes with considerable skill the rôle of Robert Jones, whilst Miss Mara Maltby very creditably plays the part of Ernestine Kershaw; the Rev. Stanley Kershaw finds a capable exponent in Mr. Bromber Wills, and Tommy Kershaw is carefully embodied by Mr. Norman H. Tracy; Miss Florence Wynn is very successful as Miss Butler, and Mr. Arthur Claremont merits commendation for his portrayal of Leslie Parkington.

GRAND THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. T. Sergenson; Responsible Tenant and Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Hunter.—The temporary conversion of this well-known home of the legitimate into a variety house with two shows a night has aroused great interest, and so far has met with success. Joe Elvin tops this week's bill, which also includes Troba, the juggler; May Lilian Levey, a very popular character comedienne; Morrisey, a clever musical equilibrist; Edwin Gath, an excellent comedian; the Toreadors, burlesque artists; the Comedy Chanters, comical vocalists; Kahn and Kahn in a second-sight and magical act; and Dunning, the well-known ventriloquist.

HIPPODROME.—Manageress, Mrs. Fioni.—The International Pictures continue to be the principal attraction here. The variety artists engaged here this week are the Dunlops, trick cyclists; Lilian Sivado, a very clever lady gymnast; and the Travanic Troupe of vocalists and dancers.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Geo. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—First comes Bransby Williams, who is right bang on the top of his form, and when that said greater praise there cannot be; then come the Griffiths Brothers, the irresistible mirth provokers, in a comical wrestling act; the Dardinis are wonderful comedy jugglers, and Henry Helme is a vocalist in the very front rank; Florence Esdaile is also a charming singer, whilst Mollie Seymour excels as a comedienne and violinist; Michel Brothers, gladiatorial athletes, Hubert Carter and company in a condensation of David Garrick, and George Phillips, comedian and dancer, are also well received. Vernon's Imperial Bioscope continues to show all the latest and best pictures.

BLYTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur C. Moody.—Under Two Flags is again being successfully presented by Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company. In the principal parts of Bertie Cecil Royellieu and Cigarette Mr. Austin Milroy and Miss Agnes Verity are the recipients of hearty applause, good support being rendered by the remaining members of the company.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. Tom Doyle.—The variety attractions here are supplied by the Three Markies, sketch artists; Mollie Malone, Irish comedienne; Grace Darling, in illustrated song; Andy Fagan, comedian; and the Bioscope.

BOLTON. — THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Moncur.—Mr. Hall Caine's play The Prodigal Son is being performed here this week by Mr. George D. Day's company. The company is headed by Miss Pauline Emeric, who plays the parts of Thora and Elin. In the former character her acting is marked by much tenderness and feeling, and in the latter she presents a delightfully girlish picture. Mr. Albert Ward takes the part of Oscar Stephensson, and expresses the varying emotions of the prodigal son with considerable histrionic art; the domesticated brother, Magnus Stephensson, is portrayed with power by Mr. H. J. Crane; the Doctor Olsen of Mr. J. E. Savery is a good performance; Mr. H. J. Williams is well suited as the Pastor; and Mr. R. C. Brooksmith appears successfully as the Sheriff. Miss Pearla Gardner gives a spirited study of the rôle of Helga Neilsen. Good work is also done by Miss Florence Lovell as Anna Magnusson, and Miss Kate Osborne as Margaret Neilsen.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—A welcome return visit of the Drury Lane pantomime favourite, Neil Kenyon, Scotch comedian, is being made this week. Frank Cumminger, sand dancer; Mabel Hind, a Bolton favourite comedienne; the Hodginis, in their novel revolving ladder act; Edith Muir and Herbert Barlett and company in a tabloid comedy, The Collar Stud; Arthur Slater, the whistling man in white; Lily Hayes, comedienne and dancer; Jack North, peculiar comedian; the Two Anartos, musical comedians; and the Imperial Bioscope are other attractions.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves; General-Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. R. Harrison.—The "star" turn here is Gertie Gitana, a clever artist, whose songs went splendidly, and for which her audiences gave her many recalls. Other turns are Jack Dawe, comedian; the Godfreys (Didie and Kate), black and white musical comedietta artists; McAskel, comedy conjurer; Mlle. Yetta, who appears in a refined wire speciality act; Frank Coyle, quaint comedian; Johnny Fuller, a smart performer on the wire; Nancy Renshaw, negro comedienne and bone soloist; O'Connor and Brady, a pair of amusing comedians, and the Bioscope.

BOURNEMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietors, David Allen and Sons; Sole Lessee, Mr. Mouillot; Manager, Mr. Hubert Dunbar.—Miss Lena Ashwell's principal company in Diana of Dobson's opened here on Monday to an appreciative house. Miss Dorothy Green well deserved the applause she got for her charming rendering of Diana. Her scene in the third act with Captain Bretherton, well played by Mr. Grendon Bentley, was splendidly done; Miss Mary Stuart was natural and convincing as Mrs. Cantelupe, while Mr. Alfred Harris, though inclined to overdo it, played the part of Sir Jasper Grindly remarkably well. Other capital performances came from the Misses Molly Tremaine, Kate Turner, Nannie Hume, Eva Leonard Boyne, Helen Vicary, Georgette de Serville, and Mr. Albert Wainwright. The Bishop's Candlesticks preceded the comedy.

BRADFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—Mr. George Edwardes's company is here with The Merry Widow. Miss Constance Drever, who sings and acts charmingly, fills the rôle of Sonia; and Miss Ethel Cadman is the able representative of Natalie. As Baron Popoff Mr. Eric Thorne is as funny as ever; and Mr. Leonard Mackay acts with much spirit and sings finely as Prince Danilo.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Councillor F. Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—Lucky Durham is here this week, played by Messrs. Armitage and Leigh's company. The title part is ably sustained by Mr. S. Humber; as Lord Mountfallon Mr. T. Renaud Lockwood is very good; Mr. Leigh is commendable as Reginald Steighton; Mr. John Hartt is effective as Tasker; Miss Alice Esther Belmore represents Helen Vallerton very charmingly; and Miss Beatrice Sinclair as Durham's mother is impressive.

THE EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—Horace Goldin, illusionist, assisted by Jeanne Fransioli, is here this week astounding all with his inexplicable tricks; and that funny quartette the Gothams are the recipients of hearty applause; Sidney Stern's well-sung song, "Redwing" is prettily illustrated; the Frank L. Gregory troupe give an expert and novel exhibition of hoop-rolling and juggling; in their sketch, Military Mad, Ralph and Nellie Howard combine humour with good cornet playing; A Sure Thing is a diverting sketch presented by Helen Lee and William Bentley; Adey Spencer as "The Girl from the Hat Shop" is good as a pianiste, and she dances well; Kisbey, "the call boy," is responsible for some entertaining patter and droll character sketches; and some very entertaining pictures are shown by the Bioscope.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Harrison.—Haley's Prize Juveniles are filling the place of honour here this week, and their entertainment includes excellent dancing and some capital vocalism and variety business; Rose Sartella is a good vocalist and a charming comedienne; Rich and Radford are entertaining comedians; smart roller skating and good comedy are supplied by the Miltons; Cestria is a clever acrobat and a very funny comedy juggler; as head and hand balancers the Babusio Brothers are exceedingly smart; the Two Kays do a charming vocal and protean sketch, The Cuckoo; the Arntes, South Carolina duettists, submit a turn combining broad comedy and good dancing; and Raymond's Bio-tableaux are particularly interesting.

BRIGHOUSE.—ALBERT THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Beanland and Emerson; Manager, Mr. Chas. H. Beanland.—A crowded house on Monday thoroughly enjoyed the capital bill of fare. At the head of affairs is Harry Reynolds' Minstrel Troupe, who recall pleasant memories of the old nigger business. They are fine vocalists with splendid concerted numbers, nimble dancers, and good humorists. Miss Effie White executes kaleidoscope dances with grace; the Zedoras are a couple of clever lady gymnasts; Tom Joy is a favourite with all parts of the house; Sarah Barnes has a cultured soprano voice, and is loudly encored for "Love me and the world is mine"; the Sauteron Wonders in a jumping act are well received; Maston's imitations of birds, dogs, sheep, and other animals are realistic; Eugene and Willie are a smart pair of tumblers and balancers, as well as clever violinists; the Brothers Hannaway amuse all with song, dance, and funny patter; and animated pictures by the Loyal Dominion Company complete a most enjoyable programme.

BRIGHTON. — GRAND THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ben Court.—Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and James Willard's company is here this week with The Girl with the Angel Face, largely founded on the recent Druce mystery. Miss Florrie Green gives a skilful enactment of Angel Leigh; Miss Phyllis Dailley imparts great sympathetic charm to her representation of Ena Wentworth; Mr. Fred G. Evison gives a good character study as Jasper Death; Miss Mildred Carr is highly successful as Mollie Maitland; Mr. Austin Mortimer's Stephen Arkwright is well played; Mr. Dobell Lyle makes a popular Rev. Gordon Cross; Mr. H. Naylor Grimston submits an effective embodiment of Sir John Wentworth; and others meriting praise include Mr. Dicky Bird as Jim Bates and Mr. Forbes Leighton as Matthew Cripps. The drama is admirably staged and mounted.

ALHAMBRA.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. Ernest Lepard.—Ernest Shand, comedian, achieves distinct success; Ian Colquhoun gives his baritone songs in good style; Pipifax and Panlo are a pair of eccentric and original comedy acrobats; the Brothers Brooks, comedians, afford unbounded fun; Rubie and Elsie Redfern sing and dance themselves into favour; Ouida Macdermott is a pleasing vocal actress; the Sisters Brand, dainty dancers and singers, are well received; Fred Hallam is a praiseworthy comedian; and the Alhambrascope pictures are interesting and amusing.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr. B. J. Brown.—George Hackenschmidt's wrestling bouts are warmly appreciated; Princess Trixie, the celebrated educated horse, performs some surprising and interesting feats; Harry Taft is a capital comedian and siffleur; Jack and Evelyn, old favourites, are clever entertainers; Frank Hartley, boy juggler, is cordailly applauded; Diana Hope and company present the society episode, Her Good Name, with success; Henri Bekker, comedy juggler, submits a good turn, assisted by Mlle. Maie; Fioretti and Elby are distinctly skilful in their barrel and spade jumping act; Dora Brooklyn is a pleasing comedienne; and the Barrascope pictures are excellent.

WEST PIER.—Secretary, Mr. A. W. Scholey.—Mr. Alfred West's naval and military animated picture entertainment is a great attraction here this week. Life in our Army and Navy is depicted in realistic style; the Quebec Tercentenary is admirably illustrated; the manœuvres in Hampshire, our Army in India, the doings of the Territorial Army; the King's inspection of the Duke of York's Royal Military School on Empire Day, and Haddon Hall are replete with interest, and other films are of a humorous character.

PALACE PIER.—Miss Lydia Donovan and company opened here on Monday with Niobe. Miss Lydia Donovan was charming in her enactment of the title-rôle; Mr. C. Quinton Fulford imparted much humour to his representation of Peter Amos Dunn; Mr. Frank Lennard was very successful as Cornelius Griffin; Mr. Alfred G. Raymond was thoroughly suited as Philip Innings; Miss Louie Walton made an aggressive and forcible Helen Griffin; Miss Maudie Lambert was a pleasing Hattie Griffin; and the remaining characters were ably sustained.

COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs. M. Barrasford.—The animated pictures exhibited here this week are interesting and amusing. A Woman's Fight for Honour, the Sicilian's Revenge, and A Jilted Woman's Revenge, and Poor Doggie convey powerfully effective stories; and great fun is afforded by The Shoemaker's Luck, The Virtuous Young Man, The Energetic Woman, Anything for a Drink, and A Night Alarm. Mr. Arthur W. Briggs merits warm praise for his highly descriptive pianoforte accompaniments to the pictures.

BRISTOL.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Benson commenced a week's engagement here on Monday last, when The Merchant of Venice was performed. Mr. Benson presented a scholarly and convincing exposition of Shylock; and Mrs. Benson was pleasing in every way as Portia, her speech in the Trial scene being most effectively delivered. Mr. Murray Carrington acted well as Antonio; Mr. Baliol Holloway was happily placed as Bassanio; Mr. F. G. Worlock made an interesting Lorenzo; Mr. G. R. Weir scored a success as Launcelot Gobbo; Miss Bright Morris was pleasing as Jessica; and the remaining parts were all in competent hands. On Tuesday evening A Midsummer Night's Dream was staged admirably. Mr. Benson played Lysander in excellent style; Mrs. Benson was charming as Titania; Mr. G. R. Weir was inimitable as Bottom; Miss Leah Hanman presented a clever exposition of Puck, her dancing being warmly applauded; Mr. Murray Carrington acted in clever and picturesque style as Oberon; Mr. F. G. Worlock did well as Demetrius; Miss Helen Haye acted effectively as Hermia, as also did Miss Olive Noble as Helena. The remaining parts were all carefully taken by other members of the company. Mendelssohn's music was well played by an augmented orchestra, under the able direction of Mr. G. R. Chapman; the chorus was effective, and about fifty local children, trained by Miss Leah Hanman, did admirable work in the way of evolutions, &c., as fairies. Henry V. is billed for Thursday's matinée.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. C. Alty.—The interesting drama An Unwedded Wife is attracting good houses. Miss Ethel Van Praag presents a very fine and impressive exposition of Marian; Mr. J. Edward Whitty is amusing as Police Constable O'Runyin; Mr. Charles Stirling displays considerable power as Philip Blackstone; Mr. George Daiper acts in fine manly style as Frank Hawthorne; Mr. J. A. Grove makes the most of Martin Hallett; and the comic parts of Caraway Crumpet, Napoleon Boomer, and Kit are capitally taken by Miss J. Gillette, Mr. Will Casey, and Mr. R. W. Bedford. The play is staged in a very effective manner.

PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Treasurer, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—Violet Hope, a graceful dancer, is packing the house. The series of classical dances include Mendelssohn's "Spring Song," "Salome," and "Cleopatra," all attractive and cleverly executed, a live snake, said to measure 9ft., being used in the latter dance. Tom Costello scores with a pretty vocal scena A Colonial's Vision of Home; Bruce Green, comedian, has a good dame's song; Kelly and Ashby do a good act, Fun in a Billiard Saloon; Edith St. Clare is a pleasing comedienne; Charles Frazer and company successfully present an interesting speciality The Enchanted Iona; Takio, Japanese mimic of sounds, obtains applause; and the performance concludes with animated pictures.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sid Macaire.—John Henderson and company are successfully presenting a fine North-West Canadian dramatic sketch, Amid Northern Lights, the sketch being well staged and capitally played by Miss Millie Henderson, Messrs. John Henderson, Frank C. Mason, Philip Durham, T. C. Mayne, and Leonard Lorraine. Arthur Croxon, mimetic vocalist, does a good turn; Maude Haile, comedienne and dancer, is successful; Chris Baker, comedian, obtains applause; Luis Hardt does an excellent strong show; Hetty Lee, comedienne and dancer, is attractive; the Harvard sextette of vocalists and dancers deserve commendation; May Clarke has a nice voice, and is pleasing as a choral vocalist; and Griffin and Ardell are exceptionally expert and amusing as eccentric acrobats. The performance concludes with animated pictures.

COLSTON HALL.—This is the last week of Ralph Pringle's animated pictures, the chief attraction being a fine representation of The Life of Christ. There is an excellent choir, and Mr. George Riseley, the eminent Bristol organist, contributes his valuable services at the grand organ.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA THEATRE, LTD.—Manager and Licensee, Mr. J. Fred Watson.—Another musical comedy (after a short interval) is here this week in the shape of Mr. Popple of Ippleton, and a splendid house on Monday welcomed Mr. Chas. Macdona, who ably sustained the title-rôle. Miss Nellie Hodson was a delightful La Bolero; Miss May Hart cleverly plays Louise; Mr. Louis Du Cane as Norman Popple, Mr. Nap Barry as George Henney, Mr. James Stephenson as Henry Doring each did excellent work. There were many evidences by the audience of the pleasure they experienced at the singing of the principals, and also of the pleasing choruses and dances. The chorus and orchestra were under the direction of Mr. George Jenkinson. The scenery was beautiful and the dresses were gorgeous.

BURNLEY.—VICTORIA OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—A well-filled house on Monday here welcomed the appearance of Mr. Seymour Hicks's company in The Gay Gordons. The audience was as appreciative as it was large, and the result was a distinct success. Miss Maie Ash is bright and sparkling in the rôle of Peggy Quainton, and Mr. Frank Lincoln as Angus is particularly pleasing, and is responsible for many laughs; Mr. Tom Graves is irresistibly funny as Nervy Nat, and Mr. Edward Nainby is good as Edmund; Charlotte Siddons is a very humorous character in the hands of Miss Ida Laurie, and Miss Nellie Lonnel is captivating as Victoria Siddons; Mr. Edward Beecher is convincing as Andrew Quainton; and the excellent chorus is under the capable directorship of Mr. Leonard Leslie.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—The Dayton Family in "Le Rendezvous" perform bewildering risley, pyramidal, and acrobatic feats. A capital turn is that of the De Breans, whose excellent shadowgraphy is a striking feature of their performance; Cline and Clark, black and white comedy artists, are loudly applauded, and O'Mara and Molly with cross-talk, patter, and dancing, meet with warm recognition; the Four Elwyns in their vocal act depicting colliers in a mine are loudly applauded, and Fred Dunstone, comedian, keeps the audience in humorous vein; Miss Mildred Bryan, mezzo-soprano vocalist, is heard to advantage, and Carl and Carr, in A Drawing-room Interlude, are very funny. The Story Told by Boots by the Empire Theatrescope is a laughable series.

PALACE THEATRE AND HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Julius Simpson.—The principal attraction here is a beauty and hair competition, for which valuable prizes are offered. There is a good muster of competitors and the voting is very keen. Frank Long, champion ju-jitsu wrestler of Great Britain, and Miss Omoyo San exhibit and explain some of the most powerful holds and tricks, which prove highly interesting; Carl and Mary Ohm's animal circus is a collection of clever animals, who perform with precision, and Stidder and Dunbar, musical comedy artists, are very good; Happy Attwood is successful in "I'd rather remain as I am"; a good musical turn is Steve Bartle on concertina, and Keith and Merton in The Hunt, indulge in comical cross-talk; Miss Florence Schubert sings pleasingly; and Raymond's Bio-tableaux shows the comedy of Monte and his Motor.

BURTON-ON-TRENT.—NEW THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. de Hague Body.—Mr. Fred Karno's company in Saturday to Monday is appearing here for the week. John Willie Jaggs is comically represented by Mr. Gilbert Childs; and as Mr. Potts Mr. Harry Fischer is in evidence in the most comical situations. Tom Freeman and Alphonse de Gagge, in the hands of Mr. Victor mith and Mr. C. Allendale, are well portrayed; Miss Julia Bassett shows ability as Clarinda Dobbs; and Miss Ada Maskell is very funny as Belinda Dobbs. Miss Mary Young, an actress of ability, shines as Violet Perrin, and sings sweetly. Other parts are well placed.

BURY (Lancs.).—THEATRE ROYAL AND PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Calling; Assistant-Acting-Manager, Mr. H. H. Potter.—A capital audience gave a hearty welcome to Mr. W. W. Kelly's company in The New East Lynne on Monday evening. Mr. Richard Nugent is genuinely funny in the rôle of Murty O'Flynn, and receives a splendid reception. As Lady Isabel, Miss Beth Elliott capitally portrays the varying phases of the part. Mr. Frederick Harker plays with much ability as Archibald Carlyle; Miss Sophy Shenton scores as Cornelia Carlyle; and the dual rôles of Aby Hallijohn and Joice Hallijohn are ably portrayed by Miss Guinevere Shilton. Mr. W. H. Garbois gives evidence of careful study as Francis Levison; as Richard Hare, Mr. Laurence Stevenson is talented; and Miss Josephine Gwinne is well suited in the part of Barbara Hare. The smaller parts are all well depicted by Messrs. Talbot, William Lorne, Byron Pedley, V. Barker; Misses Doris Denville, Una Wright, Flora Maybank, and Millie Dray.

CIRCUS OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant-Acting-Manager, Mr. H. H. Potter.—A welcome return visit is paid by Charlene and Charlene (Lily and Charles). The former gives a marvellous rendering of "Poet and peasant" overture on the xylophone, and the latter is an extremely smart juggler. Herbert Clayton, the man with a wonderful voice, gives a most enjoyable turn; Belle and Greta dance cleverly, and their singing is also much appreciated; Harris and Worth are highly entertaining patter comedians; and Walter Sutton's laughing songs are distinctly clever. Other good turns include Will B. Stopit, comedian; Millie Howell, singer of descriptive songs; and Lillie Hales, vocalist and dancer. This week's Ottograph pictures are good.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thomas Baker.—Kadie Furman, "the jolly little Dutch girl," proves herself to be a very capable mimic and dancer. In a gymnastic display and feats of strength Ajax and George provide an excellent turn; Herr Karoli Czynski is a clever musician, introducing the cymbalon and xylophone; O'Malley and Brown, patter comedians, Swift Duo, in a cycling act, George Hall, whistler, Ida Barr, burlesque actress, and Edwin Adeler, comedian, all contribute to the evening's enjoyment. Uncle's Picnic, on the Bioscope, causes much laughter.

BURY ST. EDMUNDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—General-Manager, Mr. Auguste A. Peuleve.—Mr. Robert Macdonald's company in The Dairymaids drew crowded houses on the last three nights of last week. Mr. Norman V. Norman and Miss Beatrice Wilson came here on Monday in The Adventure of Lady Ursula. Mr. Norman's portrayal of Sir George Sylvester adds to the list of fine performances he has given on these boards; Mr. Alfred Gray is well placed as the Earl of Hassenden; Mr. Sam Wilkinson is eminently successful as the Rev. Mr. Blimboe; and minor rôles are well sustained by Mr. R. P. Lambe, Mr. Norman Leslie, and Mr. P. Pimpernel. Miss Beatrice Wilson creates an excellent impression as Lady Ursula; Miss V. Malcolm Barnett is a pleasing Dorothy Fenton, and the Mrs. Fenton of Miss Ethel Coleridge is satisfactory. The Swashbuckler is also billed.

CAMBRIDGE. — NEW THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L. — The D'Oyly Carte Répertoire Company is here. On Monday The Mikado was presented. Mr. Fred Billington as Booh Bah is as stately and as funny as ever; Mr. Charles R. Walenn is received with delight as Ko-Ko; Nanki-Poo is safe in the hands of Mr Strafford Mop; Mr. Lester Tunks's part of the Mikado suits him admirably; Pish-Tush and Go-To are faithfully rendered by Messrs. Sidney Granville and Fred Drawater; Miss Clara Dow makes an ideal Yum-Yum, her cultivated voice being heard to advantage; Miss Ethel Morris as Katisha is very effective; Miss Beatrice Meredith as Pitti-Sing and Miss Mabel Graham as Peep-Bo are delightful.

CARDIFF.—NEW THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford.—Mr. Frank Curzon's company is here in My Mimosa Maid. The company is a very powerful one, and includes Miss Marie Studholme in a bewitching portrayal of Paulette. Quite as successful is Mr. Charles McNaughton as Victor Guilbert; Mr. Charles E. Paton gives a droll interpretation of Max Guilbert; Miss Eva Sandford makes a pretty Popitte; Miss Ruby Gray achieves exceptional success as Marcelle; and Miss May Garstang is seen in a delightful exposition of Mme. de Pilaine. As M. Gerard, Mr. Percy Carr is in the right place; and Capt. Louis du Laurier has in Mr. John H. Goldsworthy an imposing exponent; while the remarkably clever juvenile impersonation of Bock by Master Archie McCaig has been quite the talk of Cardiff.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. S. Dring.—Much interest has been centred this week in the appearance of Miss Evie Greene at the head of the Empire programme here; a breezy, laughable sketch, The Cuckoo, is rendered in first-class manner by Chas. Kitts and Rhoda Windrum; Parker and Parr, in their vocal act "Taffy and the Toff," put the house in good humour; Florence and Lillian have a charming and clever instrumental performance; Cliff Ryland is irresistibly funny with his droll remarks; and the Martineks give a novel act entitled The Rag Doll. Bessie Slaughter, contralto, Horace Jones, Welsh comedian, Ernest Clifford, and the Bioscope are other attractions.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Under the Management of Mr. Rollo Balmain.—The boards are occupied this week by The Diver's Luck, which is presented by Andrew Melville and company. As Martin Faber, Mr. Harry Cullenford presents a realistic impersonation, the villainies of Tom Hall are carefully portrayed by Mr. William J. Miller; Mr. Fred Scarth gives a dignified representation of Maurice Wyngate; Mr. Kendrew Milsom's Pedro is a piece of good acting; and a charming delineation of Helen Wyngate is submitted by Miss Dora Pass. Mr. Fred A. Marston and Miss Pearl Noyle are droll in the comedy of the piece.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Burton.—The Case of Coiners is presented this week, with Miss Carlotta De Yonson as Annette Coure and Mr. C. Douglas Carlile as Blake. Another successful number is the smart performance of Harrigan and Holt; Ethel Sheffer's illustrated songs are nicely rendered; Fritz Von Liston proves most entertaining with his whistling and mimicry; and Julian Ross, the light comedian, does some capital work. Others on the programme are the Lecardo Bros., comedy acrobats; and Leo and Roland, equilibrists and hand-balancers. Raymond's Bio-tableaux are interesting.

CARLISLE.—H.M. THEATRE.—Lessees, Mr. Thos. Courtice and Mrs. R. Stewart M'Kim.—Mr. Montague Beaudyn's company, in the romantic drama, Send Him Victorious, drew a large audience on Monday. The piece is well put on, and the principal characters are well played. Of these Mr. William Allington as the hero, Mr. Jerrold E. Reed as Colonel Kaufmann, Miss Marion Robson and Miss Isabelle Hunt were chiefly conspicuous.

THE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. F. Morgan.—Albert Bellman and Lottie Moore, who top the bill this week, in their clever and quite original act, described as "A Bit of Vaudeville," give an interesting and popular performance, and thoroughly deserve the warm applause greeting their efforts. A shadowgraph show by Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Wilde, is deftly worked; Ruby Bijou repeats her favourite bare-foot dance; a miniature vocalist, Baby Vi Davis, acts and sings with confidence and ability; Ryan and Hall, on a return visit, are funnier than ever; Nash and Noel are also to the fore as laughter provokers; and as cycling experts the Sisters Warwick display skill and nerve. The Pepiscope has some fine pictures.

CASTLEFORD.—ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Cr. Hy. Masterman, J.P.—Mr. Harry Foxwell and company, in A Broken Heart, are here on a second visit. Miss Shella Walsh, as Mary Barnard is very sympathetic, her graceful manner and clear enunciation being highly appreciated; Mr. Stanley Bedwell is cast for the blacksmith, John Barnard, and his manly style fits him well for the character, which he plays in a telling manner; Mr. Frank Eaglesfield is cool and collected as Stephen Raylton, and makes just the sort of villain the "gods" love; Mr. Will Lindsay as Tony Tibbets supplies the comic element most successfully, together with Miss Dora Hargreaves, who plays with much vivacity as Sally Tavner. Miss Marguerite Thorne supplies a clever portrait of Mrs. Barnard; while Miss Daisy Rocheford shows much promise, and is pleasing and natural as Little May; Miss Eileen Bandford gains admiration for a capital impersonation of Grace; and Miss Ethel Grey makes the most of her part as Mrs. Kellet. Mr. Edward Rawlinson is good as Gash Gills; and Skrimp finds a clever exponent in Mr. George Addison. Mr. Harrison Tate and Chas. Grant are good in their respective parts.

QUEEN'S THEATRE OF VARIETIES. — Proprietors, Messrs. Chas. Beanland and W. H. Emerson; General-Manager, Mr. Will H. Emerson.—The Enrico Martialto Trio top the bill, and are making a huge success in their sensational juggling and balancing act, which includes a horse and trap; the Bros. Obvas, laughing comedians and patterers, give a brisk and whimsical turn, which compels laughter, without having a suspicion of vulgarity; George Antill, as a comedian and legmania artist, scores well-deserved applause; Miss Lilian Travellie's songs are rendered sweetly, and in a charming manner; the Sisters Terry are a graceful couple, and their duets and mimicry win warm appreciation; Gus Hindell, assisted by a number of local boys, in a song scena, appears with much success; warm praise is accorded Mueller and Coyne for their clever comic acrobatic novelty; Sam Dalton is also in popular favour as a vocal comedian; some beautifully coloured and humorous pictures by the Loyal Dominion Company conclude an enjoyable evening's entertainment.

CHATHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, Messrs. C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lionel Barnard.—The Royal's patrons had a great treat on Tuesday afternoon, in the shape of a flying visit by Mr. Cyril Maude and the Playhouse company in Toddles. There was an excellent audience, and Mr. Maude, in the title-rôle kept the house in laughter from the rise to the fall of the curtain. Loyal support was rendered by a well-chosen company, and the general staging of the comedy was most complete. The attraction for the week is the sensational drama, A Sailor's Sweetheart, which is being performed by Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company, with Mr. Blow in the character of Lieut. Clive, R.N.

BARNARD'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard.—Harry Pleon is creating roars of laughter here with his songs, and a nautical piece of foolery, entitled Interviewing the Lifeboatman; Messrs. W. A. Haines and Allan Borthwick and company are repeating their success with the original farcical sketch, Half a Dollar; Devon and Earle dance together with marked precision; the Lizette Troupe are nimble acrobats; Conn and Conrad show considerable daring in their speciality, The Quiet Burglars; Molly Augarde, comedienne, the Sisters McCalla, vocalists and dancers, and pictures by Lacey's Erascope complete the bill of fare.

GAIETY THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Capt. H. E. Davis; Manager, Mr. F. Warden-Reed.—Fred Ginnett's sporting sketch, The Hunting Morn, tops the bill here, and is proving very popular; Valvero's Naval Bombardment is another acceptable item; Flo. d'Orville's low comedy songs and burlesque dances go well; Will MacIvor contributes some very pleasing ballads in easy style; Tess Lilley, comedienne, the Korries, in a varied musical scena, and Charles Lilburn, comedian, are in the bill, a leading item of which is the Edisonograph.

CHESTER. — ROYALTY THEATRE. — Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. B. Fountaine.—Mr. Leonard Boyne's company in Raffles appears here this week and is playing to large and delighted audiences. Mr. Boyne's impersonation of the amateur cracksman is worthy to rank as one of his greatest rôles; Mr. E. W. Thomas as Curtis Bedford, the Yankee detective, plays his part to perfection, and the portrayal of Harry Manders by Mr. Harold West is full of quiet effectiveness; Mr. B. Clair as Crawshay is realistic, and Mr. C. Brymer's Lord Crowley is a humorous delineation of a dude; Mr. A. Willoughby as the Earl of Amersteth is sympathetic and stately; Messrs. H. Allen, H. Perry, and R. Barbour represent Goldby, Merton, and Barraclough, and do justice to their respective parts; Miss Blanka Stewart as Lady Melrose sustains her rôle with becoming grace, and Miss Beatrice Fitzgerald's Lady Ethel is praiseworthy; Miss Lillian Hallows' Mrs. Vidal is an admirable study of a charming adventuress, and as Gwendoline Couran Miss Hilda Moore plays the heroine with great spirit and charm; the part of Marie is creditably interpreted by Miss D. Gordon.

CHORLEY (LANCS.).—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. G. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Santé.—Sexton Blake, Detective, is being presented here by a capital company under the able management of Mr. Alfred H. Grahame. The cast includes Mr. H. Hunter, whose particularly fine study of Sexton Blake was enthusiastically received; Tinker is capitally played by Mr. Billy Ross; Randolph Lovell being excellently rendered by Mr. Charles East. Mr. John M. East is decidedly successful as Simon Faggis; Mr. Algernon Syms is good as the Rev. Edward Gray; and Mr. William Fenton gives a fine rendering of Roger Blackburn. Miss East Robertson gives an artistic rendering of Philadelphia Kate; Miss Lily Hammersley charmingly presents Marjorie Lovell; and Miss Lena Delphine is vivacious as Euphemia Pattacake. Pedro is a particularly well-trained animal.

COLCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Chas. Macdona; Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. Graham Macdona.—Messrs. Matthew H. Glenville and Fred Osmond's company in The Still Alarm opened a six nights' engagement here on Monday. The proprietors of the company figure respectively as Jack Manley and Doc Wilber with much success; Mr. Gerald Kennedy takes the heavy part in worthy style; Miss H. Zillwood and Miss Beatrice Shirley are prominent as Cad and Elinor; and the numerous minor parts are taken in good style.

HIPPODROME.—Joint Proprietors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. Jack de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben de Frece.—At the top of the bill this week is Sam Mayo, whose reception is a particularly flattering one; Tom Stuart in his impersonations is well received; Dick Kendall returns with old favourites; Mina Green, burlesque actress, is heard to advantage; Elfie Vincent, comedienne and dancer, is charming; Hugo and Schmidt, comedy bar performers, are clever; and Celest, bâton manipulator and slack wire equilibrist, scores a great success.

CORK.—PALACE THEATRE, LTD. — Manager, Mr. Thomas F. O'Brien.—The leading turn is provided by a troupe of vocalists and dancers, who style themselves the Xentrix in "The Garden of Terpsichore," and give a pot-pourri of singing and dancing; Johnnie Walker proved himself a diverting comic singer; the eccentric comedy acrobats Deans and Wilton evoked hearty laughter; Hewson's Æolians sang and danced well; Max Sterling, illusionist, gave a finished exhibition; the rifle shooting by Langslow, assisted by two ladies, was greatly admired; Will Hebden, comedian, appeared to marked advantage; and the Robertys, equilibrists and jugglers, won hearty appreciation. The Palascope Pictures were very enjoyable.

CRADLEY HEATH.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jno. H. Morton.—Mr. and Mrs. Eustace Day's company is here with For Love of a Woman. Miss May Day undertakes the part of Nance Manor in a way that carries her audience with her; Mr. Jerrold Ord as Ned Merrick gives a very pleasing study; Mr. Frederick Garratt makes a first-rate Guy Manor; Mr. Eustace Day as Allen Paget gives a piece of acting above the average; Mr. Leonard J. Harrison as Albert St. Evremond causes much amusement; Miss Nellie de Lacy is excellent in her impersonation of Nell Paget; Miss Eva St. Vincent is quite at home as Jane Manor; Mr. Charles Ninian as Major Hulmes and Miss Bella Victoria as Marjory Hulmes are very commendable; Mr. Fred Ramsdale deserves special mention for his able performance as Sam Holland; Mr. Ernest Yandel is capital as Tom Jones; and Mr. Brook Leicester justifies his selection for the rôle of the Warder.

CREWE.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. G. Dudley Bennett; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. Howard.—Messrs. Levy and Cardwell's juvenile pantomime company in The House that Jack Built is here. Miss Dolly Dodds is a bright and winsome Jill; Miss Daisy Wood a dashing Jack; Miss J. Marsden a capable Gretchen; Miss Jennie Hughes plays well as Twinkle Star; Miss Gladys Wyse is seen to advantage as Wee M'Gregor; Miss E. Major is well placed as Colin; and Miss O. Purcell is good as Tommy Tucker. As Aunt Purdy Mr. Jimmie Watson causes endless amusement, and is well supported by Graham and Barron as Scraggs and Scraggles.

CROYDON. — GRAND THEATRE. — Manager, Mr. Roland Daniel; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Archer.—Messrs. Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's company is here in The Prince and the Beggar Maid Miss Annie Saker deserves cordial congratulations for her artistic impersonation of Monica; Miss Isla Garnet-Vayne makes an enchanting Viola; and Miss Dido Drake shows high histrionic abilities as Camiola. Mr. Ivan Cleveland acts with precision as Prince Hildred; Mr. Graeme Campbell's assumption of Prince Michael has many good points; Mr. Herbert Ford submits a fine, scholarly performance as Prince Olaf; Mr. Edmund Lea is quite satisfactory as Colonel Wellenberg; Mr. J. E. Gardner is efficient as Nathan; Mr. Francis Hawley is impressive in the rôle of the Bishop of Illyria; Mr. D. Lewin Mannering has a real grip of the character of Captain Hector; and Mr. Kendal Chalmers is seen to advantage as Lieut. Karl Stromberg. The drama is splendidly mounted.

HIPPODROME AND NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Osmond.—Miss Winifred Chalmers's company in The Master Criminal is the attraction here this week. Mr. J. C. Carlyle plays the part of Telford Lestage with considerable force; Mr. Edward Avenal is a good representative of Philip Manners; Mr. Elmore Frith gives a fine impersonation of Ben Beaudy; Mr. Chas. Tolcher capably fills the rôle of Gentleman Jim; Mr. Harry Cooke as Tommy Dale proves himself an excellent comedian; and Mr. B. Hacking is well placed as Mr. Manners. Miss Violet Lytton makes the most of Mabel Manners; Miss Frances Trevelyan gives a pretty portrayal of Wilfred Manners; Miss Mabel Tremere very ably maintains the part of Peggy Perks; and Miss Winifred Chalmers, who plays Cecile, is an actress of talent.

DARLINGTON.—THEATRE ROYAL—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Bell; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hal Cummings.—Mr. R. A. Roberts' company in Straight from the Shoulder is here under the management of Mr. Charles Boult. Mr. Mathew Boulton as Dr. Francis Bedford submits a capital study; Mr. Leonard Clarke in the heavy part of David Gleeson gives a finished performance; Mr. Fred Beck as Jim Green humorously presents the character; Miss Beatrice Burdett is charming in the part of Millicent Grant; Miss Francis Bruce's clever work as Mary Gleeson is highly appreciated; Miss Edie Casson as Miss Brittle gives an agreeable embodiment; Miss Beatrice Moore plays with great spirit as Gladys Brittle; and the remaining characters are well filled by Mr. Cuthbert Dennison, Mr. Franklin McAvory, and Mr. George Fisher.

NEW HIPPODROME, LTD.—Managing-Director, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Hersee.—King and Benson's singing is excellent and their comedy effective; Jenette Hall, the lady baritone, is a capital singer, and won loud applause; Mr. J. W. Rowley goes as strong as ever; and other good turns are Fred Horsfall, comedian; J. A. Wilson and his dog; the Athlones, athletes; the Pepiscope Pictures; and Jimmy Shields, one-legged comedian and dancer.

DARWEN.—PUBLIC HALL, PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Lessees, Messrs. Thomson, Leivers, and Bennett; Manager, Mr. J. E. Thomson; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. Kerrigan.—Henriette and Selina top the bill in their clever vocal and instrumental turn; Carrie Bowles is a smart comedienne and dancer; the Zanonis (Lily and Harry) give some excellent juggling and club throwing; and Bert Boden causes roars of laughter with his quaintness. The pictures on the Bioscope are well up to the usual high standard.

DERBY.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Charles Denley.—Mr. James Welch's company are paying a welcome return visit with When Knights were Bold. The Sir Guy de Vere of Mr. Henry J. Ford is an exceedingly capable assumption, and Miss Bruce Joy, who plays Rowena, is as gracious as she is charming. Mr. Vernon Sansbury repeats his success as Isaacson; Mr. Cecil Clayton is capital as Widdicombe; Pottlebury has a clever exponent in Mr. William Lockhart; Ballymote is well played by Mr. George Rowlands; Mr. Talbot Homewood is successful as Wittle; and Mr. Reginald Hunter is equally good as Barker. Miss Phyllis Back figures most acceptably as Miss Isaacson, and Mr. Herbert Ranson is praiseworthy as Harold. The Misses Violet Garham, Gretchen Yates, Adrienne Yates, Bessie Walters, and Ethel Royale also merit special mention in their respective parts.

PALACE. — Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes.—The attraction here this week are the Selbinis, a remarkably clever troupe of trick cyclists, whose novel feats gain all-round approval. Johnny Holland and company, who produce their farcical absurdity My Friend Boots, are as successful as ever; the Alskarno Trio are both neat and smart in their comedy Risley act; Walter Barrett, baritone vocalist, is responsible for several capitally rendered songs, and gains a hearty reception; Alice Melton is a promising child mimic, and gives some good impersonations of well-known music hall artists; Harley and Melton are entertaining comedians and dancers; and Harry Cotton scores well as an eccentric comedian. The Bioscope concludes with an interesting picture.

DEVONPORT.—THEATRE METROPOLE.—Manager, Mr. G. S. King.—Mr. Wentworth Croke's company in The Bondman is doing excellent business here. Mr. R. Scrope Quentin as Jason is excellent; Mr. W. H. Rotherham in the dual part of Father Ferrati and the grandfather creates a most favourable impression, and Mr. Lionel Atwill as Michael Sunlocks proves himself an actor of ability. Miss Gertrude Helene as Mona, Miss Emilie Mayhew as Christian Ann, and Miss Madge Lanerton as Mrs. Fairbrother aid the success.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. Herbert Taylor.—The first position on the bill is allocated to Wilkie Bard's company in a diverting number; Enzer, late of H.M. Army, furnishes a sword display which is watched with critical eyes by the large contingent of service men with whom the "Hip" is prime favourite; Miss Clarice entertains with an interesting exposition of the art of ju-jitsu, and C. M. Daly's company in a sketch entitled I Must Have It tickle the risible faculties of the audience. Zeta Russell is a graceful and fascinating comedienne, Sandy and Carl supply an amusing burlesque on boxing, and A. G. Spry is a down-to-date and original comedian. Charles Wilson concludes the bill.

DONCASTER.—GRAND THEATRE AND EMPIRE.—Manager, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—The week has been devoted to variety. The Sisters Belmoir, comediennes and dancers, give a sparkling contribution; George Young, blind musician, is a valuable asset to the combination; Thora, ventriloquist, is clever; For the Honour of the Family, a sketch by Arthur Alexder and company, is well presented; Rose d'Aulby, chorus vocalist, is dainty; Maurin's marvellous fountains are a splendid kaleidoscopic triumph; and Will Dalton, popular comedian, radiated a goodly proportion of the burlesque element.

DOUGLAS.—THE EMPIRE THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Charles Dare; Resident-Manager, Mr. Rex. Sugden.—The animated pictures displayed this week are much appreciated. Among other films are The Marathon Race and Whaling in the Irish Sea. Mr. Charles Coll, a versatile light comedian, has smart patter, and his efforts are well rewarded.

DUBLIN.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mrs. Michael Gunn; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Chas. Hyland.—The Carl Rosa Opera Company commenced on Monday a fortnight's season here. Carmen, the opening selection, was under the conductorship of Mr. Walter Van Noorden, and an exceedingly good performance was given. Miss Doris Woodall in the title-rôle was charming, her singing throughout being irreproachable; Mr. Charles Victor was highly successful as Escamillo; a distinct hit was made by Miss Bessie Cartwright as Michaela; Mr. Edward Davies' fine voice proved of immense advantage as Don José; Mercedes was satisfactorily filled by Miss Christine Ritz; and Messrs. Frederick Clendon and William O'Connor as Remendado and Dancairo were both excellent. Miss Annie Walker was all that could be desired as Frasquita, and Mr. Alexander Richard was capital as Zuniga. Cavalleria Rusticana, Faust, Rigoletto, Il Trovatore, The Bohemian Girl, and Lohengrin are also billed.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Parrington.—Mrs. Patrick Campbell and company occupy the boards here this week, and on Monday night The Thunderbolt was presented. Mrs. Patrick Campbell achieved success with her artistic and powerfully effective impersonation of Phyllis Mortimore; Mr. Julian Royce played with marked ability as Thaddeus; Mr. Murray Carson scored a popular success as James Mortimore; and as Mrs. Ann Mortimore Miss Florence Farr was capital. Mr. J. D. Beveridge did every justice to the character of Mr. Elkin; and Miss Stella Patrick Campbell exercised much charm as Helen Thornhill, Mr. Edgar Kent being also particularly good as Stephen Mortimore. Louisa Mortimore was well enacted by Miss Florence Kahn; Mr. Nigel Playfair handled the part of Colonel Ponting with credit; and Miss Florence Wells was excellent as Rose Ponting.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. W. S. Pearce; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. Hereford Jones.—Good houses and a popular programme are the order of the day here. The pictures include Monte Cristo, The King of the Cannibal Islands, Farman's Aeroplane, The Colonel's Story, How the Masher was Mashed, The Two Guides, Got a Penny Stamp? At the Cross Roads of Life, &c. The variety turns are Terris and Bewlay, comedians and whistlers, in a refined comedy act, entitled No Flowers; and Bob Pearson, humorist and guide.

EMPIRE. — General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. George H. Marsh.—Topping a good bill of fare, C. and F. Renad and company in the laughter-provoking sketch The Swiss Express win hearty and unstinted applause. Another entertaining turn is submitted by Verno and Voyce, the popular singing comedians; and a capital comedy act is presented by Kent and Keith (Julia and Alex). Terry and Tate, duettists and dancers, are eminently successful; the Cromwells in a novel and clever juggling act are deservedly applauded; Dion Wade is an excellent impersonator of popular variety artists; Alfred Warder provides a capital musical and vocal entertainment; Fred Lincoln is an acceptable comedian; and Films, Ltd., show some up-to-date pictures.

TIVOLI.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Secretary, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—Harry Tate's No. 1 Company in the amusing sketch Fishing is the principal item of the programme here. France and Stewart in their racing comedy act A 100 to 1 Chance score a success; Miss Kitty Colyer's catchy chorus songs evoke hearty applause; Charles F. Best, the comedy mountebank, is humorous; Onda and Artell give a clever gymnastic act; Brayne and Lloyd in a diverting sketch entitled The Tree of Truth are well received; Cling and Claney are smart comedians and dancers; Bert Lytton, comedian, makes a hit; and Athalan, hand-balancer, and the Bioscope complete.

WORLD'S FAIR AND MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. C. A. James.—The change of programme here this week includes the Millars, refined comedy artists; Queenie Vane, speciality dancers; George Millard, comedian; Ada Brogden, soprano vocalist; Harry Hewett, ventriloquist; and the Cinematograph.

DUDLEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. Tilley.—The first apearance of Sunday has created quite a sensation here, and Miss Ethel Ward in the title-rôle has captivated all hearts. Mr. Penington Gush as Colonel Brinthorpe acts in a highly polished style; Mr. Norman Walter as Tom Oxley is an actor of sterling ability; the four pards at Silver Creek—Towzer, Davy, Lively, and Jacky—are realistically represented by Messrs. James Skea, Cotton Holmes, James Hussey, and Alec Alves; and Miss Helen G. Edwins acts the chaperon, Mrs. Naresby, in a charmingly cultivated manner.

DUNDEE.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Manager, Mr. Louis Karpe.—The Beloved Vagabond made a favourable impression here on Monday evening, when it was presented by Mr. Fredk. Mouillot's excellent No. 1 company. Mr. Arthur Royston played the rôle of Paragot in a thoroughly artistic manner; as the Comte de Verneuil Mr. Warburton Gamble looked and acted the part to perfection; Lord Rushworth was admirably presented by Mr. Alfred Drayton; Mr. Ramsey Macbeth appeared to advantage as Asticot; the Curé of Mr. Howard Leslie was another delightful study; Miss Kathleen Harrington acted prettily as Joanna; Miss Nita Faydon as Blanquette was sympathetic; and Misses Edith Hunter and Ruby Wyndham as Lady Rushworth and Mme. la Blanc respectively were both excellent. Miss Hettie Kenyon displayed ability in her rendering of Louisette.

PALACE THEATRE. — Lessees, the United County Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. S. McIntosh.—Maud Mortimer is at the head of affairs here, and this versatile artist has to respond to repeated encores nightly. Eadie and Ramsden, the musical comedy duo, present an entertainment bristling with cleverness; Tom and Marie Motramo in their drawing-room sketch Do You Reverse? prove as popular as ever; while that rattling good comedy sketch House Full, presented by Damerell and Rutland, thoroughly merits the reception accorded to it. The turn of Godfrey James, the singing collier, calls forth enthusiastic applause; Bert Danson greatly amuses the audience by his funny ways and comic songs; Beaty and Blanche, duettists, contribute a pleasing turn; Marie Neilson proves a capable exponent of dancing; Lieut. Travis, the man of many voices, gives a remarkably clever entertainment; and the Bioscope adds interest to an excellent programme.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. A. P. Williams; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—Mr. Geoffrey Fulton's company occupies the boards here with A Girl Redeemed from Sin. Nancy Lee is presented capably by Miss Olive Fulton; Mr. Joe Monkhouse as Will May has force and pathos; and Miss Fanny Olive as Mrs. Lee and Mr. John G. Tomlinson as Samuel Lee contribute good character studies. Variety interludes are provided by the New Macs, comedians, and the Sisters Borelle, duettists and dancers.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. A. P. Williams; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—Another remarkably good programme is given this week, the films including Picturesque Holland, The Heart of a Gipsy, A Comic Duel, The Tramp's Cycling Mania, Love's Way, When Breakers Roar, and The Warriors and the Pickets. The varieties include Harry King, who makes a big hit.

DURHAM.—ASSEMBLY ROOMS THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. T. Rushworth.—On Wednesday we had a return visit of Mr. Harry Starr and his company, and Otto the Outcast was given. Mr. Harry Starr is all that could be desired as Otto; Mr. Alvin Sawyer plays his part well as Auguste Canotte; Roderique d'Estalier is ably portrayed by Mr. Will Hee; Miss Madge Blundell gives an excellent rendering of the part of La Spirituelle; Miss J. Hackett is good as Susette; and Miss K. Norris is efficient as Lara.

EASTBOURNE. — PIER PAVILION. — Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—During the week Mr. Charles E. Bowmaker's company is appearing here in The Education of Elizabeth. Miss Blanche Lynd as Blanche Macyntyre sings capitally and acts with spirit; Miss Winifred Ingham as Elizabeth is able and effective; Miss T. Russel Spiers is an interesting and refined Lucy Middleton, and Miss May Norris a bright, pleasing Lily. Mr. Bert Morley is a success as Harry Fairfax, Mr. Ernest E. Norris is commendably prominent as Hankey, Mr. Fred Castleman does excellent work as Mr. Whitby, and the smaller parts are well played.

DEVONSHIRE PARK THEATRE.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Murray, King, and Clark.—Mr. W. W. Kelly's company was here for the first half of the week in A Royal Divorce. Miss Margaret Watson was sympathetic as the ill-fated Josephine; Miss Minnie Tempest did well as Marie Louise; Miss Maud Lacy, full of sparkle and vivacity, was an excellent Stephanie; Miss Nellie Lucas was a proficient Blanche; Miss Violet Hudson a satisfactory Angelique; Miss Loyale Frere a gentle, pleasing governess, and Miss Ethel Love plays prettily as the little King of Rome. Mr. Keith Fraser as Napoleon is impressive; Mr. Percy H. Vernon makes the part of Talleyrand prominent; Mr. W. T. Clifford displays vigour as Augereau, and Mr. George Hudson extracts much fun from the part of Grimaud.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sidney W. Winter; District-Manager, Mr. George Egbert; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Holloway. —At the head of the bill are Mr. Leonard Mortimer and company in a thrilling sketch Captain Cash, which is nicely staged, and in which Mr. Mortimer works hard and well; Lloyd and Lane have an amusing and interesting farce That's Torn It; Mr. George Ridgwell pays a welcome return visit as vocalist and cornet player; Miss Addie Adell has a nice voice, heard in Irish songs; Miss Norah Stockelle is a pleasing comedienne; Mr. Jock Campbell a funny comedian, and new interesting films are added.

ECCLES.—CROWN THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs W. H. Broadhead and Son; Manager, Mr. R. Andrews.—Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley, Travis Green, and Arthur Hinton's company is presenting The Power of a King. Mr. Gerald Blake plays strongly in the rôle of Captain Rupert Landgrave; Mr. Charles Whitlock makes an ideal King of Vallambrosa; Mr. Travis Green acquits himself well as Crown Prince Oscar; Mr. P. Morton Wright is a capable General Stenovie; Mr. Wilton Drury and Miss Grace Barton in the respective characters of Fritz Tarlheim and Margot create a lot of fun; Miss Leila Zillwood enacts the part of Lady Annastasia with ability; and Miss Georgina V. France is clever as Lady Florina.

EDINBURGH.—ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie.—Those fine artists and old favourites with Edinburgh audiences, Mr. and Mrs. Kendal, are filling an engagement of six nights here. Opening on Monday evening with The Elder Miss Blossom, Mrs. Kendal repeated her performance of the title-rôle, a part full of the subtle humour, sympathy, and tenderness which makes the character a notable one in the actress's long gallery of sweet and womanly portraits. Mr. Kendal, alert and easy as ever, was again admirable as Andrew Quick; Mr. Metcalfe Wood's impersonation of Withers was very droll; Mr. Bassett Roe was excellent as Major Twentyman; Mr. W. M. Rutherfurd did good work as Christopher Blossom, and that graceful, earnest actor Mr. T. Holding, made the most of the part of the Rev. Arthur Leacroft. Miss Jessica Thorne was charming and bright as Sophia; Mrs. A. B. Tapping gave point by her sound method to the character of Cooper, and Miss F. Noble as Mrs. Wells completed a capital cast. The Whirlpool was played on Tuesday to an enthusiastic house.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Whitehead. —Florodora, bright and sparkling, in spite of many visits, is being once more presented by Mr. J. Bannister Howard's No. 1 company to delighted audiences. Miss Marie Ellinger imparts by her charming appearance and cultured singing distinction to the part of Dolores; Miss Bessie Middleton is a singularly sweet representative of Angela Gilfain; and Miss Edith Housley is an attractive Lady Holyrood, and sings her topical song with immense spirit. That quaint comedian, Mr. Fred Eastman, is extremely droll as Tweedlepunch, and causes shouts of laughter by his humorous acting; Mr. H. V. Crofton, a conscientious actor, who is gifted with a most excellent voice, is an able Frank Abercoed; and amongst other members of an admirable company, mention must be made of Mr. Stanley White as Cyrus W. Gilfain and Mr. Herbert St. John as Captain Arthur Donegal.

KING'S THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Amand Mascard.—The programme here for the week has been an unusually popular one all round. Mr. R. A. Roberts, in his single-handed quick-change sketches, Dick Turpin and others, has almost excelled himself in the success of his many and rapid delineations, and his reception has been cordial in the extreme; Mooney and Holbein provide plenty of amusement with their comedy sketch; Mr. Henry Hallam and Miss Josephine Stanton are responsible for another lively scena; and Cosgrove and Burns succeed with a coon duet; Estrella dances neatly in several languages, so to speak; Miss Nelly Farrell also pleases her audience with her singing and dancing; Mr. Rudge Whitworth appears as a society entertainer; Mr. J. G. Aitken is favourably known among Scotch comedians; and Bioscope pictures complete.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Aynsley Cook.—A splendid programme, characterised by all-round excellence and diversity, is presented here this week. The Boissets in their well-known rollicking farce, The Bricklayers, evoke their customary meed of applause and laughter; Mr. George Bastow's character sketches are done with unusual skill; Carney and Armstrong have much clever business and fresh jokes in their turn; the Eight Lancashire Lads provide an enjoyable series of smartly executed dances, and Mr. Ben Albert contributes several admirably humorous songs; Mr. Albert Christian, a prince of ballad vocalists, imparts dramatic power to his songs, and his selections are loudly encoerd; Miss Kate Cohen, a charming singer, Miss Madge Osmond, male impersonator, the Crown Trio of vocalists, and Bioscope pictures complete the entertainment.

EXETER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr. Edward J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—That the visit of Mr. George Edwardes' company in The Merry Widow is a popular one was demonstrated on the opening night by the crowded and enthusiastic house. Miss Mysie Devine, who plays the widow with a most attractive presence, acts with charming grace; Mr. Frank Green's Prince Danilo is full of humour and spirit; Mr. Edward D'Arcy is comically funny as Baron Popoff; Mr. Fred Fowler, an old Exeter favourite, is an exceedingly funny Nisch, and Miss Ada Thomas a charming and vivacious Natalie.

FARNWORTH.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. T. Morton Powell.—We are this week being favoured with a visit from Messrs. Glenville and Osmond's company in A Soldier of France. Mr. Percy Ballard as Corporal Jean acts throughout in a most praiseworthy manner; Mr. Percy Guyon as Judas Delara proves himself a very capable all-round actor; Mr. Edwards Hobart doubles the characters of Captain Lorraine and Lieutenant Louis, and in both parts is very successful; and Miss Carlotta Anson as Pauline Lorraine scores a great success, bringing out the pathetic side of the character with wonderful vividness. The play is admirably mounted.

FOLKESTONE. — PLEASURE GARDENS THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—Mr. Lionel Rignold and Miss Ada Blanche with their London company appeared on Monday for three nights in the screamingly funny farce What the Butler Saw. Mr. Lionel Rignold was inimitable as Pink, the butler at Foden Wells Hydro, and his drollery caused roars of laughter; Miss Ada Blanche brilliantly upheld her reputation as a comedy actress in the part of Mrs. Barrington; as Jack Barrington Mr. Chas. Fawcett proved himself to be a typical son of the Emerald Isle, maintaining the brogue and mannerisms throughout; Harry K. Rignold as a Jewish magnate, and Mr. George as the irascible General were perfect studies; and Mr. G. Nelson Wallace as the genial Professor Shale was excellent, especially when appearing as a pre-historic man at the fancy dress ball; Mr. Raymond Dudley as Sir Chas. Foden made a delightful host; Miss Christine Jensen was a forcible maiden aunt of the new woman type, and cleverly introduced up-to-date "business."

LEAS PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. D'Arcy Clayton.—The Poppies are reappearing for this week, with entirely new programme, including Mr. Harry, the popular humorist, and Mr. Will Tissington, the well-known mimic, Miss May Windsor, who delights the audience with her humorous songs and recitations, Miss Christine Roy, who sings superbly, and Miss Dora Clare, a clever young musical sketch artist, whose dainty songs at the piano are greatly appreciated.

GAINSBOROUGH.—KING'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. H. Stear.—On the first three nights of the week we had a visit from Messrs. Dudley Bennett and T. C. Wray's company, under the management of Mr. John Eyre Massey, with Miss Hook of Holland. Mr. Edmund Russell gave a clever rendering of Mr. Hook; Mr. Adrian Burgon and Mr. Robert Corray as the Bandmaster and Schnapps respectively, sang well; Mr. Fred Dork was an amusing Slinks; and Mr. J. B. Fox made a majestic Captain; Miss Ethel James was a charming exponent of the title-rôle, and the rest of the characters were well played. The chorus is good, and dresses and mounting pretty and effective.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Managers, The Gainsborough Empire Syndicate.—A variety company here this week consists of Taka, who gives a clever exposition of ju-jitsu; Zooma, trapezeist; Belasco, musical turn; Whit Acre, comedian; and Isa Davis in imitations of music-hall celebrities; Bioscope pictures, and Tom Thumb, Turkish dwarf.

GATESHEAD. — KING'S THEATRE. — Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Resident-Manager and Licensee, Mr. Harold Arnold.—Sid Doody and Edie Wright in a screamingly funny comedy act head the list here this week. The Mezzetties are both sensational and amusing; John Donald, in a novelty scena, makes an undoubted hit; George French, a quaint comedian, is popular; and Willie and Johnnie, a pair of coloured boys, have a clever gymnastic act; the Cosman Couple have some refreshing comedy exchanges, and the Fordyces, Little Frankie, Scotch comedian, and pictures by Vernon's Bioscope are other attractive items.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. F. W. Bolam; General-Manager, Mr. R. G. Elder.—Mr. G. Carlton Wallace's company in The Lancashire Lad has aroused much interest here. Mr Alex Alexander as David Elmore is seen to advantage, and Mr. T. G. Vane displays much histrionic ability in his handling of Max Carlton; a very quaint character is John Willie Wardle, capitally portrayed by Mr. Bob Anderson; Jessie Wincote is cleverly treated by Miss Stanley Burt; and Miss KING'S, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Macfarlane.—A return visit is being paid this week by Miss Annie Hughes in The Mollusc, in which she repeats her delightful impersonation of Mrs. Baxter; Mr. Athol Stewart takes the part of Tom Kemp, and throughout the three acts his acting is admirable; Mr. Alick Chumley shows a thorough grasp of the rôle of Mr. Baxter; and a really winning Miss Roberts is seen in Miss Lillias Waldegrave. The comedy is preceded by A Bit of Old Chelsea.

ROYALTY, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Carpenter.—Mr. H. G. Pélissier and The Follies need no blare of trumpets to pack their houses. This week they commenced a fortnight's run here, and seats in all parts have been at a premium.

GRAND.—Proprietors, Moss Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Christie Grant.—Mr. Bulmer's company is here this week presenting The Girl Who Went Astray, for which a strong array of talent has been secured. Miss Gwynne Warren as Madge Harvey is vigorous; Violet is sweetly portrayed by Miss Ada M. Ryder; Captain Frank Julian has a good exponent in Mr. John B. Shinton; and villainy is ably expressed by Mr. Fred Lloyd as Rupert Murdock; Eleanor Merton is realistically played by Miss Sybil Haughton; and the comic business is ably handled by Mr. Tod Squires as James Yellowsocks, Mr. Evan Roland as Adolphus Boomer, and Miss Mary Dalby as Molly Smart; Sergeant John Harvey, the blind veteran, is excellently played by Mr. Edgar P. Melrose.

ROYAL PRINCESS'S.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—The new domestic drama, The World and the Woman, is here, the production being in the hands of Mr. J. Rice Cassidy's company. As Arthur Burleigh Mr. George H. Doyle shows special aptitude; Ludlow Burleigh is well represented by Mr. St. George Frere; a word of praise is due to Miss Amy M'Neill for her excellent exposition of Lady Marion Chalmers; Mr. and Mrs. Rice Cassidy, the one as Tut Harding and the other as Nelly (afterwards the Great Dorian), are responsible for both humour and pathos.

METROPOLE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Gordon Jefferson.—A Warning to Women is being presented here by a company under the direction of the author, Mr. C. Watson Mill. Miss Blanche St. Albans as Moira Kennion contributes an admirably conceived impersonation; Mr. W. Chas. O'Connor creditably sustains the part of Fergus McNaughton; as the unscrupulous Dr. Marcus Dread Mr. Harry C. Robinson succeeds in obtaining the execrations of the audience; Mr. William Vane gains approbation for his portrayal of Shaun; Mr. Henry Rutland plays with discretion as Squire Kennion; Mr. W. Alex. Finlayson ably accounts for the Rev. Emmanuel Wallace; Mr. Leicester Jackson causes laughter by his quaint style as Lord Eversleigh; and Mr. W. Palliser Acock is an amusing Ferdinand. In the part of Mike McQuade Mr. Oscar Power is successful; while Miss Edith Rutland does very well as Myles O'Moore.

LYCEUM.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—A play with an attractive title, The Conscience of a Judge, is presented here by Mrs. Sam Duckworth's company. Miss Eva Moss as Jessica gives a strong portrayal of an emotional part; Mr. Geo. W. Daneham as the Judge acts with excellent effect, and Mr. A. Lubinoff as Sir Edwin Mervin earns the reward of stage villainy; Mr. Frank Eden as the tramp provides lots of fun, and is ably assisted in this by Miss Bessie Frank as a servant; Miss Mabel Coleman as Ethel Vaughan acts with good effect, and the part of the little girl Kitty is specially well played by Miss Elsie Isaacs.

EMPIRE.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Manners.—The Elliott-Savonas in their magnificent musical speciality, The Palace of Orpheus, are accorded the welcome reserved for old favourites; Loie Fuller's Ballet of Light is a production of much beauty, the dancing and the lighting effects being particularly fine; the Rawsons are a clever young couple, whose musical items are cleverly given and much appreciated; May Henderson again proves her ability as a coon vocalist and long-boot dancer, and takes well; Maude Vera is a smart comedienne and dancer; Alf Maynall's ditties are cleverly sung; an enjoyable turn is provided by Mlle. Haydee's Marionette Theatre; the Lyric Quartette in illustrated songs are another good item; the Four Regals, in feats of strength complete a good company, and the Bioscope concludes the evening's entertainment.

ZOO-HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Councillor E. H. Bostock; Assistant-Manager, Mr. E. H. A. Bostock.—A novelty here this week is a Scottish musical drama under the charge of Miss Helen Kennedy, called The Bride o' the Heather, played by Corman's Juveniles; Annie Heath dances with grace and sings sweetly; the sparkling witticisms of Maxford and O'Neil cause ripples of laughter; Hearne and Palmer as Jew and Barman give a surprising show of comedy and acrobatics; the Resua Trio keep people in open-eyed wonder at their wire-walking feats; Fritz Kornan does great feats of whistling; Merton and Rydon are pleasing comedy artists; and the Bioscope fills up the intervals.

PAVILION, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Evan Good.—Arthur Roberts and his company in Till Sunday makes a good star turn, and the lively comedian is in fine fettle and keeps the fun going without a moment's pause; Brinn, in his sensational feats of balancing with guns and gun carriages, creates wonder and awe; Topsy Sinden, in her first appearance on the variety stage here, takes well in her clever dances, though her turn was unfortunately cut short on Tuesday owing to a fainting fit during her second song; Belrose and Dendin again prove themselves vocalists of a high order, and another excellent turn is that of Florence and Rose Showell, duettists; Ada Fawn takes well in her catchy songs; the Columbia Comedy Trio cause roars of laughter by their clever business and their singing is good; Raymond Trio contribute a smart singing and dancing turn; and Stelling and his trained dog also deserve a special word of praise.

PALACE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry McKelvie.—John Tiller's company in The Queen of Monte Carlo, on which is grafted plenty of humorous business, reflects credit on all concerned; Lou Lloyd sings two good songs; Alec Kendal has some amusing patter; Farris and May, in their musical comedy spasm Two's Company, Three's—? do very well; and Mabel Carr, comedienne, Wallan, juggler, Millie Denham, vocalist, Edgar Budden, in a clever step dance on roller skates, and Dolly Golden, danseuse, combine to make a most enjoyable programme.

COLISEUM.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette.—George Formby holds the premier position this week, and provides a quarter of an hour's genuine amusement. The clever protean sketch, Who is Guilty? in which Theo Bouwmeester performs seven characters, is much appreciated; and the Indian singing and dancing of the Cambodian Troupe proves interesting; a pleasing instrumental act submitted by the Carina Sisters; the duets and patter of Sinclair and Parr, and the descriptive songs of Harry Bancroft receive well-merited applause; Ruth Lytton, a Scotch comedienne, is a welcome novelty; and the Christmas tree song of Emmie Ames also displays originality. Gaumont's patent Chronomegaphone and the American Bioscope complete an entertaining programme.

GAIETY, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Harry Bowerman.—Amy Alnutt, comedienne—the star turn—fully maintains her reputation; Ted Waite's "spasms" tickle the audience; Cliffe Dixo, swell comedian, sings amusing topical songs; and other turns include Jack Roland, the American cowboy vocalist, and Alf Blydon, pedestal dancer. The pictures are a new and interesting series.

PANOPTICON.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. A. E. Pickard.—Jack Drew, comedian, contributes amusing songs; the Grenvilles are seen to advantage in The Slavey and the Yokel; and Cliffe and Vanstan, comedy artists, give some capital violin selections. Bob Alexander, Scotch character comedian, and the American Bioscope are other attractions.

GLOSSOP.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spenser.—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Draycott's high-class répertoire company opened on Monday with The Shadows of a Great City. Mr. Charles Draycott enacts with characteristic skill and ability Jim Farren, a ne'er-do-well; Mr. George Steel presents Tom Booker forcibly; Mr. George Arthur's portrayal of George Benson is convincing; Mr. Harry Scratcherd ably delineates Abe Nathan; and Mr. Chas. H. Herberte plays Arkwright the detective effectively; Mrs. Charles Draycott in the dual rôle of Annie and Nellie Standish is successful.

GLOUCESTER. — PALACE. — Owners, Messrs. Poole's Theatres, Ltd.; Director, Mr. C. W. Poole.—The Davenports, extremely clever conjurors; Mason and Hart, with a comedy gymnastic act; the Four Albertos, lady equilibrists; the Fyde and Cody trio in comedy tumbling; James Brady, eccentric vocal joker; Mr. W. G. Wesley, who is seen to advantage as a "dame"; the G. P. Hughes company in The Concert Rehearsal; Miss Rita Rhylle, comedienne and dancer; and the Palacescope make up an interesting bill.

GOOLE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Fred Greaves.—Miss Maude Western and company opened on Monday in A Mother's Salvation. Reuben Smith is capitally portrayed by Mr. Percy Braithwaite; Mr. John Levey proves successful as Lynton Desmond; and Mr. E. Turner submits a fine piece of acting in the rôle of Leslie Mervyne (the owl); Mr. Carl Vallinder as Billy Bumpkin and Miss Maude Western as Becky keep the house in constant hilarity; Mr. T. Chapman is well placed as Joe Turntail; Miss Mabel Hall is a pleasing little Paul; Miss Ada Hender in the dual rôle of Miriam Mervyne and Naomi Lester plays with power and judgment; Miss Ella Powell gives a fine character study as Mother Turntail; and Miss Dolly Dallimore is a pleasing Daisy Deleval. For Wednesday The Prodigal Son was announced.

GREAT YARMOUTH.—ROYAL AQUARIUM.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—The Midnight Wedding is occupying the boards here this week. Mr. A. E. Winnington Barnes is a dashing Paul Valmar; Mr. John Nesbitt gives a clever character sketch of Crown Prince Leopold; Mr. Mayor Cooke is good as Captain Rudolph von Scarsbruck; the characters of Sergeant Max, Corporal Otto, and Private Bobo are excellently played by Mr. J. E. Page, Mr. Harry Richardson, and Mr. Algie Spalding; Miss Yvonne Orchardson displays ability as Princess Astrea and Miss Itua Herne is good as Rozel.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—A fine variety of pictures are being shown here this week with, in addition, some good variety turns. Lily Hayden is a pleasing comedienne; Lew Towers is successful as a vocalist; Cleaver and Cleeve have a good reception, and Jack Binns is a funny comedian.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. George Gilbert.—Jock Mills, the Scotch comedian, gives first-rate character sketches; the Maros are excellent triple bar comedians; F. V. St. Clair is very popular as an extempore vocalist; the Selkirks, assisted by 100 children, appear with great success in a fine spectacular piece entitled Bonnie Scotland; the Leopolds are clever acrobats and Macintosh and Royal are first-rate dancers.

THE GEM.—Proprietors, The Yarmouth Amusement Centre, Ltd.; Resident-Director, Mr. C. B. Cochran.—An excellent set of pictures is being shown here this week including several comic incidents, and an illustration of Niagara Falls. The illustrated song "Far away in Australia" is sung with great success.

GREENOCK. — ALEXANDRA THEATRE, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Directors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—Mr. William Maclaren and company are appearing here this week in Claudian. In the title-rôle Mr. William Maclaren plays with great dramatic power and distinction; Miss Lily C. Bandmann displays her great abilities in the rôle of Almida; must praise is due to Mr. Bernard Elliott for his finished impersonation of the treacherous Thariogalus; Agazil finds a strong and fitting representative in Mr. Douglas Earle; Mr. Weston Hubbard assumes the character of Alcares in capable fashion; and the part of Belos is well portrayed by Mr. Chas. T. Chaloner. Miss Ruth Trafford as Edessa, and Miss Nellie C. Bilbe as Hera are all that could be desired.

EMPIRE.—Lessees, the Greenock Empire Syndicate; Responsible-Manager, Mr. Edward McCormick; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. J. Colquhoun.—The leading attraction here this week is supplied by Jake Friedman and company in a musical sketch, entitled Happy Holland, which is received with hearty applause; Steel and Laing find favour in their comedy act; Jack Allison, negroistic entertainer and sand dancer, is well received; the Bros. Idento submit a novel juggling act, and Arthur Stacey scores as a comedian and eccentric dancer. The Bioscope shows some excellent pictures.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry L. Skivington.—That clever illusionist and protean artist, Vonetta, tops the bill here, charming all with her varied work; the Four Burnells provide an hilarious comedy act; Mdlle. Du Roche renders two songs in pleasing style; an exceptionally clever acrobatic act by the Faludy Troupe is much enjoyed; Joe Cookson, ventriloquist, obtains appreciation, and Herbert La Martine excels in eccentric dancing. The Dromoscope is, as usual, most entertaining.

HALIFAX.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Mr. J. W. Turner's opera company opened at the Royal on Monday with Martha. Mr. Turner took the part of Lionel, and gave evidence that he is still a tenor singer of merit; Mr. Tom Griffiths, a manly Plunkett, sang with fine effect; Mr. George Ridding and Mr. Arthur Fisher were good as Lord Tristan and the Sheriff; Miss Sarah Williams had a most encouraging reception as Lady Durham; and the part of Nancy fitted Miss Jessie Dennis like a glove. The Bohemian Girl, Maritana, Il Trovatore, The Lily of Killarney, and Faust have also been produced.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Winks.—The Jees are astounding the Grand audiences this week with their marvellous performance on the tight-wire; the Northcotes (Madge and Bella), two tuneful duettists, are taking well; Kitty Kennedy Allen is a refined and winning singer of tuneful songs; and the Bioscope shows several entertaining pictures.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Reg. H. Foster.—The Kurios introduce rapid oil-painting and smoke drawing; Farley, Rennie, and Farley introduce clever acrobatic work; August, September, and May keep the house in a constant roar; Burnetti is a first-class musician; Woodhouse and Wells are clever dancers; Clown Barker has a troupe of highly-trained animals, which provide a diverting turn; and Margaret Royce, in songs at the piano, is a refined and talented lady.

HAMILTON, N.B.—HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Resident-Manager, Mr. René Clayton.—Mr. Charles Majilton and company are topping the bill here this week in The Trippers; Peter Bermingham, a great local favourite, sings new songs; Frank Harwood, actor-vocalist, renders his songs in good style; the Orros execute some marvellous poses on the silver chains; Harry Conlin is a popular turn; Proybm and Bates are well received; and Rosie Coleman, comedienne, Fanny Humber, instrumentalist and song and dance artist, and the Bioscope conclude.

HANLEY.—ROYAL.—Proprietors, Hanley Theatres and Circus Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Douglas Elphinstone.—A great epoch in the theatrical history of the Potteries, of which Hanley is the heart and centre, has taken place this week in the visit of Sir John Hare and company. Sir John makes a first and last visit. His coming had long been looked forward to with great eagerness. The Grand Duke Michael's party, including the Countess Torby, witnessed Monday night's charming performance of A Pair of Spectacles and A Quiet Rubber. On Tuesday a magnificent "house" witnessed The Gay Lord Quex. Sir John Hare was quite inimitable as the Marquess, and was compelled to take curtain after curtain during the play's progress. He had a tremendous ovation at the conclusion. Mr. W. T. Lovell made a good Sir Chichester; Mr. Bertram Steer played his part with distinct credit; Mr. Ivo Dawson made a powerful Valma; and Miss Ada Ferrar as the Duchess showed great ability, her playing in the third act being especially brilliant. Miss Louise Moodie played the aged Countess finely; Miss Mabel Adair was good as Mrs. Eden. Too much praise cannot be given to Miss Amy Brandon Thomas for her exquisite portrayal of Muriel; Miss Mona K. Oram, in the difficult rôle of the Manicurist, created a deep impression, and well deserved the special curtain which was demanded. Sir John Hare also includes in his répertoire Caste and A Case for Eviction. The general manager is Mr. Percy Burton, in whose hands everything is perfect. Mr. T. J. Chambers is acting-manager for Sir John, and Messrs. F. W. Permain and J. H. Brewer are the stage-managers.

GRAND.—Proprietors, Hanley Theatres and Circus Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Arthur Rand.—A splendid programme this week includes the Six Brothers Luck in a screamer, Lift 'Ems, Ltd.; Jock Whiteford, the Scotch comedian; the Carmos, who are responsible for a fine act; Little Ganty, a quaint comedian; the Sisters Cora, smart duettists and dancers; Vincent, the Arab tumbler; Madge May, a dainty comedienne; and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux.

KING'S EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Moore and Kennedy; Manager, Mr. H. Kennedy.—Splendid pictures are exhibited this week, and the houses are packed to overflowing, notwithstanding two opposition picture shows in the town. The chief films are The Blind Woman, A Smell of Smoke, Joys of Roller Skating, The Diamond Thieves, &c. Mr. Percy Vale is a warm favourite with capital chorus songs.

HARROGATE.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Eric Fielding Smith.—For the first three nights of the week Amasis was in the bill. Mr. W. H. Denny as Pharaoh both sang and acted with vigour and aplomb; Mr. Edward McKeown as the Prince was as desirable a lover as could be imagined; Miss Mabel Burnege as Princess Amasis gave distinction to the part; and Miss Elsie Don as Natis was very dainty. Mr. Frank Attree was good as Ptolemy, and Mr. Walter D. Brodie was a host in himself as Sebak, the keeper of the crocodiles. Beau Brocade came on Thursday.

ST. JAMES'S HALL. — Managing-Director, Mr. Sydney H. Carter; General-Manager, Mr. F. D. Sunderland; Resident-Manager, Mr. Fred Parker.—A Tour Through Savoy is among the pictures here.

HARTLEPOOL. — EMPRESS.—Proprietor, Mr. C. W. Lovesy; General-Manager, Mr. Albert Mathams.—The premier turn this week is provided by Mostol, whose excellent manipulation of numerous instruments of different kinds and sizes is a treat; Miss May Thorne has been here before, and the frequency of her visits is evidence of her deserved popularity; Alfred Simpson, in pleasing voice, renders some capital songs; a capital selection of pictures is shown by Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope Co., the steadiness and clearness of the films being particularly remarked upon by the crowded houses.

HASTINGS.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Scutt.—Mr. Brandon Thomas's company opened a three days' visit on Monday in Charley's Aunt, which proved as delightfully entertaining as ever. Lord Fancourt Babberley had a thoroughly satisfactory representative in Mr. G. A. Seager; the pompous fatuity of Spettigue, the Oxford solicitor, was excellently conveyed by Mr. Roy Byford; Jack Chesney and Charles Wykeham were alertly played by Mr. Hastings Lynn and Mr. Basil Lynton; and Spettigue's ward and niece had charming exponents in Miss Olivia Glynn (Kitty) and Miss G. Denbeigh-Russell (Amy); and Miss Vere Gerald had a regal appearance as Donna Lucia. Miss Evelyn Grey as the ingenuous Ella Delahay was pleasing; Mr. Sydney Compton as Brasset and Mr. T. McCausland Stewart as Col. Chesney completed the cast. The Lancashire Sailor preceded the comedy. For Thursday and the remainder of the week What the Butler Saw was billed, with Mr. Lionel Rignold and Miss Ada Blanche in the cast.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. H. Vivian-Fisher; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Walter Norman.—Madge Daly, who opens the programme, is an attractive vocalist; Wyllie, the tramp musician, is exceedingly clever on a variety of instruments; very good singing and dancing is done by Shamus and Kittie as Irish-American bog-trotters; Mlle. Telka renders ballads in finished style; Johnny Worman is a quaint comedian; Miss Nellie Verne demonstrates the Japanese method of self-defence; and an interesting wrestling bout is done by Jack Verne and Dick Webb. Some entertaining subjects are submitted on the new Hipposcope, and pretty dancing is executed by the juvenile sisters Herbert.

PIER PAVILION.—General-Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter.—Messrs. Fred. J. Little and Fred Darcy's company is appearing in Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson's drama The Executioner's Daughter. The play is well acted. Mr. John B. Murray as Mons. Roche, the executioner, gives a thrilling performance; Felix Marius, a thief and gambler, is cleverly embodied by Mr. S. Courtney; Mr. P. Coningsby as Kretch is an excellent sketch of a repulsive character. A good deal of amusement is created by the smart and diverting acting of Mr. Frank Ayrton as Tom Holmes, and Miss Madge Seymour as Sally King. An intelligent study of Paul Rovel is given by Mr. Chas. Loraine; Miss Enid Edoni plays the title-rôle with much finish; and Miss Nellie Howitt is an excellent representative of Felice.

PUBLIC HALL.—Lessees, The People's Picture Palace Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. F. R. Griffiths; Local Manager, Mr. H. W. James.—The animated pictures exhibited here attract large houses. The Treasure Island is a sensational story of sea piracy, and The Little Savoyard reveals an episode of much pathos. De Vere's Marionettes, in a novel song-scena, offer a welcome diversion.

ST. LEONARDS PIER PAVILION.—Entertainment-Manager, Mr. Elvey Thomas.—A series of interesting and very varied subjects are being shown here during the week by King's Royal Bioscope.

HEREFORD.—DRILL HALL.—Manager, Mr. A. Lovesey.—The Hereford Amateur Operatic Society is to be congratulated on the excellent way in which Utopia, Limited was staged on Tuesday. The society is very fortunate in having at the head of affairs such workers as Mr. George Banks (conductor), and Mr. Peyton Levason (stage-manager). Miss Lucy Saul, who has a very sweet voice, gave a charming impersonation of Princess Zara, though she seemed rather nervous in her love-making; Miss Lizzie Whitehouse gave a delightful interpretation of Lady Sophy, her clear enunciation, brilliant singing, and charm of manner combining to make her performance most enjoyable; Mr. Rea Powell (a professional artist) made an admirable Captain Fitzbattleaxe, his singing was excellent and his acting courtly; the society boasts three excellent comedians—Mr. Tim Palmer, a most diverting Scaphio, Mr. Garnet Marchant, whose Pantea was replete with comic versatility, and Mr. Whitby Smith, who, as the nimble Tarara, acted with conspicuous ability; another local artist, Mr. Peyton Levason, as King Paramount, displayed distinct merit as a singer and actor, keeping the house in a state of continual merriment; Mr. E. Amphlett Capel is to be highly commended in the part of Calynx; Mr. A. D. Briscoe was of value as Mr. Goldbury, his acting being natural and his singing effective; Messrs. F. Hagben and Edwin Stephens sang particularly well as Captain Corcoran and Sir Bailey Barre; Mr. L. T. Britton was a somewhat effeminate Lord Dramleigh, and his voice lacked volume. The chorus were exceedingly good and well-balanced. Mr. E. A. Capel is a hard-working and energetic secretary

HORWICH.—PRINCES' THEATRE.—Lessees, The Horwich Theatre Co.; Manager, Mr. R. H. White.—Mr. Evelyn A'Dell's company in His Sister's Honour is paying a return visit this week. New songs and dances have been introduced, and the scenery is appropriate and handsome. Mr. A'Dell gives a masterly impersonation of Frank Stanley, and his dementia scenes, though very striking, are not exaggerated; Mr. Walter Wilson as Sir Richard Redvers, the villain of the piece, gives a fine performance; Dr. Godfrey, asylum superintendent, is a fine study, and Mr. Edwin Clarke scores heavily in his efforts to play the part; Mr. Henry Carlton as Timothy Timid is responsible for the comedy element, and deserves the unstinted applause bestowed; Mr. S. Verner gives a capital rendering of P.C. Worthie; Miss Maudie Vincent as Maria, Dora's maid, has a part that fits her to a nicety, and her songs and dances are highly successful; Miss Flora Leslie wins sympathy in the part of Dora; Miss Ethel Ashleigh's Ivy Merton, a cripple, is an artistic effort. The minor characters are in capable hands.

HUDDERSFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. T. J. Phillips.—Baron Harriss's company is here on a return visit with The Prince of Pilsen. Much of the undoubted success of the piece is due to Mr. Harry Kilburn, whose gifts as a comedian find full scope in the part of Hans Wagner; Miss Sophie Harriss also is to be credited with a large share in the attractiveness of the piece as Mrs. Maddison Crocker; Mr. Leslie Owen is a dashing Prince of Pilsen; Mr. Arthur Geary plays well as Tom Wagner; Mr. Ernest Gifford is very active as Francois, the French waiter, and Miss Mabel Dent makes a vivacious maid of Sidonie. A well-trained chorus, tasteful dresses, and adequate scenery are provided.

HIPPODROME, LTD.—Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—The artists appearing are Tubby Edlin and company in a laughable mixture, entitled The Prince of Monte Carlo; Tennis and Laune, duettists; Sidney Delf, singer and juggler; Miss Ida Kessanley and her troupe of fox terriers; the Wakeman Quintette of vocalists, and Bass and Davis, patter comedians; some fine films are exhibited on the Bioscope.

HULL.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Morton's, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. W. F. Morton.—The Moody-Manners company is here. On Wednesday they gave The Meistersinger, the tenor rôle being in the hands of Mr. Philip Brozel. On Monday Aida was given, with Mme. de Vere Sapio and Mr. Brozel. It was a fine performance. On Tuesday Mme. Fanny Moody appeared in Madame Butterfly with great success. During the week The Star of the North, Pagliacci, Cavalleria, Tannhauser, and Maritana have been in the bill.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Manager, Mr. Tom Boyne.—The Dandy Fifth is paying us a return visit here. Mr. Jack Crichton is an excellent Trooper Brown, Miss Pauline Hague was an excellent Kate Lorimer; the Colonel was well played by Mr. George Baverstock, and Miss Norra Mora was a charming Polly.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Morton's, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. George Morton.—A Thousand Pounds Reward is being played here. Miss Katherine Eckart filled the rôle of Widow Sanson with success, and Miss Minnie Gospel was a pleasing Kitty Springthorpe. Miss Marjorie Seymour achieved success with her song. The heavy character had a good exponent in Mr. J. Wilton, and Mr. Joe English appeared successfully as Dick Springthorpe.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Graham; Manager, Mr. Harry Dunford.—The Cruise of the H.M.S. Victory is drawing good houses. J. W. Hall is a comedian of sterling ability. Other artists include Nell Cotter, Harry Zetter, George Blakeney, Elsa Elvio, and Adams and Ward.

EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr. Harry Slingsby.—A capital company is presented here, which includes Harwood's Juveniles, Mollie Wolstenholme, Globella, the Stanleys, Amy Bellwood and Frank Melville.

THE CIRCUS.—Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Emerson-Besides.—Animated pictures are still running and "The Players" are re-engaged for another week.

ILKESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—Mrs. Bandmann-Palmer and company are occupying the boards this week, and opened with Catherine, Duchess of Dantzig. The title-rôle was taken effectively by Mrs. Bandmann-Palmer, and the part of Marechal Lefebvre lost nothing at the hands of Mr. Bernard Merefield; Mr. F. Owen Chambers was a successful Napoleon I., and Mr. Howard Rose as Lieut. Adrian Lefebvre gave a capital performance. The Misses Alice O'Dea, Carrie Hause, and Mary Morrell were suitably placed respectively as Princess Pauline, Mme. de Stael, Rosalie, and Fouche, Chief of Police, had an excellent representative in Mr. F. Skein. East Lynne, Sapho, Mary Queen of Scots, and Jane Shore are also in the bill.

IPSWICH.—LYCEUM.—Messrs. Taylor Platt and Trevor Lowe's company occupied the theatre for three nights with George Bernard Shaw's play You Never Can Tell. The company is of high excellence, and includes Miss Katherine Stuart as Mrs. Clandon, Miss Gladys Morris and Miss Clara Earle as Gloria and Dolly Clandon; Mr. Donald Calthorp as Philip Clandon, Mr. J. Edward Pearce as Fergus Crampton, Mr. Charles Daly as Finch McComas; Valentine is in the hands of Mr. Leslie Hamer, and Bohun in those of Mr. George Howard. The waiter is admirably played by Mr. Trevor Lowe. A Chinese Honeymoon is billed for the latter half of the week.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—The Six Brothers Luck, in their farcical sketch entitled The Demon of the Cellar, supply plenty of humour; Miss Frances Letty sings American songs with real Yankee humour, and is a very clever wooden-shoe dancer; a fresh item is The Magic Vase, in which appear Miss Enid Errol (an excellent dancer), and Mr. C. W. Anson and Miss Caroline Fenton; Princess Pauline is an old favourite in Ipswich, and her popularity has not diminished; Messrs. Elton and Elma are good gymnasts; and Pete and Juno give a droll nigger turn. The Sport and the Shoeblack is a pantomimic act by Abalo and Hurst; Mr. J. W. Gallagher is a humorous singer, and the Bioscope completes the bill.

JARROW.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson.—Mr. Lingford Carson's company is paying a visit with A Fight for a Throne. Mr. J. S. Millward gives a manly portrayal of Captain Jack Fortescue; Mr. G. Bryne is seen to advantage as Nicholai I.; Mr. Charles E. Linney portrays Otto with force and skill; Mr. P. Evans is excellent as the Hon. Percy Fitzmaurice; Mr. John Worth gives a good account of the part of Lieut. Paul Rodna; General Rodna is in the capable hands of Mr. T. Roydan; and Mr. Hughes causes much amusement as Tom Ferret. Miss Dora Hammersley is well received as Princess Esmee; Miss Emmeline B. Lewis is highly amusing as Lady Pat; Miss Margarette Tueskie does remarkably well as Countess Valeska; and the minor parts are in capable hands. Scenery and dresses are excellent.

JERSEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. E. Marris; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley Hope.—Walter Melville's The Worst Woman in London is being presented here by Mr. Edward Marris's company. Miss Grace Murielle makes a sufficiently repulsive Frances Vere; Miss Nita Imeson excellently renders the part of Matilda Parker; and Miss Barbara Allison is charming as Ruth Milford. As Vincent Lyle Mr. Cecil W. Parke is first-rate in the rôle of the villain of the piece; Mr. James Salter is most amusing as Bob Goldfinch; Mr. Carr is good as Fred Thornborough; Mr. Helier Le Maistre gives a finished performance as James Milford; and Mr. Charles Weir plays smartly as Jack Felton.

KIDDERMINSTER. — NEW OPERA HOUSE.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. Jas. P. Moore; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. C. Gudgeon.—A visit is being paid this week by Messrs. Sutton and Raynor's company, who produce several excellent plays, including Moths, The Second Mrs. Tanqueray, Frou Frou, and Called Back. In the first-named piece Mr. Raynor makes an excellent Lord Jura, and Mr. Cecil Wynne excels in the rôle of Prince Sergius Zanroff; Mr. C. Lodge-Percy is good as the Duke of Mull, and Mr. Chas. R. Bickell ably portrays the character of Boris; Miss Henrietta Schrier as Fuschia Leach and Miss Nesta Sandford as the Duchess de Sannaz give a pleasing display of acting. The plays are elaborately staged.

KING'S LYNN.—NEW ROYAL THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Herr B. Pareezer.—A capital company of Mr. Edward Marris's has been here this week, drawing good houses and causing endless mirth with the mirth-provoking musical farce, The Dandy Doctor. The fun is maintained at a high pitch throughout, and Mr. George Brentwood contributes largely by his personation of Melchisadek Brown; Miss Mollie Wynne is charming as Ivy Pendred; and Jane, "the general," as played by Miss Florence Smithers is an irresistible piece of comedy acting. Mr. Leslie Martin and Mr. Herbert Pearce as Bertie Bolingbroke and Colonel Pendred respectively are good, and the dancing of Mlles. Lidia Lovell, Zara Kreisberg, Nellie Streatley, and Maisie Wegen is especially to be commended. The piece is well staged.

KIRKCALDY.—HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—The Five Bombays, harmony singers and dancers, are paying a visit this week; Allis and Cassati present a smart comedy turn; and a favourite is Miss Aline O'Connor, who as the original peasant girl is clever. Francisco, equilibrist and juggler, is worthy of particular mention; Philip and Merrit, society entertainers; and Mr. Harry Walker, comedian, are also on the bill. The pictures form an important part of the programme.

LANCASTER. — GRAND THEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. C. Howitt.—Leah Kleschna is being presented here by Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's capable company. Mr. William Clayton is admirable as Kleschna; an effective representation is given by Mr. Hamilton Deane of Paul Sylvaine; Miss Bessie Rignold surmounts in artistic style the difficulties of the title-rôle; and Mr. Algernon J. Hicks as Paul Berton and Mr. Gilbert Heron as Schram do very well. The scenery is adequate.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. John Porter and W. J. Fergusson.—At the top of a first-rate programme is Ernest Ch. Gittin's operatic company with The Daughter of the Regiment, in which Mlle. Adele Prescott acts well and sings in good style; Mr. Fred K. Silverston is an excellent Sergt. Sulpice; and other other characters are in able hands. Frank Couch makes a decided hit with his localised songs; the L.V.O. Trio cause much laughter in a sketch Those Troublesome Servants; and Chas Leighton at the piano has a good reception. Wyndham and Kitty supply a daring wire act; Lena Leslie, comedienne, is recalled nightly; and Ena Richards sings and dances well. The Hippograph still proves an attraction.

LEAMINGTON. — Theatre Royal.—Lessees, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Manager, Mr. George Anthony.—Miss Ellen Terry has been here with Captain Brassbound's Conversion. Miss Terry gave a wonderful impersonation of Lady Cicely Waynflete, and the Captain Brassbound of Mr. James Carew was a performance of much merit. Mr. George Fitzgerald was excellent as Sir Howard, and the Felix Drinkwater of Mr. Max Montlesole was an amusing character study. Mr. David Hallam was very droll as Marzo, and Mr. Story Gofton's Scotch missionary was very entertaining. Other performances calling for special mention were Mr. Frank Powell's Captain Kearney, Mr. Herbert Lomas's Johnson, and the Moroccan dignitaries of Messrs. Sidney Travers, Hay Cameron, and Arthur Bachner.

LEEDS.—Grand Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. Wynn Miller.—The Girls of Gottenberg makes its second appearance here this week, Mr. George Edwardes's company giving a very satisfactory presentation. Mr. Edmund Payne appears in his original part of Max, and is irresistibly funny throughout; Happy Fanny Fields encompasses the part of Mitzi in entertaining style, her "sabot" specialities taking especially well; Mr. Leslie Holland is very good in the character of Otto; Miss Maisie Gay's Clementine is a pleasing and popular effort; and Miss Florence Phillips is prominent with some novel and artistic dancing.

Theatre Royal.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr. R. Ernest Liston—That old favourite When London Sleeps is this week presented by Mr. Lester Collingwood's company, and is still vastly popular. Miss Lilla Wilde acts with charm and sympathy the part of the heroine; Mr. Edward E. Ashby presents a big part with ability; Mr. Harry Wren makes an effective stage-villain; and Miss Mabel Scudamore gives a telling study of the adventuress. Mr. Douglas Campbell and Mr. F. Howard are responsible for some clever comedy work.

Empire Palace.—Moss Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alex. Galley.—Bella and Bijou get an enthusiastic reception here; Jenny Johns is another big favourite; Harry Tate's Motoring company is responsible for much merriment; Arabella Allen wins high praise for character impersonations; acceptable comedy is subscribed by Gus Garrick and Johnson and Bert; and Daisy James, a smart comedienne, the Warsaw Bros., and the Narow Bros. are also specially good turns.

Queen's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Bush.—J. Gar Kiddie and company here present The House of Tinn, a farcical sketch, which is provocative of great merriment; the Vasilescu Troupe are doing a remarkably expert acrobatic novelty; Richard Finberg does some excellent character impersonations; Edie Gray and Boys please with vocal items; and there are good turns by Chas. Rose, comedian and dancer, Metz and Metz, simultaneous dancer, Ethel Dove, comedienne, and Charlie Deane, comedian.

Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. Thos. Barrasford.—The Harmony Four take first place here, their music and comedy being thoroughly enjoyed; the Three Sisters Sprightly submit a new vocal item, and are as popular as ever; Hanid Alexander does a neat turn at the piano; Heeley and Meeley find a ready acceptance of their tumbling speciality; a pretty vocal and dancing scena is presented under the title of The Maid and the Moon; and there is other capital entertainment by Jordan and Harvey, Sisters Brooke, the Werds, and Cedar and Elgar.

City Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Wood; General-Manager, Mr. J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Jones.—A clever turn by Park's Eton Boys and Girton Girls is a popular lead here; Morny Cash again proves an amusing comedian; Walter Stanley is also doing well in a similar line; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Shelley score with a comedy episode; a clever dancing turn by Brull and Hemsley goes well; as also do the vocal contributions of Alice Blandford.

LEICESTER.—Royal Opera House.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business-Manager, Mr. Charles Hermann.—A cordial greeting is being extended here to Mr. George Dance's company in The Girls of Gottenberg. Mr. Bertie Wright makes a hit with a really funny performance as Max Moddelkopf; and Miss May Marshall as Clementine is also very good. Mr. Tom Shelford both sings and acts with success as Otto; Miss Ellaline Thorne is a delightful representative of Mitzi, her singing calling for special praise; Mr. Howard Cridland is capital as Brittl Bottl; Miss Amie Grey as Elsa, Miss Ruby Carter as Lucille, Mr. Rugh Henson as Albrecht, Mr. Courtnay Comber as Fritz, Mr. Tom Squire as Adolph, Mr. Morgan Rickards as the Burgomaster, and Mr. Edwin Stanley as Kannenbier do full justice to their parts; and Miss Susie Beardon as Katrina and Miss Violet Romaine as Minna are good. Excellent service is rendered by the full chorus and augmented orchestra under Mr. Otto Manns; and Mr. G. E. Draco is a painstaking manager for the company.

Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business-Manager, Mr. E. R. Beaumont.—A welcome return visit is being paid here this week by Mr. James Bell's company, in the drama The Idol of Paris, in which Miss Annie Bell repeats with conspicuous success her impersonation of the variety star Flare Flare; Mr. Wilson Howard makes an excellent impression as Phillipe D'Esterre; and Mr. Leonard Aardale as Victor Cashelle is very good. Mr. Gordon Robey acts well as H.R.H. Prince Sergius Zoreski; Miss Phena Powell deserves much commendation as Mme. Sancterre; and both Miss Annie Megson as Ann and Mr. Frank H. Dale as Tatave are most amusing. Mr. Pringle Roberts is satisfactory as the notary, Gustave Langlois. The play is specially well staged and dressed.

Palace Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. S. Buccleuch.—The ideal coon, Eugene Stratton, is the star this week. His superb dancing and his delightful rendering of his various songs are as good as ever, and he well maintains his great popularity with all sections of the audience. At the other end is that past-master of ventriloquism, Tom Edwards, who is making a big hit and creating roars of merriment; John Warren presents with the greatest success his military mystery, "The Magic Carpet," which leaves the audience in a state of bewilderment, so smartly and deftly are the tricks worked; the New York Nippers are very good in their comedy and dancing act, the antics and dancing of Inky calling for special praise; Little Pam is a smart youngster, whose turn is of a particularly bright and popular character; Stewart and Morgan score a well-deserved success in their high-class vocal speciality; Ross and Lewis, the Yankee comedy duo, are good, the dancing of the male partner being very clever; the Musical Schafers give an enjoyable and original musical speciality, The Garden of Music; Nellie Martell, comedienne and dancer, is also entertaining; the American Bioscope shows the Wilbur Wright Aeroplane.

Pavilion Theatre.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Joe Lawrence.—Frederick Maxwell and Miss Lois Du Cane, the most popular sketch artists who visit this hall, are on a return visit with their company in the romantic military episode The Last Command, which is meeting with a most gratifying reception. Miss Lois Du Cane plays with her accustomed charm and ability as Lola; and Mr. Frederick Maxwell is now seen in the part of Colonel Yewlett, which he sustains in a manner leaving nothing whatever to be desired. They receive adequate support. The remarkable and sensational shooting of Winona and King is another special feature, in connection with whom a competition is taking place. The other artists are the Leonas, in a refined musical act; Charles J. Lewis, novelty ventriloquist; Tom Yorke, character and refined coster vocalist; Alfonso, the society foot equilibrist; Eva Roslyn, comedienne; and Walter H. Pallister's Bioscope, depicting Our Banana Supply and A Night Alarm.

The Empire.—Lessees, The New Bioscope Trading Company; District-Manager, Mr. Gerald Hunt.—Among the leading films this week are The Never Forgotten Melody, The Baby Competition, In the Days of Rebellion, The Eucharistic Procession, In the Land of Gold Mines, A Perfect Servant, The Outcast, and Too Busy to Count. The variety portion is a strong one, including Fern and Fawn, in the really funny episode The Conqueror; George and Nell Greatorex, the clever, silent, and mysterious magicians and illusionists; Fred Mayne, comedian and patterer; and Dolly Howard, soubrette and balladist, all of whom are duly accorded a reception befitting their merits.

Temperance Hall.—Manager, Mr. Geo. Stanyon.—A first visit is being paid here by the London Animated Picture Company, who are showing a series of leading films, including a number of beautifully coloured subjects, including Arabian Nights, Faust, Franco-British Exhibition, Pretty Typist, The Olympic Games, Carnival in Venice, &c. Interludes are given by Walter Arnold.

LEIGH.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Cragg; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wallace Childs.—Mr. Henry Swinerd's company is here with Dare-Devil Dorothy. Miss Dorothy Desmonde charmingly sustains the title-part, her singing being much appreciated. As Ruth Miss Nellie Valentine is satisfactory; Mr. Walter Ashley makes an excellent Harold Fielding, his songs being well sung; Mr. Walter B. Nugent ably depicts Captain Dudley; Mr. Harry Ugar as Silas Crump shows genuine humour, and is ably assisted by Miss Nellie Harcourt, who works hard as Judith. The dancing of Misses Daisy Holbrook and Florence Corri is keenly appreciated.

LEITH.—New Gaiety Theatre.—Licensee and Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—Mr. T. Edward Ward's principal company give a very commendable presentation of the new romantic drama Second to None, by Mr. Walter Howard. Sir Reginald Greystone is well portrayed by Mr. Theo Balfour; the heavy part of Philip Mannering receives characteristic interpretation at the hands of Mr. Frederick F. Lloyd; the important rôles of Lieut. Archer Ballater and Sergt. Jack Horseman are admirably acted by Mr. Arthur D. Layland and Mr. J. G. Maine; and as the two brothers, Harry and Frank Wilding, Messrs. Leonard Williams and Charles Halling are in every way successful. Miss Ward gives fine effect to her rendering of Nell Greystone; and Miss Maud Merrick makes a pleasing appearance in the ingénue part of Mary Bright. Comic relief is provided by the Joe Ruggles and Norah of Mr. George H. Davis and Miss Clarrie Yandell; while both Mr. Allan Carruthers and Mr. Eric Wilde do well as Private Flutter and Private Bertie.

LINCOLN. — Royal.—Lessees, Messrs. Payne Seddon and Ernest Pope.—Mr. Arthur Bourchier's company in The Walls of Jericho is paying a highly successful return visit. Mr. Alfred Goddard makes a powerful Jack Frobisher; Mr. Russell Barry contributes an admirable picture of Hankey Bannister; Mr. Ben Lewin's Marquis is excellently done; Mr. Christopher Steele scores as Drayton; and Mr. A. W. Tyrer's Harry Dallas is thoroughly acceptable. The Lady Alethea of Miss Nancy Beresford is effective, and Miss Ormonde Wynne's Lady Westaby is charming.

Palace.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. R. R. Black.—Goggin and Davis contribute a remarkable acrobatic act; Cissy Curlette's mimicry catches on strongly; and the Three Prestons in The Liftman's Rise have a decidedly amusing item. Harry Simms, Edith Chantler, Ellis and Watts, and Webb and Branston are also completely successful. Raymond's Bio-Tableaux complete a strong bill.

LIVERPOOL.—Royal Court Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Lawrence.—That exceedingly amusing conception, When Knights Were Bold, has this week attracted large audiences to the leading theatre. The able company presenting it was headed by Mr. James Welch, who, being Liverpool born, and well known in the Mersey city, had a most flattering reception, his efforts as Sir Guy de Vere provoking endless laughter. It was particularly noticed that the clever little comedian had brought his quips and gibes thoroughly up to date, even the eccentricities of the suffragists being alluded to. Altogether, the production was capital. Miss Audrey Ford gave the utmost satisfaction as Lady Rowena; that able actor, Mr. Arthur Grenville, was admirable as Isaac Isaacson, his accent and gestures being eminently suited to the part; Mr. Guy Lane deserved complimenting highly for his Rev. Peter Pottleberry; everything possible was extracted from Sir Bryan Ballymote by Mr. Cecil Kinnaird; Mr. Gordon Tomkins very ably represented Barker; Miss Annie Chippendale did justice to Alice Barker; Mr. George Desmond made several points with Charles Widdicombe; and Miss Daisy Cordell caused laughter with her Sarah Isaacson. The curtain-raiser was The Changling, in which Miss Helen Palgrave, Mr. J. H. Carson, and Mr. George Tully took part.

Shakespeare Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wentworth Croke; Manager and Secretary, Mr. John Gaffney.—The Hutchison company have been here this week delighting audiences with a capital representation of Mrs. Ponderbury's Past, which provoked roars of laughter. The trials of Mr. Pondebury, as depicted by Mr. George Mudie, were exceedingly funny; Miss Annie Stallman was irresistible in the part of Mrs. Ponderbury; Mr. Drew Mackintosh showed high accomplishments as Mervyn Thorpe; a capital Captain Rumford came from Mr. George Child; Mr. Alfred Ibberson assisted greatly with the fun as the butler Peter; Mr. Charles A. Staite made a merry Hyacinth Grayling; and other well-held rôles were Ethel Penniston (Miss Florence Wellesley), and Mme. Polaca (Miss Florence Wix). The curtain-raiser was His Landlady, played by Messrs. Ibberson, Drew Macintosh, Miss Wellesley, and Miss Madge Elswick.

Rotunda Theatre.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—On a first visit to this city that excellent drama, The Prince and the Beggar Maid, received a very hearty reception, business being excellent. In the rôle of Prince Olaf Mr. Ernest Cox played with a feeling and force that earned for him unstinted applause; Mr. Meville Bickford made a powerful Prince Michael; Miss Ethel Bracewell acted with intensity the trying part of Monica; Mr. Alfred Brandon was prominent as Prince Hildred; and others who did good work were Messrs. H. Burton (Nathan), W. S. Hardy (Colonel Wellenberg), Reginald Payne (Lieut. Karl), Miss Jessica Black (Viola), and Miss Gertrude Branscombe (Camiola). The play was staged and costumed in Messrs. Paumier and Howard's well-known charming style.

Star Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—The big attraction here this week has been Who is She? Mr. Hill-Mitchelson, the author, appearing with his special company. As Prince Bora he showed to great advantage, playing with that dramatic strength and point which has already earned for him a foremost place in the histrionic world. Mr. Graham-Woods was the King Vladamir, a manly part, well presented; Miss Violet Carlyle held the title-rôle in a most charming manner; Mr. Russell Bouge acquitted himself creditably as Chang Tee; a capital Captain Arthur Gower was presented by Mr. Sinclair Holden; Miss Alice Barber did well as Countess Ladori; credit was due to Miss Mabel Ronald for her neat picture of the Little King; and other acceptable artists were Messrs. Arthur McCulloch (Sergeant Metroff), C. H. Henderson (the Spy), Miss Muriel Inglis (Keta Noveitch), and Miss Mary Collier (Sarette). The play was admirably staged.

Empire.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Cole.—Foremost here this week was the American racing playlet, Futurity Winner, presented by Joseph Hart's company; Fred Earle had a cordial reception for his funny songs; a neat and pleasing entertainment was provided by the Lukushimas; the singing and dancing by the Eight of Hearts proved acceptable; Spry and Austin were as lively as ever; Herbert Shelley distinguished himself with his protean play, Dan the Outlaw; a brilliant musical act came from the Jackson family; the Brewsters submitted a clever turn as acrobatic speciality dancers, &c.; and Arthur Schofield, refined humorous entertainer, completed the list.

Queen's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred Granville.—Mr. Alex. C. Grant's company have produced here a capital drama, entitled The Woman from Scotland Yard, which is full of thrilling interest. Mr. Grant distinguished himself as Paul Obanoff; Miss Gladys May held her audience as "the woman"; a capital Harry Stanhope was submitted by Mr. John L. Schofield; Miss Isabel Edbrooke pleased greatly as Lady Stanhope; Mr. Frank Congreaves showed that he understood the rôle of Boris Isaacowitch; Mr. Charles Graham made an excellent Sir James Stanhope; and the remainder of an able cast filled their respective parts satisfactorily.

Lyric.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold.—The bill presented here this week has been so good that the printer of it apparently experienced some difficulty in giving due prominence to several turns. Big type set forth the names of Lowenwirth and Cohen, the smart Hebrew comedians; Nightingale and Stigant, with the comedy duologue, Two Sides to a Wall; the Three Lloyds, smart bounding artists; Phil Bransby, coster comedian; Lotto, Lillo, and Otto, trick and comedy cyclists; and Wild, Willie, and West, with the laughable sketch, The Three Bounding Navvies. Needless to mention, all those artists gave the fullest satisfaction. The list also contained the names of V. L. Granville, who had some clever character impersonations; Jennie Hartley, soubrette; and Arthur Holland, a refined character vocalist.

Royal Hippodrome. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Walter Hassan.—Top of the programme here this week we have had Merrill and Ward, smart comedy trick cyclists. Leonard Barry brought a new song-scena, "From unemployed to millionaires," which was much appreciated; roars of laughter followed the work of Blake and Amber, frivolity artists; Max Waldon, as a female impersonator and dancer, showed to advantage; some able hand-balancing was executed by the Barrois; a burlesque, Bertie and the Barmaid, submitted by the Haydons, provoked much merriment; and acceptable contributions also came from Walter Emmerson, comedian; the Brothers Bradshaw, eccentric acrobats; and George Carncross, character impersonator.

Royal Palace of Varieties. — Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—The Master Criminal has been staged here this week by the popular stock company. Included in the cast were Messrs. Sydney Grant (Telford Lestage). David G. Noble (Ben Beauday), Cecil Ravenswood (Mr. Manners), Robb Wilton (Tommy Dale), R. Seath Innes (Gentleman Jim), Miss Florence Palmer (Mabel Manners), and Miss Lilian Radbourne (Cecile). Mr. Anthony Brown's Bioscope showed some excellent films.

Westminster.—Lessee, Mr. Fred R. Welsker; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Montgomery.—In addition to the Bioscope pictures shown here during the week the following artists appeared: George Russell, comedian; the Levans, with illustrated songs; and Rappo and Ella, society gymnasts.

Olympia.—District-Manager, Mr. Albert Bulmer; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Wighton.—One of the principal turns here this week was the favourite Lydia Yeamans, who, assisted by Frederick J. Titus, gave her customary excellent entertainment. The La Scala Opera Company, including Mrs. Arthur Rousby, Mr. Charles Le Sueur, and Miss Daisy Munn, pleased immensely with a grand selection from Cavalleria Rusticana; a wonderful performance was given by Colonel Gaston Bordeverry, who, with shots from a repeating rifle, played musical selections on chimes; a deal of laughter was aroused by the Brothers Redmond, a comical pair of acrobats; Phil and Nettie Peters provided a neat comedy entertainment; Lillian performed some clever feats on the bicycle; as acrobats, vocalists, and dancers, the three Sisters Lee pleased greatly; the Maples gave a richly enjoyable comedy act, How to Treat a Burglar; and Marion Scott, comedienne, also appeared.

Pavilion. — Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Manager, Mr. Henry Hearn.—Excellent business has been done here during the week by reason of the good programme submitted. At the head was the capital dramatic sketch, The Pawnbroker, given by Joe Peterman and company; the always popular Harriett Vernon was received with great favour for her songs, which included "A Yuletide story" and "Sunshine and shadow"; a pretty and ably presented novelty, entitled The Master Card, was provided by the Thompson-Carruther's combination, in which were comprised Dunningarto, Fred H. Constable, Ethel Arto, Bertha Clifton, and Ivy Chandos; Primavesi had a most humorous juggling act; Carney Brothers made an impression with their vocal scena Brothers; and others in the list were Will Sullivan, comedian and patterer; Barfoot and Carson, comedians; Leslie Race, comedian; and J. C. Scatter, comedian. The Bioscope had some of the latest pictures.

Loughborough.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Payne Seddon and George Robertson; Resident Business-Manager, Mr. W. Payne Seddon.—Record houses have been the order of the week, Mr. Dudley Bennett and Mr. C. T. Wray's company in Miss Hook of Holland being responsible for them. Mr. Edmund Russell as Mr. Hook created a deal of genuine fun; no less successful was Mr. Fred Dark as Simon Slinks; Mr. J. B. Fox as Captain Adrian Paap made a capital soldier, his singing being of a high order; Bandmaster Van Vuyt was cleverly played by Mr. Adrian Burgon; Mr. Robert Corray was eminently suited to the rôle of Ludwig Schnapps; Miss Muff Carew as Mina fairly brought down the house by her singing and acting; and Miss Ethel James as Sally (Miss Hook of Holland) sang and acted with power and expression.

LOWESTOFT.—Marina.—Manager, Mr. E. A. Smith.—Miss Lily Burnand is on a return visit in a number of pleasing ditties, includng her latest successes "My Sweet William" and "Honeymooning." The bill also comprises Jack Smiles, comedian; Mrs. Bennett's company and Edward Cranston in a sketch, Poor Master; Onra and Gillino, wire act; Frank Mortimer, vocalist; Whitworth Girls; Campkin, tramp cyclist; and Gwennie Teo in song and dance.

Hippodrome.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Gilbert; Manager, Mr. Frank Freeland.—A crowded audience gave a cordial welcome to Miss Marie Loftus on the occasion of her initial appearance here. The popular artist was in excellent form and scored a big success in her latest songs, in which she also introduced some wonderful gowns. In addition to this highly-attractive turn we have Mlle. Lumiere in The Fairy Grotto; Talbot and Pearce in their Japanese scena; C. H. Charlton, conjuror; Ray and Lingard in The First of April; and Little Bishop, humorist, &c. The British Biograph shows a new series of the latest pictorial subjects.

LUTON.—Grand Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Manager, Mr. Louis J. Beard.—Mr. Falcon has brought his own talented company in The Private Secretary here this week. Mr. Price Evans as the Rev. Rob. Spalding causes roars of laughter; Mr. Cattermole is ably characterised by Mr. Chas. Sims; Mr. Wentworth Fane as Douglas Cattermole does exceedingly well, as does Mr. Tom Taylor Vinson, the M.F.H., Mr. Marsland; and Mr. Ben Barnett ably portrays the character of Harry Marsland. As Edith Marsland Miss Josephine Richards wins favour..

MACCLESFIELD. — Theatre Royal. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. K. Gatley.—Messrs. Martin Alwyne, A. W. Thompson, and company are billed to occupy the boards here on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday evenings with the musical comedy, My Sweetheart.

MAIDSTONE.—Palace.—Manager, Mr. Baskerville.—Rose and Calvert are presenting a smart mock drama scena here, in which both artists are well received; Miss Jennie Alexander is a clever juvenile mimic, her turn being encored; the Lombards are clever equilibrists; Barton and Ashley, in "Canal Boat Sal," do well. Also appearing here are Aida Martini, comedienne and dancer; Frank Blythe, vocalist; and Florrie Delamere, comedienne. The Palace Pictures are interesting.

MANCHESTER.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees, The United Theatres, Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edmonstone Shirra.—Mr. F. W. Bolam presents here this week the successful drama from Drury Lane The Sins of Society. The company engaged is a large and capable one, but, as usual, the mere play, full as it is of sensational and striking incidents, is of subordinate interest to the wonderful sensationalism of the staging. This is carried out really well, and is of itself a show worth seeing. The principal parts, among many of which ensure variety and interest, are played by Miss Grace E. Leslie as Lady Marion, Miss Pattie Brown as Lady Goldbury, Mr. Blake Adams as James Hogg, and Mr. E. Vassal-Vaughan as the cool and calculating Sir Dorian Marsh.

Prince's Theatre. — Proprietors, The United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Lee.—An audience pleased a fortnight ago by Jack Straw assembled here on Monday to witness another of Mr. Somerset Maugham's plays, to wit, Lady Frederick. It cannot be said that the audience was so well pleased by the fare provided on this occasion, but the company made a commendable endeavour to get the best possible result out of the material provided. Far and away the best performance was that of Mr. Robert Minster, who made an undoubted success as Paradine Fouldes, the man of the world. In the title-part Miss Mabel Love lost something in point of effect by her weak attempt at the Irish brogue, but otherwise acted nicely. Others deserving a word of praise were Miss Elsie Irving as Lady Mereston, Mr. E. F. Meads as Lord Mereston, and Mr. Patrick Quill as Sir Gerald O'Mara. The comedy was preceded by a clever curtain-raiser The Peacemaker.

Grand Junction Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Hewitt.—Her Forbidden Marriage, by Fredk. Melville, and played by the author's company, is a powerful attraction here this week. Mr. Henry Lonsdale as George Maddison has a strong part, and plays it well; and Miss Geraldine Le Sage as Lucy, who is forbidden to marry but eventually marries George, is equal to all the demands of the rôle. Mr. Louis Rector plays the scoundrel Devereux in good style; Mr. H. Gomer May is effective as Sir George Lancaster; and among other clever people of the cast Mr. Vincent Loraine as Joe Lambkin and Mr. Fred De Vere as Timothy Tuttutt are worthy of mention for their humorous efforts. The scenic sensations of the play are well carried out.

Gaiety Theatre.—Proprietor, Miss A. E. F. Horniman; Manager, Mr. B. Iden Payne.—The attraction here this week is Shaw's piece Widowers' Houses, played by Miss Horniman's company. Mr. B. Iden Payne repeats his smart impersonation of Lickcheese; Mr. Charles Bibby is as amusing as ever as Cokane; Mr. Jules Shaw's depiction of Sartorius is a remarkably virile piece of work; as Blanche Miss Mona Limerick scores a distinct success; and Mr. Lewis Casson plays Dr. Harry Trench in acceptable style. The minor parts are well handled by Mr. Basil Dean, Mr. Leonard Mudie, and Miss Louise Holbrook. This entertaining piece was preceded on Monday by a new comedy in one act, The Dear Departed, a notice of which appears in another column.

Royal Osborne Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Mason.—The attraction here is A Desperate Marriage, a capital drama played in effective style by Mr. Fredk. Mouillot's company. Mr. J. Knox-Orde as Dick Strong and Miss Winifred Whyte as Audrey Howard have the principal heroic parts, in which they score a marked success; Mr. E. W. Maule-Cole as the scoundrelly Clarence Woolmer, Miss Gertrude Gilbert as Miriam Elton, and Mr. Herbert Lloyd as Elijah Baggs very well sustain the evil element of the story. Admirable impersonations are added by Mr. Houghton Goddard as Dr. Frank Buxter and Miss Helen Anderson as Betty Mackenzie; while the comedy parts are cleverly developed by Mr. Walter Rousby and Miss Nellie Rousby. The scenery and dresses are excellent.

Metropole Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Dry.—Zeta Grey and Wal Grace are the principal attraction here in a musical comedy act The Lancashire Lass; Dolly Ross, comedienne and dancer, is very well received; the Three Coopers are entertaining as comedy vocalists; and Herbert and Linden, comedians and dancers, give a smart and popular turn. Other acceptable items include Edythe and Toto, in a speciality act; Evelyn Taylor, comedienne; Maddison Brothers, comedians and burlesque boxers; Walter Buxton, baritone vocalist; Leo D'Alvar, gymnast; Hilda De Grey, Tyrolean vocalist; and Pat O'Connor, comedian and dancer.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—Marie Lloyd, the top star here, is exceptionally successful in a fine répertoire of songs; John Lawson and company in Pigs in Clover are also prominent, but the piece lacks grip. Neat and enjoyable turns are added by Millie Hylton, in her latest successes; Harry Grey, the Australian nugget; Billy French, a wonderful dancer; Olive Armidale, a dainty soubrette; Les Voces, accomplished singers; and the Sisters Grovini, in drawing-room acrobatics. On Monday Boyd and Gilfain, comedy artists, successfully deputised for Tennyson and Wallis, who were indisposed.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—The programme here this week is one of all-round excellence. Mike S. Whallen, the comet with many tales, is entertaining, as usual; dainty Madge Crighton, the popular musical comedy artist, sings several taking songs; Mendel, the blind pianist, gives his marvellous performance; the Gandsmidts are well received in their novel comedy acrobatic act; and Syd May is particularly good in his imitations, especially his wrestling skit. Excellent dancing is done by Frances McNulty and by Mabel Fairchild in scena A Belfry Dream, and La Danseuse in scena Santa Claus. Frank Maura, the expert foot equilibrist, repeats his wonderful act; Edith A'Vard plays well on the violin; and Boyd and Gilfain give a delightful turn. Algy's Yachting Party on the Bioscope is vastly amusing.

Palace. — Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Manager, Mr. Fred Leighton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. J. Carter.—A capital programme here this week is headed by Chas. Austin's problematical production, Parker, P.C., a concoction of comedy and comicalities; and T. E. Dunville, the popular eccentric comedian. T. E. Finglas gives a selection from his excellent coon sketches; Dave Carter, the Irish tenor, sings extraordinarily well; Herbert Rule, comedian, is well received; and the speciality of Hanvarr and Lee, The Golfer and the Maid, is a highly enjoyable item. Other good turns are added by Sarah Berry, an accomplished vocalist with a beautiful voice; the Four Sisters Victoria, instrumentalists; and Flo Cecil, comedienne and dancer.

Tivoli. — Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—J. G. Grahame and Zarline Harrington top the bill here this week in their highly effective episode A Daughter of Pleasure. Seeley and Rhodesia are good in a speciality act of juggling and music; G. W. Hunter is entertaining, as usual, with song and up-to-date patter; Fred Poweric and company are seen to advantage in a melo-dramatic playlet An Unfinished Symphony; Bowman and Morton are capital musical comedy artists; and Ruby Emmerson is a pleasing comedienne. Other smart turns are offered by Stuart and Evans, patter comedians; Alice Lingard, refined comedienne; J. H. Ellis, eccentric comedian; and Kitty Baughton, comedienne, with good songs. Ruffell's Bioscope pictures complete.

King's, Longsight.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. James R. Trippett.—A return visit of Her Nameless Child to Manchester audiences was welcomed here on Monday. Mrs. Sam Duckworth's company have the play in hand, and it is presented twice nightly with success. The principal parts are in the safe hands of Mr. J. W. Evelyn and Miss Pattie Hastings; while Mr. Larry Clements and Miss Renie Douglas are responsible for the humour.

Queen's Park Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Meek.—Sydney Mason and Therisa Moore, ably assisted by H. Russell and Syd Leslie and company, are to the front here this week in a dramatic episode entitled The Usurer, which is exceedingly well played. Signor and Madame Borelli are entertaining, as usual, their cat chorus being exceedingly funny. The Lovelaces are pleasing song illustrators; A. E. Clifford, versatile vocalist, sings well; Ada Parker is a charming juvenile singer and dancer; Geo. Acre, character vocalist, takes well; and Frank E. Ford gains great applause for smart clog-dancing. A Fisherman's Daughter and the Manx Motor Racing are shown on the Bioscope.

Hulme Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; General-Manager, Mr. H. Winstanley.—Miss Ada Colley, the well-known top-note singer, tops the bill here this week, and is accorded a great reception; Atlas and Vulcana, together with the Sisters Atlas, are graceful and finished athletes, and their turn is exceedingly fine; W. G. Webber, bass vocalist, has a good voice, and makes a decided hit; whilst others who provide good items are Cecilia Gold, burlesque artist; Forest and King, comedy acrobatic dancers; Three Sisters Tree, in a refined act Hunting; Lavelle Brothers, acrobatic comedians; Jack Waller, versatile comedian; Satani, in scena of magical surprises; and Daleno and Stream, comedians and dancers. The Masher on the Bioscope is funny.

Rusholme Pavilion.—Proprietor, Mr. Harry Leslie; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. Phillips.—Dick Tubb, who heads the bill here this week, is highly amusing; and Dick Thomas makes a hit as a Welsh comedian. Norman Osborne is a capital ventriloquist; Charles North, vocalist, has a good voice; Jessie Buckle, a pleasing comedienne, takes well; Lincoln Taylor, light comedian, is popular; and Bill Bailey is entertaining at the piano.

MANSFIELD. — Grand Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Capt. Clayton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Mark Lorne.—Mr. T. Edward Ward's company is here in The Love of the Princess. Mr. Wilson Coleman is an interesting Prince Conrad; Miss Nellie Garside a charming Irene; Princess Idalia is capitally portrayed by Miss Maisy Hanbury; and Miss Helen Elmar is successful as Constantia. Count Nicholas is well sustained by Mr. Imeson; and Mr. Edgar Morgan is a comical Boris. Messrs. Bould and George Antley are both excellent as Lieut. Orlans and Duke Scarfe.

Victoria Hall.—Lessee, Mr. A. Fox.—The Victoria pictures are again the chief feature here, and Hall and Bromley, comedy duo, complete a pleasing entertainment.

MARGATE.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr Edward Michael; General-Manager, Mr. W. W. Keene.—The Wife and the Woman, a play with a purpose, by Tom Craven, was played here on Monday evening, and has been repeated the rest of the week with success. Mr. W. Edwyn Holloway as William Fulcroft appears to advantage; and Miss Rita Trekelle also plays admirably as Helen Fulcroft. Miss B. Honnett as Nurse Whitmore, Miss Dorothy Hullah as Mrs. Patrick Newton, and Miss Jessie Lotillian as Miss Amelia Asa are good in their respective parts; and the comedy element is made the most of by Mr. A. C. Thornhill as Dick Filter and Miss F. Reckmound as Alice Inkleden, the servants.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessees, the South Wales Entertainments, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Albert Jackson.—Hardie and Von Leer's company in Two Little Vagabonds is here. Miss Chrissie Francess and Miss Ethel Frances Green as Dick and Wally present smart and effective performances; Miss Dora Frank Harvey is tactful as Marion Thornton; Miss Ethel Lodge gives a fine sketch of Biddy Mullins; Barbara Scarth has a good exponent in Miss Leonora Castelle; Mr. George Denham plays George Thornton in a manly and convincing manner; Mr. Harry Reynolds displays ability as John Scarth; Mr. Herbert Russell makes a capital Bill Mullins; and Dido Bunch and the Coughdrop are ably embodied by Mr. F. Litchfield, jun., and Mr. Hal Charlton.

Temperance Hall.—Manager, Mr. Israel Price.—A well-played sketch, A Daughter of the Revolution, is presented here by Miss Georgette Thierry and

METHIL.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Methil Theatre Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Sydney Arnold.—Mr. Morton Powell's company is this week presenting The Woman Who Gambles. Miss Laura Walker as the Countess Natalie Steinbach plays a difficult part with marked success; Mr. Clifford Rean is seen to advantage as Count Otto Steinbach; Mr. Norman A. Overton gives an excellent portrayal of the unscrupulous Baron Cratzlaw; Mr. Reginald Fox as Lieutenant Ctzartoriski is remarkably good; Miss E. Conway's rendering of Cora Gouldhart is much appreciated; and Miss Brenda May is a capital Zanette. The remaining parts, in a long cast, are capably played. The scenery and dresses are elaborate. Some capital films are shown on the Gaietyscope.

MEXBOROUGH.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—Mr. E. H. Knight's company is this week presenting The Lighthouse Robbery. Mr. Hy. Herne submits an intelligent and thoughtful rendering of Tom Manly; Mr. Percy Beresford is vigorous as James Hammond; a fine character-study of Uncle Davie is presented by Mr. Herbert Lewis; Mr. William Annesley does well as William Farren; Miss Hilda Baynton plays with charm and grace as the heroine, Rose Prescott; Miss Ida Millais is sympathetic as Mrs. Manly. Sparkling comedy is provided by Mr. Sammy Foster (Sam Kidder) and Miss Maggie Stewart (Ruth).

NEW PICTURE HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. Will Hunter. —Manager, Mr. E. H. Jones.—Capital pictures this week include Wreck of H.M.S. Gladiator, Victim of Science, Mexican Love Story, Water Babies, Collecting Postcards, Wonderful Mirrors, Clown's Love Story, &c.

MIDDLESBROUGH.—OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Jno. Ed. Jowsey; Manager, Mr. W. Ker Chatto.—Miss Violet Osmund and her company is presenting the musical play The Belle of the Ball. Miss Florence Somers in the part of Poppy proves a delightful comedienne; Mr. Robert Hyett is well suited in the character of Sir Francis Lake; Miss Ethel Bertram as Alice and Miss Corona L'Estrange as Mary are diverting; and Mr. E. W. Chawd as James Foster is responsible for a good impersonation. Miss Vera Graffon is charming as Lucy; Miss Flora Morris as Queenie Trevor does well; Mr. Chas. Adison is excellent as Farmer Jones; and Mr. Johnnie Schofield, jun., is amusing as Bobbie Fletcher. The success of the piece, however, is mainly due to Mr. Johnnie Schofield, who as Timothy Timkins keeps the audience convulsed with laughter from beginning to end. Some graceful dancing is given by Miss Rosie Wade as Little Red Riding Hood and Miss Mary Hawthorne as San Toi.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Chas. Imeson.—Mr. Charles Hawtrey's company occupies the boards here this week in the comedy Dear Old Charlie. The play is well staged, and an abundance of fun causes a continuous ripple of laughter. The title-rôle is taken in delightful fashion by Mr. George Lestocq, and Mr. C. Douglas Cox gives a lifelike impersonation of Gabriel Peploe. The character of Thomas Dumphie is well sustained by Mr. R. S. Trelawny, Colonel Fishbourne is adequately represented by Mr. Duncan Young; Miss Enid G. Forde makes a charming Agnes; Miss Leonora Braham is admirable as Mrs. Fishbourne; and Mr. Stanley Arthur as Punkitt, Mr. G. Smythe as the florist's boy, and Miss Viola Holland as Reeve are all that can be desired.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Brill; Manager, Mr. Charles G. Rembges.—Charcot provides the star turn here this week, and completely mystifies the audiences with his automatic man; Starr and Leslie give a clever exhibition of club swinging; Monti Conway causes much laughter with his humorous songs; and a smart display is given by the Czar's Russian troupe of dancers. Dottridge and Foster's company provide an amusing sketch entitled Ferdie's Ma-in-Law; Eve is appearing in a series of artistic poses; and other popular turns are those of Mlle. Pollo and Grace Gray.

HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Manager, Mr. A. E. Nicholls.—The charming La Milo gives her beautiful and artistic statuary performance; Drew and Alders create roars of laughter; Conway and Ieland are a pair of wonderful one-legged clowns; the Florodoras provide a pleasing song-scena; Cruikshanks, the lightning caricaturist, is well received; and Jessie Storr, Will Cornish, Charles Russell, and Mulvey and Miriam also do well.

OXFORD.—Proprietor, Mr. Alfred Graham; Manager, Mr. French.—Walker and Lake's comedians cause much laughter here this week; Edna Latonne is a clever male impersonator; the Sisters Marion, two clever little vocalists, win high approval; Sterling and Cashen give a pleasing dancing turn; and Ben Harris and his nippers do well in a varied act. Ada Varley, Leo and Jerry, Jack Hayton, and a laughable barrel boxing competition complete a capital programme.

MOTHERWELL.—NEW CENTURY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Hales.—Mr. Walter Melville's company is paying a return visit in The Soldier's Wedding. Mr. Wingold Lawrence is manly and convincing as Jack Brown; Mr. Beresford Whitcomb's interpretation of the rôle of Colonel Graham is deserving of commendation; Mr. Gerald Jordan aptly portrays the unscrupulous Charles Courtney; David Munroe, the deceived husband, is finely played by Mr. Frederick Biron; and an excellent bit of character acting is provided by Fred Yarnold as the old farmer Nathaniel Lee. Nancy Lee is prettily played by Miss Dorothy Richardson; Miss Mabel Lowe is altogether excellent as Peggy Munroe; and special mention should be made of Miss Marie McAuly for her restraint as Julie. The comedy business is capably exploited by Messrs. Chippendale and Abbot, together with Miss Mattie Everett.

NEW BRIGHTON.—WINTER GARDENS.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Jones and Douglass.—Another good programme is presented here. Mr. Barry Lindon, basso, is nightly receiving enthusiastic applause; Mr. Cuthbert Rose proves himself a refined and clever humorist; the dogs introduced by Mr. Percy Victor show excellent training; the Lauri Bros. as hand-balancers go through a pleasing performance; and Mr. Carlo Rosan, Continental vocalist, Milner and Storey, in a vocal and dancing interlude, and Miss Vera Mayne, vocalist, complete the programme. The animated pictures are, as usual, of the best.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Teale Lingham.—The welcome reappearance of Mr. Fred Terry and company in the ever-popular Scarlet Pimpernel was received with the greatest enthusiasm on Monday evening. Mr. Terry gave his own inimitable rendering of that strangely complex character Sir Percy Blakeney, and was frequently called upon to acknowledge the warm applause of the delighted audience. In the absence of Miss Julia Neilson, Miss Miriam Lewes plays the part of Lady Blakeney. Her portrayal of this difficult character is an unqualified success, and her acting throughout is marked by a fine dramatic force, which greatly impressed the "house." Chauvelin, the French Government spy, receives most effective treatment by Mr. Horace Hodges, while Mr. J. Carter Edwards is responsible for a realistic study of Brogard, the innkeeper; quite successful, too, are the personations of Mr. Alfred Kendrick as Sir Andrew Ffoulkes, Mr. Malcolm Cherry as Lord Anthony Dewhurst, Mr. A. E. Anson as the Prince of Wales, and Miss Claire Paunceforte and Miss Kathleen Doyle as the Comtesse and Susanne de Tournai respectively. On Thursday Henry of Navarre was produced.

TYNE THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessees, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham; Manager, Mr. Fred C. Sutcliffe.—Mr. Charles M. Bestic's company in The Flower Girl is paying a return visit here. Mr. Martin Adeson is seen to advantage as Joe Wheeler; Mr. Alfred Donohoe is most amusing as Johnny Wheeler; and in the part of Reginald Racket Mr. Norman Bowyer has a part which suits him admirably, his dancing being very smart. Mr. Henry Adnes's portraiture of Alphonse de Racquist is highly successful; whilst Miss Dorothy Firmin is charming and bright in the part of Lily, (the flower girl). Miss Jeannie Holmes ably impersonates Miss Greenhill (a Suffragette), and Miss Florence Wilton proves an attractive Lizette de Racquist.

PALACE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. T. W. Rowe.—Miss Marie Dagmar and company, in the famous drama The Tyrant, is the attraction here. Miss Marie Dagmar is undoubtedly the success of the piece. Mr. Roy Fortescue gives a fine representation of Angelo (the tyrant), and Miss Margaret Frame is responsible for a capital study of the part of Lady Katherine; whilst Mr. Edward E. Louis's portrayal of Rudolph is manly and engaging. Equally good also is the impersonation of Homodei by Mr. James Sydney Pitt.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. F. W. Bolam.—A Message from Mars is presented here this week by Mr. Fredk. Mouillot's company, and is proving a great draw. As the Messenger from Mars Mr. William H. Brougham gives a finished portrayal, and Mr. Wallace Widdicombe as Horace Parker is equally successful; Miss Rose Helene is sweet and natural as Parker's sweetheart; and other leading rôles are ably sustained.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Resident-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Manager, Mr. W. Parham Wells.—The chief attraction of a well-balanced programme is Albert Whelan, the Australian entertainer, who is responsible for a most pleasing and interesting series of "impressions" of various prominent artists; Mr. Fred Ginnet's company in the sketch Dick Turpin, in which is included the famous mare "Black Bess," proves a great attraction, and Lottie Lennox sings in her usual spirited style several tuneful and catchy refrains, which are quickly taken up by the house. The Egbert Bros., the jolly dustmen, cause any amount of merriment in their clever and amusing knockabout turn, whilst Maggie Walsh, the Lancashire singing mill girl, renders several songs in a most taking manner. The Brothers Corcoran, musical shipbuilders, Hartley Wonders in a jumping speciality, and Harry Lawson, eccentric comedian, all contribute good turns, and the Bioscope completes.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thos. Barrasford; Manager, Mr. W. H. Boardman.—Mrs. Lewis Waller and company in The Admiral's Lady contribute the chief item here this week, and other artists appearing are Hinton and Wooton, Willie Gardner, Wilton, Heriot and company, G. S. Melvin, Lyons Trio, and Ed. E. Ford.

NEWPORT.—LYCEUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sidney Cooper.—Mr. Mouillot's company is commanding good houses here this week with the comic opera Tom Jones, which is brilliantly performed throughout. As Tom Jones Mr. Cyril Thompson charmed everyone with his magnificent singing; Miss Alice Moffatt, sweet and dainty, sings excellently in the part of Sophia Western; Miss Olive Eltone, who acts admirably, is a fascinating Lady Bellaston; and Miss Florrie Saunders as Honour, the maid, dances prettily. Mr. A. J. Nicholls well represents Mr. Allworthy; Blifil is capitally impersonated by Mr. A. H. Majilton; and Mr. Fred Seymour gives an amusing character study of Squire Western. Mr. Geo. Elton does justice to the part of Partridge; Messrs. Michael Dwyer, Cyril Lane, and Harry Courten are amusing as Western's servants; and Miss Marie Rogers and Miss F. McAvoy are excellent exponents of Hostess of the Inn at Upton and Miss Western respectively. The scenery is particularly attractive, and the dresses gorgeous.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. O. Stoll.—Alf. Chester is as popular as ever; Lily Langtry is accorded warm recognition; and Ernie Mayne, the thin comedian, creates roars of laughter. Nellie Wallace, an eccentric comedy artist, is distinctly original, earning marked appreciation; the Mayvilles are interesting; the Ten-ji Troupe provide a sensational turn in juggling; and Dutch Daly amuses with his patter. The Bioscope shows some good films.

NORTHAMPTON.—NEW PALACE THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Director, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Manager, Mr. Thos. A. Evans; Musical-Director, Mr. Walter Ashton.—Raie Walters, a chic comedienne, is doing well here; the juggling act of the Wallys is popular; those well-known comic opera artists Fancourt and Ruby are highly applauded in their musical duo "The Huntsman and the Waiter"; Kirk and Saraski, aquatic acrobats, in their electric aquarium, do a very pretty turn; the Beeasco Trio are successful in dancing and harmonised singing; Sylvene, assisted by Mlle. Florence, gives a strong equilibristic show; Bob Jones, female impersonator; Amos Howard, American dancing comedian, and Harry Vane, chorus vocalist, also provide good variety entertainment. The Palace Pictures provide a grotesquely humorous film The Living Blackboard, full of comical surprises.

NORTH SHIELDS. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—A Girl's Cross Roads has been presented here this week by Mr. Walter Melville's capable company. As Barbara Wade Miss Hilda Beverley gives an excellent portrayal; Miss Nita Langford as Nellie Meadows acts with marked ability; Miss Dorothy Hildebrande is appreciated as Constance Cornell; and Miss Daisy Meynard makes a smart Tilly Vane. John Meadows finds a capital exponent in Mr. Charles Franmore; Mr. Jack Fortescue as Jack Livingstone gives a masterly representation; Mr. Edward Chester proves a capable Cuthbert Lumley; Mr. Edward Valentine acquits himself satisfactorily as Doctor Watson; and Mr. Fred Hobson is an amusing Toby Turvy.

CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Wm. Monkl.—The star turn here is Miss Mabel Thorne, the popular comedienne, who has had a hearty reception; Mr. Ned Graydon, comedy instrumentalist, has also made a hit; and Miss Adeline Yohne and company, in their musical sketch, Difficulties, are much enjoyed. Mr. Tom Thelma and Miss Cissie Groves, in A Lady Sculptor, are well received; Messrs. Melford and Mars, comedy artists, are clever; Mr. Harry Blake, eccentric comedian, is funny; and the Mouldoscope is as much appreciated as ever.

NORTHWICH.—CENTRAL THEATRE.—Proprietress, Mrs. S. Golden; Secretary, Miss E. Golden.—An Abandoned Woman is being played here by Mr. Harry Foxwell's company. Mr. Herbert M. King gives an excellent rendering of Capt. Herbert Seaton; Mr. W. Fraser-Brunner as Phillipe Malvoisin plays the part well; Mr. Arthur Curzon does ably as Robert Saunders; Mr. Victor Garnet-Vayne presents a life-like study of Sammy Sharp; and Mr. Teddy Myles convulses the audience by his humorous interpretation of Paddy Boyle. Miss Queenie Fraser-Brunner is droll as Sally Sloper; Eleanor Deane is charmingly played by Miss Lily Annesley; and Miss Nellie Thorne-Hallam gives a forceful representation of Ninon Malvoisin.

PAVILION.—Proprietress, Mrs. P. E. Fletcher; Manager, Mr. Towyn Thomas.—Mr. Alf Pasemore is highly amusing here, and Dorothy Knit, singer and dancer, is appreciated; Lydia Raie, banjo queen, does a delightful turn; Norman and Belle are entertaining artists; Bert Bell is a good comedian; Rennie Hurst is a clever serio; Barrie and Wood are smart comedy artists and clever acrobatic dancers; and Raffell's Bioscope pictures are still very entertaining.

NORWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Morgan.—Mr. Morton Powell's company is here this week, presenting The Mystery of Edwin Drood. Mr. Bartlett Garth as John Jasper is most successful. Mr. Ridgway Thorne is good as Edwin Drood; Mr. J. Henry Twyford does well as Neville Landless; Mr. David Phillips as Durdles creates much amusement; and Mr. Richard Harris deserves mention as Septimus Crisparkle; Mrs. Morton Powell charmingly acts the part of Rosa Bird; and Miss May Beatrice is good as Helena Landless. The other characters are suitably filled, and the play effectively staged.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. Councillor F. W. Fitt.—Lady Mansel and her juveniles are much appreciated here this week, and their singing and dancing applauded; Harry Ford, comedian, is quite a favourite, and exceedingly droll; Roma and Romana display high art as musicians; Picton Roxborough and Fanny Wright are amusing in their "tabloid," "My little ones"; Lettie and Florence are neat duettists and dancers; the Haverleys as song-illustrators are a good turn; the Lorrisons are very successful; and Minnie de Aubyn is a pleasing vocalist; the Hippo. Bio. is attractive.

NOTTINGHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—The Gay Gordons, now on its first visit here, is attracting large audiences. Miss Zena Dare as Peggy is most charming; Mr. Stanley Brett is well suited in the part of Angus; Mr. Edward Lewis, ably assisted by Mr. Wilfred Norman and Miss Nellie Dade, successfully support the fun of the piece; Miss Madge Vincent secures ample recognition by her singing and dancing in the rôle of Victoria Siddons; Mr. Ernest Torrence makes an assertive American millionaire; and in the small part of Corporal Smith Mr. Paul Plunkett does well. Miss Eugenie Vernie capably portrays the character of Janet McLeod, and Miss Ada Fraser plays Lady Millicent Graeme in a restrained but excellent manner. The eccentric dancing of Mr. J. Sims Woolley as Jack McPhriskey is very enjoyable.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Harry Upton.—Mr. Roland Yorke's company is giving a really interesting representation of The Old Home. The kindliness and benevolent nature of Daddy Dean is capitally drawn by Mr. Harding Thomas, and Miss Nina Blake Adams makes a delightfully fresh exponent of Hazle Dean; Mr. T. W. Dunscombe plays with force as the Rev. Eric Armstrong, and of the villainous rôle of Lord Avondale Mr. Roland Yorke gives a thoroughly convincing interpretation. As Bridget Donoghan humour comes from the lips of Mrs. J. W. Braithwaite with ease and volubility; Miss Mattie Crawford is amusing as Polly Popp; and Mr. Fred L. Connynghame looks the typical breezy longshoreman.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert C. Duncan.—The jokes and witticisms of Mark Sheridan are rattled off with freedom and ease; a dramatic episode entitled A Royal Heart finds instant favour, as presented by Miss Margaret Omar and Messrs. Scott Craven, Chris Walker, Frederick James, and A. Corney Grain; an amusing performance is that of Maud Rochez's monkeys, which show decided cleverness and intelligence; the skilful acrobatic cycling of the Dunedin Troupe compels appreciative applause; and a musical act by the Four Jumels is both interesting and clever. The Coloured Meisters are accorded a gratifying reception, and Leonie Dixon proves an able exponent of dancing. Will Dacey and Nellie Lewis give a smart comedy act, while Little Keeno does well as a dancer and the Bioscope shows excellent films.

ROYAL HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. V. Carnell.—Nothing more astonishing has been presented to a Nottingham audience than the amazing illusions of the great Lafayette, whose versatility seems unbounded. The ventriloquial entertainment of Fred Russell, Horace and Olga's troupe of dogs and cats, the Van Host Trio in smart acrobatic feats, and the comedy element so well represented by Rosie Lloyd, Alf Lytton, and Dave O'Toole are among the attractions. The Barrascope pictures are also entertaining.

NUNEATON.—PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Joseph Coyle.—Mr. F. R. Benson's North Shakespearean company is paying its annual visit here this week with The Taming of the Shrew, The Merchant of Venice, The Merry Wives of Windsor, Richard the Third, Faust, Hamlet, and Julius Cæsar. The house was well filled on Monday night for The Taming of the Shrew. Mr. Henry Herbert as Petruchio was seen to advantage; Mr. James Berry as Baptista was well suited; Mr. Bernard Limpus made a capital Lucentio; Mr. Fernley Bishopp as Vincentio and Mr. Victor Wiltshire as Gremio, played their respective parts exceedingly well; and the rendering of Biondello by Mr. Vincent Holman created much amusement. Miss Gladys Vanderzee as the shrewish Katherine was vigorous and natural; and Miss Violet Farebrother made a charming Bianca. The other parts were all well filled; and the dressing and mounting were first rate.

OLDHAM.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hulme. —The Christian opened here to large audiences, and Mr. Wentworth Croke's company has been heartily welcomed. Miss Doris Gilham in the part of Glory Quayle meets with much appreciation; Miss Sinna St. Clair acts in a clever manner as Mrs. Callender; Miss Margaret Brodie is excellent as Polly Love, and Miss Violet St. Clair is dainty as Jennie; Mr. Henry Renouf is a most capable and painstaking John Storm; Mr. Geo. R. Mountford as Lord Robert Ure and Mr. Oswald Marshall as Horatio Drake are both capital studies; Mr. Edwin Ling is a convincing Father Lamplugh, and Mr. Arthur E. Maskell as Parson Quayle is a success; Lord Storm is well acted by Mr. E. R. Hollway; Mr. C. Dickens as Rosenberg, and Mr. John Coghlan as Paul are very good.

COLOSSEUM THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr. Wm. Eastwood.—Married to the Wrong Man, a drama which has not been here before, has been drawing large crowds to this popular house, and Mr. Fredk. Melville's company fully deserve their success. Miss Gertrude Boswell is heartily applauded for her splendid acting as Ruth; Miss Mary Pemberton is a most delightful Rose O'Connor; Misses Rosalie Notrelle as Nurse Manners and Violet Vincent as Mother Snaggs are both very good; Miss May Davis as Dolly Fritter and Mr. Syd Claydon as Timothy Clinker are responsible for smart comedy; Mr. O. Cray is a manly Jack Gladwin, his enemy, Captain Dering, being ably enacted by Mr. H. Lane Bayliff; Sergeant Manners makes a smart soldier as acted by Mr. Ray Raymond; Mr. Chas. ivian cleverly portrays the part of Jasper Skinner; Mr. Paige Lawrence as Archie Bird also does well.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. H. Kilrow.—George Lashwood is delighting large houses with his capital singing; W. C. Fields, the juggler par excellence, is highly appreciated; the Bros. De Wynne are smart, refined acrobats; a laughable sketch, The Broken Statue, is very amusing as played by Chas. Harvey and company; the Bros. Dean present a very good dancing turn, and Edith Fink sings some capital songs very well; Master May, boy vocalist, is well received; and a good comedy acrobatic act is presented by the Havana troupe. The Dottoscope concludes with a good film, The Gipsy Model.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Nuttall.—John Dixon is a most amusing eccentric comedian; Frantz's Comedy Fire are good in an up-to-date novelty, The Human Motor-car; the King's College Boys provide excellent harmony; Fraser and French introduce some capital rag-time dancing, and Bert Woodward, coon cyclist, performs smartly; Victor and Louis are good refined comedians and vocalists, and Valvo does well as a ventriloquist; Nick Carter, Detective, is presented by the Dottoscope with success.

CENTRAL HALL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Lester King.—At this hall this week (which was recently opened under the above management) the Franco-British new animated pictures continue to find favour, and matinées on Mondays, Tuesdays, and Saturdays are well patronised. Mr. F. Walker sings "Sing me to sleep" (illustrated), and the pictures include Organ Grinder's Daughter, Detectives Fritt and Flock, Banana Industry, Killing Remorse, Poor Doggy, Living Blackbird, Nick Carter, Detective, Amorous Nurse, and His First Experiment in Chemistry.

OXFORD. — NEW THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. C. C. Dorrill; Assistant-Manager, Mr. G. T. Lucas.—The latter half of last week Mr. B. Iden Payne's company gave most interesting performances of Candida, Widowers' Houses, and the Hippolytus of Euripides, and the reception given the last play by a densely-crowded house showed that the undergraduates appreciate good plays when presented as Mr. Payne's company presents them. This week Mr. George Dance is drawing packed and highly enthusiastic houses with Miss Hook of Holland, admirably played by the competent company. Mr. T. A. Shale fairly revels in the humorous part of Mr. Hook, and scores heavily right through the play; he is admirably supported by Mr. Tom Seymour, a droll Simon Slinks; by Mr. Frank Crimp, who sings delightfully and acts agreeably as the Bandmaster; and by Mr. George Mudie, jun., as Ludwig Schnapps—a bright performance. Miss Alice Coverick is a dainty and pleasing Sally, whose singing and acting are much to the taste of her audience; Miss Cissie Sephton scores heavily as Mina, her petticoat song being demanded again and again, while her clever dancing meets with due recognition; Miss Pattie Lennard is a handsome and pleasing Gretchen; and a strong and tuneful chorus adds much to the enjoyment and success of Miss Hook.

EAST OXFORD THEATRE.—Lessees, East Oxford Theatre Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Frank Stuart.—Mr. J. A. Campbell's company is here with The Little Breadwinner.—Mr. H. B. Peppin makes an excellent Lord William Dorrington; and Mr. Alfred Maurice is most successful as the hero, Richard Lawrence. Mr. Alfred Maurice is a typical villain as Joseph Prior; and Mr. Sidney Lynn supplies a fund of merriment and quaint humour as Charles Prior. Miss May Richardson is graceful as Margaret Daventry; Miss Clara Hunt is very natural as Bridget O'Flanagan; and Miss Millie Ford is a great success as Kate Cherry. Miss Kitty Melville makes a vivacious Ruth Cherry; Miss Lister Young is bright as Bobby Trott; and Little Winnie Crisp scores high honours as Meg, "the Little Bread-Winner."

PAISLEY.—PAISLEY THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—For the first three nights of the week Mr. Charles Frohman presented The Hypocrites. Mr. H. Lawrence Leyton contributed a fine piece of acting in the character of the Rev. Edgar Linnell; Mr. Charles Harley distinguished himself by an effective embodiment of Mr. Viveash; Mr. Alfred S. Barber was well suited to the rôle of Mr. Winmore; Leonard Wilmore was intelligently played by Mr. King Fordham; Mr. Cecil Brooking was seen to advantage as the Rev. Everard Daubeney; Mr. Sydney Hamilton impersonated Sir John Plugenet with ability; Dr. Blaney was faithfully portrayed by Mr. Hanworth Browning; and Mr. Douglas Jefferies was capital as Goodyer. Miss Amy Ravenscroft was responsible for an excellent presentment of Mrs. Wilmore; of the misguided Rachel Neve a sympathetic rendering was given by Miss Gladys Harvey; Miss Gladys Purnell was a refreshing Helen Plugenet; a characteristic embodiment of Mrs. Blaney was submitted by Miss Florence Steventon; Miss Grete Hahn gave a sweet rendering of Mrs. Linnell; and Patty was ably accounted for by Miss Violet Harley. Mr. Lawrence Brough and company in The Lady of Ostend were billed for the last three nights of the week.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Stead.—J. F. Elliston presents a funny sketch, The Art of Deception, in which Shuan Glenville, comedian, is seen to advantage; the Three Fidardys, acrobatic specialty performers, are smart and clever; Marguerite Ismay and her white coons contribute an entertaining vocal and dancing scena; Yangar, a West African illusionist, displays ability and dexterity; Daisy Mayer in her coon impersonations shows distinct merit; Arthur Woodville is a versatile comedian and dancer; Ormond Penstone and Mlle. San-Go contribute an illusionist pot-pourri full of novelties; Sheila McNeil, Scotch comedy artist, is very entertaining, and the Bioscope completes the bill.

PEMBROKE DOCK.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Tom Barger; Business-Manager, Mr. Norman Barger.—Large crowds are being attracted this week by Mr. Lingford Carson's company. On Monday the stirring drama The Heart of a Hero was presented. The title-rôle, Jem Readale (a Lancashire lad), is in the capable hands of Mr. E. J. Fare, a powerful and realistic actor. The two brothers Mark and Wilfred Marl are well characterised by Mr. J. P. Lallen and Mr. James Mailey; Jack Collinson, a young engineer, is ably enacted by Mr. Frank Kelland; Mr. Cuthbert Taylor gains much admiration as David Pritchard, a detective; Mr. David Donaldson proves himself a capital actor as an old miser; Mr. J. Harold as Chief of Police is very good. Plenty of fun is provided by Mr. Will White and Miss Frances Ferns in the respective parts of Timothy Heighno and Susie Slack; Miss Emma Rainbow is excellent as Mrs. Barker, and praise is due to Miss Madge Steeple and Miss Mabel Fare as Nell Resdale and May Ryder. For Thursday and Friday The Modern Adventuress was billed, and for Saturday My Mother: God bless Her! was announced.

PENTRE.—TIVOLI PALACE AND HIPPODROME, LTD.—Manager, Mr. C. W. Poole; Resident-Manager, Mr. James Gunn.—Menotti in his great cycling act is the chief attraction here this week.

WORKMEN'S HALL.—Secretary, Mr. Dd. Davies.—Together with a fine series of animated pictures the Brothers Curran, in their comedy boxing and wrestling acts, prove a great attraction.

DRILL HALL.—Secretary, Major W. J. Jones.—Miss Inez Howard's company is here this week in Driven from Home, and is received by large and appreciative audiences.

PERTH.—THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Aldridge.—Mr. Lawrence Brough's company presented The Lady of Ostend for the first three evenings of this week. Mr. Lawrence Brough as the Baron showed cleverness; Mr. Aubrey Cheshire was an effective Dick Whortles, Mr. Tom Mowbray a successful Joseph Carbury, Mr. William Macready a humorous Toby Knockitt, Mr. Hewson Elliott a good John Humbert, and Mr. W. Mayne Lynton as Thomson the clerk and Mr. Harry Collier as James the butler rendered capable support. Miss Maud Buchanan made a captivating Lady of Ostend, Miss Betty Park a charming Dorothy Whortles, Miss Edith Anderson an effective Jane, Miss Bessie Harrison a capital Matilda, and Miss Alice Leigh an excellent Millie. Mr. Charles Frohman's company in The Hypocrites occupied the Theatre during the latter half of the week.

PETERBOROUGH.—NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Fred Karno and A. H. Edwards; Manager, Mr. Frank Gallagher.—Graham's Juveniles are appearing here this week, and are awarded a hearty reception. Other good turns are Frank Seeley, the popular comedian; Cissie Thompson, dainty comedienne; Ted Saunders, king of mimicry; the Three Panamas, in their clever pot-pourri act; Barney Stuart, character actor-vocalist and mimic; and Diamond and Hart, speciality vocal comedians, patterers, and dancers.

PLYMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—Miss Hook of Holland, on a return visit, is doing excellent business. Miss Marie Wilson's acting and singing of the title-rôle are admirable; Mr. Fred Lyne gives a funny version of Simon Slink; Mr. Powis Pinder, a fine Van Vuyt, sets the house humming his tuneful march; Mr. Arthur Reynolds is particularly amusing as Hook, and Mr. Frederick Hobbs is a first-rate Capt. Adrian Paap. Miss Mabel Sealby as Mina renders her clever patter-song "A little pink petti from Peter" with all her former vivacity, and Miss Queenie Preston is fascinating as Gretchen.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. Jack Field.—The Royal Tokio company, the accomplished Japanese performers, are the principal attraction here. L'Incognita, the masked vocalist, is responsible for some charming contributions; Randolph King in his quick-change scena presents cleverly a number of different characters; Ted Curtis and his piccaninnies earn popular approval; Bert and Dora, comedy artists, have an attractive number; Phil Rees' stable lads furnish an original contribution, and Flo Hilton is a successful male impersonator. George Lawrence (comedian) and Vernon's bioscope complete the programme.

PONTEFRACT.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Tom Diacoff.—The sensation of the week here is Miss Ella's group of forest-bred lions, which that lady puts through various performances. She has reduced these animals to the docility of the domestic "tabby," and treats them in a manner one would use with that pet. The Three Firmans introduce a distinct novelty into their pantomimic triple-bar show, and the lady is a decided acquisition to the clever act; Charles Cassell and Jack Heath are comedians who can both put roars of laughter to their credit; whilst Theodore Jones, in a picturesque setting, sings of the ways of the highwayman. Miss Babs Lloyd and Miss Daisy Silcott in their respective turns sing and dance charmingly; Harvey and Holt are an exceedingly funny couple; Yorkshire Tom has a marvellous faculty of mimicry, and the fidelity of all his illustrations is enthusiastically acknowledged. The pictures shown by the Bioscope maintain their popularity.

PONTYPRIDD.—Royal Clarence Theatre.—Owners and Proprietors, Messrs. Trenchard and Jones; Manager, Mr. Charles Trenchard.—The attraction this week is Mr. Frank M. Thorne's company in The Woman Pays. Micky Maloney is capably portrayed by Mr. Thorne; Sid Armstrong is in the able hands of Mr. Phil Harper; Roger Marchant receives full justice at the hands of Mr. John Davidson; Cyrus Treadgold is ably assumed by Mr. Beresford Innes; Mr. Dunlop Stewart successfully portrays Mr. Luke Morland; Mrs. S. Forteous is good as Nurse Agnes; Miss Florence Thorne as Tibatha could not be improved upon; and Polly Stokes is ably characterised by Miss Anena Walton.

PORTH.—The Palace, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. C. W. Poole; Manager, Mr. Walter Bynorth.—The bill here this week is excellent. The Four Maisanos, eccentric musical specialists, give a most creditable turn; Cora Caselli, comedienne, is a good dancer; Vando, with his ventriloquial entertainment extracts much fun; Violet Gibson and company, vocalists and dancers, are well received; Eldra gives satisfaction in his performance, being assisted by the famous dog Prince; Jack Kylton is a capable eccentric comedian; the new and original scena introduced by Viviana and company is thoroughly appreciated; Harry Kirk scores well as a comedian; and the Palascope, with its latest films, never fails to please.

PORTSMOUTH.—Theatre Royal.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—Mr. Milton Bode's company is appearing here in The Belle of Mayfair. Mr. Harry Parker sustains the part of Sir John Chaldicott in quaint and amusing fashion; Miss Florence Imeson as Julia Chaldicott sang, danced, and played charmingly; Miss Blanche Astley's portrayal of the maid Pincott was all that could be wished for; Miss Paula Fernan acted carefully and well as the Countess of Highgate; Miss Aurelie de Loriere scored as the Gibson Girl, and Miss Nellie Cozens depicted Lady Chaldicott in excellent style. Mr. Edward Hugounet played with sterling comedy the Hon. Raymond Finchley; Mr. Lawrence Wensley as Hugh Meredith was capital, singing admirably; Mr. Lauri Lisle enacted the Count de Perrier cleverly, and Mr. G. McCloskie as Dr. Lawrence did capable work.

Prince's Theatre.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Agate.—The Best of her Sex is here this week, played by Mr. William A. Armour and company. As Philip Faringdon Mr. Percy Horton acts consistently and well; Mr. Henry Lloyd presents Leslie Verney powerfully; Mr. Armour gives an excellent study as the Rev. Stephen Maxwell; Messrs. J. W. Hooper as P.C. Peter Jorkins, Hume Fergus as Simon Downey, and Dan Mining as Holy Joe are amusing; Miss Alvina Mining impersonates Ruth Raeburn excellently; Miss Alice Buckland plays Polly Perkins in first-rate style, and Miss Dora Price in the rôle of Vera Delorme is vigorous and realistic.

King's Theatre.—Licensee and Manager, Mr J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Claude Marner; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—Mr. John Tiller's company is here with A Trip to Paris; Dolly and Elsie are a capable pair of dancers and duettists; Miss Teddy Edmonds and company in The Lady Jockey cause much hilarity; Bostock's baboons are popular and give satisfaction; Arthur Prince's Mascots in a novel and original act prove a pleasing variety; Cullen and Carthy, comedians, with Little Cluley, take well; Five Chalieys are extremely clever acrobats; Blanche and Powell, society entertainers, are amusing; Simms and Simms do an enjoyable musical turn, and animated pictures fill the programme.

Empire Palace.—Managing-Director, Captain Warren Wright; Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—A highly popular turn here is that of Whit Cunliffe, light comedian, who is received with cordiality; Lizzie Daniels, an attractive comediene, is applauded; Rowland Hill, a humorous comedian, scores well; Cissie Dryden, a dainty soubrette, is appreciated; the Great Northern Troupe of dancers are responsible for some agreeable terpsichorean items; Madeline Rossiter, comedienne and dancer, is very smart, and has a charming manner; the Vyponds, society entertainers, give a pleasing contribution to the evening's amusement; Foy Bros. and company in the diverting sketch The Tea House of Pat in China are vociferously recalled; George Brooks's quaint ditties are appreciated, and Payne's Bio has some fine films.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Harris; Acting-Manager, Col. Roberts, V.D.—Miss Vesta Tilley is here for the week, and is charming all with her vivacious personality and graceful impersonations; Miss Alice Maple, comedienne and dancer, has an expressive manner and is appreciated; Marlo is a very clever and smart juggler; Mr. Arthur Hickman pleases with his sweet tenor vocalisation; the Three Dreadnoughts, expert rifle shots, give a trick shooting display; Mr. Arthur Boyne is quaintly funny and is applauded; Gargany's Trio of comedy acrobats do clever work; the Four Amaranths, acrobatic dancers, are a vigorous quartette, and Hippo pictures of very interesting character finish the performance.

PRESTON.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, the Executors of the late W. Johnson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Stephen Pritt.—The Breed of the Treshams, as presented by Mr. Frank Bertram's principal company, is an undoubted success here this week. Mr. Sydney Bland as Lieut. Beresby (The Rat) proved himself admirably adapted to the part and secured many calls; Mr. Alfred Holles was a stately and dignified Viscount Dorsington; Mr. W. R. Winning was successful as the treacherous and dishonourable Col. Clement Hungerford, and Mr. Percy Robinson gave a capital representation of the cowardly Capt. Stanhope. Mr. George Traill and Mr. A. E. Johnstone, as Colonel Sir Henry Curwen and Colonel Bagshaw, did not have much to do, but did that little exceedingly well; Mr. George Jackson as Lieut. Willoughby and Mr. B. Benjamin as Captain Rashleigh were also good in their respective parts, while Mr. Howard Brenan gave a first-rate presentation of the manly young cornet, the Hon. Francis Tresham. The Hon. Margaret Hungerford found a winsome exponent in Miss Mildred Hodson; Miss Madge Cottier was good as Mrs. Bagshaw, and Miss Dorothy Duncan made a delightful Helena Pierpont. As Batty Miss Grace Harlington was most refreshing, winning much applause by her quaint sallies. The minor parts in the able hands of Messrs. R. A. Robinson, William Blake, Gwyn-Richardson, and George Scott were well portrayed. The mounting was really good.

Prince's Theatre.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Sawyer and Woodruff.—Messrs. O. Silverstone and H. Wright's company in The Nihilist is here this week. Mr. Joseph Millane as Ivan Nowasky gives a powerful portrayal; Mr. Cowell Clark is excellent as Karl Orloff; Mr. L. Neilson sustains the part of Prince Alexander, the villain of the piece, with considerable skill; Mr. Henry Wright succeeds in creating much mirth as Bobbie Smart, and is ably seconded in his efforts by Miss Jessica Ford as Katrina Zuidoff. Miss May Ediss is a clever child actress, and is capital as Little Alexina; Miss Edna Clare as Alexina Orloff wins applause; Miss Florrie Kesley both looks and acts Princess Olga in a manner that calls forth much applause. The rest of the characters are successfully presented by Messrs. O. Silverstone, Brunelle Harvey, Morgan Dale, S. E. Eugene, Edward Dowds, and James Hamilton. The uniforms and mounting are good.

Royal Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank E. Burdett.—Richie Hearn's company of comedians in The Village Fire Brigade provoke much merriment; Billie Barlow has some taking songs, which she renders with the same dash and go as of old; Angelina gives an exceedingly good juggling act; Marget and Lever, acrobatique eccentriques, give a novel and clever turn; the Wedburns, old favourites here, meet with a hearty reception, which they richly deserve, their patter being clever and always free from anything suggestive; the Miners' Quartette, including Billy Dewey, coloured vocalist, render some quartettes and solos excellently, and Billy Dewey proves himself to be an expert dancer; the Three Behans (Arthur, Cissy, and Kitty) have a novel quick-change comedy act; Baddow, ventriloquist, gives a good turn; Francis Hanlon is a dainty comedienne who both sings and dances well. Flash James on the Bioscope concludes.

RADCLIFFE. — Grand Opera House. — Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Sante; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jas. Boothman.—Mr. Alfred B. Cross and company are scoring a success with The Manxman. As Pete Mr. Alfred B. Cross proves himself an actor of power; Mr. Harold B. Lewis as Philip Christian does good work; Mr. Fred Charles is responsible for much merriment as Ross Christian; Mr. Fred Mace is good as Cæsar Cregan and Mr. W. H. Dewhurst as Dr. Mylcrist and Mr. Arthur Jackson as Tom, the postman, both deserve a passing word. Kate Creegeen was well played by Miss Minnie Watersford, and Miss Nancy Mitchell deserves special mention for her rendering of Nancy.

RAMSGATE.—Royal Victoria Theatre.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jules Richeux.—On Sunday evening Miss Natalia Janotha, the renowned pianist, gave a recital before a large audience, and was enthusiastically applauded. Other artists of talent contributed to the programme. For the next fortnight the theatre is given over for a trades exhibition.

Royal Palace Theatre.—Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; Resident-Manager, Mr. Dan Forrest.—The animated pictures at the Palace Theatre have been greatly appreciated during the past week. The most recent events of public interest have been depicted, and films of a humorous character have been exhibited. Entertaining varieties have been supplied by the Sisters Grosvenor and Mr. Edward Casselli.

RAWTENSTALL.—Grand Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; General Business-Manager, Mr. A. B. Feather.—Mr. C. Watson Mill (the author) and company opened here on Monday in For Love and the King. He gave a thrilling and powerful impersonation as Jarval; Mr. John Burton was an excellent Michael; and as Vladimir Mr. Henry Gorleston was capital; Mr. Alfred Hilliard showed to advantage as Prince Uros, and Mr. Geoffrey Chate was also good as Duke Fernand; as King Kara Mr. Frank Lyndon gave a capital study, and Mr. Jim K. Woods made an excellent Carl Oppenheim, Kosta Marko being ably impersonated by Mr. Arthur Frail. Miss Rosalind Tate was a clever Princess Athene, and Miss Joan Ellis a delightful Natila. As Gazia Obrenovic Miss Marie Ault displayed considerable talent.

READING.—Royal County Theatre.—Proprietors and Managers, Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Benton.—The Dairymaids is here, by Mr. Robert Courtneidge's company. The part of Peggy is very charmingly performed by Miss Clare Marsden, who is an excellent singer and graceful dancer; Miss Mabel Younge is good as Lady Brudenell; Miss Madge Avery is a clever representative of Miss Penelope Pyechase; Miss Gladys Silvani is highly diverting as Eliza; Miss Clarice Lockstone is effective as Winifred; Mr. J. Osborne is exceedingly amusing as Joe Mivens, A.B.; Mr. Harry Cottell has a good voice, and plays Tim Capes well; Mr. Nelson Keys as Lieutenant Brudenell and Mr. A. Wykes Ashdowne as his chum, Lieutenant Meredith, are both successful; Mr. J. A. Warden makes the most of the difficult part of Dr. O'Byrne, R.N.; and the three "Little Strangers" give some very clever impersonation sketches.

The Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. Geo. Howard Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr P. E. Draco.—Bob Pender and company's pantomime comedy, The Long and the Short of It, is a decided novelty, and is well received here. Mr. Frank Lister and company provide a good turn in their sketch The Sunflower; Almon does some very expert hand-balancing feats; Percy Farrimond, Lancashire singing collier, has a good voice, and sings with effect; Mr. and Mrs. Leonard appear to advantage in their comedietta Coming Home; Cliff Glen, juvenile performer, is promising; Marie Blythe is a popular comedienne; Harry Clifford is very amusing; and Laurie Wylie imitates popular artists ably.

ROCHDALE.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, the Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Hague.—Two Lancashire Lasses in London is the attraction here this week. The play is well staged, and finds much favour. Mr. Herbert Pearson appears to great advantage as John Edmunds; Mr. Chris Mason as the bluff and hearty Sam Hallett is a favourite; Mr. E. Ragson-Cousens is a typical hard-working curate as the Rev. Frank Selby; and Mr. Fred Morgan cleverly portrays the villainies of Jonas Deane; Miss Rosslyn Vayne and Miss Alice Defoe capably enact the sisters Constance and Nellie; Miss Marguerite Trevosper is sympathetic as Bessie Edmunds; and Miss E. Shaw is clever and amusing as Jane Adelaide Bloomfield.

Empire.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Hargreaves.—Achmed Ibrahim Bedouin troupe of acrobats top the bill here this week with a bewildering series of evolutions evoking deserved appreciation; Nada Moret scores heavily as a vocal entertainer; Gus Barra is a clever and refined eccentric musician; Maggie Rimmer, vocalist, is a prime favourite here. Chas. Craston, comedian; Gicardo, juggler; Kenrick and Laura, vocalists and dancers; and the Empire Bioscope pictures complete the list.

RUGBY.—Town Hall.—Entertainment-Manager, Mr. W. Payne Seddon.—Mr. Robert Macdonald's company presented The Dairymaids here on Monday. The company is one of exceptional ability, the songs and choruses being extremely well rendered. Mr. Edwin Dodds as Joe Mivens, B.A., proved himself an excellent comedian, dancer, and vocalist; Mr. Sam Lysons caused much amusement as Sam Brudenell; Mr. Frank Manger as Lieut. Frank Meredith was excellent; and Mr. Frank Barclay was a success as Dr. O'Byrne. Miss Isa Bowman, who had an enthusiastic reception, quite won the hearts of the audience as Peggy. Miss Maud Lucy as Eliza gave a clever and humorous reading of the maid of all work; and Miss Dorothy Belmore was a charming Lady Brudenell. The Sandow Girls, in their dance and chorus, were much appreciated.

SALFORD.—Prince of Wales's.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—Mr. Lingford Carson (the author) had a good reception on Monday, when he excellently played the dumb chief Reindeer in his drama, The Great White Chief. Mr. Mansell Fane ably sustained the title-rôle, and his singing was much applauded; Mr. Geo. Butler made an excellent villain of Hartley Deane, and he was cleverly assisted by Miss Dulcie Lawrence as Esther Stafford; Miss Pollie Denville was a praiseworthy and charming Latika; much fun was caused by Mr. Hugh Brady as John Warton, Mr. Leonard Maitland as George Rupert, and Miss Amy Ross Clyde as Martha Jane. Mr. Norman Purnell (Black Forest) and Mr. W. Melrose (Strong Arm) also did well. The staging was very effective.

Regent Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Secretary, Mr. J. C. Patterson.—Ethel Ra-Leslie and company, in her scena The Voice of the Nile, gave a very pretty dancing and singing performance; the Three Brothers Huxter are very smart acrobats; Spangles and Sawdust (two ladies and two gentlemen) are both amusing and clever in their flying trapeze act. The other acceptable turns include the Brothers Hayes, in Revels in a Billiard Saloon, with smart sand-dancing; Kit Keen, coloured comedian and clever bone soloist; Dan Fraser, Scotch comedian; Sid Bandon, with two good songs; and Agnes Molteno, in "An old-time story," with living tableau.

Royal Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; General-Manager, Mr. H Winstanley; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Slatter.—The Sleepwalker is a very amusing sketch by Walter Ellis and company; the Sages (Will and Jenny) also keep the house in roars with their comedy and dancing; Smith and Johnson give an enjoyable performance with "Just a little melody"; the ventriloquial act by Gillin is appreciated; Carl Howard, with his comic magic and conjuring; Emil and Ediss, clever banjoists; Monty Walker, swell comedian; Mark Henton, comedian; Kail Stern, comedian and eccentric acrobatic dancer; and Clifford Stuart, versatile comedian. The animated pictures also deserve special mention.

Opera House and Assembly Rooms, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Lester King.—The pictures this week are very good, as usual, and include Camera's Terrible Fall, Learned Doctor, Spring Lock, Dirigible Airship, Organ Grinder's Luck, Life's a Game of Cards, Father's Luck, Othello (burlesque), Algy's Yachting Party, Desperate Woman, and The Page Boy's Joke. Mr. King's song (illustrated), "Not because your hair is curly," is well received.

SEACOMBE.—Irving Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Kiernan.—Overflowing and enthusiastic audiences are in evidence here this week, where Mr. Lewis Waller's company, under the direction of Mr. F. Clive Ross, is presenting—with a cast of exceptional strength—the Lyric Theatre success, Robin Hood. The title-rôle is in the capable hands of Mr. Ethelbert Edwards, whose interpretation left nothing to be desired. No better portrayal of Lady Marion de Faux could be wished for than that presented by Miss Lillian Stenmis; and her maid, Adela, received a pretty rendering at the hands of Miss Laurie Flockton. Richard, King of England, is adequately depicted by Mr. J. M. Briant, his scheming and unscrupulous brother, Prince John, being cleverly brought out by Mr. H. Elliott Ball; Mr. Richard Fielding does well as Hugo de Longspee; and FitzAlwyne is skilfully played by Mr. Ernest Gray. The bulk of the comedy work is entrusted to Mr. Bruce Winston as Friar Tuck, and he is ably assisted by Mr. Alex. Begbie as Tracy and Mr. F. Clive Ross as John Little, afterwards Little John. The fine voice of Mr. Spencer Lloyd is much appreciated in his rendering of the numbers allotted to Allan A'Dale; and Mr. Laurence Tessier scores as Will Scarlet. Other artists deserving praise are Miss Gertrude de Burgh as Alison, Mr. V. Smart Gatlop as Sir Aymer de Babelle, and Miss Irene Mulvesyn as Eleanor, Queen Dowager. The scenery and effects are perfect.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.—New Theatre Royal.—Proprietor, Mr. A. C. Harrison; Manager, Mr. H. D. Lyle.—Mrs. Frank Bateman and Mr. Stuart Lomath's company is here this week. On Monday and Tuesday No Wedding Bells for Her was staged. As Frank Hatherleigh Mr. Lomath is an established favourite; Mr. Percy Shaw as Dick Delver gives a smart portrayal; Montague Blair is effectively sketched by Mr. G. Harvey; Mr. H. Aynsleigh gives a convincing idea of the character of Abney Stone; Mr. George Herbert as the old actor, Fane, plays with much feeling; Mr. Harry G. Momber is very laughable in the comedy part of Simpkins; Miss Lizzie Montague (Mrs. Frank Bateman) wins hearty approval for her interpretation of Lola Delaspierre; as Doris Fane Miss Cicely Clutterbuck is charming; and as Marie Miss Ellen Owen is very capable. Sapho was also included in the week's répertoire.

SHEFFIELD.—Lyceum Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—Miss Lena Ashwell's personally selected company opened to a large house on Monday in Diana of Dobson's. Miss Emilie Polini acted with her usual power, charm, and strong dramatic intelligence as Diana; Miss Clarissa Selwynne submitted an excellent study of a modern type as Mrs. Whyte-Fraser; Mr. W. K. Pearce's Sir Jabez Grinley was a fine study of character; Mr. Stewart Dawson was humorous as the waiter, and Mr. Edward Harrison was an admirable representative of Fellowes; the Misses Lonsdale Gould, Dorothy Garth, and Olga Esme were pretty shop assistants. The Bishop's Candlesticks was the preceding piece.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—The Worst Woman in London is again pleasing Sheffield lovers of sensational drama through the medium of Mr. Tom Taylor's company. Miss Edith Blande shines resplendent in her splendid "confections" as the beautiful but wicked Frances Vere.

Alexandra Theatre. — Managing-Director, Mr. William D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Ramsay.—Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's company is again appearing to large audiences in The Village Blacksmith. The characters are again sustained by Miss Maggie Edwards, Miss Cassie Le Grande, Mrs. T. Livesey, Miss Edith Giddens, Mr. Tommy Marshall (the humorous Jeremiah Perkins), Mr. Edwin Maydew, Mr. S. Hale, Mr. Bert Butler, Mr. A. Walker, Mr. A. Sinclair, Mr. George Wilton, Mr. Fred Haming, Mr. Gus Ratcliffe, Mr. E. Morris, and Mr. Sam Livesey, as John Strong. Miss Lily Leicester made a pretty and intelligent representative of Strong's little child. The scenery was much admired, and the specialities in the Empire scene were loudly applauded.

Empire Palace Theatre.—The Moss Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—After a considerable absence from Sheffield Miss Queenie Leighton appeared here to a crowded audience in her vocal and mimetic skit, On and Off the Stage, which proved a very welcome addition to her répertoire. The famous Craggs were loudly applauded in their original and smart acrobatic feats; the Three Cape Girls did some nimble step and big-boot dancing; Mr. Arthur Jefferson's farce company caused much merriment in a diverting absurdity, The Return from the Honeymoon; Miss Rosa Loader, "the slavey at the piano," provoked the house to mirth with her vocal imitations; and the celebrated Russian giant, M. Machnow, aroused general interest as he made a tour of the auditorium. Other popular features in the programme were Mr. J. P. Ling, humorous vocalist;; Herr Reichen's dogs, Mr. Bert Harrow, vocalist; and the Bioscope, with a photographic extravaganza, Our Village Marathon Race, which caused great amusement. A selection from Tannhäuser by Mr. H. Renton Gardner's splendid orchestra was enthusiastically applauded.

The Hippodrome. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr. P. D. Elbourne.—After a spirited overture by the fine band, admirably conducted by Mr. Hahn, the following artists pleased a packed house on Monday: Mr. R. G. Knowles, the American lightning patterer; Mr. C. D. Reeke, an original and laughter-provoking dialect comedian; the smart Maximilian Trio in a funny and agile comic balancing act; Mr. B. Williams, vocalist; Velanche's wonderfully intelligent and well-trained sporting dogs in a novel spectacular sketch; Mr. George Rapley, the favourite vocal comedian and humorist; the Barrascope, with artistic new pictures; and the Hiatts, in a refined and well-staged musical interlude. The leading fun-maker this week is Dinner-Time in a Carpenter's Shop, a screaming pantomime, rattled through in a spirited manner by Mr. Ted Karno's comic-ballet troupe.

Grand Theatre.—Manager, Mr. A. W. Turpin.—The company appearing here includes Messrs. Grey and Welford, in a comedy entertainment; Miss Beattie Foster, comedienne; Miss Mamie Morris, serio-comic; and Mr. Wallace Whitney, eccentric character comedian. Some admirable pictures are provided by the Raymond Bio-Tableaux Co., including The Slave Chase, The Press-Gang, The Pneumatic Policeman, Mary Stuart, The Yacht Race, and other picturesque, humorous, and dramatic films.

Central Theatre.—Lessees, the Jasper Redfern Co., Ltd.—The Sisters Lytton, in refined duets; Mr. Sid Carlton, comic vocalist; the Milstead-Bell Trio, instrumentalists; with animated pictures of Sherlock Holmes's adventures are scheduled this week.

Pavilion.—Business-Manager, Mr. C. R. Wordsworth.—Some first-rate animated photos of topical and local interest, together with fantastic, comic, and romantic films, are delighting the habitués here.

Surrey Palace.—Manager, Mr. Frank Howson.—This renovated and redecorated hall, with an excellent little company, is doing good business under the genial direction of the popular Mr. Frank Howson.

SHREWSBURY.—Theatre Royal and Hippodrome.—Lessee, Mr. W. Yates Gregory; Licensee and Business-Manager, Mr. W. C. Dornton.—Harold Montague, the jovial jester at the piano, and his entertaining vagabonds were here on the first three nights of this week.

SMETHWICK. — Theatre Royal. — Proprietor, Mr. C. Barnard; Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson.—Hardie and Von Leer's company is presenting The Kiss of Judas. Mr. E. Howard Templeton makes an earnest, manly Philip Dunree; Mr. J. H. Darnley as the villain was excellent; Mr. Herbert Leonard, the author, made the rôle of Jake Long popular; Mr. Herbert De Ville was successful as the Rev. Barry Dillon; Messrs. Charles V. Sandford as Frank Sudley and Henry C. Moreton as Timothy Parkiss created much merriment, and were ably assisted in their efforts by Miss Laura Dyson as Daisy; Miss Bertha Hanbury was well placed as Little Jack; Miss Katherine Clarke as Nancy Nollid, the decoy, acted with dignity and pathos; and Miss Jess Dorynne as Dorothy expressed all the varying emotions of the rôle.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.—Empire Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Geo. Conquest and Richard H. Nervey; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Lingham Power.—If We Only Knew is presented by Mr. Harry Nicholls and a strong company, Monday's performance being well attended. Mr. Nicholls gives of his best in the comedy rôle of Samuel Scarper, otherwise Slippery Sam, his reception being most hearty and well deserved; Mr. P. A. Gawthorne impersonates the vagabond, Dick Steen, with both skill and force, and shares honours with Mr. Ernest Young, who gives a masterly exposition of Ensign John Wilmott; Mr. J. Benedict Butler sustains Mr. Bignell with credit; Miss Sylvia Morris displays marked ability in the important character of Barbara Wentworth; Miss Margaret Van Hollister makes a typical gipsy of Ruth Steen; Miss Kate Kearney is a commendable Miss Priscella Tompkins; and the Misses Cicely Nicholls and Lorna Treherne are successful as maids.

SOUTHPORT.—Opera House, Winter Gardens.—Proprietors, The Southport Opera House and Winter Gardens Co., Ltd.; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. R. Singleton.—Mr. George Alexander's company in The Thief is fulfilling an engagement here. Miss May Congden submits a fine impersonation of Marise Chelford; Mr. Stephen T. Ewart is thoroughly successful in the rôle of Richard Chelford; and a no less praiseworthy study is that of Mr. George Ames as Raymond Leyton; Isabel Leyton having a charming exponent in Miss Mary Dibley. Mr. Alfred Lugg is entirely satisfactory in the character of Harry Leyton, and Mr. Cyril Cattley does exceedingly well as the detective, Protheroe. The play is preceded by a bright curtain-raiser entitled Too Happy by Half.

SOUTH SHIELDS. — Theatre Royal. — Lessees and Managers, Messrs. John and Fred Coulson.—The boards here are occupied by Mr. F. Mouillot's No. 1 company in The Girl Behind the Counter. General Sir Wilkie Willoughby is cleverly interpreted by Mr. Kenedy Allen; Mr. Sam Lockridge as the hero, Sam Chetwyn, sings with good effect; Viscount Gushington is well accounted for by Mr. Ferris Pounds; Mr. F. Park is very funny as Adolphus Dudds; Miss Ida Stratham sweetly represents Winnie Willoughby; Miss Irene Vere makes a good Millie Mostyn. The minor parts are all in good hands. The principals are encored for their songs. The chorus is good, assisted by a capable orchestra under the direction of Mr. W. D. J. Damant.

Empire Palace Theatre.—Proprietors, the South Shields Empire Palace, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. George F. Thompson.—The chief item is Charles Fisher's pocket opera company, who sing excerpts from Il Trovatore—Manrico, Mr. Chas. Fisher; Count Di Luna, Mr. H. F. Morton; Azucena and Leonora, Mlle. Zella Lusano; and an excellent reception is awarded them. Thorpe and Coe present a good comedy playlet, My Burglar; Will English, an old favourite, is welcomed. Some clever dancing is done by Eddie Hayes and Mona Wynne; Leo Tell is a good mimic. The remaining turns are supplied by La Belle Nello, contortionist; Dorothy Sephton, comedienne and dancer; Chas. Stevens, comedian; and the Bioscope.

Tivoli, Laygate Circus.—Proprietor, Councillor J. K. Hall.—The top of the bill is Percy Curry, a clever comedian, who captivates the house; Kennedy and Emery contribute a good duologue, entitled Turtle Doves; an up-to-date sketch, The Lady Barber, is given by Ada Jenner; and the Tivoloscope provides the rest of the entertainment.

STAFFORD. — Lyceum Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Elphinstone.—For the first three nights of the week Miss Lena Ashwell's company presented Diana of Dobson's. Miss Violet Varley, a gifted actress, was seen to advantage in the title-rôle; Captain the Hon. Victor Bretherton was played in a natural manner by Mr. Briscoe Owen; Mr. Philip Sanders submitted a careful study of Sir Jabez Grinlay; mention must be made of Miss Hilda Franks for the clever way in which she depicted the match-making Mrs. Cantelupe; Miss Margery Bland as an old woman was good; and Miss Violet Joyce, Miss Dorothy Bell, Miss Cicely Oates, and Miss Margaret Dudley as the shop girls were worthy of praise. The play was preceded nightly by the one-act comedietta, A Fire of Straw.

ST. HELENS.—Theatre and Opera House.—Proprietors, St. Helens Theatre, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. A. McLeod Loader.—London with the Lid Off is being presented by Mr. Stanley Carlton's company. Mr. Carlton himself appears as the Rev. Allen Gordon, and depicts the heroic young clergyman to the life. Mr. William G. Marshall presents a telling study of the blind burglar, Gratton Gale; and Mr. Edward Vincent is good as Sam Rendall. The character of Madge Rendall, a lady detective, is well brought out by Miss Amy Ellam; Miss R. Hamilton Belasco acts with stateliness as Mrs. Glandale; while Miss Charlotte Ballinger has a strong part in Sarah Shafto. Miss Rubie Maude's acting in the portrayal of the injured Astra Bell is to be highly commended.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford, Sley, and Willmot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Mould.—Chanti's quick changes are wonderfully smart, and his performance is enhanced by a magnificent fit-up; Frank Cass sings some of his favourite songs, and is heartily applauded; Maud Prenton looks dashing, and sings in good style; Ariel and Astarte have something novel in their gymnastic act; and the Sisters Belmont are excellent dancers. Kloof and Ramsay play eccentric instruments in an amusing manner; and Clifton and Gibson and Sam Thompson contribute to an enjoyable programme.

STOCKPORT.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—Crowded audiences have this week witnessed with all-absorbing interest the representations of The Sign of the Cross, capably given by Mr. Wm. Greet's company. Mr. Cyril Austin Lee acts with marked power and ability as Marcus; Nero is effectively impersonated by Mr. C. Yorke; Mr. Charles Aldred ably fills the character of Tigellinus; and Glabrio is amusingly portrayed by Mr. F. Wood; as Mercia Miss Constance Little acts with grace and charm; Miss Beryl Hamilton is dignified as Poppœ, and Miss Lily Wood acts efficiently as Berenice.

Empire. — Proprietors, The Stockport Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Black.—Miss Lilian Dundas and company are presenting here this week an interesting episode, The Doom of Delilah, in capable style and with distinct success. Billy Farrell, comedian, with his pleasing songs and amusing jokes, is entertaining; Rene is a clever girl juggler; Les Belles Americaines are talented vocalists and dancers; Rose Gower's songs meet with much favour; Les Rubens in their fortune-telling act are very acceptable; Harry Drew, bass vocalist, repeats his former successes here; Roy Beavis is a pleasing conjuror; and the Rangers present a smart cycle act.

In the title-rôle Miss Jessica Solomon submits a delightful interpretation of the simple maid; Mr. Paul Lovett displays ability of a high order as Lancelot; Mr. Stanley Logan, as Peter, gives a good rendering; Miss Violet Greville, as Mrs. Leadbatter, makes a typical lodging-house keeper; Miss Florence Radcliffe makes a good Rosie; Mr. Herbert Greville is very successful as Lord Tottenham; and Mr. Robert Entwhistle gives a fine conception of the part of the Rev. Samuel Smedge; Miss Ethel Carlyle as Countess of Foxwell does ample justice to her part; as also do Miss Mary Colquhoun as Lady Glyn and Miss Lester Stephen as Lady Chalmer.

Grand Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. John Batty; Manager, Mr. Walter Batty.—Mr. M. Montgomery's stock company presents here this week East Lynne. Mr. Ernest Wingfield is very successful as Archibald Carlyle; Mr. Fred Terriss ably represents Captain Levison; Mr. H. Hesselgrave, as Lord Mount Severn, is extremely good; Mr. A. Byron, as Mr. Dill, acts well; Miss Lilian Beaumont gives a fine representation of Lady Isabel, and Miss Lina Nazeby makes a capital Barbara Hare. Payne's Bio-Photoscope concludes.

Hippodrome.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Burns; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. Stainton.—Rousby's company heads the bill here this week, with panoramic views of London, which are well received by a large audience. Carrie Laurie's Juveniles make a big hit in their Kindergarten scene; Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Lucas, in their scenes from Dickens, act well; Miss Cissie Esdaile is an engaging comedienne; Allsopp and Beckwith sing and dance well; Cummin and Seaham, acrobats, are very skilful; W. B. Raby, comedian, sings in good style, and is very quaint; Sira, the one-legged acrobat, is very daring; and the Bioscope is up to its usual standard.

STOKE-ON-TRENT.—Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; General-Manager, Mr. H. F. Miller; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. Moroney.—Florrie Gallimore, charmingly gowned, is a great factor in the success of this week's programme, contributing four numbers which are heartily received; Captain Roberts, musician and athlete, assisted by Cart and Alexanders, appears successfully in his feats of strength; Harry Levaine, quaint comedian, scores well; Hughes and Elliott are pleasing in a refined singing and dancing act; Jamie Piper is a clever juvenile instrumentalist; and Ingram and Irving in sketch; the Dancing Gilberts, Rosie Dawn, and pictures are also to be noted.

SUNDERLAND.—King's Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. S. F. Davidson; General-Manager, Mr. A. Telford; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. Reach.—Messrs. A. M. Thompson and Robert Courtneidge's company, in the attractive musical play, The Dairymaids, is appearing here this week to crowded houses. Mr. E. S. Staples interprets Sam Brudenell with great spirit; Mr. Hy. Dent as Joe Mivens keeps the house in high good humour; and Mr. Percy Marshall is very natural as Dr. O'Bryne. Miss Phyllis Dare likes the part of Peggy in her quiet, refined manner, and her singing is enthusiastically applauded; Miss Gladys Ivery is good as Winifred; Miss Lottie Sergant plays Eliza to the life; and Mrs. John Tully deserves unqualified praise for her dignified Lady Brudenell. The other rôles are in capable hands.

Theatre Royal.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton.—Mr. Frederick Melville's company is drawing large and appreciative audiences in The Ugliest Woman on Earth. Miss Beatrice Horner is in the title-rôle, and gives a very sympathetic rendering of the part; Dr. Carr is well delineated by Mr. Gerald Nolan; Jack Merryman is cleverly played by Mr. Philip Darien; as the adventurer Hubert Gold, and his accomplice, Rose Courteney, Mr. Leyton Cancellor and Miss Gertrude Harrison make the most of their opportunities. They are well supported by Mr. Leonard Thackeray as Antonio Luchesi and Miss Violet Macaree as Morita. Mr. Freddy Bentley and Miss Nellie Jackson greatly assist towards the success of the performance by their humorous effects.

Empire Theatre. — Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden.—The appearance of Reano and his famous band here this week is creating a sens

THE STAR.—Manager, Mr. William Coutts; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. J. Powell.—Messrs. Herbert Skardon and H. Sherwood Martin's company present The Way of the World at the Star this week. Playing with undoubted skill, Miss Sydney Crowe is excellent as Lady Adela Hardy; Miss Marie Fontaine as Kate Montague is a delightful heroine; Joe Sparrows (Mr. D'Arcy Kelway) is a clown of the merriest type; and Mr. Victor Slade is great as Captain Fred Hardy.

THE EMPIRE.—Manager, Mr. P. C. Rowe; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. H. Lennon.—An excellently varied bill is headed by Albert Tofft's "Makers of History"; the living statuary is faultless, and the whole turn original. Terry and Lambert prove themselves talented entertainers; Edward Lauri and May Beatty present a tuneful musical mélange that goes well; Harry Bedford's welcome is as warm as ever; the Dumond Trio are instrumentalists above the ordinary; Harry May Hemsley, with his combined child impersonations and lightning sketches, is a host in himself; Gus Le Clerq, as usual, goes well; whilst Lottie Govell and Ida Kathrena are pleasing artists. The Bioscope concludes.

SWINDON.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Wiltshire Entertainments Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Manners.—The programme here this week includes Maitland Marler and company in the successful musical comedy sketch His Worship the Mayor. Mr. Marler makes an amusing Septimus Harcourt. Grace Langley is a pleasing serio and dancer; Joe Conway, comedian, is very good; Carr and Rose are seen in a laughable comedy duo; Nellie Hewitt presents a clever musical novelty; Summerson's comedy sketch duo are applauded; a smart turn is that of Johnny and Charlie, eccentric tumblers; and the Empire Pictures are interesting.

Somerfield's company is this week presenting Geoffrey Langdon's Wife. Mr. Paul Beckett gives a weirdly intense portrayal of Felix Beverley; a clever impersonation of Jack Stirling is furnished by Mr. Wilfred Cheetham; and in the name-part Miss Mary Lovett is all that can be desired.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Will Stone.—Heading a good programme we have the troupe of Indian Fakirs from the White City; Martinett and Wallace are highly successful in their comedy and dancing act; Akbar is again well received. The chief picture represents a tour up the Zambesi River.

TORQUAY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. W. H. Mortimer; Secretary, Mr. Arthur Pearse.—A hearty welcome was accorded Mr. Charles Frohman's company in The Hypocrites on Monday evening. The rôle of Rachel Neve is excellently taken by Miss Muriel Pope, who gives a sympathetic rendering of the difficult part; Miss Muriel Mason must also be commended for a very charming impersonation of Helen Plugenet; whilst Miss Laura Graves is deservedly applauded for her refined and energetic representation of Mrs. Wilmour. Miss Madge Severn makes a typical Mrs. Linnell; whilst Miss Sybil Brooke provokes considerable amusement as Mrs. Blakey. Mr. John Dennys takes the trying rôle of Lennard Wilmour with great success; and Mr. E. H. Ruston as the hard and unyielding Mr. Wilmour acts with remarkable vigour and ability. Mr. Frederick Morland is a characteristic lawyer as Mr. Viveash; and Mr. F. G. Thurstans is the cause of considerable laughter as the Vicar of Weybury. The honours of the evening must certainly go to Mr. A. B. Imeson for a really good performance as the Rev. Edgar Linnell. His acting was conspicuously successful, and received quite an ovation at the end of each act.

TREHERBERT.—OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietors, Poole's Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. C. W. Poole; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Stephens.—Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's company is presenting A Soldier's Honour here. Mr. Elan Meredith as Captain Deane portrays the military man to the life, his efforts being ably seconded by Mr. A. Arthur Ellis as Captain Gerald Temple; Doreen Illingworth, in the hands of Miss Mabel Rose, is dainty and charming; Mr. A. Money takes the part of Henry Thornton with dramatic effect; Miss Ruth Zilwood as Cora Lee is capital; and much humour is introduced by Mr. Harry Lyndon, Miss Lynn Darlington, and Miss Edith Mackie.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Welton Dale; Manager, Mr. A. H. Burdett.—Hippodrome Season.—"Consul," the marvellous anthropoid ape, is causing a great sensation here this week. The programme is a strong, all-round one, Madge Grey, the clever vocalist and mimic, being specially well received; Le Strad's imitations of celebrated musicians; Chas. Gardner, the dame comedian; Gwen Francis, comedienne; the Zampas, duettists; and a local vocalist, Muriel Cameron, have also met with favour, and the Hippodrome pictures are as popular as ever.

Bradbury.—The Austral Trio have scored a big success here this week with their versatile and refined entertainment A Musical Evening; the Jackly Trio present a recherché drawing-room turn; Irma Orbasany's cockatoos are a set of well-trained birds; Geoffreys and Benson are clever sketch artists; the Prinellas do well with their farmyard scena; Flo Bennett is a delightful vocalist, and all her songs are encored; Albert Letone is a clever female impersonator; and Jack Rae an amusing gymnast. The pictures are good.

WEDNESBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. Harry Battersby; Acting-Manager, Mr. Tom Kuner.—Mr. Alfred Northway and Mr. W. V. Garrod are presenting The Prodigal Parson. The Rev. Tom Godley is manfully portrayed by Mr. Logan Darra, whilst the part of Enoch Juggins is left to the safe keeping of Mr. Alfred Northway; Mr. Chas. Ashwell's Ben Juggins is creditable, and artistic taste is also shown by Mr. Walter Vincent in the rôle of Ned Kettlepin. Miss Juliet Hammersley evokes appreciation for her performance of Fern Godley, and as Myrtle little Madge Gillard proves quite a favourite. Miss Ethel Cross does excellent work as Pomeroy, and an effective rendering of Gretchen van Crans is given by Miss Alice Buckland.

WEST BROMWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. R. Nightingale.—In Convict 99 West Bromwich theatregoers have this week a piece as full of incident and excitement as the keenest lover of the thrilling could desire. Mr. Frank Beresford as Lawrence Gray is a host in himself, and his acting is marked by much power; Miss Dorothy Milne as Geraldine Lucas is a finished actress who imbues the part with much ability; Mr. Benson North is good as Ralf Vickers; Mr. Edward Kipling as James Stinchcombe and Mr. J. Warris Lindon as Christopher Lucas are also clever; and the Maggie Mason of Miss Jennie Richards is excellent

NEW HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. Archie Ainsleigh. The management of this popular place of amusement have done well to secure so striking a play as Raffles, the amateur cracksman, and Mr. Reginald Dance's company, which is responsible for the production, is a very capable one. As Raffles himself Mr. Lewis Edgeard is very fine, depicting just such a polished and charming scoundrel as one would imagine Mr. Hornung's hero to be. Mr. C. Kean is good as Mr. Curtis Bedford, and Mr. Arthur Bell is a delightful Bunny. Miss Frances Titteradge is very charming as Gwendoline Conron, and Miss Brenda Gibson gives a capital representation of Mrs. Vidal. Raffles is preceded each evening by a delightful comedietta, Jerry and the Sunbeam.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—GRAND THEATRE.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Manager, Mr. H. E. Feather.—Mr. Douglas Bruce's company is appearing here, in The Girl Who Lost Her Character. Miss Violet Ennis Lawson take the rôle of the wronged woman, Mollie Vernon, with powerful effect; Mr. Richard Ferris does ample justice to the part of Captain Caversham; Mr. Edward Maclean faithfully portrays the character of the Rev. Robert Everton; and Miss Sybil Hare is a fascinating Rose Seymour.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. A. E. Dobney.—Nat Clifford is paying a return visit; the Westwoods give a brilliant cycling turn; the Osram Trio are funny in their absurdity, entitled Rent; and an acceptable musical turn is provided by Francis Earle, banjo soloist. Cliff and Keen are capable comedy artists; and the Two Rubies also take well. Leo Trainor, comedian, and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux complete the bill.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE.—KNIGHTSTONE PAVILION AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. W. Payne.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company opened on Monday, in The Silver King. Mr. Sidney T. Pease gave a powerful and most artistic interpretation of Wilfred Denver; Mr. Chas. Freeman was villainous without exaggerating the character of Captain Herbert Skinner; an exceptionally fine character sketch of Daniel Jaikes was given by Mr. Tom Paulton; Mr. Harry Colbeck humourously portrayed Henry Corket; a most praiseworthy performance was the Elijah Coombe of Mr. John Detliv; as Samuel Baxter Mr. Robert R. Ashby was decidedly successful; another clever piece of acting was the Cripps of Mr. Charles McCann; and Geoffrey Ware found a capable exponent in Mr. Claude Graveley. Miss Gladys Hastings-Walton showed much dramatic ability in her pathetic rendering of Nelly Denver; as Olive Skinner Miss Dorothea Black did exceedingly well; and Miss Dorothy Love was delightfully natural as Cissie.

WEST STANLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mark H. Lindon; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. Kelly.—Mr. J. Clifton Alderson and company are playing The Coal King here. Mr. Alderson takes the difficult part of Tom Roberts, the mine manager, and Mr. Ulrick is excellent as Reginald Hartford, the coal king. The other parts are all in capable hands.

VICTORIA THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. T. C. Ranes; Stage-Manager, Mr. G. W. Montrose.—Burg, Haud, and Wise head a fine bill here in their acrobatic sketch, Ye Old Brown Cow. The programme also includes Phil Rae, Scotch comedian; Les Alvedos, Continental gymnasts; Stelling and Sterling, American entertainers; Billy Ross and company in their screaming absurdity The Hot Member, introducing boxing, dancing, and singing; and the Vicoscope concludes with the film The Kidnappers.

WHITEHAVEN.—MARKET HALL.—Lessees, The Edison Picture Co.; Manager, Mr. Victor Branford.—The series of pictures here this week include A Fight for Freedom, The Patriot, The Miners, The Missionary's Daughter, A Wild Goose Chase, and The First Experiment. A pleasing break in the programme is made by the Percys, duettists and dancers.

WIDNES.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Jas. Kiddie.—This week Mr. Herbert Ralland's company is here with His House in Order. Mr. J. Herbert Beaumont wins all hearts by his delightful playing of Hilary Jesson; Mr. W. H. Hargreaves is an excellent Filmer Jesson; Mr. Langford Browne is responsible for a fine study of the hypocritical Sir Daniel Ridgeley; Mr. Dudley Stuart is equally successful as Pryce Ridgeley; Mr. Randolfe Reade is well suited with the part of Major Maurewarde; Mr. Richard Dalton is a sound Dr. Dilnott; Mr. Arthur Carlton is good as Forshaw; Miss Kitty Cavendish gives an original and entirely successful reading of the part of Nina; Miss Avis Grahame is a capital Lady Ridgeley; Geraldine is well played by Miss Victoria Wray; Miss Katie Neville is a satisfactory Mlle. Thome; and Miss Peggy Rae does well as Derek.

WIGAN.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Co.—Messrs. E. Lloyd and F. Adair and company are here in Man to Man. Mr. Adair as Richard Ellerton submits his brilliant portrayal of the unworthy son; Miss Louie Adair ably impersonates Ethel Maythorne; George Gordon finds an able exponent in Mr. E. Lloyd; the part of Matthew Ellerton is in the capable hands of Mr. H. Holland, and Mr. R. V. Shane as the mad parson is successful

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Co.—George Leyton, the famous actor-vocalist, and his veterans, who are appearing here, are accorded a big reception in the scena Lucknow; St. George Sylvesta performs some clever tricks; Ernie Myers is as popular as ever; Lily Lonsdale receives quite an ovation for her songs; Gibbon and Bell deserve special mention for their comedy act, Wanted, a Partner; the Sisters Caselli dance themselves into favour; Zellini is a clever juggler; Nellie Lawrence is a vocalist and dancer of much merit, Fred Land an excellent singer of popular songs, and a pleasing turn is supplied by Lozelle.

THE EMPIRE.—Lessees, the New Bioscope Trading Co.; District-Manager, Mr. Gerald Hunt; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. C. Woon.—The pictures this week include The Wreckers, Drunken Pierrot, The Merry Widow Waltz Craze, Magic Ring, Grandfather's Pills, The Perjurer, Oh! that Umbrella, Mephisto's Son, The Dogs' Theatre, The Chauffer's Dream, &c. Charles Dance is a capital comedian and Le Warren introduces some smart ventriloquial numbers.

WOLVERHAMPTON.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles Barnard; Resident-Manager, Mr. Gerald Spencer.—The Wolverhampton Amateur Comedy Operatic Society, in Iolanthe, are giving their annual performances here this week.

EMPIRE PALACE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frank Weston.—Mr. G. H. Chirgwin has the premier position in the bill here; the Three Cunards, in songs and dances, make a hit; Tamamoto, in a wire and rope speciality, performs thrilling tricks; Curwen and Bell, burlesque artists, contribute a smart act; and Kitty Wager, comedienne, Billy Hubbard, comedian, and Fred Poplar, with some excellent films on the Empire Bioscope, are other attractions.

WORCESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Le Wards.—The Worcester Amateur Operatic Society, founded in 1892, are this week giving their twentieth performance, for which The Vicar of Bray, produced by them in 1898, has been revived. The society has to its credit a record of continued success which few amateur societies, operatic or dramatic, have had the good fortune to achieve. The opera has been admirably presented by a strong cast and an equally strong and well-balanced chorus.

WORKSOP.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. S. Goodman.—The latter end of last week Mr. Haldane Crichton's company appeared in The Dandy Fifth. Mr. Haldane Crichton's son, Mr. Jack Crichton, filled the rôle of Trooper Brown in inimitable style, and proved himself a gifted artist; Mr. Percy Baverstock gave a striking illustration of the despotic Colonel; Dick Darvillo was personated by Mr. J. Edward Fraser, who did full justice to his part; Mr. George Beverly was exceedingly funny in the rôle of Sergt. Milligan; Miss Pauline Hague as Kate Lorrimer, "the Merry Madcap," displayed more than ordinary talent; Polly was taken by Miss Nora Morris, whose vivaciousness was appreciated by all present. The staging was pretty and effective, and the choruses were well balanced.

WREXHAM.—EMPIRE MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. John J. Scott.—This week there has been a big attraction, the programme being sustained by Scottie's variety combination, including Napoleon at Waterloo, a stirring military episode; Whizzing the Whirl and The Roley Poley Pillow Fight, introducing Dana Royal; an operatic ballet troupe; Miss Kitty Kearns, comedienne and dancer; Harry Kranlee, clog dancer; and the comedy couple, the Swaddies, military nondescripts.

YORK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. J. Dacre.—Mr. H. Hamilton Stewart and company, in Sherlock Holmes, opened here on Monday. In the title-rôle Mr. Stewart could not be improved upon. His conception must be well-nigh perfect. Mr. Robert Gilbert as Moriarty gave a clever character study, replete with all the light and shade indicative of much study; Mr. Walter A. Chetham was particularly clever as John Forman; and Mr. Arthur Shelton did well as Dr. Watson; the Larabees had able representatives in Miss Edith Vogne and Mr. Mack D. Draper; and Miss Betty Fairfax was at once sympathetic and interesting as Alice Faulkner.

OPERA HOUSE AND EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sidney Brooke.—Lockhart's Elephants are a popular item this week, and are well received; Aunt Matilda is an excellent trifle, which causes much amusement; the Romps are a clever juvenile troupe, who do well; and Julian Mack never fails to amuse with his quaint sayings. Ambrose Thorne sings a couple of catchy songs in first-rate style; Russell Brandow is an excellent dancer; and Eva Compton, Doyle and Gibson, and the Bioscope complete a clever company.

"THE Earl of Oxford," says Grammont, in his Memoirs, "fell in love with a handsome, graceful actress belonging to the Duke's Theatre, who performed to perfection, particularly the part of Roxana in a very fashionable new play; insomuch that she ever after retained that name. This creature being both very virtuous and very modest, or, if you please, wonderfully obstinate, proudly rejected the presents and addresses of the Earl of Oxford. The resistance inflamed his passion; he had recourse to invective, and even spells, but all in vain. This disappointment had such an effect upon him that he could neither eat nor drink. This did not signify to him; but his passion at length became so violent that he could neither play nor smoke. In this extremity Love had recourse to Hymen. The Earl of Oxford, one of the first peers of the realm, is, you know, a very handsome man; he is of the Order of the Garter, which greatly adds to an air naturally noble. In short, from his outward appearance you would really suppose he was possessed of some sense, but as soon as you hear him speak you are perfectly convinced to the contrary. This passionate lover presented her with a promise of marriage in due form, signed with his own hand. She would not, however, rely upon this; but the next day she thought there could be no danger when the Earl himself came to her lodgings, attended by a clergyman and another man for a witness. The marriage was accordingly solemnised with all due ceremonies in the presence of one of her fellow-players, who attended as a witness on her part. You will suppose, perhaps, that the new Countess had nothing to do but to appear at Court according to her rank, and to display the Earl's arms upon her carriage. This was far from being the case. When examination was made concerning the marriage, it was found to be a mere deception; it appeared that the pretended priest was one of my lord's trumpeters, and the witness his kettle-drummer. The parson and his companion never appeared after the ceremony was over, and as for the other witness, he endeavoured to persuade her that the Sultana Roxana might have supposed, in some part or other of a play, that she was married. It was all to no purpose that the poor creature claimed the protection of the laws of God and man, both of which were violated and abused, as well as herself, by this infamous imposition. In vain did she throw herself at the King's feet to demand justice; she had only to rise up again without redress; and happy might she think herself to receive an annuity of one thousand crowns, and to resume the name of Roxana instead of Countess of Oxford."

CHILDREN ON THE STAGE. The Act affecting the employment of children on the stage came into force on Saturday, Oct. 1, 1904. Managers, agents, entrepreneurs, and performers wishing to possess a copy of the complete Act in a concise form can do so by forwarding three stamps to the Publisher, The Era Offices, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

BERLIN, THURSDAY, Oct. 29.—The author—who is known and esteemed for conscientious work—has not made a great hit with his latest play. Although the audience followed all with respectful attention, and even called the author at the close, they were obviously partially bored and partially irritated at the weaknesses of the hero—Graf Tott, the "German Count" of the title. Tott, who lives in Paris in the Louis XV. period, is so devoted to his friend Baron Feri that he sacrifices everything he possesses to him. His self-immolation goes so far that he relinquishes fortune and the woman he loves in favour of Feri, and after passing his days under various clouds—all to benefit his friend—he finally permits himself to be killed in a duel to save the honour, or rather reputation, of Feri's unworthy wife. To enter into details would be superfluous, as the piece—despite excellent acting—will scarcely enjoy anything approaching popularity.

OF stars of magnitude we have had several. At the Royal Opera Caruso celebrated customary triumphs, his three performances being crowded, at trebled prices. The Kaiser and other Royalties were present, and it would be difficult to say how many times the famous tenor was recalled or how many wreaths he received.

AT the Hebbel Theatre Mme. Sarah Bernhardt gave a series of six performances, which were, on the whole, poorly attended. Those that interested most were Adrienne Lecouvreur—the artist's own play—Porto Riches' Le Passé, and the good old favourite La Dame aux Camélias, in which Mme. Bernhardt was very finely seconded by M. Jean Angelo as Armand.

SIGNOR GRASSO and his Sicilian company have departed, after, it is to be feared, not a very successful season. The Sicilian dialect in which all the plays were acted is, I am told, difficult of comprehension to Italians themselves, so that what it presented in the way of difficulties to a German audience may be imagined. Signora Aguglia at the Neues Theatre did perhaps a little better business, but a great success did not result. The actress gave on one occasion the rôle of Santuzza in Verga's drama Cavalleria Rusticana (from which Mascagni drew the theme of his immortal opera), and in this she and her partner Majorana (as Alfio) made a decided hit. Perhaps the most successful was a wildly tragic play, La Peccatrice, by Guimera, in which Signora Aguglia has occasion to develop her remarkable powers. She carried her audience with her breathlessly, and was warmly applauded.

MME. DUSE plays at the Deutsches Chamber Playhouse to-night in Ibsen's John Gabrielle Borkmann for the first time, followed by a performance to-morrow of Hedda Gabler.

FRAULEIN DESTINN, who was announced to sing the rôle of Carmen at the Royal Opera last week, was unfortunately not sufficiently well to appear, and many hundreds were disappointed, more especially as the famous artist is so soon to leave us. Miss Geraldine Farrar and Signors Caruso and Scotti left Bremen on Monday for New York.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BERLIN, THURSDAY, NOV. 5.—This lightly-put-together little work met with as cordial a reception as any other in the bill of the clever peasant company. It is in the Schliersee Tyrolean dialect—as are all the others—and requires one's whole attention to catch the swing of it at the beginning. When one is fully launched and the ear has become accustomed, there is nothing more delightful—by way of a complete change—than one of Xaver Terofal's plays, and this opinion is shared by the Kaiser, who has been twice to see them, and never misses attendance every season. The "village secret" (in High German "Das Dorf-Geheimnis")—in reality there are two secrets—is a very simple affair; it is not the plot, but the milieu—the natural peasant characters, the singing, dancing, and mountaineers' merriment—that carries the piece, to say nothing of the first-rate acting of the entire cast, with the "peasant" manager, Herr Terofal, and his family leading the way. Asinger, the village tailor, is bankrupt, and a fraudulent one into the bargain. Before being sold up he wishes to place several bales of stuff in safety, and to this purpose he takes the "Ruppenhof Bauer"—or peasant-owner of the little farm Ruppenhof—into his confidence, promising him a good sum of money to conceal the goods. This is secret No. 1. The second is of a more delicate nature. Kathrin, the Ruppenhof owner's only daughter, is hated by the farm-hands for her tyrannical, malicious nature, and, above all, because she is a thorough-paced hypocrite and bigot, posing as a saint before the village priest. Ferdl, the smart young farmer who works for the Ruppenhof Bauer, swears a horrible humiliation for poor Kathrin. He makes love to her, gains her heart and person, and leaves her alone to face the consequences. Both these secrets are discovered by Hannei, the village vagabond, who trades upon everyone concerned, making a nice little income by blackmailing. Being a comedy, everything comes right before the curtain falls; Ferdl discovers he loves Kathrin after all, and it turns out he is a natural son of the clever old rascal Hannei. All ends with customary jodeling and horn-piping, and the audience cheer their handsome favourite Terofal with unbounded enthusiasm. It is with general regret that we learn the Schlierseers will only be with us another week.

UNDER the title Musik one of the most distasteful plays it has ever been my lot to witness was produced on Saturday at the Kleines. Frank Wedekind—the author of Spring's Awakening, Hidalla, and other impossible dramas—is responsible for it. The author shows us a picture he would have us believe is—partly, at least—representative of certain phases of the musical world. The villain—Reissner is his name—is a singing-master, who ruins his talented pupil Clara. The girl is sentenced to a term of imprisonment, which is later on condoned, and she returns to Reissner, whose wife loads her young rival with civilities—why, is not quite apparent. This time Clara is eager to become a mother and bring up the child; but it dies, and she loses her reason. The villainous singing professor gets off scot-free, and preserves the utmost equanimity throughout. The bad piece was well acted, which was the only thing to be said in its favour. On alternate nights Lady Frederick pursues its successful career, reaching on Saturday its twenty-fifth performance.

HERR ALEXANDER GIRADI, the clever Austrian comedian, commenced a season at the Thalia last week in a new musical volks-play, entitled Das liebe Ich, by C. Karlweis. The piece is highly fantastic, but affords admirable scope for Giradi's versatile talents. He gives the rôle of a tradesman named Florian Heindl, who is a tyrant and an egotist and disliked by everybody around him. The fairies decide to convert him by a dream, which fills the whole of the second and third acts. Here he sees the consequences of his hard-heartedness: his family turn against him; his friends desert him—one takes his life on account of Heindl's persecutions. The poor wretch is consumed with horror and remorse, and finally becomes a wretched old beggar at his servant's door. In the fourth act comes the awakening—the glad return to the prosperous realities of life; and Heindl is another man. The lesson has been learnt. Herr Giradi acted each phase of the grateful rôle splendidly, and was rewarded by repeated bursts of applause by open stage. The Thalia company supported the star very adequately, and the mounting was all that could be desired. Eysler's operetta Bruder Straubinger has also been put in the bill for Giradi, who sings as well as he acts, and receives flowers in quantities that any prima donna might envy.

"DAS FRAULEIN IN SCHWARZ," Lothar Schmidt's new comedy, is still in the New Schauspielhaus bill. The lady in black is a circus dancer who in summer rusticates in the country, but in winter is famous in many capitals for the black tights she wears as a contrast to the whiteness of her skin. A very proper young gentleman falls in love with her in the country—but falls out again on seeing her in the winter at a circus. She aids him in this by saying farewell of her own accord to the prig, and marries a large-hearted adoring clown. It is a brightly-written little piece, the scene of which is laid in France, and it was thoroughly well acted and staged.

SIGNORA DUSE'S two performances at the Deutsches were well attended. The performance of Hedda Gabler, however, apart from the title-rôle, left much to be desired. As one of our best critics observes: "One wants to see the drama acted—not only the name-part."

A REAL CURE AT LAST FOR RHEUMATISM

SCIATICA, LUMBAGO, NEURALGIA, AND GOUT.

Used in the Great Continental Hospitals.

Stone's Salve has been used by thousands on the Continent during the past fifty years for Uric Acid troubles. Its curative effect is certain: the testimonials to its merits from chronic sufferers showing results almost miraculous. Stone's Salve is applied externally, at or near the seat of the pain. It does not relieve, like a liniment, by counter irritation. Stone's Salve penetrates the skin, is absorbed into the system, and dissolves the cause of Rheumatic and similar pains, viz., the uric acid. The result is a complete cure in the only way Rheumatism can be cured—by the elimination of the acid from the system. Stone's Salve cures the worst long-standing cases.

STONE'S SALVE

FOR EXTERNAL TREATMENT ONLY.

Do not let anything deter you from trying this great Cure.

CAMPAIGNERS AT THE COURT.

Beauty and valour were conspicuous at the Court on Monday, the former by leading actresses who sold programmes, and the latter by a number of grizzled veterans who officiated at the doors. The theatre was kindly lent by Miss Mouillot for performances on behalf of the Veterans' Club Employment Bureau, and the programme comprised three one-act pieces, in all of which the military or naval element was prominent. The first was the admirable little piece called Pride of Regiment, with which Mr. F. D. Bone recently achieved a name, and its presentation again aroused enthusiasm. Mr. Charles Rock repeated his sterling performance of the old martinet which he gave on the original production of the piece at the Haymarket; and Miss Cecily Richards admirably realised once more the patient and long-suffering wife, moved at length to desperation by the sore treatment meted out to her boy. Mr. Arthur Wontner drew an eloquently pathetic picture of the discharged soldier who "struck a sergeant," his make-up and delivery being equally skilful.

The other playlets were novelties, and the first to be presented was a play in one act by Major W. P. Drury, entitled

"A KING'S HARD BARGAIN."

James Vinnicombe .....Mr. Fisher White
John Collins .....Mr. E. W. Tarver
Mrs. Pagett .....Miss Mary Brough
Harry Quick .....Mr. Frederick Volpe
Joseph Pagett .....Mr. Louis Calvert
Loveday Yeo .....Miss Beatrice Ferrar
Pincher Martin .....Mr. Orlando Barnett
Albert Shillitoe .....Mr. Philip Knox
William Wix .....Mr. Clarence Derwent
Seth Penhelligan .....Mr. Guy Cary

Major Drury, as is well known, is the part-author of The Flag Lieutenant, which is going so successfully at the Playhouse, and the relation of the above-mentioned piece to the same class of dramatic art is evident. It is constructed in two scenes, and has an engrossing story, the climax of which, however, makes greater demands on the credulity of the audience than its value to the piece warrants. It tells how Joseph Pagett, an old Army reservist, has "mental sympathy" with Albert Shillitoe, a young Marine who is in service on H.M.S. Belligerant. Joseph, who is the landlord of an inn on the coast, goes to sleep, and in his dream is revealed an extraordinary scene on board the Belligerent, which has come into collision and is going down, with Albert and three of his mates shut up by mistake in a watertight compartment. Albert is a ne'er-do-well and one of the King's "hard bargains," but when he learns that the air in the compartment will last four hours and the lantern will burn for only ten minutes, he divides his supply of laudanum between his three comrades, who sink to sleep, leaving Albert to await death in the appalling darkness. The scene changes back to the inn, and shows Joe Pagett awakening to learn the news of the disaster and to give the tidings of Albert's self-sacrifice. The acting of the playlet was remarkable chiefly for the humorous acting of Mr. Louis Calvert as the reservist innkeeper, whom he represented with a wealth of power and comic expression, and for the old farm labourer of Mr. Fisher White, who gave a deliciously droll study which gained for him a special round of applause. Mr. Frederick Volpe made a hearty and rollicking bluejacket of Harry Quick; and merit was also conspicuous in the rendering of the title-rôle by Mr. Philip Knox, and in the Private Wix of Mr. Clarence Derwent. Miss Beatrice Ferrar played with much graceful sympathy as Albert's sweetheart, and Miss Mary Brough was the cause of merriment as the innkeeper's wife.

The second new piece was from the pen of Mr. Bone, and was called

"PRIVATE NOBODY."

The Corporal .....Mr. Halliwell-Hobbes
'Arry .....Mr. Morris Harvey
Billy .....Master Francis Walker
Clara .....Miss Beatrice Terry

A grimly humorous commentary on the petty tyranny of the non-commissioned officer in the Army is made in the above playlet, which has many clever lines, and can boast some originality. Misfortune has overtaken 'Arry the private, for someone has "done him a shot in the eye," by which he has incurred official displeasure, and is condemned to clean up his kit while the annual sports are in progress. Added to that, his sweetheart Clara is waiting outside the barrack-square for him to take her to the sports. With one of his two remaining half-crowns 'Arry bribes the Corporal in charge to pass his work, but his sacrifice is in vain. Clara, by no means pleased at being kept waiting, makes her appearance, and enters by the window. Before 'Arry has time to effect a reconciliation the Corporal returns and makes love to Clara. 'Arry resents such interference and there is a set-to, with the result that 'Arry is "knocked out," while the Corporal carries off his sweetheart. The Cockney oddities of speech were well assumed by Mr. Morris Harvey, who caused much laughter; and Mr. Halliwell-Hobbes was a comical specimen of a bullying Corporal puffed up by a sense of his own importance. Miss Beatrice Terry was a prettily coquettish Clara; and as a bugler boy Master Francis Walker was amusing.

The attractions of Monday's performance were added to by the appearance of Sir Charles Santley, who received an affectionate welcome, and sang "Hearts of Oak" with all the fire and finish of yore. He was warmly recalled, and for an encore gave the quaint ballad "Here's a health unto His Majesty." During an interval Miss Mouillot was called to the footlights, and, after being enthusiastically cheered, was presented with a handsome bouquet of roses by Major Arthur Haggard, who expressed the thanks of the committee of the Bureau. Major-General Sir Alfred Turner added his thanks to Miss Mouillot and to all who had assisted in the success of the performance. Sir Alfred said the members of the theatrical profession were more noted for their charitable works than those of any other calling, and applied the famous mercy speech from The Merchant of Venice to their abounding works of philanthropy.

The programme of Monday was repeated on Tuesday afternoon, with the exception that Private Nobody was replaced by a new one-act play by F. D. Bone entitled

"THE TOPSIDE DOG."

Pensioner Robert Boiler ..Mr. Edward Rigby
Pensioner James Bates ..Mr. Edmund Gwenn
Mrs. Boiler .....Miss Agnes Thomas

A familiar theme is treated with much freshness and vigour in The Topside Dog, which introduces Pensioner Robert Boiler, at one time the champion wrestler of his regiment, but now the downtrodden husband of a virago. He receives a visit from an old comrade, who plies him with whisky and induces him to rebel against feminine supremacy. Boiler asserts his claim to be "top-dog" with much success while his friend is present, and drives his wife to tears; but no sooner does he lose support than he capitulates, and is reduced to a state more abject than before. A cleverly coloured and irresistibly funny rendering of the hen-pecked old pensioner was given by Mr. Edward Rigby; and Mr. Edmund Gwenn furnished a breezy contrast as his old comrade. Miss Agnes Thomas gave a capital characterisation of the shrew. The pleasure of the audience on Tuesday was added to by the appearance of Mrs. Beerbohm Tree, who recited Rudyard Kipling's "Soldier, Soldier" with eloquent expression, and responded to an undeniable encore with the tale of George Washington and the cherry-tree as told to a youngster of an enquiring turn of mind. The intervals at both performances were rendered enjoyable by the playing by Lieut. Forrest's orchestral band of some well-chosen music.

"LITTLE NEMO."

(FROM OUR NEW YORK CORRESPONDENT.)

Founded on Winsor McKay's cartoons in the comic supplement of a Sunday newspaper, and produced by Messrs. Klaw and Erlanger at their beautiful New Amsterdam Theatre on the 20th ult., this musical comedy, in three acts (book by Harry B. Smith, music by Victor Herbert), has scored a big success. Messrs. Klaw and Erlanger always do things on a sumptuous scale, and in this instance they have excelled themselves. A brilliant spectacle and a lively and amusing entertainment, Little Nemo will remain at the New Amsterdam for a long period.

The opening scene shows the playroom of the Little Princess in Slumberland. The Little Princess longs for a playmate, and the Candy Kid is sent by her father, King Morpheus, to help her to find one. They turn the pages of an immense picture-book, in which the various characters of fairy lore are disclosed, each one having a living representative, who emerges from the book as his or her name is mentioned in the song called "The happy land of Once-upon-a-time." Little Nemo is the one selected. King Morpheus has kept himself youthful by taking a certain elixir compounded by Dr. Pill. The Dancing Missionary, who does not approve of drugs, steals the elixir, and, by the tradition of Slumberland, it can only be recovered by a mortal child brought from earth. The second scene discloses the playground of a city park. Dr. Pill appears as a fairy policeman who, for past interference with children, is condemned to be good-natured and help them in their games. Flip, nephew of the Guard of Dawn, insists upon being leader, and Little Nemo thrashes him. The children are about to choose a Queen when the Little Princess enters in her chariot, drawn by "Teddy" bears, and the children choose her. She has come to take Little Nemo to Slumberland, but Flip thwarts her and persuades the youngsters to go to an automobile race. Little Nemo, however, falls asleep in the trunk of a hollow tree, where Dr. Pill finds him and takes the little dreamer home in his arms.

The scene changes to Little Nemo's bedroom, which is vacant. Mrs. Nemo sits by his cot, and wonders what has become of him. Dr. Pill enters and encounters Gladys the Cat. The doctor puts Little Nemo to bed, and proceeds to turn on all the noises because his charge is a New York boy, and cannot sleep unless there is plenty of noise Flip suddenly makes his appearance from a trunk, but the Cat chases him back and awakens Nemo, who lifts the lid of the trunk and discovers Flip. The intruder contrives to get Nemo into the trunk and slams down the lid. Then he puts on pyjamas and takes Nemo's place in the bed. The Candy Kid comes to guide Little Nemo to Slumberland, and is about to take Flip when the Cat opens the trunk and releases Nemo. Flip is driven off, and Nemo departs with his guide, the next scene representing the Land of St. Valentine, through which they must pass. Herein is encountered the Valentine Fairy, with her fascinating wares. One of the valentines discloses the Little Princess, who eagerly awaits her playmate, and the Candy Kid tells her that he has succeeded in his quest. Flip appears on the scene again, and tries to supplant Nemo, but is indignantly rejected by the Little Princess, who accepts Nemo, this ending the first act.

The second act begins in the office of the Weather Factory in Cloudland, which is in charge of the Barometer Girl and the Weather Vane. Flip appears, and takes the first opportunity of turning on a terrible storm to wreck the Ship of Dreams, on which Nemo has sailed for Slumberland. The wreck of the ship is shown, the next scene representing the Isle of Table d'Hôte, where Nemo and his party are captured by savages. The Cannibal King offers to spare them if they will provide him with some new amusement. Nemo brings to life a box of soldiers, and improvises a minstrel show, but the King is not satisfied, and is about to imprison the captives in the royal refrigerator when the animated soldiers come to the rescue. Dr. Pill, Flip, and Dr. Healem have been hunting in the jungle, and they describe their adventures. Noting the ennui of the King, they provide a wrestling match for his amusement and a travesty of the Olympian Games. Again the scene changes and shows Little Nemo in his bedroom, where he dreams of the "glorious Fourth," and joins in a joyous celebration of Independence Day. Thus the second act ends with a patriotic spectacle which includes a display of fireworks and the chiming of the Liberty Bell. Nemo and his companions are rescued from the cannibals by King Morpheus's battleship and become part of the crew. The deck of the ship is shown at the opening of the third act. Dr. Pill and the Missionary reach the ship by means of a balloon. After various adventures, Slumberland, the beautiful Country of Dreams, is reached in safety, and Nemo is welcomed by the Little Princess. And although Messrs. Klaw and Erlanger have called their production neither an extravaganza nor a pantomime, but a musical comedy, the time-honoured "transformation scene" crops up all the same at the end. In this case it shows what passes through the mind of old King Morpheus when he indulges in a few dreams on his own account.

Master Gabriel, who appears as Little Nemo, is a mere child in appearance, being less than three feet high, but he is twenty-six years old, and a cleverer little chap it would be hard to find. He is a host in himself, and sustains his rôle with the authority of an experienced actor three times his size. Neither dwarfish nor disproportioned, he merely appears to be a juvenile prodigy, and one enjoys his performance because there is nothing about him to suggest the unpleasantly unnatural. Messrs. Joseph Cawthorn, Billy B. Van, and Harry Kelly, who appear as Dr. Pill, Flip, and the Dancing Missionary respectively, are a lively and diverting trio, and thanks to their efforts the rich vein of comedy that runs through the entire production yields amusement not only to the youngsters but to the children of larger growth. Messrs. Collins and Hart perform as a pair of Olympian wrestlers, and Mr. Dave Abrams, who has not been long enough in America to be entirely forgotten in London, represents a cat, a bear, and a squirrel with his usual agility and cleverness.

Mr. Victor Herbert has composed a fine score, the opening chorus, "Give us a fleet," in the third act, being a particularly stirring and melodious number.

GREENWICH THEATRE.

On Monday, Nov. 2, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Miller Anderson, entitled

"THE ACE OF SPADES."

This is the second week of the visit of Mr. Miller Anderson and Miss Mabel Mannering to this theatre, and both have become warm favourites. The Ace of Spades is a good play well acted. Miss Mannering makes a great success as Marion, a part with which she thoroughly identifies herself. Miss Margaret Murch is an attractive Violet Harcourt; Miss Olive Lloyd is a vivacious Lucy; Mr. Miller Anderson is an excellent exponent of the rôle of Dick Beverley; Mr. Walter Long is very good as George Mitchell; Mr. Robert Faulken is a smart and convincing Paul Varley; Mr. Albert Rogers is very successful as Binks; and Mr. Finn Doyle is an excellent Mike O'Flagherty. Mr. Fred Elvin gives a capital performance of David Stock. The play is well dressed and mounted; and some excellent pictures are shown of the Bioscope.

"The Era" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

PROVINCIAL BUSINESS MANAGER.

MR. REX SUGDEN.

The popular actor-manager who controls the Empire Theatre, Douglas, in the interest of Mr. Charles Dare, has had a very strenuous career. He is a very clever and capable manager, has had great experience, and knows all the theatrical ropes. Mr. Rex Sugden, born in Yorkshire, was educated at Mirfield Grammar School, won a five years' scholarship, and having made up his mind to seek a career on the concert platform and the lyric stage, he studied under John Batchelder, the well-known voice producer in Manchester, for two years. During this period he was in the choir of the Church of the Holy Name when Mr. Leslie Stuart was the organist. Then Mr. Sugden got into touch with Mr. John Tiller, who secured him an engagement with Oswald Stoll's "Half Moon Minstrels," and as a member of the Wandering Minstrels Trio he appeared at all the halls piloted by Mr. Stoll. Next grand opera appealed to him, and he played the principal tenor parts with the Brescian Grand Opera companies, the Neilson combination, and Mr. Arthur Rousbey. Then musical comedy with Mr. Lawrence Daly's Cissie company, and next a season with Sam Hague's minstrels at the St. James's Hall, Liverpool, and tour. Then followed Mr. George Chirgwin's concert party, and six seasons with J. Gar Kiddie's pantomimes and burlesque. In 1903 Mr. Sugden produced the pantomime Cinderella for Mr. Will Sley. His next adventure was with Messrs. Adeler and Sutton, for whom he opened the Olympia Gardens, Rock Ferry. He was for a time general-manager at Collins's Music Hall; at the King's Theatre, Kirkcaldy, which he opened for Mr. R. C. Buchanan, and at the Theatre Royal, Jarrow-on-Tyne for Mr. Hugh Robertson. Now he represents Mr. Charles Dare at the Empire Theatre, Douglas, which is the only place of amusement open all the year round in Hall Caine Land. Mr. Rex Sugden is young, and an enthusiast at his calling. He is persona grata to the Manx people, and the financial and artistic success of the Empire must be as gratifying to Mr. Charles Dare as to himself.

AMUSEMENTS IN ROTTERDAM.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

ROTTERDAM, Nov. 4.—Since my last letter, Manager Van Eysden has put on two new programmes at the Grand Theatre, the first having been the bright and sparkling comedy from the German of Blumenthal and Kadelburg, given in Dutch, under the title of De Laatste Vonk (The Last Spark). The comedy is one of the recent successes of the Royal Schauspielhaus in Berlin, and no wonder, for it is most pleasing and amusing, partaking of the light comedy nature without degenerating to broad farce. Full justice was done to it by the different members of the excellent company of the Grand, the signal and special triumph being for Mr. de Yong in the leading rôle, that of a mature, and yet irrepressible, ladykiller. Mr. de Yong presented a most evenly, well-balanced conception of the character, displaying notable versatility and ease, his light comedy vein being at its happiest in the third and final act. The second production, and which now holds the boards, is Echtscheiding (Divorce), or, say, the new play of Bourget and Cury, adapted from Bourget's novel, "Un Divorce." The cast was all that could be desired, and good acting was done by Mesdames Van Eysden, Tartaud, and Coelingh, and Messrs. Tartaud, Lugt, Meisert, and Vervoorn. Praise is due to the scenic artist, Mr. Poutsma, for the exquisite setting of the last act.

The Dutch Dramatic Company of Amsterdam has presented two works of Heyermans, De Meid (The Servant) and Het Feest (The Feast). The first is a two-act play and the second a sketch of prison life in one act. The plot of De Meid turns on the hatred of a servant for her mistress. In the master's absence she gets possession of a letter which compromises the wifely honour of her abhorred mistress. Using this letter as an instrument, the designing creature holds the tortured wife in her power, taking every possible advantage of her position, until finally the husband discovers her base extortion, and, after forgiving his repentant wife, dismisses the intriguing menial. The scenes are strong and dramatic, in particular the one in which the wife makes her avowal to her heart-broken husband. There is a vein of caustic humour running through other scenes, as, for instance, that of the jollification held by the servant and her cronies while her master and mistress are out. The acting was capital. Mrs. de Boer van Ryk as the servant, Mrs. Van der Horst as the wife, and Mr. Post as the husband deserve unstinted eulogy.

Performances by the new Dutch Opera and Comic Opera Company have been given on "off nights" at the Grand. We have had the pleasure of hearing Faust, Mignon, and De Fideele Boer. In Faust the lion's share of the applause fell to Mrs. Engelen-Sewing as Marguerite and Mr. Orelio as Mephisto. In Mignon Mrs. Engelen-Sewing won a triumph as Philina, the "Polacca" of the third act being a brilliant bit of vocalisation. The merry operetta De Fideele Boer was appreciatively received, the music proving tuneful and catching. Successes were scored by Mrs. Buderman in the rôle of Annamirl and Mr. Kreeft as the fideele boer (the jolly peasant).

After a successful run of Mrs. Warren's Profession, Messrs. Royaards and Stumpff have added Gorki's Nachtasyl to their company's répertoire.

The Queen, accompanied by Queen Maud and the Princess Victoria, witnessed the performance of The Marriages of Mayfair at Drury Lane Theatre on Monday evening.

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

In the presence of the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor (Sir John Bell), Miss Bell, Mr. Alderman and Sheriff F. S. Hanson, Mr. Sheriff J. J. Baddeley, J.P., and an enormous audience, the Guildhall students gave their annual concert and presentation of medals, prizes, and certificates in the Guildhall on Saturday afternoon, Oct. 31. The proceedings commenced with a short concert, in which the choir was heard to much advantage in Dr. Cummings' chorus "Domine Dirige Nos." Miss Audrey Richardson, a talented pupil of M. Johannes Wolff, and winner of the school violin prize 1906, the Tillie Gold Medal 1907, and the Tubbs Bow prize 1908, gave a beautifully-executed violin solo of Wieniawski's (Faust) "Fantasie"; while Miss Mary Anderson, the Lord Mayor's prize winner 1908, and pupil of Mme. Medora Henson, sang the florid music of Fesch's aria "Tu fai la superbetta" with delightful ease and purity of intonation. Another clever student was Miss Evelyn Harrison, whose admirably played piano solo "Etude en Forme de Valse" (Saint-Saëns) was greatly applauded. Miss Harrison is a pupil of Mr. R. Orlando Morgan and school prize winner 1904, the School Accompanying prize winner 1906, the Lady Mayoress prize 1907, and the Lady Jenkinson prize winner of 1908. Mr. W. H. Cooper, the School Baritone prize winner 1907, and the Lady Knight prize winner 1908, pupil of Mr. Franklin Clive, displayed an excellent and well trained baritone voice in the aria "Figlia del Ré," from Meyerbeer's L'Africaine; and Mr. Leonard A. Connabeer, pupil of Mr. Henry Such and school prize winner 1905, well deserved his hearty reception for a cleverly played violin solo, "Ballade et Polonaise" (Vieuxtemps). Mr. Connabeer was accompanied by Miss Lois Barker, School Soprano prize winner 1908 and the School Accompanying prize 1908, pupil of Mesdames Armstrong and Bath. The last item in the concert was an able rendering of the great aria "Cujus Animam" ("Stabat Mater"), by Mr. Alfred C. Steed, pupil of Mr. Isidore de Solla. Miss Jenny Hyman, who presided at the pianoforte, also took a school prize for composition on Saturday afternoon.

At the conclusion of the concert Dr. Cummings, the principal, gave his annual address, saying: "The past year has afforded ample evidence of the sound practical teaching given in our school. Public performers who have received their training in the Guildhall School are now engaged in all important festivals and concerts. Our students are diligent and eager to learn, our professors no less painstaking and persevering in imparting the results of their study and matured experience. One important feature in the past year's work has been the distinguished success of our dramatic and operatic classes. The revival of Gluck's opera Iphigenia in Tauris elicited high commendation from competent judges, including the critics of the London Press. We also thank the donors of various prizes, and the professional ladies and gentlemen who have kindly adjudicated in the competitions. Mme. Kirkby Lunn, who awarded the prizes to lady vocalists, was so pleased with the performance in one class that she at once gave an extra prize of three guineas. I should like to call attention to a prize which appears for the first time in our list. It is that for fencing, given by our late chairman, Mr. Paul Alliston." Dr. Cummings, who spoke of the great value of fencing as improving the breathing powers, the nerves, and general physique, had great applause when he mentioned that the prize was won by Miss Ethelmay Barwell-Holbrook, a most distinguished scholar, who had also obtained the opera and elocution prizes as well as a scholarship. Continuing his address, Dr. Cummings said that at a recent public competition of pianoforte players at the Portman Rooms there were sixty-seven competitors, and one of the students, Miss Lily Kennard, eight years old, was adjudicated the best performer and awarded a pianoforte valued at sixty-two guineas. In conclusion the principal remarked: "The Corporation of the City of London have good reason to be proud of the great music school established by them twenty-eight years ago." After the address, Miss Bell, in the absence of the Lady Mayoress through illness, presented the medals and prizes to a large number of the successful students. Among the associates the gold medal went to Mr. Gordon Burgess (for pianoforte), the silver medal for organ was gained by Mr. Joseph Haydn Lee, while Miss E. Robertson won the bronze medal for elocution. There were a host of other prizes, and after the awards Mr. Samuel Alderton, C.C., chairman of the Music Committee, moved a vote of thanks to the Lord Mayor and Miss Bell for their kindness in being present that afternoon. The Lord Mayor, in replying, spoke in a kindly manner of the early days of the Guildhall School of Music, and its present position as one of the largest and best of the music schools. After a vote of thanks to the Sheriffs the proceedings terminated.

In the concert given by the students on Wednesday evening, the first item on the programme was Miss Dorothy Ellis's neatly executed piano solos, "Nocturne," in B flat minor (Chopin), and Weber's "Moto continuo." Miss G. Nelson Ward has not as yet sufficient experience for Gounod's scena, "Far greater in his lowly state," from La Reine de Saba. Schubert's Sonatine for violin and pianoforte, in D, was cleverly played by Miss Florence Minns, who was associated with Mr. Mischa Levin, both performers receiving a hearty recall. Miss Effie Cook sang "Softly awakes my heart," from Saint-Saëns' Samson and Delilah, with ability, but in slightly dragging the time lost the dramatic effect. In Saint-Saëns' piano solo, "Toccata Op. III." Miss K. Ethel Harman, the winner of several prizes, besides the Knill Challenge Cup and silver medal, 1908, played with praiseworthy delicacy of touch, and was loudly applauded. Somewhat above the average in such attempts was Miss De Ferrars' rendering of Verdi's famous Aria, "Ah, fors è lui" (Traviata), the young vocalist having a bright, pure voice, and showing considerable skill in the florid music; but the most successful vocal item on the programme was "I hear you calling me," a simple but effective song by Marshall, which was so well sung by Mr. Reginald Crawford, who made such good and artistic use of his mezza voce that Dr. Cummings had to announce from the platform that encores were not allowed. Miss L. Budds, a blind but clever pupil of Mr. Johannes Wolff, had a warm reception from the audience after her able violin solo of Vieuxtemps' "Suite"; and Mr. William Miller displayed a pleasing voice in "Even bravest heart" (Faust) although the young vocalist must try and avoid a tendency to the vibrato. Miss Helen S. Gall, L.G.S.M., gave a finished performance of Chopin's piano solo, "Scherzo," in C sharp minor; while Miss Florence Dickinson sang "Abide with me," with considerable feeling and expression. A talented pupil of Mr. L. Cairns James recited Mercutio's speech, from Romeo and Juliet, being much applauded.

When Mrs. Griffiths' Platonic Wife was produced, before the first act was over it was seen to be a dead failure. At the end of the third act the performers grew more impatient than the audience; and at last Holland and Powell, thrusting their heads out from opposite sides of the stage, when the "drop" was down, earnestly entreated the spectators to prevent the heavy performance from going any further by damning it then and there.

Mr. William Boosey has contributed the sum of ten guineas to the Playgoers' Club Pantomime Fund for Poor Children.

Miss O'Neill's father was the manager of a small strolling company in Ireland. He was an eccentric of the first water. If any member of his company disappointed him, O'Neill had one speech—"Confusion burst his skull, a blackguard! What will I do? Here, give me a greatcoat, and I'll double his part with my own." The greatcoat was the universal panacea, whatever the general costume of the play might be. If the Ghost in Hamlet complained to Mr. O'Neill of the lack of armour in the wardrobe, the manager would shrug up his shoulders, and after a pause exclaim, "Oh, bother! sure if ye'll put on a greatcoat ye'll do very well." Matters of much greater moment he met with the same indifference. Once proceeding by a barge along a small river, the captain and O'Neill quarrelled, and in the scuffle O'Neill was knocked overboard. He swam to shore, and called out, "Confusion burst your soul! I suppose you thought I couldn't swim." A knot of novices once joined Mr. O'Neill, and having played some time without receiving their pay, they resolved to take proceedings against him. He met the charge with a counter-claim for a considerable sum due to him by them for spoiling all the plays and farces they appeared in. To avoid the exposé they abandoned the claim.

ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

Minutes of the council meeting held at 353, Strand, on Tuesday, Nov. 3. Present:—Mr. Cecil Raleigh (in the chair), Mr. H. W. Mote (hon. solicitor), Messrs. Jackson Wilcox, J. Sebastian Smith, Franklyn Walford, Miss Marion Lind, Miss Lucy Sibley, and Mr. Hubert Blount (secretary). The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

A letter was read from Mr. Charles Cameron suggesting that Dr. Irwin Moore's name be put on the list of honorary consulting physicians, and the secretary was instructed to write to Mr. Cameron to the effect that if Dr. Moore is willing they will be very pleased to elect him one of the hon. medical staff, but there was no vacancy on the hon. consulting staff.

A letter was read from Mr. G. S. Gomme, clerk of the L.C.C., with reference to the registration of theatrical employment agencies, and asking whether the Association would send a deputation to the general sub-committee of the Public Control Committee of the L.C.C. at 3.15 on Friday, Nov. 20. The secretary was instructed to reply that the Council would be pleased to send a deputation consisting of Mr. Cecil Raleigh, Mr. Franklyn Walford, Miss Marion Lind, Miss Lucy Sibley, and Mr. John H. Mote, the hon. solicitor, and that Mr. Raleigh would be very pleased to speak on behalf of such deputation.

A letter was read from Mr. Kenneth Blackmore asking whether the Council would receive a deputation of three members of the committee of the A.U. to discuss certain instances of "cutting" salaries, and the secretary was instructed to reply that the Council would be pleased to receive a deputation on the following Tuesday at 4.30 p.m.

The hon. solicitors reported that they had had interviews and given advice in several cases.

The chairman read a letter from Miss Norah Mahone suggesting that some of the members of the French company playing at Terry's, some of which are personally known to her, be made honorary members of the A.A. during their season. The secretary received instructions to write to Miss Mahone for the names of the ladies and gentlemen, and say that the council would be very pleased to welcome them. The chairman also read a letter bringing to the notice of the Association the distressing circumstances of the Brothers Arnold, and the secretary received instructions to send the correspondence to the V.A.F.

Miss Pattie Brown, proposed by Cecil Raleigh and seconded by Fred Grove, was elected.

The following nominations were made:—Mary Hope, proposed by William Dobell, seconded by Madge Merryweather; Eva Neil, proposed by Langford Reede, seconded by Cecil Yapp; and Julie Galay, proposed by Italia Conti, seconded by Fewlass Llewellyn.

The standard contract was considered and adjourned until the next meeting.

The secretary informed the council that a play had been left with him by a member, asking whether he can place same. He received instructions to write to the member to obtain an authority to hand the play over to persons whom he thought likely to take it, and to free him of any responsibility in the event of loss, &c.

It was decided that members may be permitted to use the windows but not the balcony on Lord Mayor's Day.

The complaint of a member as to the insanitary state of a country theatre was considered, and the secretary was instructed to write to the local sanitary authorities on the subject.

The Council instructed the secretary to make known to the members that he had received instructions to write the following letter to the West-End Managers' Association, and had received the following reply:—

"DEAR SIR,—The council of the Actors' Association would like to ask if the West-End Managers' Association is not of opinion that the time has arrived for a settlement of the long outstanding difficulty of the standard contract. The council of the A.A. are most anxious to deal with the matter, and will be glad to hear the views of the West-End Managers' Association.—Yours faithfully,

"(Signed) HUBERT BLOUNT,
"Secretary."

Reply from the West-End Managers' Association:

"DEAR SIR,—I beg to inform you that your letter of Aug. 19 was read at our meeting yesterday, the 22nd inst., and I was requested to tell you that due note has been taken of the letter, but that the managers do not feel they are in a position to discuss the matter.—Yours faithfully,

"(Signed) J. VEDRENNE."

DRESSES AT THE PLAY.

In Dolly Reforming Herself, at the Haymarket, some exquisite frocks are displayed. Miss Ethel Irving's first gown, of white chiffon velvet, is moulded closely to the figure, fastened down the back with many buttons, and finished just above the waist-line with an Empire sash of pale blue velvet, drawn through a dull gold buckle, so that one wide end droops over the skirt at the side. The chemisette is of embroidery worked in blue and white silk and chenille, and outlined with a fringe formed of miniature loops of silver braid.

Miss Irving's costume in the second and third acts is of rich Ottoman silk in a soft shade of pale hyacinth blue, bordered at the hem of the skirt with sable, and arranged in becoming fashion, with a fine embroidery in blue and silver forming an Empire corsage. The draped berthe and long sleeves are of corn-coloured silk net, embroidered with large silk spots. In the last act Dolly carries on the salutary process of reform in a blue and green tartan skirt and a blue corduroy velvet shooting jacket, worn with a green silk blouse and a turban toque of pointed fox fur, with green Mephisto quills.

Miss Margaret Halstan's first entry is made in pale lilac cashmere, draped with statuesque folds, and trimmed on the bodice with straight bands of cashmere, embroidered in many shades of mauve, and arranged to border a vest of Balkan embroidery, worked in pale tones of pink, green, and gold. The chemisette and long under-sleeves are of tucked white net. Miss Halstan also has a very novel evening frock, with a long Directoire coat in pale pink moiré, over a skirt of finely embroidered silk lace, in a deep shade of cream colour. In the last act she is seen in a delightful coat and skirt costume, in grey cloth, braided with black, and arranged with a fuchsia pink waistcoat. Her grey velvet hat has a draped crown of pink silk beaver, and two very long pink quills.

WHEN G. A. Stevens was a first actor in the Norwich company he performed the part of Horatio in The Fair Penitent. The Calista was a Mrs. B——, who had been long the celebrated heroine in tragedy, and the lady in high life in comedy. Mrs. B——, in her decline, sacrified too often to the intoxicating god. In proportion as the action of the play advanced towards a conclusion, by endeavouring to raise her spirits with a cheerful glass, she became totally unfit to represent the character. In her last scene of Calista it was so long before she died that Stevens, after giving her several hints, cried out, "Why don't you die, you fool?" She retorted, as loud as she could, "You robbed the British mail, you dog!" This spirited dialogue so much amused the audience that much clapping ensued. The manager seeing no end to the merry business, dropped the curtain.

PLAYERS OF THE PERIOD.

MR. ERIC HUDSON.

Originally intended for commercial life, Mr. Eric Hudson spent three years in a merchant's office in the City, during which he obtained some theatrical experience as an amateur. He made his first appearance on the regular stage at the age of nineteen, with Miss Maggie Morton's company. Various other tours with "fit-ups" and minor companies followed, leading to an engagement with Mr. Lester Collingwood to play Old Tom in After Dark. The late Mr. Fred Cooke engaged him to create the part of Tom Hall in The Diver's Luck, the run of which lasted over 900 nights. Then came a long association with Mr. J. W. Whitbread and the late Kennedy Miller for heavy parts in Irish drama, which included the creation of Felix Blake in The Irishman. After this came several tours with Miller and Elliston as the Hop-picker in In the Ranks (one of his most successful impersonations), and in The Grip of Iron; tours as Archdeacon Jellicoe in Arthur Law's Dick Venables; Dr. Rank in A Doll's House; Lipinski in Sutton Vane's drama, Vengeance is Mine, at the Pavilion Theatre, E.; Baxter and stage manager, the late Charles Dornton's Silver King; the principal character part in A Lucky Dog; Svengali in a version of Trilby; and the heavy part in Under Remand, in which he had collaborated with the late Reginald Stockton. Mr. Hudson then joined Messrs. Dottridge and Longden, with whom he remained several years, producing and playing principal character parts in Man's Enemy and Two Little Heroes, in both of which dramas he collaborated with Mr. C. H. Longden. A tour with Mr. Walter Melville to manage and play Guy Brand in Her Second Time on Earth was followed by two and a half years with Mr. J. F. Elliston in leading character parts in Old Kentucky and The Octoroon; a tour with Mr. John Hart in A Queen Without a Crown, one with None but the Brave, one as the Maniac in The World's Verdict, and two with Mr. Blow and Miss Molesworth, At Cripple Creek (all leading character parts), and several special engagements in sketches in the variety theatres, which bring the list up to the present year. Mr. Hudson has also collaborated in several dramas with Mr. Arthur Shirley, notably in The Gayest of the Gay, which Mr. W. W. Kelly is now successfully touring, playing Tab-y-wana in Mr. Herbert

MISS DOLLY HARMER.

Miss Dolly Harmer comes of a theatrical and musical family, her father being the well-known actor Peter Harmer, while her brothers were principal violinists with the late Sir Charles Hallé's orchestra, one brother still being in the orchestra, which is now under the conductorship of Dr. Hans Richter. Miss Harmer was practically born on the stage, and made her first appearance when she was three months old, being carried on in a piece called Jessie Vere, and—so the story goes—upsetting everyone by screaming incessantly. Her first speaking part was little Leah in the play of that name, and of course she played Willie Carlyle in East Lynne and all the usual children's parts. At the age of eleven she essayed the part of Desdemona to the Othello of the celebrated Scotch tragedian Henry Talbot, and had played a round of comedy old women's parts before she was twelve. Her first engagement, as a "principal"—chambermaid, however—was at the Theatre Royal, Stratford, under the management of the late Albert Fredericks. She played there for two years in the stock seasons, and declares that she has that theatre and the able stage-management of Mr. Fred Thomas to thank for most of her experience. At the conclusion of that engagement she joined Miss Janette Steer's company to play the Hon. Cecil Brookfield in Lady Clare—a part in which she revelled. Then came a tour as Bo-peep with John Levey's burlesque company, and after this she joined Mr. Fred Gould's Black Flag company, playing the cabin-boy, Ned. After four tours with this company Miss Harmer created the part of Merrie Prince Hal at the Sadler's Wells Theatre, under the management of "dear old Daddy" Fred Wright, in which play, Huntley, Bertie, and Mrs. Wright all appeared. A tour as Jack in Jack-in-the-Box was followed by several short stock seasons with the late Andrew Melville at the Standard Theatre London, and Grand Theatre, Birmingham, where she played one season entire lead, the next all the chambermaid parts. Then she created the part of Shrove Tuesday in The Span of Life, Sutton Vane's sensational drama, at the Grand Theatre, Islington, and made so great a success that after two English tours she was engaged to play the part in America, where she stayed two seasons, and had many excellent offers to remain. On her return to England she played Blades, a flunkey, in Fred Gould's Father's Oath company. But she had made up her mind to play in musical comedy, and secured an engagement with Mr. William Greet for the title-rôle in The Lady Slavey, a part she played with the greatest success for two years. She was then engaged by Mr. Alexander Loftus for the Lady Journalist in The New Barmaid, and played that rôle for four tours. Then she created the part of Susan in One of the Family, playing it for two tours; and following this came an engagement with Mr. Robert Courtneidge as Martha in the romantic opera Ma Mie Rosette, another part in which she scored greatly. After that she created the part of Lady Maud in Her Majesty's Guests, at the Kennington Theatre, with Mr. Fred Karno's company, and played it for two tours. In pantomime Miss Harmer was a well-known principal boy. She played Robinson Crusoe with Mr. Sidney Cooper for four years; then she was engaged by Mr. Brammall for Miss Marie Lloyd's part, Boy Blue, at the Theatre Royal, Leeds, and was re-engaged for the same character the year following at the Gaiety Theatre, Dublin, and Opera House, Belfast. She then returned to the Theatre Royal, Leeds, and played Selim in Bluebeard, Miss Minnie Palmer being the Fatima. Mr. J. F. Elliston engaged Miss Harmer for Ganem in The Forty Thieves, at the Theatre Royal, Bolton, and the following year she played Robinson Crusoe at the Borough Theatre, Stratford, in Oscar Barrett's Lyceum pantomime. Then came an engagement with Mr. Robert Courtneidge at the Prince's Theatre, Manchester, as one of the Ugly Sisters in Cinderella, and owing to her success she was re-engaged for the same part the following year at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, Birmingham. At the conclusion of this pantomime Miss Harmer made her début in the variety theatres, opening at the Tivoli and Oxford and all the Syndicate halls, where she has appeared each Christmas until this year. Miss Harmer was also a well-known violinist, having played principal second violin in most of the ladies' orchestras. There have been many short special engagements with various managers, amongst them being Mrs. Kennion's Nana tours, Fred Jarman's Little Widow company, Ruth Edwin's répertoire company, and William Stuart's stock season. She has recently returned from South Africa, where she made a gratifying success, and has been re-engaged by Mr. Hyman to return there in June, 1909. From there she will proceed to Australia, under contract with Mr. Harry Rickards

MR. C. MILLEY DOYLE

The subject of this biography commenced his professional career shortly after leaving school with a variety company working the smalls, Mr. Doyle playing in sketches and doing a singing turn. His next experience was the somewhat painful, though very useful, one of "drying up" with a fit-up pantomime company in the Midlands. "After this little experience," he says, "I, for once in my life, took the advice of my friends, and secured a position in a house-agent's office in a South Coast watering-place. I managed to stick at this for a year, during which period I devoted most of my time and attention to running touring companies at the local public hall, and occasionally farming them round the district. This sort of thing, although highly interesting to me, was scarcely beneficial to the house-agency business; consequently, at the end of twelve months, I found it absolutely necessary to give up one pursuit or the other. So, coming to the conclusion, after due consideration, that myself and office work were not exactly cut out for one another, I obtained an engagement with 'The Arcadians,' a company of pastoral players touring the principal watering-places during the summer season." With this company Mr. Doyle played Sylvius in As You Like It, Salanio in The Merchant of Venice, Tom in Mr. H. V. Esmond's One Summer's Day, Zoram in Gilbert's Palace of Truth, &c. After this followed four tours with Mr. Harold V. Neilson's répertoire company, playing Tom Verinder in Sydney Grundy's A Fool's Paradise, Jacob Schwartz, and afterwards Harker, in A Bunch of Violets, Tom Stanhope in The Glass of Fashion, &c., also undertaking the duties of stage-manager. Then came another Shakespearean tour, this time stage-managing and playing Roderigo in Othello, Horatio in Hamlet, &c., and followed by a five months' spring tour on the music halls as business-manager for Mr. Charles S. Kitts and Miss Rhoda Windrum. The summer following this, Mr. Doyle was playing special engagements, including a fortnight with Mr. J. A. Thompson's stock company at Ilfracombe in A Pair of Spectacles and She Stoops to Conquer, and a week with Miss Lizzie Boone as Dudley Harcourt in My Sweetheart. Following on this came autumn and spring tours with Miss Hilda Hatton and Mr. Victor Gardom's company, in Not Peace but a Sword, playing General Wilford and doing business-management, after which he was engaged by Miss Maggie Morton for the part of Ernie Wodstone in Life's Sweetest Sins. At the conclusion of this tour he joined the stock company at the Elephant and Castle Theatre, and while there was engaged by Mr. Henry Chattell to play Willie in Driven from Home for his autumn tour. He then returned to London to undertake Lawyer Quills in Red Riding Hood pantomime at the Elephant and Castle, the management of which also engaged him for their spring stock season.

MR. HAWLEY FRANCKS.

It was in 1885 that Mr. Hawley Francks accomplished his first appearance on the stage, making his début with the Compton Comedy Company. During the two years he was with the Compton Comedy Company he essayed a variety of parts in The School for Scandal, The Rivals, She Stoops to Conquer, The Road to Ruin, Davy Garrick, Wild Oats, and other plays. This included a six months' season at the old Strand Theatre. Soon afterwards he joined Miss Isabel Bateman as stage-manager and principal comedian, and stayed with that lady four years. The répertoire included Jane Shore, Clarissa Harlowe, Leah, Jenny Deans, Green Bushes, East Lynne, &c. Mr. Francks was with Ben Greet for a short time, playing Crabtree in The School for Scandal, Diggory in She Stoops to Conquer, and Adam in As You Like It. After a number of short engagements he joined Miss Fortescue for two seasons as stage-manager, playing Sir Oliver Surface in The School for Scandal, and a number of character and old men parts. Then he went to the Royalty, where he appeared in Sir Ronan's Well and Lady of Lyons. While playing there he had an offer to go to America with Arthur Lloyd in Our Party, and this engagement led to his staying five years in America. There he was engaged by Mr. Chas. Frohman to enact principal comedy in Poor Girls, after which he had a number of engagements in stock companies, playing upwards of fifty rôles. He was then engaged by Miss Julia Marlowe and the late Robert Taber for Sir Andrew Aguecheek (Twelfth Night), Polydor (Ingomar), Peter (Romeo and Juliet), Verges (Much Ado About Nothing), William and Corin As You Like It, Nella (Romola), &c. After two long tours and two seasons in New York with Miss Marlowe's company, and a tour and a season at the Fifth Avenue Theatre with Miss Carrie Turner, Mr. Francks returned to England, and was engaged by H. T. Brickwell, then manager of the Garrick Theatre, to play an American part and stage-manage in Sue. Mr. Francks was for some time stage-manager and principal comedian for Mr.

Martin Harvey, being in some of his London productions, including that of The Only Way at the Lyceum, After All at the Avenue (now the Playhouse), Don Juan's Last Wager at the Apollo, and Sweet Prue at the Court, and also accompanied him on a number of his provincial tours. When Mr. J. H. Leigh produced The Tempest at the Court Mr. Francks was engaged to play Trinculo and stage-manage. He also repeated his old part of Peter there during the revival of Romeo and Juliet. Although generally known as a comedian, Mr. Francks has played serious parts with great success. Mr. Francks is also the author of several plays. His Wanted, a Baby, which was first produced in America, has been on two successful tours. He is part author of From Shadow to Sunshine. Numerous one-act plays and sketches have also come from his pen. He has, moreover, just completed a farcical comedy in three acts, and is now at work on a four-act drama.

MISS JESS DORYNNE.

The first engagement entered into by Miss Jess Dorynne was with Mr. Howard Coveney's Shakespearean and Old Comedy Company, and after that a stock season in Birmingham brought her plenty of experience. Miss Dorynne can say that she has played everything but pantomime—not excepting Ibsen or Bernard Shaw. She was the Mrs. Linden in Miss Janet Achurch's production of The Doll's House, and was with Mr. James Welch in South Africa, where she made a big success as Cousin Kate—her favourite modern part. Subsequently she was engaged by Mr. Benson to play Mistress Page, Queen, Constance Neville, &c., when the lady playing those characters fell ill. Last year Miss Dorynne understudied the woman in The Sixth Commandment, the curtain-raiser which created a strong impression on its production at Wyndham's Theatre in the autumn of 1906. Being then unable to obtain an engagement, Miss Dorynne decided to leave the stage, but at the critical moment an offer came from Mr. Benson for the leading parts in his new company, and she was afterwards engaged by him to understudy Mrs. Benson, and to play Hermia during his Belfast season.

THE following anecdote, doubly interesting in that it concerns the well-known actor, Thomas Sheridan, and the two celebrated beauties, is given in the "Diary of a Lady of Quality":—"Mrs. Gunning consulted Sheridan as to what she should do with her two beautiful but penniless daughters. He recommended that they should be presented at the Castle. Here a great difficulty occurred—by what possible means were they to procure Court dresses? This Sheridan obviated. He was at the time manager of the Dublin Theatre, and offered them a loan of the stage dresses of Lady Macbeth and Juliet. In these they appeared most lovely; and Sheridan, after having attended the toilet, claimed a salute from each as his reward. Very soon after this a most diabolical scheme was formed by some unprincipled young men: they invited Mrs. Gunning and her two daughters to dinner, and infused strong narcotics into the wine, intending to take advantage of the intoxication which must ensue to carry off the two young women. Fortunately, Sheridan discovered their base designs, and arrived just in time to rescue the ladies. He lived to see one of these girls Duchess of Argyll, and the other Countess of Coventry; and, it is melancholy to add, lived to see his application for admission to their parties rejected."

ACTORS' UNION.

The usual committee meeting of the Actors' Union took place at 49, Bedford-street, on the 29th ult., when the following were present:—Messrs. Cecil G. Calvert (chairman), Robert M. Taylor, A. Maitland Stapley, F. Rawson Buckley, Leslie Arthur, Gerald Mirrielees, William H. Bulbeck (hon. solicitor), and Kenneth Blackmore (secretary). Letters were received from Messrs. Edward Chester, Arthur Bawtree, Jerrold Heather, W. Ruddle Brown, Fred F. Loyd, Frank S. Strickland, George P. Lester, Royce Milton, George H. Child, J. Hastings Batson, Harry Paulton, jun., Henry Bedford, and E. Howard Templeton.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

It was decided to invite Messrs. J. A. Bentham, Leonard Calvert, Robert Whyte, jun., and Walter L. Rignold to serve on the committee.

The hon. solicitor attended the meeting to report on four cases which had been submitted to him, and the secretary was instructed to advise the members concerned accordingly.

A complaint having been received from a member with reference to the insanitary condition of a theatre, the secretary was instructed to write to the proprietor and draw his attention to the matters complained of.

It was decided that the following letter written by the secretary to the office with reference to the Trades Union Congress at Nottingham be published:—

"Mechanics' Institution, Nottingham.
"Sept. 8, 1908.

"DEAR MR. ARTHUR,—I should like you to place before the committee on Thursday next the following facts which led up to my withdrawing the resolution standing in the joint names of the Artists' Protection League and the Actors' Union.

"It appears that directly after the election of the General Purposes Committee of the Congress the Variety Artists' Federation lodged a protest against the Artists' Protection League being allowed to sit, and its delegate was requested to attend before the General Purposes Committee, when an enquiry was held as to the bonâ-fides of the society, with the result that the credentials of its delegates were cancelled. It then rested with me to put the resolution to Congress, but it transpired that the Variety Artists' Federation would offer the strongest opposition to the motion, and would question my right to deal with matters concerning music halls, which, they contended, should be dealt with by their society, but that they would offer no opposition to the resolution if the words 'and music halls' were deleted. If this had been done, the whole point of our motion would have been lost, as it provided for free trade in amusements. The Variety Artists' Federation contended that the double licence would not be to their best interests as, in the event of a strike, the music hall managers would engage companies to play at the halls while the strike lasted, and would thus have defeated the objects of the movement. Then, again, it was pointed out to me that the resolution was badly worded, inasmuch as the work necessitated by it would fall almost entirely on the shoulders of the Parliamentary Committee, and we ought only to have asked for the assistance of the P.C. and not have left the spade-work to that body. Under the circumstances I did not feel justified in submitting the resolution to Congress. It would undoubtedly have been defeated, and, in the best interests of the A.U., I withdrew it.—Yours, &c.,

"KENNETH BLACKMORE."

The question of another A.U. dinner was held over until the following Thursday.
